Revolt Against Sukarno Is Crushed

Auto Pact Approved By U.S. Senate

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The agreement between Canada and the United States to integrate the North American automotive industry was approved by the U.S. Senate Thursday, despite two surprisingly strong moves to delay it.

A vote of 54 to 38 in the 100-seat chamber sent the enabling legislation back to the House of Representatives for acceptance of amendments.

But the margin was much closer on two moves to hold the bill up for further scrutiny by the U.S. Tariff Commission. The 43 - seat House had approved it by a margin of better than two to one with one amendment, which the Senate revised.

If the House cannot accept the Senate amendments, none of which knocks down the principle at stake, a House-Senate conference will try to work out a compromise bill to be sent to President Johnson for signing.

TO AID INDUSTRY

This is what the agreement means:

1. Canada seeks a larger slice of the U.S. market over the first three years of the agreement — six per cent of North American output instead of four per cent currently—to strengthen its own higher-cost, lower - volume industry. Canadian consumption equals about

Profiteers Prey Upon Survivors

By MICHAEL MARABUT

MANILA (Reuters) — President Diosdado Macapagal today clamped down on hoarders and profiteers who he said were threatening the Taal volcano disaster area with famine.

Stringent rules forbidding either hoarding by stores or selling at excessive prices came as no American expert warned that new and bigger eruptions which could "obliterate" most of a province might be expected from Taal.

The volcano's first eruption last week cost a known total of 209 lives. But Feliciano Leviste, governor of Batangas province, the site of the disaster, was quoted today in The Manilla Times as saying the full death toll might actually be as high as 2,000.

Refugees from the still-threatened area now total 60,000, and Red Cross and government agencies are rushing relief supplies to evacuation centres. The Volcano continued to smolder, and earth tremors have roused fears of new eruptions.

Travelling Pope Seems Different, Warmer Man

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope Paul North Americans will see may appear to be a vastly different man from the Pope Paul Romans see.

Travel does things to him.

In the Holy Land and India, he seemed to be a warmer man, responding to the crowds around him and evoking a response.

At home, in his own diocese of Rome, he is often taken for granted. The crowds are used to seeing Popes.

Those who know Pope Paul say he is a warm but basically shy person who finds it difficult to stir a crowd without some help from the crowd itself.

When he travels, things are different. He is swept up in meeting new people and seeing new things. The crowds are livelier than Rome's. They haven't seen a Pope before.

"They inspire him, and he inspires them," said a Vatican prelate who travelled with Pope Paul to India and the Holy Land.

Of the 45 years since he became a priest, he has spent 35 in Rome. He was a prominent aide to Popes Pius XI and Pius XII.

But his background is north Italian.

He was born Giovanni Battista (John the Baptist) Montini Sept. 26, 1897, in the northern town of Concesio, 20 miles east of Milan. His father ran a Roman Catholic daily newspaper in nearby Brescia, a journalistic background that Pope Paul has often recalled.

Giovanni Battista Montini was ordained a priest in 1920. After three years of graduate studies in Rome and a year in Warsaw as secretary to the apostolic nuncio (envoy), he entered the Vatican secretariat of state. He rose steadily. Pius XI made him substitute secretary of state in 1937, and Pius XII promoted him to prosecretary of state in 1952.

The career in the secretariat ended after 31 years, when Pius XII sent him north to Milan as archbishop of the most important diocese in Italy outside Rome. He was proclaimed cardinal Dec. 15, 1958.

Eight years later, in June, 1963, Giovanni Battista Montini returned to Rome for the conclave of cardinals that elected him successor to Pope John XXIII.

Pope Paul vowed to continue the policies of John. An example was Paul's decision to order a review of his church's teaching about birth control.

But many are contradictions in his approach to renewal. Paul is cautious in some matters, and his repeated warnings against change for the sake of change seem aimed at braking the renewal drive.

To some, Paul has appeared to be the hesitant intellectual while John had been the impulsive pastor. This does not mean Paul has been less courageous than John.

"Perhaps no act of his pacificate has more eloquently expressed his worthiness to succeed Pope John than his courageous act in accepting the UN invitation," John Cardinal Heenan of England has said.

In going before the UN General Assembly, he is undertaking a mission to a secular world that often has not heeded his appeals for peace, and might ignore him again.

"This is a risk that must be taken," Cardinal Heenan said. "People don't come to us now. We have to go to them."

That has been Pope Paul's approach.

Vatican Council To Recess

By JOHN ORGAN

VATICAN CITY AP— The Vatican ecumenical council today scheduled an unprecedented seven-week recess to give its drafting commissions time to rewrite controversial declarations on religious liberty and modern church problems, including birth control.

The 2,200 cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops assembled in St. Peter's Basilica were told that the council would not meet the week of Oct. 18.

Greek Ship Aground Off Point Traverse

PICTON — A Greek freighter, the S. S. Protostatis, bound for the Atlantic after loading in Toronto, ran aground yesterday approximately three miles out from the south shore of Point Traverse or Long Point.

The freighter, an old Liberty ship, of approximately 7,000 to 10,000 tons, is aground in about 20 feet of water on the north side.

Observers stated that she took a severe beating last night in the heavy seas with winds up to 30 miles per hour. The ship was reported to have swung a little during the night.

The seas are still heavy today, and it is presumed the ship will have to lighten her load.

There are no injuries reported, and all the crew members are still aboard. They are reportedly waiting for their own tug to come and free them.

The last ship to run aground in the area was the Star of Suez, an Israeli ship which ran aground on Salmon Point. The S.S. Protostatis is aground on the same spot where the J. A. Cornet sank on July 10, 1940.

GETS BIG CONTRACT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. defence department announced a contract to the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation Thursday to develop the country's largest transport plane, the C-5A. The General Electric Corporation will develop and produce the four jet engines for the aircraft, each capable of delivering 40,000 pounds of thrust.

Pro-Red Reds Say They Blocked Coup by Generals

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesian Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution has crushed an uprising against President Sukarno and both he and Sukarno are safe and well, Radio Jakarta reported tonight.

The broadcast announcement came a few hours after a revolutionary council led by Lt.-Col. Untung, a battalion commander in Sukarno's bodyguard, announced it had seized power and proclaimed itself "the source of all authority."

The Malaysian government radio in Kuala Lumpur, which has been monitoring Jakarta broadcasts, said army units under Gen. Suharto, loyal to Sukarno and Nasution, were instrumental in smashing Untung's power move.

The Jakarta radio said "those responsible for the coup have been arrested," Malaysian officials reported.

Untung's revolutionary council, during its bid for supremacy, had declared that Sukarno, 64, was "under protection" of the council. This led to speculation that the strongman had been removed.

There was no immediate report of Sukarno's whereabouts.

Untung, in a broadcast before the government's counter-move, had said he took the action because a number of generals and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had planned an anti-Sukarno coup.

The broadcast by Radio Jakarta announced formation of a new, 45-member cabinet laced with perhaps a dozen Communists, but D. N. Aidit, leader of Indonesia's 3,000,000 - member Communist party, was not on the list.

Also absent from the new cabinet were Indonesia's top military officers, Gen. Nasution, commander of the armed forces, and Maj.-Gen. Achmad Yani, army commander.

Another broadcast announced formation of a new cabinet. Monitors in Tokyo and London were unable to get all the names but they included a number of holdovers from the previous cabinet, including First Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Subandrio; Air-Marshal Omar Dani, the air force chief of staff; Rear-Admiral E. Martadinata, the navy chief of staff; Dr. Johannes Leimena, the second deputy premier, and Sutjipo Datmokusumo, the police chief.

The broadcast did not specify, however, whether they were retaining those posts.

HAS 45 MEMBERS

Monitors in Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia, said the new cabinet had 45 members.

The most notable absentees from the line-up were the country's two top military leaders, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, the commander of the armed forces, and Maj.-Gen. Achmad Yani, the army commander.

Nasution had been considered the chief obstacle to a Commu-

Two Free Flights Daily For Those Fleeing Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro offered an open door policy today, including two free flights daily, to Cubans wishing to leave the Caribbean island for the United States.

Untung's statement broadcast by Havana radio, elaborated on his offer of Tuesday in which he said he would allow any Cubans to leave their homeland to join relatives or go into exile in the U.S.

U.S. officials at that time doubted Castro's statement, saying it was a propaganda move.

The premier said in the broadcast, monitored here, that "we maintain the decision that from Oct. 10 we will give absolute guarantees and facilities to all those who wish to come to Cuba by their own means or to pick up their relatives."

He said the Cuban government will provide two free daily flights to transport Cubans to the U.S., presumably to Miami where the large majority of Cubans seek haven after fleeing their homeland in small boats, 90 miles across the Gulf Stream to the Florida Keys.

Pakistan Says India Attacks In Kashmir

RAWALPINDI (Reuters)—A Pakistani defence ministry spokesman said today Indian forces had launched a strong attack on Pakistani positions in the Chamb sector in Kashmir and said fighting might spread into other places.

The Pakistani representative at the United Nations said Thursday that India threatened to attack Pakistani troops in the Chamb sector within 24 hours if they did not withdraw from areas of the 1965 ceasefire line which they occupied early in September.

The defence ministry spokesman said the Indians attacked yesterday night. He said Pakistani troops took necessary counter-measures and fighting was still going on.

The south Vietnamese suffered light casualties in the fighting, the spokesman said, but took moderate losses when the Viet Cong ambushed a river boat bringing reinforcements.

In the war, B-52 bombers from Guam staged their 36th raid of the war. Their target was a suspected Viet Cong position in Quang Ngai province, 320 miles northeast of Saigon.

Heaviest Fighting In Months

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. military spokesman today reported one of the biggest battles in the Mekong delta in months, with 68 Viet Cong bodies counted and another 100 guerrillas believed killed or wounded.

The spokesman said four government battalions—more than 1,500 troops—fought a day-long battle Thursday with an estimated 1,000 Viet Cong about 20 miles west of My Tho.

Four U.S. Army advisers were with the government troops. U.S. casualties were described as light.

Acquittal of Man Who Killed Civil Rights Worker Assailed

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The acquittal of a part-time deputy sheriff in the slaying of a young civil rights worker brought cries from integration leaders for federal "anti-lynch" legislation, condemnation from church leaders and criticism from Alabama's attorney-general.

After two hours of deliberation Thursday, a jury of 12 white men acquitted Thomas Coleman of a manslaughter charge in the death of Jonathan M. Daniels. Coleman pleaded self-defence.

"It is obviously clear that federal anti-lynch legislation must be passed to prevent further violence and intimidation upon innocent victims of white segregationists," said Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, called for federal legislation making it a crime punishable by life imprisonment to kill "a person working to secure his own or assisting to secure another's civil rights." He called the Hayneville trial a "mockery of law which passes for justice in the state of Alabama."

John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, said the federal government can do no less than pass an anti-lynch law "if it expects respect for law and order to prevail in the Negro community."

Coleman used a 12 - gauge shotgun to shoot and kill Daniels at a country store last August. The defence claimed that Coleman fired in self-defence because Daniels, who had come to Alabama to work with the civil rights movement, was armed with a knife.

Some witnesses said he was not armed; others said he was.

Coleman also was indicted on an assault and battery charge for the wounding of Rev. Richard Morrisroe, a Roman Catholic priest from Chicago.

Coleman was not tried on that charge. It is pending but there was no immediate word on whether the charge will be dropped or tried at a later term of court.

Drury Says Unpopular Laws Needed to Fight Inflation

MONTREAL (CP) — Industry Minister C. M. Drury said Thursday night there is a need for a strong government which can introduce unpopular measures to fight inflation.

Mr. Drury, accepting the nomination to stand for re-election in St. Antoine Westmount, said:

"A minority government is possible as long as it associates expansionist policies and social reform which we can afford. Introduction of restrictive, unpopular, but nevertheless necessary policies would lead to its defeat in the face of demagogic, irresponsible opposition."

Other speakers who attended Mr. Drury's nomination convention were Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp and journalist Gerard Pelletier who is seeking the Liberal nomination in Hochelaga.

Mr. Pelletier, referring to the "danger of disruption of Confederation," said he was "not an alarmist or a pessimist" and did not think the country would fall apart "tomorrow morning or in two years. But something has to be done."

"If the process in which we are engaged continues, Confederation may resist, but not without damage," he said. "The cost of repairing this damage would waste too many human resources."

Mr. Sharp disagreed with Mr. Pelletier, saying the "forces that threaten to disrupt the country are in retreat." He attributed his to the policies of the Pearson government which carried Canada through "a period of the greatest difficulty."

Yom Kippur Day of Atonement

The penitential days in the Jewish calendar which started on Rosh Hashonoh—the New Year—reach their culmination on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur) which is starting at sundown, Tuesday, October 5, and is regarded as the most sacred day in the Jewish year. It is frequently referred to as the Sabbath of Sabbaths. In ancient days the Temple Service on this day was most elaborate and imposing. Today this time is devoted to solemn rest, prayer and meditation.

In accordance with the Biblical injunction, "Ye shall afflict your souls," it is customary to abstain from all food and drink from sunset until nightfall of the following day. Memorial lights are lit in every home for the departed.

The evening service is preceded by the chanting of "Kol Nidre," a reminder of the Spanish Inquisition of after 1492, which has not ceased in our present day as Soviet Russia suppresses with utmost cruelty any religious practice by Jews.

The general ritual of the Day of Atonement is replete with petitions for sins committed by all the worshippers present.

According to Jewish tradition, a person will not be forgiven on this day for sins committed against a fellow being of any religion, unless he rights the wrongs and makes amendments to the individual involved. The day is terminated by the blowing of the Shofar (Rams horn).

Dr. J. R. Scott Will Seek Council Seat

With the Federal election campaign gaining momentum with each passing day, the municipal political pot is beginning to simmer.

From reports and rumors it appears there will be elections for the mayor's seat for a four-year term, a ten-man council for the same time and a Public Utility Commissioner.

Dr. J. Russell Scott, chairman of the Public School Board and a member of that body for 14 years, has announced he will seek a seat on the Aldermanic Board. It is understood he will resign his seat on school board in plenty of time to become eligible for nomination. It is also rumored there will be a number of new faces seeking municipal office this year.

October Starts With Big Rain, Aid to Plowing

October could be a wet month!

At least the month got away to a good wet start today with 1.18 inch of rain reported from the city pump house.

The rain started about 10.30 last night and continued steadily throughout the night until, this morning at 9.30, the 1.18 total had been reached.

The Bay of Quinte district hasn't suffered from lack of rainfall this year to the extent when the spring drought was broken and with harvesting now practically completed last night's rain was not needed for the crops.

But the rain will make for easier fall cultivation and will help to fill rural wells before the onset of winter.

Pleads Guilty To 5 Charges Of Car Theft

A 17-year-old Trenton youth today pleaded guilty to five charges of car theft in Belleville and Trenton from January to September.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills remanded Donald Wayne Sea until next week for sentence after the accused also pleaded guilty to theft from the new federal building in Trenton.

The burglary took place last June, when the building was under construction and lighting fixtures, costing nearly $130 were stolen.

Belleville detective Thomas Davidson said the fixtures were later brought to Belleville.

"Our information was that they were thrown in the (Moira) river. A check of the river does not reveal them."

Mr. Davidson said money was all recovered undamaged.

A second Trenton youth, Harold George Marshall, R. R. 2, faced with breakins at the town's federal building and Riverside Crescents in Belleville, was remanded after he sought trial by judge and jury on the second charge.

Marshall's father objected to his son's election and said he wanted the case heard by the magistrate today.

"I have no doubt you would bet he is 16," pointed out Magistrate Wills. "You have no control over him (in the youth's decision)."

11th BELLEVILLE CUBS AND SCOUTS

Following this the boys were presented to Scoutmaster Murray Maw and the Scouts of "B" Troop, who were standing in horseshoe formation to receive the new "recruits."

The same ceremony was then enacted by Norm Butcher, ACM of "A" Pack with the Cubs being presented to Scoutmaster John Dodge of "A" Troop. Both Scoutmasters gave a few words of welcome to the new boys.

Seventeen boys moved up into B Pack as follows:

"B" Pack to "E" Troop:

G. Ketcheson Winner of Grain Corn

Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro, took first place in the Belleville Agricultural Society annual grain corn competition. The entries were judged early this week by Ken Hagarty of Brighton, accompanied by W. M. Bishop, director in charge of the competition.

Scores were very close among the top six fields, but Mr. Ketcheson's entry was noted for its over-all excellence of weed control, the advanced maturity of the crop and a standard yield of 105 bushels to the acre.

The Agricultural Society officials said the grain corn crop in the Quinte district is very good and excellent yields of good quality corn should be realized where early maturing hybrids were planted not later than May 15th. Early frosts will badly reduce yields and quality of the late crops.

Growers are again advised to plant varieties in the 2900 heat unit rating and earlier to avoid losses from frost damage.

CNIB Founder, Col. E. Baker, Is Honored

By DON HARVEY

TORONTO (CP) — Lt. - Col. Edwin Albert Baker, 72, co-founder of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was described here Thursday as "one of Canada's immort-

Chairman of a luncheon in honor of Col. Baker, who now lives in retirement near the Baker homestead at Collins Bay, Ont., York County Judge F. G. J. McDonagh said:

"Col. Baker has come to be recognized as one of Canada's immortals whose great work has benefited all mankind. I would place him with Banting, Best and Osler among Canada's greatest men."

Col. Baker was blinded in both eyes by a German sniper bullet in Belgium while serving in 1915 as a lieutenant in the 6th Field Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Highlight of Thursday's luncheon was the presentation to Col. Baker of the book by Marjorie Wilkins Campbell, No Ordinary Journey to go on sale Oct. 15. The book is the life story of Col. Baker and the CNIB.

ADDS FRIENDS

Among the friends attending was Earl Rowe, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, who described the colonel's life of "an inspiration, not only to those who fought in the wars, but also to those who did not."

Col. Baker, he added, "is one of our greatest Canadians" and whose name will live long after the twilight of our ayers."

Telegrams were sent to Governor-General Georges Vanier and Prime Minister Pearson.

Col. Baker was named in 1951 first president of the World Council for the Welfare of the Blind, a post he held until last year. He played a key role in bringing the organization, whose two members in 40 countries, into existence in Paris.

Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton who is seeking the PC nomination for Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Dr. Lionel G. Dockrill, town councillor, who is seeking the Liberal nomination for Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Lively Nomination Battles For PCs, Liberals Seen

PICTON (Staff) — As nomination dates for both Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties have been announced the political wheels are beginning to turn in the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox. Two new men, not in the sense that they are unknowns, far from it for both of them have long been known in the Prince Edward area as public spirited citizens; but both are new to federal politics.

The men, Harvey J. McFarland (Mayor of Picton,) and Dr. Lionel G. Dockrill (Picton councillor) have both announced their intentions to seek nomination. Basically it will be McFarland vs. Alkenbrack; Dockrill vs Woolsey.

Lloyd Woolsey stated this week that his hat will definitely be in the ring for Liberal nomination, to be held in Napanee Thursday night, Oct. 7th. Mr. Woolsey, aware of Dr. Dockrill's candidacy, said other nominations were welcome, he also felt that in the Hon. Harry Hays the convention would have a speaker at the convention with very wide appeal.

A. Douglas Alkenbrack has also announced that he will seek re-nomination as the standard bearer of the Progressive Conservatives.

A total of 31,324 names are on the preliminary voters' lists for the federal riding of Prince Edward-Lennox. Of 101 ordinary polls in the riding 51 are in Prince Edward County and 43 in Lennox.

New Road Will Connect County To Hwy. 401

PICTON (Staff) — Reaching Prince Edward County from highway 401 from the west, has not been easy, especially for strangers. Visitors become confused at both Belleville and Trenton in finding the highways leading to this county.

In the not too distant future there will be a new highway leading directly from 401, west of Trenton, connecting with highway 33. A new bridge is now in the process of being erected and there will be an underpass at railroad tracks. Formerly the Dug Hill road could be used as a cut-off to highway 2 but it was unsatisfactory and the new road will be one half mile west of it.

When complete, there will be a sign on 401 indicating the point of turn for Prince Edward County. Although this road is located in Northumberland County Whitney M.P.P. for Prince Edward has been playing a leading role in the development.

Nine of Ten To Be Jobless In 1985, Claim

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada can expect 90 per cent of its labor force to be out of work within 20 years, William Kashtan, leader of the Communist party said Thursday.

Speaking to 75 persons at a nomination meeting for the two Communist candidates in a byelection contest the Nov. 8 federal election in Quebec province, Mr. Kashtan said he figure of 90 per cent was provided by the United Automobile Workers' union (CLC).

He stressed that a special federal-provincial authority be established to "license and control the development of automation."

CPR Defeated In Bid to Cancel Train

WINNIPEG (CP) — The CPR's skin-and-bones Dominion passenger train service and the loyalty lists whether it should live or die will, for the present, roll along together.

The Canadian Pacific defeated Thursday in a bid to suspend the Dominion service immediately and, in what the company described as the priority of national interest, let the Dominion's diesel units contribute to the movement of grain.

Turning down the CPR motion, the Board of Transport Commissioners said public hearings will start at 10 a.m. EST on the railway's application to kill the Dominion run permanently.

Pending a decision, the Montreal - Toronto to Vancouver service would continue to operate as usual.

Rejection of the CPR's suspension motion was delivered by Rod Kerr, chief commissioner of the board.

said. He said the program in the homes for the aged "bring out latent talents the old folks haven't used in years."

Mr. Drew also touched briefly on a geriatric study centre, run by his department, which is "unique" in Canada. Therapy is given to stroke cases where the patient has possibly lost his ability to speak or use his limbs. They could "sit and vegetate" because they have lost their ability to communicate. But under the new therapy, they have been known to recover their faculties to some extent and regain their will to live.

PAY OWN WAY

Fifteen per cent of people in homes for the aged pay their own way. Aid age pensions of $75. are taken by the department with $11.70 being returned to the resident for spending money. Much of this spending is "explored" by the institution to be kept in a trust fund; some of the old folk feel they should contribute more and help "pay for their own funerals", Mr. Drew said.

The stigma of the 'poor house' has been taken away from the "old folks' home", Mr. Drew said. He added that people who are well able to pay their own way anywhere, often choose to live in the homes for company of those of their own age. The homes at one time "featured" a preponderance of married couples, but the department is finding that in many cases, one of the partners is "normal", while the other is ill or senile.

But the main point is that they are "under one roof". The ill partner may be visited by the second partner daily and there is no real feeling of separation.

Mr. Drew was accompanied on his meeting by Cecil Chapman, regional administrator of provincial welfare, with the Ontario Department of Welfare for 18 years.

Present were the mayor, Mr. Stevens and Councillors Gould, Todd, McDonald and Graham.

He will be campaigning throughout Southwestern and Western Ontario until Wednesday.

TRENTON — An eight-year-old Trenton boy, Robert Higgins, was taken to Trenton hospital by Rushnell Ambulance around 7.30 p.m. last night after he had been struck by a car in front of his home at 25 Carrying Place Road. The boy is said to be in satisfactory condition at the hospital today, suffering from a cut to the right side of his head at the back and possible internal injuries.

Police say the lad, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gale Higgins darted in front of a car driven by Myrna Joan Johnson, 29, of Carrying Place.

CARS WITH A VIEW

A number of Trenton citizens were up at the CPR station in east Trenton around 6.30 p.m. Wednesday night when the new dome observation CPR train passed briefly during a test run. The CPR will arrange a daily schedule for the train between Montreal and Toronto in the near future.

TRENTON — Noble Drew, director of the homes for the aged branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare, drew a picture of happy old folks, gathered together under one roof, able to enjoy each others' company and with every necessity and comfort supplied, for the further consideration of Trenton council at a special council meeting last night.

Cost of a 50-bed home for the aged in Trenton would be roughly $600,000, of which the province would pay half. Average per diem cost, per patient, across the province is $4.45 of which the province pays 70 per cent.

Mayor James MacDonald and the members of his council agreed there was need for such a home locally, after listening to welfare administrator A. Gordon Davis, and promised to "explore every avenue."

Mr. Davis said there were 16 homes for the aged in Trenton where the older people can live alone in one room or were confined to area nursing homes.

"We've only scratched the surface," Mr. Davis said, "there are probably many more cases we don't know about."

Mr. Drew said there were eight persons who were now in hospital but only in need of convalescent care. However, there is nowhere to send them.

Mr. Drew said the known number of 24 would certainly be increased to make a 50-bed home a necessity. If such plans were drawn up and the building erected. He said provision should be made to extend the facilities to a 100-bed home within five years.

"People are living longer nowadays," Mr. Drew said, and quoted figures to show that in 1961 there were seven persons over 100 in Ontario homes for the aged, and 29 in May of this year.

TRI-LEVEL CARE

Mr. Drew said Ontario was the only province on the North American continent where aged were looked after at three levels under one roof of a home for the aged. There are 61 homes now, and 11 new ones under construction or in the planning stage.

Some old folks are "normally quite lovely also" as they care for themselves; some are chronic cases of such illnesses as diabetes or arthritis; others are "senile" or "confused" and need protective care. All three stages are looked after in segregated areas of the Ontario homes.

"These homes are a community unto themselves, but still a part of the community as a whole. Within the walls, the residents find such things as barber shops, hairdressing salons, a wood-working area, a small auditorium and even a chapel. Medical care or nursing care is supplied as needed.

"But the aged shouldn't be moved too far away from their old community," Mr. Drew said, "this has a bad psychological effect."

Old folks become anti-social if they exist shut away in a room by themselves, Mr. Drew

New Sea Duty Allowance Now in Effect

OTTAWA (CP)—A new $15 monthly sea duty allowance takes effect today for all officers and men aboard navy ships.

An estimated 10,000 persons will be covered by the allowance which replaces the foreign service allowance which is paid on a sliding scale.

The biggest benefit for ships of the new system is for enlisted men. Under the foreign service allowance, leading seamen and lower ranks received $9 a month, while chief petty officers were eligible for $16.50 and lieutenants $18.

While the standard $15 rate means a reduction for higher ranks, a navy spokesman said this would be more than made up in the vast majority of cases by wider application of the new allowance.

Tomato Crop in County One of Poorest on Record

PICTON (Staff) — Tomato picking and canning continues in Prince Edward County, but the season is expected to be one of the poorest on record for th growers and processors. Despite adverse weather conditions dating back to last may tomatoes have been harvested and picking could go on for another two weeks. Donald Walker of Cherry Valley Canners said that although recent frosts did considerable damage they are still salvaging tomatoes, except where there is heavy foliage. He estimated frosts destroyed about one third of the crop in company fields. He believes that the other two thirds will be harvested and there will be little further damage from the rains. Jay Hejburn of Waupsot Canners expressed a different view saying that the rain does the crop no good since it is inclined to crack the tomatoes and reduce the quality. However both men agree that they will continue picking as long as the quality makes it worthwhile. While it has been a poor year for tomatoes in Prince Edward County and Eastern Ontario generally there has been a good crop in Western Ontario.

100 Expected To Attend Convention

PICTON (Staff) — Plans are already made for the forthcoming Municipal Electrical Convention to be held in Picton. At least 100 public utilities commissioners are expected in Picton for the annual meeting of District 1 of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association October 7th and 8th.

Commissioner Gordon Nourse of the Picton P.U.C. said that 50 men and 18 women had already signified their intention of attending. The Regent Theatre has been hired for the two-day conference.

One of the highlights will be an address Thursday afternoon by W. Ross Strike, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission.

TORONTO (CP)—City council approved Thursday a board of control report urging the federal government to make the promotion of hatred against any group noted by color, race, religion, ethnic or national origin a criminal offence.

No End in Sight in Vietnam

Although the build-up of American military strength, coupled with unceasing air attacks, has blunted the Viet Cong guerrilla campaign in Vietnam there is no sign of either side achieving a military advantage that would enable it to impose its will on the divided, war-torn land.

Any talk of negotiations, moreover, is seen as unrealistic. Nothing could be further from the thinking of the Viet Cong. In fact the communist government in Hanoi has been urging its people to prepare themselves for a protracted conflict.

New York Times writer Seymour Topping notes that in a reversal of the propaganda line instituted early this year, political cadres of the Viet Cong have stopped talking about 1965 as the Year of Decision. "It may take five, 10 or 20 years to defeat the Americans and if this generation does not succeed the next will," the Viet Cong rank and file are told.

Clearly, the Viet Cong and their overlords in Hanoi are not going to knuckle down under superior American firepower. Now it is a test of wills, of moral fibre, as much as of the skill and strength of the fighting man.

Vietnam is a festering sore on the world scene. The Vietnamese people themselves deserve better after years of turmoil and bloodshed, beginning with the days of the French colonial rule and extending through the subsequent division of Indo-China into North and South Vietnam.

Hydro Development

Behind the continuing development of hydro-electric power lies the story of complex projects in remote areas of the Canadian interior, far from the comforts of urban communities that are the benefactors of such development.

The best source of power is water, as was pointed out in a recent address to the Engineering Institute of Canada in Welland by D. J. McParland, vice-president of the British Newfoundland Corporation Limited.

Mr. McParland said that one of a number of large and important projects now or soon to be under way was the Churchill Falls project in Labrador. The existence of the Falls has been known since 1839 when the first white explorer travelled by canoe and portage up the Hamilton River and the possibility of developing power from them has been considered intermittently since the turn of the century. The massive size and remote location of the Falls, however, prevented serious consideration until the early 1950's.

Development of the Falls for power purposes has now been found to be a practical reality. For one thing, the Labrador interior has been opened by the completion of the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway, leading from Seven Islands to the large iron ore deposits of the north. A second important factor contributing to improved economics for Churchill Falls power, has been the technological advances 'made in recent years in the field of long distance power transmission. And thirdly, according to Mr. McParland, there has been the steady growth in demand for electrical energy in the Eastern Canadian provinces and along the Atlantic seaboard of the United States at a time when sites for further large-scale hydro-electric power plants are becoming scarce.

Mr. McParland pointed out that the proposed installation of 4,500,000 kilowatts or 6,000,000 h.p. in a single site at the Falls exceeds the combined total of all plants at Niagara Falls and the annual amount of electricity which can be generated is about 34 billion kilowatt hours per year.

The scope of this great project became more and more evident as Mr. McParland continued: "Below the falls the river tumbles another 400 feet before reaching tidewater at Lake Melville and Goose Bay. With the development of the lower river through the construction of two additional downstream plants, the Churchill River has the capability of approaching 50 billion kilowatt hours per annum . . . This exceeds the energy generated in either the entire province of Ontario or in Quebec last year."

The Churchill Falls project is a symbol of the times, of growth in every sphere of the nation's business and economy and of increasing population and power needs. It is the story of Canada itself.

It is foolish to assume that children do not want to learn. They all do, hence the universal juvenile appeal "Why?" Why?" Children who later on appear not to want to learn anything, are those whose questions have never been answered, and who have given up the one-sided battle on the logical grounds that adults do not wish to teach them anything which they want to know.—Christopher Jarman, a British school teacher.

Kindergarten Study in U.S.

—Ottawa Journal

There is good reason to believe that children in the future will start school at age three or four instead of five or six. Experiments with pre-kindergarten teaching are growing more numerous. New York Times education writer Mr. Fred Hechinger reports that the United States has taken "a historic step toward the extension of school by at least two years" in making "Project Head Start" a permanent part of the education system.

This recently completed summer project was attended by 560,000 underprivileged pre-school children at 13,400 centres in 2,500 U.S. communities. It provided introduction to group activities, art, music books, speaking skills and other aspects of getting ready for school. There was one professional teacher for every 15 students, plus a "huge support force of aides, teenagers, college students and volunteers", reports Mr. Hechinger.

The aim of the project is to narrow the widening gap between children from "culturally deprived" homes and those from the affluent majority. The increase in college educated parents has resulted in much "unconscious teaching" of small children at home, who then enter school with a forbidding "head start" over the disadvantaged minority.

A similar project — "Higher Horizons" — with school - aged children from slums in New York City has been under way since 1959 and has achieved much success in welcoming the outlook of students and improving their learning performances. As it felt this by starting with three and four-year-olds the narrowing effects of home environment can be better overcome.

Perhaps surprisingly, the "Head Start" program in the U.S.S.R. has been welcomed the most parents involved.

Similar experiments in Canada have been and are being carried out. There is one in Ottawa. Educators wisely feel that to publicize particular feel that to publicize particularly feel that to publicize particularly feel that to publicize particularly

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The possibility of a rich oil strike by Banff Oil in Northern Alberta touched off a surge of buying in oil stocks in moderate morning stock exchange trading today.

The opening of Banff Oil was delayed for at least 1 hour and 45 minutes as traders tried to match buy and sell orders. Banff earlier this year shot to a high of $9.65 in heavy trading. It sold as low as $1.30 in 1965.

Resources Minister Arthur Laing said last night Banff has a field that government officials estimate may contain six to seven billion barrels of oil 400 miles north of Edmonton near the Alberta - Northwest Territories border.

Speculation as to the richness of the field carried senior oil stocks higher. Imperial Oil gained ¼ to 53½, Central-Del Rio ¾ to 12¾ and Hudson's Bay ½ to 17¾. The bluestock western oil index gained 2.08 to 100.49. Dynamic Petroleums, a speculative issue, rose 17 cents to $1.17 and traded 287,900 shares.

Meanwhile, Toronto Stock Exchange officials said R. C. Dowell, assistant secretary-manager of Banff's land department, told them Mr. Laing's speech "did not contain any information which has not already been announced and there is no further and new information available from cur-

Compounded Confusion

Every office has its own way of doing business, but there are some standard terms used in every office. A saucy look at some of these sayings comes from the Columbia Nut and Bolt Corporation, in other words, when someone says, "You can be sure the matter is under active consideration," what they probaby mean is, "We are looking in the files for it."

There are many more following, with the bidden meaning in brackets.

It is in the process. (So wrapped up in red tape that the situation is hopeless.)

We will look into it. (By the time the wheel makes a full turn, we assume you will have forgotten about it, too.)

A program. (Any assignment that cannot be completed by one telephone call.) Expedite. (To confound confusion with commotion.)

We are studying the matter along different channels (the trail left by the interoffice memos) and the co-ordinator (the guy who has a desk between two expeditors) will ask the consultant (any ordinary guy more than 50 miles from home) to activate (to make carbons and add more names to the memo) or rather to implement a program (hire more people and expand the office.) The whole affair is under consideration (never heard of it.)

At the meeting (a mass mulling of master-minds), we decided to have a conference (a place where conversation is substituted for the dreariness of labor and the loneliness of thought) and negotiate (to seek a meeting of minds without a kneeling together) a feasible pre-orientation (getting used to working again) of our experts (a person who avoids all small errors as he sweeps toward the grand failure.)

After our research (looking for the jerk who moved the files) is completed to our satisfaction (drawing a mathematically precise line from an unwarranted assumption to a foregone conclusion) and we pooled up the issue (expand one page to 15 pages) let's get together on this (I'm assuming you are as much confused as I am.)

We have been told from three sources, a reliable source (the guy you just met), an informed source (the guy who told the guy you just met) and an unimpeachable source (the guy who started the rumor originally) that the orders need a clarification (to fill in the background with so many details the foregoing goes underground) and because we are aware of it (we had hoped that the fool who started it would have forgotten about it by this time), even though it is restricted (the boss already has it, and we are awaiting to see if he can make any sense out of it) and confidential (spy bait and besides, the stamp looks important), we are making a survey (we need more time to think of an answer) and will advise you in due course (if we figure it out, we will let you know.)

Our interpretation (warped opinion pitted against the competitor's good sense), with modifications (will be shipped to you in kit form — put it together yourself if you can. (Glue optional) could be improved if you give us the benefit of your present thinking (we will listen to what you have to say as long as it does not interfere with what we have already decided to do.) We are trying to give you the picture (a 1085, confused and inaccurate statement to a newcomer) and for that reason will note and initial (let's spread the responsibility for this.)

Please see me to discuss it (come down to my office, I'm lonesome.)

Confusing, what?

Stewart-Warner Corp. Fully Behind Appeal

Employees of Stewart-Warner Corporation held a meeting in the plant's cafeteria yesterday to map final plans for their in-plant United Appeal campaign.

John O'Flynn, general chairman of the United Appeal, said: "We have an active campaign going in the city right now. From the early returns, the trend seems to be that more people are participating this year. We are confident that we will better last year's effort.

"We are trying to conduct a short campaign. After all, this is the idea of the United Appeal—one short campaign covering all agencies.

"The campaign is working through the businesses and industries of the city. There will be no house-to-house canvassing, except in the case of retired persons or anyone else who wouldn't be reached for one reason or another at their place of business."

J. P. Hawkins, controller for Stewart-Warner and campaign chairman of the company's in-plant campaign, said: "Two men have been appointed as canvassers to cover the plant and office because of the fine work you did during last year's campaign.

"The company thanks you very much for last year's effort and hopes that the 1965 campaign will be just as much of a success."

BEHIND APPEAL

Fred Ebbes, plant manager, said, "The company is fully behind the United Appeal method of approach. Many people are luke warm about the Appeal and many people are all out to support it. Personally, I am behind it completely.

"We approve of the payroll deduction method of giving. We do not want our canvassers saying to workers that they must give. We want our campaign to be a success, but we want people giving because they want to, not because they have to."

Mr. O'Flynn said, "We hope to get a good participation at Stewart-Warner. The company's record last year was very good, and I only hope they can do even better this year. I must congratulate those employees who worked on the campaign as in-plant canvassers last year. They did an excellent job."

In explaining some of the more difficult situations that canvassers will meet, Mr. O'Flynn said, "If a woman says that she does not want to give because her husband gives, then that is up to her. But I feel that if she is working, and thus earning a wage, she should participate as well.

"People who live outside of the city and work in the city often say they do not want to support something that does nothing for them. But I am sure, if they studied the agencies carefully, they would find that most agencies in the appeal service not only the city but the surrounding area. The VON as an example, serves the city and area in Sidney Township and Prince Edward County within three miles of the city limits, and all of Thurlow Township. Most of the others service the surrounding area also.

"And of course," Mr. O'Flynn added, "people can always allocate their contributions to any particular agency if they wish."

He closed with a reminder that a contribution of just 25 cents a week is $13 a year, a figure that if matched by the majority of people in the city would put the campaign well over the top.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I have several clippings of your column giving times and temperatures for roasting beef by what you call the low-slow method. My husband and I are completely converted to this because the beef is so moist and tender. What I would like to see is the time and temperature for a rolled boneless rib roast weighing about 3½ lbs. These days this roast costs about $4. and I want to cook it right . . . P. H. F.

ANSWER:

You are so right. Because you asked I had my butcher call me exactly what you describe and we had it for dinner last night. In our opinion it is perfect hot and cold.

Successful Living

Alcoholism Always Has Some Cause

DEAR DORIS: My husband and I have been married for 35 years, have had six children, all married now. Every day (except Sunday) for our married life my husband has stopped at a beverage room, starting afternoons, come home drunk every night, eaten no supper. Has a mean disposition and has not supported his family decently, especially when the children were small.

He swears he is not an alcoholic because he doesn't want beer in the mornings. (Coffee only.)

The question is: Is he or is he not an alcoholic? — STILL WONDERING.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR STILL: Without more information, I'm wondering too.

Alcoholism is a disease; always has a cause; and requires professional treatment. It is not a disgrace nor something to be ridiculed.

Did the beer improve or worsen the disposition? Even at this late date — 35 years late — you and he could try for a better life together. There's help to be had from The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, 24 Hazlord Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

DEAR DORIS: I have been asked to pour tea at a 50th wedding anniversary and I've been wondering if there was a proper way this should be done? — OLD FRIEND.

DEAR OLD FRIEND: You have been honored. Dress in your prettiest afternoon dress and wear a modish fall hat. Remove your gloves before beginning to pour.

Usually the server comes to you for a cup of tea for each guest, stating whether cream and sugar, or just cream, or just sugar, are needed. This you insert before filling the cup — up to the half-inch-from-the-top mark. Never too full, as this only results in a sloppy saucer.

The server then hands it to the guest. She also moves clean cups and saucers near to you as you use them up. Don't try to reach for them.

When, by chance, a guest spots you and delightedly comes over for a chat, go ahead and chat — if you can keep your mind on your work at the same time. Your sociability is part of your job. If you observe that your friend still has tea, serve her some; and invite her to have a cookie from the plate which is just a little downstream from you on the table.

If it is a large and long tea, you will doubtless be spelled off after an hour by another pourer. — And that's when you have your tea. Never sip or nibble when you are pouring.

DEAR DORIS: Reading your column puts petty personal problems in their proper place!

I'd like those economical recipes you were offering. In our case, it's a matter of going back on a budget for retirement living after the more affluent years, instead of the problem of a big family on a low income.

Recipes for two are hard to come by. Perhaps you can suggest a book on "Cooking for Two on a Budget." Years ago I got one, and it was full of tiny white onions and mushroom caps. — BERMUDA READER.

DEAR BERMUDA: For ten cents the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, Canada, will send anyone writing in a booklet entitled "How to Plan Meals for Your Family," prepared by the Nutrition Division, Department of National Health and Welfare. Excellent for any size family.

I am also sending you the details about a cook book of dinners for two which features just about everything which is tasty and practical for a twosome. (I haven't come across a single pearl onion in it.)

DEAR DORIS: We are having a 50th wedding anniversary in the family.

(1) Should the children receive the guests along with the couple?

(2) Should the daughters and daughters-in-law serve the tea and refreshments?

(3) Should the anniversary cake be displayed?

—IN-LAW.

DEAR IN-LAW:

(1) Not formally, as in a reception line at a wedding. But the sons and daughters do welcome guests, introduce them around, take them over to Mother and Dad for a chat. They should be Johnny-on-the-Spot when it comes to waiting on the couple being honored and saving them from lifting a finger. This is their day to be indulged.

(2) Yes, quite desirable.

(3) Yes.

DEAR DORIS: I have a problem. Superfluous hair on my face. What treatment is most recommended for permanent removal? I know electrolysis is used, but is there not a newer method, which is approved by physicians? — NEED PLEASE.

DEAR HELP: So far nothing has superseded electrolysis in the hands of an expert for the permanent removal of hair. Send me 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will forward an article on the various methods of Removing Unwanted Hair.

Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

WALLBRIDGE — Many friends and relatives were present at the Orange Hall in Wallbridge on Saturday, September 25th to honor Grant and Laura Millar on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Generleaux, daughter and son-in-law of Grant and Laura Millar. Grant Millar Jr. invited everyone, on arrival, to sign the guest book.

Upon entering the hall, the honored couple were presented with a corsage of boutonnieres and proceeded to greet the guests. They were then escorted to their places on the platform by their son and daughter, Grant and Bonnie. The platform and chairs were decorated in pink, white and blue streamers.

An address was given by Mr. Henault of Montreal, recalling the courtship, wedding, and past 25 years of marriage in Grant and Laura. He then proposed a toast to the "bride and groom." Grant replyed to the address and proposed a toast to his wife.

Grant and Laura unwrapped the many lovely gifts. A silver candelabra containing an arrangement of white mums and pink carnations a gift of their children, centred the table. Laura thanked their friends and relatives for attending the party and for the lovely gifts received.

A short period of dancing was enjoyed and a humorous recording of a marriage ceremony was played. The guests of honor then entertained the group with some contests.

A very attractive lunch was served by daughters Bonnie and Gail and nieces Mrs. Louise Hemgyna and Miss Sylvia Millar.

A beautiful three tier wedding cake decorated in silver, pink and white was then cut by Mrs. Bride and groom" of 25 years.

More dancing and visiting concluded the evening's festivities.

Guests were present from London, Oshawa, Montreal, Oakville, Belleville and Trenton.

Susanna's Family Fare

I NEED IT YESTERDAY

Dear Susanne: How about it old girl, I need a pattern in a hurry!

My marvelous, a m a zing mother-in-law has just presented me with her precious antique silver tea service, and I'm out of my mind with delight because I've practically been drooling over it for 28 years. Her gracious sentiments were "Use it in good health, my dear" (Now I think I'm going to cry again!) — but back to my urgent problem!

The grade mothers of the junior high school our youngest child attends are to meet at our house in two weeks. Naturally, they're going to get the antique silver service bit full b l a s t when the tea and coffee pouring time comes around. The only trouble is when the contents of the tea and coffee pots are scalding hot — so are the hands! — no hobo or wood coverings, just more silver.

Do you think you can come up with a glamorous handle cover for me? I hate to tell you this, but I don't knit or crochet so you're really going to have to reach way out in left field to help me — but soon! — Mrs. L. Gladstone

Don't press the panic button yet, and don't think I'm giving you the bird when you open your mail today, for in it you'll find a glorious, gaudy, pattern for a majestic green p a r r o t handle cover that you can whip up almost before the tea is steeped, as the instructions are so simple and he is just that easily put together.

He is cut out with pink i n sheers from nice glossy heavy felt and my favorite fellow has a dark green body, light green wings, blue eyes, an orange beak and a red comb.

He will compliment your silver beautifully, and in fact the one I've just described is so arrogant when he's m a d e up that I wouldn't put it past him to screech right out in the middle of the proceedings: "Awk! Baby, it's hot inside!" — SUSANNE

BE PREPARED

Dear Susanna: If you enjoy preserving fruit, here is rather a good suggestion for preparing for canning. A potato baller is very convenient for scoop i n out the seed section inside the pears. — Mrs. J. Ross

TABERNACLE U.C.W.

The regular meeting of Tabernacle United Church Women was held in the Sunday School auditorium on Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. D. B. Salsbury in the chair.

The meeting opened with a film, followed by a skit portraying community friendship and visiting. This was presented by Mrs. Martin LaRue and Mrs. Norman Wessels.

After a short business period, Mrs. J. Aitcheson read Mrs. N. D. Patterson's report of the school for leaders held at Albert College in August. Mrs. John Beatty, another delegate, also reported.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Ross Irwin, convener of unit 2, assisted by Mrs. Errol Greenleaf.

Unit 8 served refreshments.

Canadian High-fashion Clothes for Children Make Hit in England

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian designer operating in an unusual field, high-fashion clothes for children, has scored a remarkable coup with some of Britain's fussiest buyers.

In a flying visit this week as part of an Ontario trade mission to Toronto couturier Ellen Henderson succeeded in selling her designs in four of London's top prestige stores.

One of them, an exclusive emporium on Bond Street, has supplied its exquisite, handfinished merchandise to the Queen and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

"I'm tremendously thrilled about this—it vindicates what I've always believed in, quality not quantity," said Mrs. Henderson, who flies back to Canada Sunday. "They loved our stuff and placed quite a good order."

TEMPT MOTHERS

The dresses that will soon tempt the nurses of wealthy British mothers include wool-mix designs for girls aged two to 12 —include finely - tucked party dresses and velvet trimmed with Valenciennes lace, delicate sleepwear, fine corduroy and cotton smocks. Brown, a sophisticated color choice for kids, predominates in the fall-winter spring clothes, along with grey.

The outfits sold to the London stores are in the two-to-six age range.

Mrs. Henderson, who also sells in New York's exclusive Bergdorf Goodman and specialty stores in Boston and Philadelphia, made a previous foray into the London market in 1964 when Harrods, the big Knightsbridge store, bought six dozen dresses. This week they eagerly s t a r t e d double the amount.

Born in Birmingham, Mrs. Henderson went to Canada 40 years ago hoping to set up as a milliner. "But when I got there I found everything was machine-made, nothing done by hand at all."

She began making children's clothes for her two daughters and branched out commercially in 1963. Now she designs 200 styles a year—made up into thousands of outfits which are sold in Canada's leading stores —and works a busy eight-hour day in the Don Mills, Ont., business which she runs with daughter Shirley.

She has won several awards, chooses all fabrics and trimmings herself and keeps a critical eye on every stage of the work done by 16 dressmakers.

"I'm never satisfied," she says. "Everything I do has to be better than the last."

From Pit to Premier

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

From pit to premier. This describes the almost incredible climb of one of the most colorful figures to walk through the pages of scripture. The pit, in his case, was a little one, evidently a dry cistern. (Genesis 37:24) The premiership put him second in command over the entire nation of Egypt. (Genesis 41:40).

That person, of course, was Joseph. Sold into slavery by his jealous half-brothers, he soon found himself in Egypt where, Midas-like, everything he touched seem to prosper. (Genesis 39:2-3) Made overseer of the captain of the guard's affairs, Joseph remained true to the strict moral code of his Hebrew upbringing by resisting the seductive wiles of his owner's wife. Falsely accused by her, he landed in prison where he soon became the warden's right hand trusty. (Genesis 39:21-22) By an incredible chain of events, found himself, at the age of thirty, taken from prison, and in a great step elevated to the post of second in command of the land. Only the king had more power and authority than he. (Genesis 41:40) Joseph's rise to this command, he was able to save his own family from starvation, become reunited with his father, and in this way repay evil with good.

GRAVE FAMILY PROBLEM

The thing that first triggered this amazing chain of events was his father's open show of favoritism. Because Joseph was the son of his favorite wife, Jacob, also known as Israel, "loved Joseph more than any other of his children." (Genesis 37:3 RSV). This caused a very grave family problem. His other sons, conscious of this favoritism, hated their younger brother so much, they "could not speak peaceably to him." (Genesis 37: 4 RSV)

When Joseph naively told his brothers of dreams that seemed to imply they would one day serve him, their hate knew no bounds, and they determined to kill him. But Reuben, Jacob's oldest son, was more understanding and tenderhearted. To buy time, he persuaded his brothers to put Joseph alive into an empty cistern, hoping at a later time to rescue and send him free. In Reuben's absence, the other brothers sold Joseph to a passing caravan, and Joseph was taken to Egypt where by good fortune, he was re-sold to a prominent military leader who soon made him overseer of his estates. (Genesis 39:1)

A PRACTICAL DREAMER

Joseph first knew opposition from his brothers because of his dreams. The world is often harsh in the treatment of its dreamers. "Here comes this dreamer," (Genesis 37:19; RSV) was the most contemptuous thing they could think to say of him. But the world of mankind could not go forward without its dreamers, especially those who know how to turn their dreams into deeds. Joseph was no mere visionary. Time and again, he showed his ability as a leader. His suggestions to Pharaoh were so practical, (Genesis 41:33-36) he sold himself as well as his program to the Egyptian leader who did the unprecedented thing of appointing him, a Hebrew, to be chief administrator of Egypt's food program so there would be surplus stored for times of famine.

The International Sunday School lesson for October 3: "Joseph," Genesis 30:24; 37:1-28; 39 through 50.

It was famine that brought about an interesting turn to the story. Made desperate by famine, and hearing of Egypt's food program, Jacob sent his sons into Egypt to buy food. Though they did not recognize him, Joseph recognized his half-brothers. As though he still distrusted them, he subjected them to being spies (Genesis 42:9,14), then by a series of questions and tricks designed to have psychological effects, Joseph found out about his half-brother, Benjamin, and tested his brothers' loyalty to their father, Jacob.

A WONDERFUL PHILOSOPHY

The high point of the story comes when Joseph reveals his identity to his brothers, and sends for his father. At this time, he revealed his philosophy concerning all that had happened. "Do not be distressed, or angry with yourselves," he told his brothers, "because you sold me here; for God sent me before you to preserve life . . . So it was not you who sent me here, but God." (Genesis 45: 5,8)

It is relatively easy to reflect such a faith when one is successful. The test comes when everything seems to go wrong. Yet the great souls have been those who have seen God's hand in adversity as well as prosperity. "Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" asked Job, (Job 2:10 RSV). And as Jesus faced the dire possibility of the cross, and was tempted to pray, "Father, save me from this hour," He prayed to show His faith that God, not Caiaphas or Pilate, was leading Him to it. It was the very purpose for which He had been brought to such an hour. (John 12:27)

nist takeover in Indonesia.

D. N. Aidit, the leader of Indonesia's big Communist party, also is not on the cabinet list, but the monitors said at least three members were believed to be Communists.

Observers in Kuala Lumpur suspected Communist influence to increase still more in Indonesia in the wake of the upheaval. For even the conservative army leaders had acted as a check on the Communists, but recently Dr. Sukarno government was increasingly responsible to demands of India's 3,000,000 - member Communist party.

Radio Jakarta said the arrests were made Thursday in a "30th of September operation" led by Lt.-Col. Untung, commander of Sukarno's bodyguards.

Sukarno "is safely placed under the army's protective action," the broadcast said. "Also those prominent leaders of society who had been the targets of the council of generals have been placed under protection by the order of September operation."

Those leaders also were not identified.

WASHINGTON WORRIED

In Washington, the state department said that previously dispatches from the U.S. Embassy in Jakarta showed that Indonesia's military forces were tense pending but that the shape of events was not clear.

U.S. officials were apprehensive. The Indonesian Communists have repeatedly denounced what they termed the government's break relations with the United States, but Sukarno had not taken that step despite bitter opposition to U.S. policy in Asia.

Radio Jakarta said the council of generals had planned to conduct a power exhibition on Thursday, Oct. 1 this year, by sending to Jakarta troops from East, Central and West Java.

It said the council of generals was "a subversive body sponsored by the CIA" which "has been very active lately, especially after President Sukarno was severely ill in the first week of August this year."

Although Sukarno has been reported suffering from a serious kidney ailment for several years, this was the first word that he was ill in August.

ween per cent of North American production.

2. Canada has undertakings from the Canadian subsidiaries of General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors — plus about a dozen much smaller firms—that business by 1968 will increase by $260,000,000. This is beyond normal market growth, averaging eight per cent annually in Canada as against only three per cent in the much larger U.S. market.

This will require more Canadian plants and workers.

3. The United States seeks to preserve an automotive trade with Canada, which annually has produced a trade surplus, last worth $300,000,000 last year.

4. Canada gets larger entry to the U.S. market through the abolition, for manufacturers only, by each country of tariffs on most motor vehicles and their original parts.

This means a loss of $50,000,000 annually in Canadian tariff revenues.

5. If the agreement works as each government has said it hopes it will, then Canadian car prices, now ranging from eight to 17 per cent more than in the United States, will come down. The auto-makers have been under pressure as hearings here because of their reluctance to say that immediate price cuts are likely.

RESHAPING COSTLY

They argue that reshaping production patterns, chiefly in Canada, to get longer production runs is costly.

A main U.S. argument for the agreement was made by President Johnson when he signed the agreement with Prime Minister Pearson Jan. 16 and said it avoided a costly trade war of "stroke and counter-stroke."

The bill has been on Johnson's priority list and this session of Congress since its introduction last March 31, but the three-day Senate debate came close to ending in further delay.

KLAN WANTS CATHOLICS

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)— The head of the Ku Klux Klan in Delaware said Wednesday the Klan has reversed its historic anti-Catholic stand and now welcomes Roman Catholics as members. Ralph D. Pryor, Jr., grand dragon of the Realm of Delaware, said that the change was adopted as part of "stroke and counter-stroke."

He said he has placed the matter of retarded and mentally ill youths being convicted for criminal offenses has been known for some time and now is under study.

He said he has placed the matter on a list of topics for discussion by a new inter-departmental committee on facilities for emotionally disturbed persons.

The first meeting of the committee will be held in about a week, he said.

The committee is made up of two representatives each from the Departments of Health and Welfare Education and Reform Institutions.

Wants Car Prices Lowered By $100

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian car prices will have to be lowered by at least $100 if buyers in this country are to benefit from the Canada-United States auto agreement, says Prof. John H. Dales.

The University of Toronto political science professor said in an interview Thursday that car-price trends in the future will be the real test of the agreement signed Jan. 16.

The Canadian public, he said, must receive a benefit equal to the $50,000,000 in annual tariffs Ottawa is relinquishing to car manufacturers under the agreement.

"With annual Canadian production of about 500,000 cars, manufacturers will have to cut prices by at least $100 before Canadians break even on their $50,000,000 gift to the car companies," Prof. Dales said.

He said the trade agreement will mean expansion of Canada's auto industry but defined a benefit as "a higher per-capita standard of living for Canadians—not the creation of a larger industry."

He questioned the federal government's wisdom in allowing the $50,000,000 subsidy to auto manufacturers to enable the financing of re-tooling the other production reorganization.

Knew Retarded Being Jailed Says Grossman

TORONTO (CP) — Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossman said Thursday night that the matter of retarded and mentally ill youths being convicted for criminal offenses has been known for some time and now is under study.

He said he has placed the matter on a list of topics for discussion by a new inter-departmental committee on facilities for emotionally disturbed persons.

The first meeting of the committee will be held in about a week, he said.

The committee is made up of two representatives each from the Departments of Health and Welfare Education and Reform Institutions.

Pillars of Security

Multiple Sclerosis

Fifth of a series of articles on the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal Campaign.

Have you ever wondered why the young man down the street uses a cane and is so unsteady on his feet? Or why the young housewife seems to stagger around the supermarket and lean on her grocery cart for support?

These young adults may be suffering from multiple sclerosis—a chronic, crippling disease of the central nervous system which frequently afflicts people in the prime of life.

This is one of the great tragedies of this crippling disease. So often it attacks adults between the ages of 20 and 45.

A typical story: A young man, active in sports and just getting started in business, recently married and with a young family, finds that he has M.S. Within a short time, it is impossible for him to carry on with his job or business because walking becomes too difficult.

Then there follows a period of inactivity, frustration, emotional problems within the family and a general lack of zest—and the "greatest cause of chronic disability among young adults."

It is not a mental, fatal or contagious disease.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Although M.S. has been recognized for over 125 years, the cause and cure are still unknown to medical science.

Frequently early symptoms disappear, only to recur at a later date. Sometimes there are instances of remissions — occasionally for years, but the reason for them is unknown. M. S. is as much a medical mystery as it has been since it was diagnosed originally as multiple sclerosis. And it will remain a mystery until the cause is found.

There is no known treatment which will control M.S. but, in many cases, some of its symptoms can be managed.

SOCIETY AIDS VICTIMS

But what of our stricken young salesman? What will happen to him? Well, upon the advice of the man's physician, the M.S. Society provides a wheelchair and a program of re-training is considered. The Society then acts as a 'go-between' for the patient in applying for such things as disability pensions, welfare assistance or, in some cases, the re-training program.

Sometimes a patient, after retraining, is able to again take his place in the community by supporting his family as a result of his new employment. But here again, so often it is a problem that these people in find employment because industry is not always willing to give a handicapped person a chance.

The Society also provides educational information to the patient and his family to help them live as normally as possible. Specific medical information is offered to members of the medical profession on the aspects of Multiple Sclerosis.

Approximately 25,000 Canadians suffer from this great neurological disorder. Although many patients manage to live nearly normal lives, they are constantly plagued by the danger that their jobs and homes may collapse as their condition worsens.

Because it usually strikes young adults and because it affects both sexes, except for those cases in which remissions occur, it is progressive, the long-term cost to the family over many years and by many people—the family as well as the M.S. victim.

Thus, in Canada, over 100,000 persons could be affected, directly or indirectly. When M.S. pushes its way into a home, it comes to stay—not for a few months or a few years.

Serious family disruption may, and often does, result. A husband can no longer care for her children, or a father may have to look to some one else for help in raising children. Children in the M.S. families may be forced to shoulder responsibilities beyond their years.

What hope is there then? What can we do to help people with this terrible disease?

Research!

Research is the only answer but the reason the Multiple Sclerosis Society has spent $575,000 in grants for research since its formation in 1946.

Money from the Belleville United Appeal is used for this research.

CHAPTER HERE

Though there is no local chapter of the M.S. Society in Belleville, plans are underway for the formation of one. Patients in Belleville are helped through the Toronto Division but there is expected to be a Belleville chapter of the Society by this fall. Volunteers are now being sought to organize the Chapter.

Patients certainly hope that science will provide a control for their mysterious ailment in time to help them. Those of us who have not felt the force of this disease look to medical research to solve this problem so that our children may be spared the fear and ravages of Multiple Sclerosis.

Though there may seem to be little to cheer us today, there is in reality, hope. And that hope is you. Your gift to the United Appeal gives hope for tomorrow, making possible the research that is needed to conquer the greatest cause of chronic disability among young adults today.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Our man Mushmouth, the seer of Zwick's Island and the Cassius Clay of the Bay of Quinte, is taking the "world serious" between the City Hotel Yankees and the Point Anne Cemetaires "lynts" too seriously.

He's getting himself into trouble and this agent wih him.

We get letters.

Here's one from a City Hotel peanut-inhaler. "Listen, we'll take all those cement-headed doughnuts they can make. I had some of their hot dogs the other day and they were so loaded with cereal I could eat them on Friday."

Another sarcastic Hoteller writes: "We are sending the Pointers a couple of softballs with dog leashes attached so they can hang on to those easy grounders."

An Irate Point Anner missives: "When we get through with those Hickson hand-me-downs, they'll be so full of peanuts we'll din 'em in ch-ocolate and sell 'em for candy bars. That is, if anyone will buy them."

Another poems:

"Peeney, Peeney Ho-Ho-Ho,
Whatta pitcher—what a schmo.
When we're finished they'll all know
That's all there is—there ain't no mo'!"

And Mushmouth whose grandpappy pitched the Boers to the softball championship over the British in that South African schmozzle doesn't think much of player approval of a mate's home run.

"I tellya," he says, "these here are bad times. Immoral times. Wimmin goin' around 'bout enough clothes on to wad a shotgun. Young kids outta the eighth grade dickin' up side roads and lollygaggin' all over the place. What kinda guvment we got to let things like that go on."

"It's got so," he rasted, "that softball is gettin' immoral. Years ago ballplayers wanted to congratulate one another or incourage one another, they'd slap one another on the shoulder. Ever notice what they do now—invariably? Slap one another on the bee-hine. Right in front of everybody. Do it all the time I tellya. When I was playing ball if a ballplayer slapped another on the bee-hine, he'd a bin out of the game for indecency."

BACK TO EARTH

In serious vein, the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns are still coming up with some sensational pitching efforts.

The latest bulletin reveals that Toronto's Dave Mitchell tossed a no-hitter, whiffing 21—in a whitewash win over Trenton.

Wingham's Courtes struck out 30 in a 2-0 thriller while Highgate's Eberle whiffed 32 in a tension-packed 22-innings marathon.

Ed Litchfield, the Kingston sensation, elbowed another remarkable 1-0 victory, striking out a fantastic 42 Oshawa batters in an 18-inning cliffhanger. St. Catharine's Ballist served up a perfect game—no hitter—retiring 27 consecutive Hamilton batters.

Niagara-on-the-Lake's Jake Leufeld registered an all-time OASA record, striking out a stupendous 47 batsmen enroute to a 22-innings 4-3 victory over Preston's Tim Tyler.

Odessa's Dave Rutkowsky mowed down 19 with a 2-0 conquest of Scarboro. Tavistock's Keith Wagler strong-armed his fourth consecutive shutout with a convincing 7-0 win over Cobourg.

No less than 126 games have been decided by one run, with an unbelievable 138 being won by shutouts. Thirty-two ills have required extra innings and 26 games have been won by 1-0 scores.

Intermediate Loop Planned For District

A highly successful inaugural meeting held in Cobourg the other night indicates more than passing interest in its emergence.

Representatives of twelve teams were at the meeting, chaired by OHA executive member Jim McCrombie, of Bowmanville.

Teams repregsented were Trenton, Trenton RCAF, Cobourg, Sunderland, Uxbridge, Picton or Wellington, Sutton-Cannington Combines, Hastings, Port Perry, Kingston, Little Britain and Port Hope.

It is planned to divide the proposed league into two divisional, Iron Cobourg and Port Hope to the west, the rest east to Kingston.

The groupings will probably be determined at a special meeting to be held over the weekend or early next week.

OHA vice-president Jack Devine said the meeting was enthusiastic and augurs well for the seasonal success of intermediate hockey both "A" and "B". In the area.

Drysdale Blanks Braves; Giants Win

* * * * * Race End In Sight

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Getting stronger as the season grows shorter, Los Angeles Dodgers' one - two punch of Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale has all but dropped San Francisco Giants to the canvas.

In fact, the way the pair has been pitching, the Dodgers may not even need them to deliver the knockout blow.

The end of the National League race conceivably could come tonight following Drysdale's three-hit 4-0 victory over Milwaukee Braves Thursday night.

The triumph, their 13th straight, kept the league-leading Dodgers two games in front of the Giants, who defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-3.

If the Dodgers, with Claude Osteen pitching, defeat the Braves again tonight and the Reds and 21 - game winner Sammy Ellis down the Giants, Los Angeles will have its third pennant in seven years.

FOLLOWS SHUTOUT

Drysdale's masterpiece came just 24 hours after Koufax shutout Cincinnati on two hits marking the second time in six days that the prodigious pair has pitched consecutive shutouts.

Against St. Louis last Saturday and Sunday, Koufax pitched a five-hit, 2-0 victory and Drysdale buried a five-hit, 10 triumph.

"This is the best stretch of pitching a team of mine has ever enjoyed," said manager Walter Alston, who has watched his staff allow only two runs in the last 60 innings. "I've also never had a team that finished a season as strong as this one."

Drysdale, who threw an average of only 10 pitches an inning against the Braves, said he never felt stronger.

Koufax and Drysdale have been phenomenal. Together they've recorded 48 of the Dodgers' 85 victories—Drysdale is 22-12 and Koufax 25-8.

The left-handed Koufax has a 2.06 earned-run average and eight shutouts while the right-handed Drysdale has a 2.78 ERA and seven shutouts.

In the only other National League game St. Louis Cardinals annihilated Houston Astros 14-3 while Milwaukee Twins edged Baltimore Orioles 7-6 in the only American League contest.

Drysdale retired the first 14 Braves, then gave up a two-out single to Felipe Alou in the fifth inning. He rapped two singles himself, driving in the second run and raising his average to .302, best on the team.

Lou Johnson collected three Dodger hits while John Roseboro added two and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

The Giants won only their third game in nine when pinch-hitter Orlando Cepeda, batting .161, clouted a 3-2 pitch from Joe Nuxhall for a two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning.

Frank Robinson had put Cincinnati ahead 3-0 with a homer in the eighth, but the Giants tied it in the bottom of the inning on a double by Jim Hart and Jesus Alou's single. Giants' starter Juan Marichal was forced out of the game in the seventh with a dislocated left thumb sufefred in a baseline collision.

St. Louis amassed 19 hits against Houston with Lou Brock and Curt Flood getting four each. Gerry Buchek drove in five Cardinals runs.

Zollo Versalles powered the American League champions with the first grand-slam homer of his career. Baltimore made it close with four unearned runs in the seventh inning after Jerry Kindall bobbled Jerry Adair's leadoff grounder.

Unknowns Lead Canada Cup

MADRID (CP - AP) — Two golfers virtually unknown in North America, Donald Swaelens of Belgium and Chen Ching-po of Formosa were leading the parade in individual competition at the Canada Cup golf matches after Thursday's opening round.

They toured the rain-softened Club de Camp course in this Spanish capital in three-under-par 69s. One stroke back at 70 were six players, including 28-year - old George Knudson of Toronto, leading Canadian money-winner on the U.S. golf circuit this year.

Team competition, the South African pair of Gary Player and Harold Henning were leading the pack at 142, with Knudson and his teammate, Wilf Homenuik, 20, of Winnipeg, four strokes back at 146.

U.S. masters champion Jack Nicklaus, one of the favorites here, went around the 7,000-yard layout, pounded by three days of rain, in 34-37—71, but his partner, Tony Lema, ragged to 39-37—76, leaving the American team a stroke behind the Canadian team.

Knudson, a 150-pound native of Winnipeg, had a first-day 35-35—70. Homenuik, a native of Yorkton, Sask., is one of pro golf's smaller players at five-foot-seven and 140 pounds.

Mahovlich Sparks Leafs To 8-1 Win

Scores Three

By THE CANADIA NPRESS

Toronto fans who tend to blame Frank Mahovlich when ever anything bad happens to the Maple Leafs may have to find themselves a new scapegoat this season.

The big left winger, whose 23-goal output last season was his lowest in six years, has been flying ever since the Leafs opened their Peterborough training camp last week.

New York Rangers got the message Thursday night as Mahovlich scored three times to pace the Leafs to an 8-1 victory in the first exhibition game between two National Hockey League clubs this fall.

Toronto fans who tend to blame Frank Mahovlich when-ever anything bad happens to the Maple Leafs may have to find themselves a new scapegoat this season.

The big left winger, whose 23-goal output last season was his lowest in six years, has been flying ever since the Leafs opened their Peterborough training camp last week.

New York Rangers got the message Thursday night as Mahovlich scored three times to pace the Leafs to an 8-1 victory in the first exhibition game between two National Hockey League clubs this fall.

Mahovlich, who missed 11 games because of an undisclosed ailment last season, was tied with rookie Ron Ellis for the Leafs' goal-scoring leadership last season. But many fans singled him out as chiefly responsible for Toronto's fourth place finish and elimination in the Stanley Cup semi - finals after three straight cup triumphs.

The 27-year-old winger appeared to be headed for superstar ranking when he scored 48 goals in the 1960-61 season, But his goal production has dwindled since while Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks has overowed him by tying the NHL record of 50 the following year.

KURTENBACH SCORES

Orland Kurtenbach, the centre Toronto acquired from Boston Bruins in the Andrea trade, supported Mahovlich with two goals Thursday night and Bob Pulford, Carl Brewer and George Armstrong also scored as the Leafs poured through the faltering New York defence for five goals in the third period.

Doug Robinson beat Johnny Bower for the only Ranger goal in the first period after the Leafs had taken a 3-0 lead. Rookies Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin shared New York's goaltending duties with Villemure giving up five goals.

Goalkeepers were in the news in other NHL camps. Roger Crozier, last year's rookie goalie with Detroit Red Wings, picked up an assist and yielded only two goals—to Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio—as the Whites defeated the Reds 5-2 in an intra-squad game.

Coach Sid Abel tried Andy Bathgate, another hero from the Leafs in a trade last spring, at centre between Howe and Delvecchio also the former right winger assisted on both their goals.

HAIL SIGNS

Glenn Hall, who celebrates his 34th birthday Sunday, signed for his ninth season as Chicago's netminder and his 11th in the NHL. Hall, alternating with Denis DeJordy, came within three goals of the Vezina Trophy last season in a three-way battle with Crozier and the Toronto combination of Bower and Terry Sawchuk, the eventual winners.

Montreal Canadians signed five players, three of them members of the defence corps that sparked them to their Stanley Cup victory last spring. Besides defencemen Jean-Guy Talbot, Ted Harris and Noel Price, the contented Habitants were left wingers Gordon (Jiggs) Berenson and rookie Keith McCreary.

The Rangers signed Villemure, centre Bill Kaldos and rookie winger Ron Boehm and assigned centre Ray Cullen to Baltimore Clippers of the American League.

Ranger general manager Emile Francis did some further house-cleaning after Thursday night's game, returning Villemure to Vancouver Canucks of the Western League and sending Boehm, defencemen Bob Ash, Al Lebrun, Ken Block and Bob Plager and forward Jim Johnson to St. Paul Rangers of the Central League.

Villemure's departure leaves Giacomin, Don Simmons and Cesare Maniago to battle for the top goaltending job and Francis said he plans to keep all three until just before the Rangers break camp Oct. 16.

Koufax May Not Open Series

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If the Dodgers play Minnesota in the World Series starting Wednesday, they naturally want to lead off with their pitching ace, Sandy Koufax.

But Wednesday is Yom Kippur, a Jewish holy day. And Koufax is Jewish.

"From what I've been told," Koufax said, "there are no dispensations for this particular day. But then I haven't really talked about it to a rabbi. If we sew up the pennant, I plan to take it up and find out the proceedings. If I'm told it isn't proper to pitch, then I won't because I wouldn't feel right about it."

Open Purse Upped To $200,000

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced Thursday night that finanicial arrangements have been made with the city of Montreal and a distillery to double the prize money of the Canadian Open to $200,000 for 1967.

The purse will, for 1967 only, consist of the regular prize money of $100,000 and a further $100,000 from the city of Montreal.

City council Thursday night approved the executive committee's recommendation that the national championship be held at the Municipal Golf Course and that the city contribute to the prize money.

Laclen Sauriol, chairman of the executive committee, said improvements to the course were discussed and planned "a few years ago. The possibility of hosting the championship in '67 accelerated those plans."

Varsity Forward In Opener

By IAN MacLAINE

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues embark Saturday on what many expect will be their winningest season again in several seasons when they entertain McGill University Redmen.

The Blues and the Redmen have won all but two of nearly a dozen exhibition outings but Toronto appears favored on the basis of their impressive 49-20 victory last weekend over University of Manitoba Bisons.

The Redmen dropped an 11-0 game to Ottawa University of the St. Lawrence Conference and downed Halifax St. Mary's University Huskies of the new Maritime Conference 31-14 in their exhibition games.

The Blues lost a 20-14 encounter with University of Western Ontario Mustangs of Loan two weeks ago but were severely hampered by costly penalties.

Coach Dak White has an unusually deep bench for the fifth senior Intercollegiate football League schedule, especially with the return of several key players from last season and the addition of halfback Pete Broadhurst, an outstanding halfback with the SIFL champion Queen's Golden Gaels.

Another pleasant surprise for White has been the work of his line, particularly defensive unit, particularly Andy McGill and Mike Gray, Ian Kirkpatrick and Geof Wyte.

McGill, second place finishers in the SIFL in 1964 are considered a weaker club this year although several prominent veterans still are sprinkled among the rookies on the roster.

Quarterback Glen St. John, the league's top passer, and back Ken Walter are the among rookie coach Tom Mooney's offensive mainstays.

CULLEN TO CLIPPERS

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League announced Thursday they have been assigned Roy Cullen, voted the outstanding rookie in three different leagues, by Indianapolis Checkers, parent team, New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Lead Series 3-2

Hotelmen Edge Pointers

City Hotel climbed to within one win for the Commercial Softball League championship last night edging Point Anne 4-3 in another playoffs thriller. The series now stands at 3-2 with the sixth game slated for the Point Anne Sunday starting at 2 p.m. Note the time change.

The Hotelmen won the game in the first inning scoring all their runs in the frame. The Pointers scored two in the first and the other run in the third.

It was another top mound duel between the Pointers' Ron Marsele and Dave Feeny, the hotel ace. Marsele homered to score two runs in the opening innings.

Feeney tossed a neat three-hitter walking four and whiffing five. Marsele was touched for six clouts, struck out nine and walked four.

Hotelmen toiled to open the Hotelmen's first inning, Martin was hit and Hull's single scored Hawkins. The next batter was walked and Coolen singled two runners home. Marsele with the two on base walked Ethier and Feeny to score the last marker.

Horwood doubled to open the game for the Pointers and came home on Marsele's fourbagger. They scored their final run in the third on a walk and a long triple by Horwood.

Hotelmen were proved costly for the Pointers while two stolen bases by the winners didn't help any.

Brooks with six put-outs, Martin and Hawkins provided fine Hotelmen's fielding highlights.

Marsele's two-run homer, MacDonald's triple and Horwood's double accounted for the Point Anne offense.

The teams:

Point Anne: Cook, MacDonald, Horwood, Marsele, E. Maher, Whalen, Rosebush, Summers, Moore.

The score:

City Hotel	400 000 0—4-6-2

Marichal Double Trouble

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitcher Juan Marichal got a double dose of trouble Thursday. He suffered a hairline fracture in the last joint of his left thumb during the seventh inning, and minutes later was served with papers in a $110,000 damage suit brought by Los Angeles Dodger catcher John Roseboro.

Marichal, the right - handed ace of the San Francisco pitching staff, went to the Giants' clubhouse after colliding with Cincinnati Reds shortstop Leo Cardenas and was served with the papers.

Marichal hit Roseboro over the head with a bat during a fracas at Candlestick Park on Aug. 22.

Later, National League President Warren Giles suspended Marichal for eight playing dates and fined him $1,750. He also was forbidden to travel to Los Angeles for the final Giants-Dodgers series of the season.

Roseboro's suit was filed Sept. 1 in Los Angeles Superior Court. It asks $10,000 general damages and $100,000 punitive damages from Marichal and the Giants.

Moira Junior Trojans put together a strong offence and stout defence to whip Quinte 19-7 in a sloppy battle earlier in the afternoon.

The senior contest began fast and furious, as Quinte halfback Grant Vandervoort stepped on the accelerator on the first play of the game and sped 60 yards for the T.D. Paul Whalen kicked the convert.

John Chandler took over where Vandervoort left off and galloped 55 yards on the first play to the Quinte 12. Don Carson went over for the score but the convert was missed.

Penalties were handed out freely and the game slowed down. There was no score until Ted Lessels booted a single later in the second quarter for Quinte.

Vandervoort scored his second touchdown later in the third quarter after dashing 50 yards but the convert was missed.

Moira closed the gap to a narrow two points when John Chandler took a hand-off around left end and streaked 72 yards to score.

Jack Reppard started the Quinte offence rolling again with a series of fine runs, and ended his effort by taking the pigskin over from 12 yards to score. Paul Whalen aided the upstanding the convert attempt.

In an attempt to close the 16 point gap, Trojan quarterback Bob Bateman took to the air. He floated a pass to Don Bartley that covered 60 yards for the T.D. Interception by Bob Moon, Ted Lessels, Paul Whalen and Steve LaMore ended any Moira hopes for more points.

Dave Muir played an excellent game on the Quinte defensive line.

In the junior contest John Holgate scored two T.D.'s to lead the home team to the win.

Most of the credit, however, should go to the mid-dener running of Dalton Lambert. Lambert ground out yardage through a west Quinte line almost at will and also contributed a touchdown.

Pete Bishop's running was effective too.

Bob Carter accounted for Quinte's lone six-pointer after two penalties against Moira had put the losers within easy scoring distance.

Cepeda Answers Critics

By JOE REICHLER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They call him "the forgotten man." Angels said he lacked desire. The more cruel ones called him a malingerer, a guy who looked for excuses not to play.

The army of critics grew in number when Orlando Cepeda was forced out of action virtually all year because of a minor knee operation.

The same people who had cheered him for his great slugging years ever since the Giants moved to San Francisco in 1958, the ones who had adopted him as their own, nicknaming him "The Baby Bull," now looked upon him with suspicion.

It was as if it was his fault that the Giants were now trailing Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League pennant race by two games instead of leading by a comfortable margin.

Orlando Cepeda, a kind and sensitive man, and a great ball player, is aware of the cruel and unjust things said about him by unthinking people.

REMEMBER HOMER

Thursday afternoon after he had stepped up to the plate as a pinch hitter and slammed the 3-2 pitch for a game - winning and a 5-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds, keeping the Giants' pennant hopes alive, the pride of Ponce, Puerto Rico, couldn't restrain himself any longer.

"I know what people say," he said his voice choking with emotion. "They say I don't want to play. . . .

"They say I am faking it. I don't understand people who say such terrible things about me. People who say such untruths don't deserve to live.

"I have pride. God gave me ability to play baseball. It's my living. It's the thing I can do best. Why should I not want to do what I know best?

"For two years I played on a knee that hurt every time I put pressure on it. I played when I should not have played. I did not even tell my manager.

"Even after the operation, I felt I play too soon. That's why I hurt the knee again. If I didn't want to play, why have I worked so hard with exercises and weights? Why did I take four injections in my knee just three weeks ago?"

CONTRIBUTE $14,000

KITCHENER (CP) —Sports-minded citizens contributed $14,000 to the Bobby Bauer Memorial Foundation Thursday night as a $25-a-plate dinner attracted more than 500 people. The foundation was established in memory of the Waterloo, Ont., native and Boston Bruin star who died a year ago.

Condition Won For Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP)—Coach Jim Bishop of the Oshawa Green Gaels said Thursday his team defeated New Westminster, B.C., Salmon Bellies for the Minto Cup because the Gaels were in better condition.

Bishop was replying to charges by the Salmonbellies' coach Keith Jackson, that lacrosse is becoming a sissy game in Ontario and that penalties are called for breathing heavily.

Bishop said the Gaels had won in 1964 with Western referees and this year with eastern officials; "It's hard work that wins the game not criticisms."

He said his team can play in either style—a running game as they are accustomed to do or a checking game in western style.

Bishop said he didn't think the Salmonbellies knew the meaning of condition.

"They can't blame claiming they were in condition and we weren't," he said. "It was our conditioning that beat them."

The Gaels won the best-of-seven series 4-1.

NHL Gets Ten Bids

VANCOUVER CP—The Province quotes Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, as saying he has received 10 bids for NHL franchises, including two from Vancouver.

The newspaper says Campbell added his reluctance to view from Montreal that "I doubt if any decision in the case of Vancouver will be made until such time as a building is assured."

Campbell was quoted as saying that in addition to the 10 bids already received for NHL franchises, one more — from San Francisco—is on its way to NHL headquarters in Montreal. He did not name the other bids.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The possession of a Molotov cocktail in Cincinnati now is an offence carrying a maximum penalty of six months in jail, or a $500 fine, or both. City council adopted an ordinance Wednesday banning the home-made fire bombs. The measure was proposed after the Los Angeles riot.

DROP DEAD

NEW YORK (AP)—Cot Deal, New York Yankee pitching coach this season, has been dropped, manager Johnny Keane said Thursday. The three other Yankee coaches, Vern Benson, Jim Hagan and Frank Crosetti — have signed contracts for 1966, Keane added.

No Changes In Lineup Tiger Coach Stays Put

HAMILTON (CP)—Ralph Sasio, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, said Thursday he plans no more lineup additions this season.

Because of this, Sasio did not sign fullback Mel Anthony following his trial with the team. Anthony, hero of this year's Rose Bowl victory for University of Michigan with a three touchdown performance, was cut by Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, signed by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference and cut from that squad two days later.

Newcomer Dave Fleming, a halfback who played his first game with Hamilton against Edmonton Tuesday night, may be in the lineup when the Tiger-cats play Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Canadian Football League interlocking game Sunday in Winnipeg beginning at 3 p.m. CDST (3 p.m., EDST) and televised on the CTV network.

Gerry Mcdougall and Stan Grimon will start at the defensive end positions with Jim Reynolds available to take over for either one. Otherwise, Reynolds will remain at his usual centre linebacker spot.

Sasio did not indicate whether Joe Zuger or Frank Andrejicka will start at quarterback, although Zuger played the entire game Tuesday night in the Ticats' 9-3 loss to Edmonton.

A Year Ago

Mele Walked Tightrope

By LEW FERGUSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—"You know the old story: Managers who don't win get fired."

Sam Mele was talking about the occupational tightrope he was walking a year ago today as manager of Minnesota Twins.

The Twins, after finishing second in 1962 and third in 1963 under Mele, slumped to a tie with Cleveland Indians for sixth place in 1964.

President Calvin Griffith said publicly he didn't blame Mel for the club's troubles, but he would not commit himself about who his manager would be in 1965.

"Sure, I was looking around for other possible jobs," Mel said. "I've got a family to think about and I wasn't at all sure what the future held. I'm 43 years old."

TOOK PAY CUT

Soon after the 1964 World Series, Griffith talked to Mele, telling Sam he would have to take a pay cut if Mele demanded, and received, a big raise in pay this year-before, so a cut was in order when the team slumped as it did.

Mele put up only a token fight, took the pay cut and began making plans for 1965.

"I felt we were contenders, but we had to do certain things," Mele said. "The biggest thing was to change our tactics.

"I decided we had to hit and run and not wait for the home run."

The Twins clinched the 1965 American League pennant last Sunday.

Mele made headlines by fining star shortstop Zoilo Versalles $300 in spring training when the volatile Cuban challenged his authority. Then Mele got into a verbal feud with Cleveland manager Birdie Tebbetts over the shirttugging of pitcher Jim Kaat. Finally, Mele bumped and appeared to take a punch at umpire Bill Valentine. For that, he was fined $500 and suspended five days.

WAS IT PLANNED?

Were these episodes part of a conscious plan by Mele to become more aggressive and pump some fire into his ball club?

"No," Mele replied, "they were just incidents that happened. At the time, they got me a little mad.

With the pennant locked up, Mele was benevolent.

"How can I be mad at anyone?"

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem ?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A common tactic used by brokers to close a sale is to tell the buyer to make an offer for less than the listing price and an attempt will be made to persuade the owner to accept the reduced price. The science of salesmanship may condone this practice, but it is a highly improper act for a real estate broker.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My broker seems to be working for the buyers yet he expects to collect the commission from me. Surprisingly, he tells me that all brokers do the same thing.

I listed my house with him for $28,000. This price was arrived at after discussion with the appraiser employed by my bank. I dislike bargaining so I was determined to ask a fair price.

Needless to say I was shocked. The broker defended himself by stating that all brokers worked this way. Is this true? — Still An Idealist.

ANSWER: The selling tactics of your broker are common to many brokers, but I can assure you, are not the techniques used by all. Unfortunately, many brokers are not aware that this approach will cost us a lot of bad faith with their principal (owner) but can also be the basis of depriving them of a commission.

Any broker who tells a prospect that the property can be bought for less than the agreed upon listing price is on very tenuous ground. He is violating the moral and legal obligations owed by an agent toward his principal.

Your broker's approach would be justified only if he were retained by a buyer who specifically agreed to pay him a commission or fee for his services. In this case he would be representing the owner and could not look to him for his commission.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The lonely old man whose friends are all gone, humbly solicits your advice. I find it hard to make decisions these days so please help me.

The only child I have left is my son. The only assets I have left are the house in which I live by myself and my pension.

My son wants me to transfer the house to him with the understanding that I may continue to live in it for the rest of my days. He says that if I will make the estate problem simpler and less costly.

His lawyer has sent me a deed to sign. I keep staring at it. What shall I do? — Old Poor and Sick

ANSWER: Stop staring at the deed and send it back to the lawyer — unsigned. My advice to anyone from fatty of woe told me by hundreds of people who signed their property over to their children just as your son wants you to do.

At your stage in life you'll have it to yourself to provide for yourself the best measure of security that you can. Your son is a major part of your security.

Once your son becomes the owner, he may have a change of heart and nullify the arrangements of which he speaks. Sooner he needs money and sells it or mortgages it. Or suppose he dies — how would his wife feel about your living in the house.

Your son is either misleading you or is misinformed. Settling your small estate will be a simple matter and the cost will be very little.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Rats in the belfry may be the proper setting for a mystery story but what's nthe attic make for a very unhappy family. After coming and going all night long keeps us awake. We haven't gotten a decent night's sleep since it started a month ago.

ANSWER: The solution requires two stages — first you must get rid of the bats and then prevent them from coming back.

An easy way to drive out the bats is to resort to using dangerous and expensive chemicals is to burn one or more sulphur candles in the attic. Make sure the candles are placed on a flame-proof surface — otherwise you will be getting rid of the bats the hard way — by burning the house down.

The next step is to close up or screen all open spaces in your attic so bats can enter from very small crevices. Common entry points are through the eaves, louvres and ventilation openings left by the builder in the eaves and roof overhang.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Stagger-Pass Offence

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, trying to keep their playoff hopes alive, have been trying some variations of a stagger-pass offence in preparation for their Sunday meeting with the tail-end Toronto Argonauts here.

The stagger-pass offence is one in which all possible receivers run for a pass and station themselves in various parts of the field.

Don Paulette, the defensive end who was traded away twice by Montreal coach Jim Trimble, is back in the Alouette camp looking for a job.

Paquette was recently released by Calgary Stampeders.

The Als, who hold down third place in the EFC, with six points in the standings, are not planning any lineup changes for Sunday's encounter.

BAD TO SWITCH

Argo coach Bob Shaw said last week he planned no further lineup changes for the rest of the season, but he was forced to amend that decision after defensive halfback John Wydareny was injured in last Sunday's game. Wydareny had a broken collar bone.

Shaw's moves this week were to drop import halfback Bob Currington and sign Canadian defensive back Jim Copeland and import John Atamian, a guard-linebacker from Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Copeland, recently released by Saskatchewan Roughriders, led the Western Conference in punt returns two years ago and was second last fall.

a Sumac Draws Rave irst Concert Since '50

By DAVE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Yma Sumac, the five-octave bird from the mountains of Peru, is making more like a humongoid these days, flitting around North America in a new spurt of career activity.

Last spring the exotic beauty announced she intended to recapture her popularity in the United States, after a virtual silence in the country for nearly a decade.

Much of her hope was pinned on an August concert in the Hollywood Bowl—her first there since August of 1950. And she was scared to death, the admitted—afterward.

"My first number went fine," she says, "but in the second, my legs were shaking so much I was afraid I might fall. Thank heaven for floor - length gowns. Nobody saw.

"And when I sang Chair de Lune—did you see the moon that night? — well, I just started at it while I was singing and thought, 'Help me, help me. Please, let me get through to night.' "

DREW RAVES

Although the numerous and beautifully costumed, 40-pound Miss Sumac in her South American Fiesta left the audience ecstatic, Miss Sumac drew raves for her performance.

The legendary Sumac voice revealed itself as a still unique instrument—ranging eerily from baritone growling to incredibly pheric warbling in the color- tura range.

Yma Sumac at 43 has developed more power and more control over her immense voice. Without seeming to have surrendered any of the flexibility and liquid ease for which it was first lauded when the first made headlines in the late 1940s.

Her performance did just that she hoped it would, she says today: It got her bookings all over the continent.

NDP Ready To Provide Free Education

- - Douglas

By BEN WARD

SUDBURY (CP) — T. C. Douglas wound up a rugged three-day tour of Northern Ontario with a speech here Thursday night that attracted his biggest crowd so far in the federal election campaign — 1,000 persons crammed into a suburban hotel ballroom.

He drew his most enthusiastic reponse when he outlined the New Democratic Party's pledge to provide free education right to the top university level.

"We believe that the level of education a youngster gets should be decided by the amount of brains he has in his head and not the amount of money his father has in the bank," he asserted.

The NDP leader had to drive 300 miles from Timmins after bad weather washed out plans for an air flight to Sudbury. Already this week he has been forced to drive 675 miles, much of it in fog and heavy rain, in a campaign that had dying weather in the north.

Today he was to fly to Toronto en route to a night meeting at London.

FACE CROP LOSSES

Earlier Thursday he toured the farming region between Kirkland Lake and New Liskeard where wet and cold weather has caused a disastrous crop loss.

"This is a real disaster area," he told a tea-and-cakes reception at New Liskeard, producing a letter from Prime Minister Pearson's office to make federal aid available for an emergency assistance program.

He heard a typical story from farmer William Lachapelle, 37, who said 80 per cent of the crop of his 150-acre grain farm is a total loss. Mr. Lachapelle, father of 11 children ranging in age from two to 15, will receive only about $1,000 from his farm this year and faces a $1,200 mortgage payment in a few weeks.

Mr. Douglas said farmers in the...North and those on the Prairies whose crops have been buried by snow need immediate government aid. Work projects should be set up till let them earn enough cash to get through the winter. Debt payments should be delayed.

In his Sudbury speech Mr. Douglas said an NDP government would offer the provinces a choice of grants or tax abatements to finance 10,000 university scholarships a year, worth $1,000 each.

ASK PEARSON

"If Mr. Pearson ever gets up into this country in the election campaign ask him whatever happened to those scholarships," he told the audience. "That's something the Liberals would like to have you forget about."

Mr. Douglas said the government manpower policies have been disastrous. The NDP would set up a program to retrain workers displaced by automation and equip them with higher skills to meet the demands of industrial change.

His rally here was organized by NDP workers for Sudbury and Nickel Belt ridings, both of which have been Liberal strongholds ever since they were formed.

On the way from Kirkland Lake, where he spoke Wednesday night, the NDP leader visited a cement block factory, a creamery, a cheese factory and the dairy farm operated by William R. Peters, 74, father of the Timiskaming member.

HITS HARD

The elder Mr. Peters, a one-time Liberal party candidate in this riding who changed to the NDP, told Mr. Douglas that dairy farmers are being hard hit by the competition from the multi - milk, a concentrated product that sells for 49 cents a quart and can be turned into three quarts of whole milk by adding water.

He said makers of multi-milk buy their whole milk at the low price paid for manufactured milk and then compete with high-cost dairy fluid milk.

Mr. Douglas said the provincial government should stop this unfair competition by ruling that milk to be turned into multi-milk must be purchased at the fluid milk price level.

Pearson Good For Nfld. Says Smallwood

By DAVE McINTOSH

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson "is good for us," says Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood.

That statement — printed on the dinner menu over Mr. Smallwood's signature — set the tone here Thursday night for a Liberal banquet of roast beef and three wines at Memorial University in honor of Mr. Pearson.

The prime minister tried to live up to Mr. Smallwood's billing—his party audience apparently judged he succeeded—by promising, among other things, to set up some form of "health insurance" for fishermen similar to crop insurance for farmers.

"We are at present working out how it can be done," he said.

He drew even louder applause when he said power from the new Bay d'Espoir development will be supplemented by power from Churchill Falls in Labrador, "one of the most stupendous" power undertakings in the world.

FAVORITE SON

Mr. Pearson departed from his prepared text at the end of his 40-minute speech to say that the federal government must do more for education, that its $400,000,000 grant was old "is not going to be enough.

"Every boy and girl must be given the highest type of education as far as he or she can go. This must be done," he said.

The federal government would be discussing this with the provinces and universities.

Earlier, the prime minister said the British heritage will be maintained in Canada's new united Canada.

"You can look forward to the Canadian future without forgetting or betraying in any way the British traditions," Mr. Lapointe told him of the student royal problem and of having advising them to be good citizens as voters locally or, failing that, to go to the court of revision.

The a.d.c. also presented a plamend demonstration in favor of talking quietly with Mr. Pearson for a few minutes.

At the airport, a few bearded youths carried a Freedom Choice and placards reading "Frogs shall overcome" and "Give Canada back to the Indians."

On "catch insurance," Mr. Pearson said:

"I have pledged ourselves to treat the fishermen on an equal basis with the farmers, to do things for them that are as far as possibly can—similar to the things that are being done for farmers.

"Indeed, we have to do more for both of them if our primary producers are to have the right place in our modern industrial society!

"We have made provision for crop insurance for farmers, depending on the co-operation of the provincial governments. We must find a way to provide some form of catch insurance for our fishermen.

"It is not easy to do this in a way that will be practical, simple and workable, but we are at present working out how it can be done.

Songs Tell Story in New Comedy "How To Stuff A Wild Bikini"

American International's most beautiful "young-a-heart" musical comedy with twelve bright new musical numbers in all, is "How To Stuff a Wild Bikini". What's more the new AIP color and Panavision fun-fest for the first time has the song and music le tell the rollicking story instead of using the musical numbers as mere fill-ins, for-fatter judes.

The songs and music are topical, rhythmic and romantic with the team of Guy Henric and Jerry Styner again providing the tunes, for American International. This is the same composing duo which wrote the hit songs for "Beach Party", "Muscle Beach Party", "Bikini Beach", "Pajama Party" and "Beach Blanket Bingo", and they have come up with their best and funniest film musical yet.

Starring in "How To Stuff a Wild Bikini" are Annette Funicello, Dwayne Hickman, Brian Donlevy, Buster Keaton, Harvey Lembeck, Beverly Adams, John Ashley, Jody McCrea and guest star Mickey Rooney, and almost all sing or join in the songs at one time or another during the film, now showing at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Annette, of course, sings several ballad numbers in her famed popular style, with Hickman joining in on two. She sings "Better be Ready" and "The Perfect Boy" and they both sing "Let's Play Love" and "If It's Going To Happen" together. Mickey Rooney sings two numbers, one with AIP's beautiful blonde star and one with Brian Donlevy, "How About Us" and "Madison Avenue",

TV Give Full Treatment To Visit of Pope to U.S.

TV-Radio Column

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major television networks are preparing to give the same all-out coverage to the 14-hour gilt of Pope Paul to the United Nations and New York Monday that they have accorded the astronauts, space journeys, political conventions and the last rites for President John F. Kennedy and Sir Winston Churchill.

From 9 a.m. EDT until 11 p.m. when he is scheduled to take off again all regular programs will be skipped. The day, too, will be virtually without any commercials. And the head of the Roman Catholic church will be on camera just about every minute that he is not in private conference.

All three networks will have prominent Catholic churchmen serving in special capacities on the staffs Monday. CBS; in something of an ecclesiastical scoop, will have a Belgian-born priest as its special narrator for the day. He is most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, auxiliary bishop of the New York Roman Catholic archdiocese and national director of the society for the propagation of the faith.

RETURNS FROM ROME

Bishop Sheen, who has been in Rome attending the ecumenical council meetings, arrived in New York last Wednesday and by Thursday night already had compiled what he called "a fact book" of 128 pages for his use, as he said, from "sunrise to sunset."

The churchman, famed as a lecturer, teacher and writer, expects that his private knowledge will come with his explanation of the mass Monday night in Yankee Stadium which will be watched on television by millions of non - Catholics as well as Catholics.

"I am going to explain it in terms of the engagement that comes before marriage," he said. "I recall that I once sat for an hour and a half in Japan watching a play and was bored to death because I didn't understand one word of what was going on. I've always disliked the way the mass was presented on television anyway. The movements were described unwisely you could see anywise but the meaning was ignored. I hope to explain it in the simplest possible terms."

The bishop said that the Pope's health is good now but that the Pope did undergo intimate the strain of the long trip and the demands of the long day.

"But in this realm, one draws strength from service," he said with a smile. "He is giving so he will not tire—and besides he is a man who needs only four or five hours of sleep a night."

The Tatler Goes on Sale For Last Time

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The coffee tables of Britain's upper-class homes will never be the same again. After 64 years of recording the passing days of society, The Tatler, glossiest of glossy magazines, went on sale for the last time Wednesday.

The weekly journal, part of Canadian-born Lord Thomson's publishing empire for only four years, will be replaced by London Life, a sophisticated guide to doings in the capital, aimed at a somewhat younger, more "with it" readership than The Tatler's county set.

John Oliver, editor of The Tatler since 1961, said the magazine had been doing well financially, but it was felt a new type of publication might be more in tune with the times.

"The hardest thing was preserving the balance of keeping it up to date but at the same time preserving the prestige. That is the tightrope we have been walking."

The Tatler, described in a farewell article in Punch as "the last of society papers," made its bow in 1901—fittingly enough at the dawn of the Edwardian era. It was the period society was to flower as never before or since.

The new magazine, billed as "the lightest, brightest and most interesting society and dramatic paper ever published," has no connection with the famous 18th-century publication of the same name and associated with the essayists Addison and Steele.

In the words of Alison Adburgham in Punch, The Tatler was "written for snobs by snobs."

The first number, dated July 3, 1901, set the tone with a lavish spread on a fete at the Duke of Sutherland's stately home, followed by a feature on the family tree of the Duke of Norfolk and an article entitled "Who's Who in Pall Mall," first of a series on smart residential districts.

Ford Retail Prices Down Says Company

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Company has announced suggested retail prices on its 1966 model cars and at the prices are a reduction over comparable prices for 1965 models.

Ford, the last of the U.S. automobile industry's big three to reveal its 1966 prices, said Wednesday that new car prices on all Ford models represent a reduction averaging $7. Ford said the reductions reflect a $58 continuation of the full, federal excise tax reduction now in effect.

The price list, Ford said, includes prices only for basic models, accessory items, particularly safety items, which were optional on the company's 1965 models.

OAKVILLE, (CP) — Ford of Canada said Wednesday there will be price reductions in Canada on 1966 Mustang, Thunderbird and Lincoln cars, which are imported from the United States.

Prices of 1966 Canadian-built Fords were not included in the announcement and Ford President Karl.E. Scott.

He said effective Oct. 1 the suggested retail delivered price of a 1966 Mustang two-door hardtop at Windsor, Provincial taxes, will be $127 lower than a comparably-equipped 1965 model, and the reduction for a similar - type Thunderbird will be $150. The Lincoln four-door sedan will be down $250.

He Picks Baby-sitters, Leave Him Home Alone

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow who is trying to raise a boy and girl. My husband died when the boy was six years old. The boy is now 13 and believe me, Ann, I've had my hands full.

I am active in our church auxiliary and I hold a state office. I must go to meetings every Tuesday night. There are three very nice young girls in the neighborhood I call on to sit with Gerald. The little redheaded girl is 16. The other two girls are 15.

Last night Gerald asked me who I had called to sit with him and I told him "Connie." (She is one of the 15-year-olds.) He said, "I'd rather have the redhead."

This made me stop and think about something that never crossed my mind before. Please read between the lines and tell me your ideas on the subject. — CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: When the boy is old enough to ask for a redheaded baby sitter, he is old enough to stay home alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm in my third year of college and I'm going with a girl who is in her second year. I drive my car to school every day and take four passengers regularly. Dorothy is one of my steady riders.

We were pals when she started to ride with me almost two years ago and we've been the same as a charged the entire time. In the last six months we have fallen in love and plan to be married.

Last night Dorothy told me her parents think it is awfully cheap of me to charge her to ride in my car. They felt it was O.K. at the beginning, but now that we are almost engaged they don't think I should collect from her.

We both work part-time and make the same wages. I feel she should pay because then I can take her to better places. She seems to side with her folks. What is the first serious disagreement we have had in two years and it bothers me. What do you think? — T.C.

DEAR T.C.: When Dorothy first started to ride in your car she was just a passenger. Now that you're planning to marry, please stop collecting money from her, Bub.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about a man who has such a disgusting habit? He is a constantly embarrassing me in front of friends and relatives?

If I wave a friendly hello to my daughter's music teacher he picks me and says, "What's been going on between you two anyway?" If we are at a party and I have a brief conversation with a man my husband comes over and says, "What are you two cooking up?"

The other evening my sister and her husband were visiting us and the telephone rang. It was a wrong number. My husband answered and said, "Get him on a professional wherever he can unload his hostilities and then, hopefully, he'll stop beating on you.

FALCON FUTURA Sports Coupe

With the most sweeping changes since its record-setting introduction as a 1960 model, the 1966 Falcon has become in effect a family Mustang. The Mustang styling influence is readily apparent in the long hood, short rear deck, rear quarter-"hop-up" and round wheel openings of this Falcon Futura Sports Coupe. The 1966 Falcon has new roominess, outstanding economy and technical innovations. Lengthened wheelbase and wider tread improve riding comfort. Reversible keys and keyless locking, curved side glass and integrated air conditioning are among other customer comfort and convenience features.

FORD COUNTRY SQUIRE WAGON

There are two ways to get into the rear of every 1965 Ford Station Wagon — over the tailgate or through the door. Ford's latest station wagon innovation is a dual action tailgate. Open it with the centre latch, left, and it's a tailgate. Open it with the handle, right, and it's a door. Illustrated on the 1966 Ford Country Squire Wagon, top, the new feature is standard on all Ford and Fairlane station wagons and is optional on Falcon wagons. The door feature permits easy passenger entry and provides ready access to a lockable storage compartment, while the tailgate is available for hauling or loading cargo. Earlier innovations which pushed Ford to station wagon sales leadership in 1965 — dual centre racing rear seats and built-in rear window air deflectors — are retained for 1966.

Negroes Step Up Marches

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Negroes stepped up the peace of their demonstrators in the rural Georgia town of Crawsordville with two street marches Friday after futile attempts to block school buses and enrol in a white school.

More demonstrations were planned today.

"These demonstrations are going to continue until Negro children can get a quality education," said Willie Bolden of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference at a courthouse rally Friday night.

Elsewhere, a Supreme Court justice refused to halt court proceedings in Hayneville, Ala., the U.S. attorney-general said an investigation would continue into a civil rights worker's death in the Alabama city and federal voting registrars were ordered into Alabama's capital.

In Georgia, more than 150 Negroes marched from a church to the old Taliaferro County courthouse where they sang and prayed. Their leaders berated Governor Carl E. Sanders and belittled the state troopers guarding them.

In Washington, Justice Hugo L. Black refused to halt court proceedings in Lowndes County, Ala. Black's Decision on a petition by the American Civil Liberties Union came a day after Special Deputy Sheriff Thomas L. Coleman was acquitted in state court in the Alabama county on the killing of a civil rights worker.

The justice denied the request without comment. The union had appealed a lower federal court's refusal to halt court action in Lowndes.

U.S. Attorney - General Nicholas Katzenbach said in Midland, Tex., that the investigation into the slaying will continue. The victim, Jonathan Daniels, was gunned down in

Police Officers and Children Die in Terrorist Mine Blast

SAIGON (AP) — Four children and five police officers were killed today by a terrorist mine explosion in a Saigon street, police said.

The terrorists were presumed to be Viet Cong agents and the main target the Vietnamese police.

The explosion went off just outside a stadium where policemen had been training. Terrorists have made several other attacks on the police in recent weeks.

Seventeen police and 15 civilians were reported wounded.

The four children, killed were between the ages of 12 and 17. Three of the children were going by on bicycles when the mine exploded from the base of a steel utility pole.

Two U.S. Skyraider planes collided in the air today and it was believed that the pilots and one passenger were killed, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The spokesman said the planes were being fired on from the ground near An Khe as they warried out a strike.

In ground action about 100 miles south of Saigon, a battalion-sized operation of South Vietnamese troops reported finding quantities of Viet Cong arms and ammunition Friday.

The South Vietnamese captured eight Viet Cong and 12 suspects.

The spokesmen said 22 planes destroyed 115 buildings and damaged 54.

Ottawa Valley Farmers Facing Skinny Winter

OTTAWA (CP)—For all the Texas cloud wringers, Manitoba tanker trucks, Sedan-Sorghum seed and government subsidies, farmers in the Ottawa valley face a skimpy winter.

The worst dry spell since records were kept in 1891 has many on the ropes economically.

It began in 1952 and since then, the accumulated deficit has been 45 inches.

This has left wells and vital ground moisture low in a region where thousands of dairy and beef cattle must be kept watered.

In the six-week growing season that began in mid-May, less than one inch of rain fell, stunting hay crops and leaving pastures scrubby.

Beef farmers in Renfrew County began trimming herds in July, putting the money into fodder to keep the rest going.

In stormont County, near the St. Lawrence, dairy farmers used up alim hay reserves to keep milk production up.

Ontario brought in Texas rainmakers in early July and the federal government ordered a fleet of irrigation trucks from Manitoba.

The federal agriculture department bought 72,000 pounds of Sudan-Sorghum hybrid seed in the United States for distribution to farmers in hopes the hardy breed, suited to arid climates, would help some farmers to get summer grazing.

But the first hay harvest was down to 10 per cent of normal in places and seldom better than 50 per cent.

Rain in July and August brought the second cut to 65 per cent of normal in Carleton County, which wasn't as hard hit as others.

Late-season rains, which were above average, helped create a record - breaking corn crop. Farmers are using it for silage.

Meanwhile, the federal-provincial subsidy program provides $30 a ton for concentrates and $15 a ton for hay. Losses

Sukarno Still Rules But Revolt Continues

Sukarno Escaped Capture Because He Was Visiting Wife

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Indonesian President Sukarno is reported to have been visiting his wife when rebel military officers tried unsuccessfully to overthrow him Thursday night, wires of two foreign diplomats said today.

They said when Sukarno heard of the revolt, he immediately returned to the presidential palace by helicopter because [illegible] trip through the darkened city streets was considered unsafe.

Mrs. Yurko Kasuya, wife of the Japanese ambassador to Thailand, and Mrs. Hans Ulrich von Schweinitz, wife of the West German ambassador to Thailand, said they had received their information from members of the diplomatic community in Jakarta.

Sukarno later left the palace and returned to the residence of his wife, Japanese - born Devi, according to the women.

Mrs. von Schweinitz said when she and Mrs. Kasuya called on Devi Friday evening they were informed she could not see them because Sukarno was there. Mrs. Kasuya said Devi sent a message out with one of her secretaries, apologizing for not meeting them but assuring them that "everyone is safe and there is nothing to worry about."

Indonesia's President Sukarno was reported safe today after a rebellion by a "Revolutionary Council" headed by his bodyguard was quelled. Fighting continues. (CP Photo).

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARTA (AP) — Jakarta radio said today martial law had been proclaimed and that this Indonesian capital was in a "state of war."

The broadcast followed an announcement that forces loyal to President Sukarno had smashed an attempt to seize power.

Martial law applied in the Jakarta area and in west Java, the radio said, it also reported fighting in central Java where a commander was reported defying orders to renounce support of the rebels.

The country's political situation remained unclear but the radio station last reported that the 56-year-old Sukarno still was chief of state following a coup against him Thursday, and a counter-coup by loyal army units Friday.

The radio reports gave no clue as to Sukarno's whereabouts but said he was safe and well. He appeared for the last time in public Thursday night.

CANADIAN REPORTS

(A Canadian tourist, John T. Gibson of Vancouver, said today on arrival in Singapore by air from Jakarta that there had been a series of blackouts in the capital since the trouble broke out. He said that during a blackout at 2 a.m. today he had heard small arms fire.

(Gibson reported he saw considerable loop movement in the city and on his way to the airport.)

Before early Friday, Sukarno's palace has been cordoned off by troops stationed at rail blocks away. Sukarno's palace guards were on duty at the entrance despite reports that Thursday's coup was led by their commander, Lt.-Col. Untung.

A reporter who reached the palace gate through the roadblocks Friday was told by an officer: "The president has no program for the day."

There was no mention about what actually had taken place. The only available official information was news communiques broadcast by Radio Jakarta.

Appeal Has Fine Start

The trend is up!

At the end of the first week of the United Appeal, a total of $150,345 is reported to be in already, even though the campaign is just getting underway in most area.

One small industrial n - plant canvass has been completed already, that of G. T. Leaning. The company had an increase of 27 per cent over last year's giving.

A cheque received in the United Appeal Headquarters from a large industrial plant in the city shows that the company is up over 33 per cent from the total givings last year, even though only 50 per cent of the workers have been canvassed.

General Campaign Chairman John O'Flynn stresses the point that it is very important for canvassers to turn in their reports as quickly as possible.

He also noted that anyone wishing to make contributions directly to the United Appeal can do so by mailing in contributions or bringing them to the United Appeal Headquarters, 180 Front Street, opposite the City Hall, in the old Ontario Intelligencer Building.

Party leaders have been busy wooing new voters of university age, and promises are expected to fly thick and fast after the Bladen report on higher education is issued next week.

The report, advance copies of which were given to all party leaders, was drafted by a four-man commission headed by Dean Vincent Bladen of the University of Toronto and appointed 18 months ago by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

English - language universities and all provinces except Quebec have been pressing the federal government in the last few years to boost its grants to colleges and universities. The Pearson government said repeatedly no action should be taken until the Bladen recommendations were available.

Prime Minister Pearson went one step further when he opened the Liberal campaign here Sept. 21. He promised "further federal assistance to education" but gave no details.

Two days later he announced plans for a $500,000,000 fund to assist the construction and expansion of medical and dental schools, teaching hospitals and health research centers during the next 15 years.

The next day he promised to ask Parliament next year to enlarge the $40,000,000 fund of the Canada student loans plan.

In St. John's, Nfld., Thursday night, Mr. Pearson said the present federal aid of $400,000,000 to all levels of education "is not going to be enough." He promised to make a policy statement after the Bladen report is made public Wednesday.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker pledged in the early stages of the campaign that a Conservative government would increase per capita university grants to $3 from $2, but at a Halifax rally a week ago he revised this to $5.

This would cost nearly $100,000,000 the first year and climb by about $1,500,000 annually. At present these operating costs total about $39,000,000 annually.

At Oakville Sept. 18, Mr. Diefenbaker promised capital grants for self-financing hospitals and medical research centres and increased research aid to be disbursed by the National Research Council, the Medical Research Council and the Canada Council.

New Democratic Leader Douglas did a big ovation in Sudbury Thursday night when he advocated increased federal aid to universities, with particular help to permit the abolition of tuition fees.

Social Credit Leader Thompson has advocated low-interest Bank of Canada loans for university expansion and stepped-up grants to universities and technical schools.

Creditiste Leader Caouette takes the traditional Quebecois attitude that aid for universities should come from the provinces, not Ottawa. He says this should be facilitated by handing all direct tax fields back to the provinces.

Banff Oil Sparkles In Dull Market

TORONTO (CP) — Hurried applications of cold water partially occurred Friday, chilling a speculative burst in share trading which followed remarks by Resources Minister Arthur Laing about the potential resources of a new northern Alberta oil field.

Mr. Laing said Thursday in Saskatoon the area may be the largest oil field in North America.

The Toronto and New York stock exchanges largely delayed for more than two hours trade in Banff Oil Co. which is drilling in the Rainbow Lake area. It was resumed after company officials issued a statement saying Mr. Laing's comments were "not justified" on the basis of information available to the company.

The Calgary - based company said further information available from the site 400 miles north of Edmonton. It was discovered in February.

UP, THEN DOWN

After the Toronto Stock Exchange delay — one of the longest in the memory of exchange officials — the stock opened at $8, up $2.50 from its Thursday close of $5.95. By the close of trade it had slipped back to $7.30, with 142,000

UN All Set to Welcome Pope On His First Visit to West

NEW YORK (CP)—Pope Paul arrives here Monday on an unprecedented peace mission and the United Nations is all set to welcome the first pontiff ever to pay a visit to the Western Hemisphere.

Although the primary purpose of the Pope's visit is to address the world organization at a time of conflict in Viet Nam and elsewhere, the pontiff has accepted other engagements during his heavy one-day schedule in New York.

The massive turnout of people expected along the route Pope Paul will take to UN headquarters and later to Yankee Stadium, where he will celebrate mass, has posed numerous problems to New York City police and UN security officials.

Police Commissioner Vincent Broderick, head of the city's 28,000-man force, said 18,000 policemen have been assigned for duty during the 14-hour visit, which includes a meeting between the Pope and President Johnson.

The pontiff said in Vatican City that he accepted an invitation by UN Secretary-General U Thant to address the UN General Assembly because he feels it is his duty to "omit no effort that might promote world peace.

Plans call for U Thant to lead a distinguished group of international officials and church dignitaries in welcoming the Pope when he arrives on a commercial airliner from Rome after a flight that will take it over part of Canada.

The pontiff will enter an open limousine for a motorcade to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where he will kneel in a brief prayer of thanksgiving for a safe journey.

From the cathedral, Pope Paul will rejoin the motorcade to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel for his meeting with Johnson, prior to his visit to the United Nations.

The papal party will arrive at 3:15 p.m. EDT at the UN General Assembly building, which will be closed to the public Monday. He will enter the building through "Canadian doorway" so named because they are a gift of the people of Canada.

The pontiff will have private talks with Thant and Amintore Fanfani of Italy, president of the General Assembly, as well as address the 117-nation assembly and meet delegations. The secretary-general will then give a diplomatic reception in the Pope's honor.

The Canadian delegation to the UN will be headed on this occasion by External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

At the UN, the Pope will receive outside the assembly hall to pose for a photograph with a group of children from the UN International School, accompanied them Ronald Mason, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mason of Ottawa, who will present a bouquet of flowers to the pontiff on behalf of the United Nations Children's Fund.

After a brief visit with Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders at Holy Family Church near the UN, the pontiff will stop at the residence of Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York before going to Yankee Stadium where a crowd of 90,000 is expected.

The Pope will celebrate mass at 8:30 p.m. EDT before leaving for a brief visit to the Vatican Pavilion at the New York World's Fair. From the fair, Pope Paul will leave for Kennedy Airport and the flight back to Rome.

Drought Relief Deadline Moved To October 15

The application date for the Federal-Provincial Drought Relief Program has been extended to October 15th and all farmers hoping to use this assistance during the winter of 1965-66 should have applications in by that date.

In order for applications to reach Toronto by the October 15th deadline, they must be in the Stirling Agricultural Office by Oct. 14th.

As the application forms are completed a book of coupons according to the livestock farmer's entitlement is made up and sent direct to the farmer. Along with the coupons will be a letter of instruction on how they can be used. This will describe their use when purchasing feed at a commercial feed mill or from another farmer.

In the case of purchasing feed, (grain or hay), from another farmer, the buyer will have to make a claim for the amount to which he is entitled. Claim forms will be available for Hastings County at the Stirling office.

Pillars of Security

St. John Ambulance

Sixth of a series of articles on the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal Campaign.

There are six things at every high school football game played almost anywhere in Canada —two football teams, fans, cheerleaders, enthusiasm and the St. John Ambulance.

St. John Ambulance members attend dozens of sporting events in the Belleville area, giving unselfishly of their time, and often checking an accident from becoming permanent injury and even saving lives.

The St. John Ambulance serves society by stepping into the picture in any emergency where human life is in danger and saving lives and preventing suffering.

The members do not just attend sporting events. They are everywhere where there is danger.

Their objective is to promote wide training in proper methods of first aid, home nursing and child care, provide an opportunity for persons interested in public welfare to serve voluntarily, provide services of trained personnel for public events when requested, and maintain a trained and equipped unit to serve as an auxiliary force in times of local or national disaster.

Their sole function is to serve society.

EXAMPLES OF WORK

A local service station attendant, in attempting to stop a tractor trailer from coasting backwards when the brakes slipped, received a severe leg injury. A passing member of St. John Ambulance, who witnessed the accident, stopped immediately and administered first aid, checked for specific injuries and directed treatment until an ambulance removed the injured man to hospital.

At a local hockey game a boy crashed head first into the boards and was knocked unconscious. A St. John member on duty at the time was able to stop severe head bleeding and rush the injured player to the hospital in his car. What could have been a tragedy was averted by quick action of the trained St. Ambulance member.

As a service to the public, training, in these areas, with nursing and child care is given to adults and preliminary training in these areas, with free books and booklets, is given to juniors (Guides, Scouts, or students.)

TRAINED RESPIRATION

In addition, over 3,000 adult and school children are taught artificial respiration annually by the local brigade. Thousands of free hours are given for public duty by the Nursing, Cadet, Nursing, Ambulance and Ambulance Cadet Divisions and power such events as the Belleville Fair, Elks' picnic, Belleville Minor Sports Association hockey games, and Secondary Schools football games.

In Belleville, there is a sewing circle and course for policemen, firemen and civic employees and others given at the police station. The course began two weeks ago.

A new, multi-stage first aid course has been introduced by the Boy Scouts.

Last year the local St. John branch gave 6500 hours of public service voluntarily.

READY FOR EMERGENCY

The St. John Ambulance is ready to act in an emergency. There is a large expense in the upkeep of equipment and supplies which must be maintained in case of emergency.

For example, if there was a large train wreck near the city, injuring dozens of persons, the St. John Ambulance would be ready and would receive notice to assist. The members stand poised, ready to strike out against disaster.

To do this, and to serve the community voluntarily the way it does, the St. John Ambulance needs help. The United Appeal offers it this help through one contribution.

The United Appeal allocation covers approximately 80 per cent of the Division's operating expenses. Expenditures include training programs; teaching aids such as books, bandages and training films; equipment, such as blankets, ground sheets and water containers; medical supplies; maintenance of Division's headquarters and general administration; and uniforms, that remain the property of the Division and are only on loan to members during their term of service.

The St. John Ambulance is doing its job now that have to be done and is ready for emergencies which can at any time develop. It deserves your support, support you pledge when you give the United Way.

Not Seen for Several Days, J. Grotto Dead in Home

Believed to have suffered a heart attack, Mr. Jack Grotto, for many years a taxi driver in the city, was found dead in his bed yesterday. Mr. Grotto lived alone in an apartment at 102 Station Street.

The discovery was made by a sister, Mrs. Donald Masterson, who investigated following reports that her brother had not been seen for several days.

Born in the city 58 years ago, Mr. Grotto was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Grotto. The family had operated a taxi business in the city for many years, but in recent years Mr. Grotto had been doing light trucking.

Mr. Grotto had been last seen by his sister last Sunday. The alarm was raised by a fellow workers of Mr. Grotto's who said he had not been to work for several days.

Mr. Grotto is survived only by his sister, Mrs. Donald Masterson of this city.

The funeral will be held on Monday from the Thompson Funeral Home with interment in Belleville cemetery.

Katzenbach said it was difficult for a law enforcement official to comment on jury actions. "With the jury system, miscarriages of justice can occur and sometimes do occur," he said. "Many of us have strong feelings about this, as I have, but I won't comment."

In Montgomery, Ala., nine miles from Hayneville, federal voting examiners were ordered to take over voter registration. The Alabama state capital became the first metropolitan area so designated under the 1965 U.S. Voting Rights Act.

Katzenbach said the Montgomery County board of registrars "is acting according to new procedures which have the effect of impeding the registration of Negroes." The federal government has taken over registration in seven Alabama counties so far.

Two Minor Accidents

City and provincial police had a comparatively "quiet night last night with little more than routine calls and no serious accidents reported.

City police investigated two minor accidents resulting only in property damage. No injuries were reported.

Cost of Fires Rising Warns Fire Chief Poste

"The cost of fires is going up," stated Fire Chief Poste today, on the eve of Fire Prevention Week.

"Canada is growing—more cities are being built by the growing population and fires which devastate these homes are proving more costly to Canadians than ever before. This glaring fact is revealed in the 1964 assessment of fire damage in Canada. Today the average cost of a household fire is $800. Ten years ago it was $400. Industry is finding fire more expensive; and in some cases is put out of the competitive field by fire and some factories are never opened again. This is a loss to the country in taxes and wages. It is terrible to realize we in this country could care so little for our safety as to let 596 Canadians die, 250 of these victims being children. Did they really have to die?

CAN BE PREVENTED

"Ask yourself—could I have prevented this?" your answer is: Yes!—we can do something about this by making every minute in every hour in every day fire prevention time. Today, with the speed up in all our activities at work and play we have but the time or we do not take the time to think. We may be so absorbed in our activities that we fail to think about fire and what causes it to occur. We use flammable materials in our homes to clean with. Sure somebody told you that it would do the job. But he failed to warn you that it might cost you and your loved ones' lives."

"Sure, the fuse in your electric panel blew out. But did you replace it with a 15 ampere fuse or did you improvise the fuse so it will work? This my friends could cause you to become one more fire victim to be added to the year-end count.

"The high cost for electrical maintenance service today has a tendency to cause some of our citizens to become their own electricians. In about 80 per cent of these cases the people know very little about the regulations of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission regarding installation of appliances and of the hazards of defective wiring.

"Before you purchase any heating appliances are the cause of a great many fires, I would recommend to have owners and tenants that they have their heating systems inspected once a year before heat is required. It may save your life.

"As I have already stated, children pay the biggest price. Over a ten year period 2,362 children have died from fire or injury received from burns. Many many times have arm of Canadian people read in the headlines of your paper 'Child left alone perishes in fire.'

"And as you read on and your sorrow grows for the parents of these children you read 'We only left them alone for a few minutes.' The parents commited two errors: (1) Children should never be left alone, and (2) Under the Criminal Code of Canada it is unlawful to abandon or expose a child under the age of ten years so that its life is , or is likely to be endangered or its health is, or is likely to be permanently injured and anyone so doing is guilty of an offence and is liable to imprisonment for a term of two years. Parents have a duty to their children, to their community and to themselves to see that children are never left alone; that they are protected and left with a qualified responsible person. Baby sitters' instruction guides are available at my office.

"Reduction of fires and the great yearly loss of life can only come about if citizens start to realize that their fire department can only help reduce the cost. It is up to them to remove the cause by removing the factors that cause fire to ignite, burn and spread.

LIST OF HAZARDS

"When checking your home or place of business for fire hazards this general guide will be of assistance to you.

"(16) Unsafe rubbish burning.

"(17) Gas leaks or odor.

PLAN ESCAPE

"If you should awake to night to find your house on fire, how would you escape? Have you ever answer that question, it's time you did some serious planning. The safety of your family is at stake. Fire prevention in your home is of great importance, but you must also plan the family's escape in case a fire occurs. The following will tell you how to do it.

"(1) Hold a family meeting. Explain that you plan you are about to form togother may make the difference between life and death, and that its purpose is to evacuate the house quickly, safely and without panic.

"(2) Assess your house for escape routes from every room.

"(3) In a two or three storey home it is vital to devise an alternate exit from upper stairs rooms which doesn't lead through the main hall or stairway.

"(4) Once you have escaped, never return to a burning building.

"(5) Remember that in spite of all your precautions, you may one day have a fire in your home. If you prepare to escape from it now, you can pass through it.

"If you the Canadian people, will take the time to protect yourselves from your own self-destruction by thinking about fire wherever you are, and by not giving fire a place to start, I feel quite confident that we here in this great country of ours can reduce the loss by fire so that we will break the world list in the per capita fire loss — we have both the greatest fire loss and the highest death rate from fire."

District Curlers Meet OCA Head

The format and future expansion of the Ontario Curling Association was the subject of a talk to division clubs by the president, Dr. Leo Sturgeon of Welland at a meeting held at Morrison's Lounge in Kingston last evening. On hand to greet the head of this fine organization were William Gault, OCA representative on the director-ate and Glenn Ken Hunter, president of the Bay of Quinte Curling Club and his vice-president, Fred Maund.

Along with the local club there were present at the meeting members from the Cataraqui Club, Kingston Curling Club, Napanee Curling Club, Brockville Curling Club, Morrisburg Curling Club, Garrison Curling Club from Kingston and the RAF Station Curling Club from Trenton.

Absent from the meeting were representatives from Trenton Curling Club, Picton, Athens, Westport and Cornwall clubs.

Mr. Gault chaired the dinner meeting, a delicious one of roast beef and all the trimmings, and outlined the purpose of the meeting. He stated that he had been personally acquainted with Dr. Sturgeon for 25 years and this was the first time that any president of the OCA had undertaken the task of visiting every division in the province.

After accepting the welcome, Dr. Sturgeon stated that the only way for the OCA to know the ideas of its members was to talk things over. He spoke of the formation of the association in 1878 and that at the present time there were 35,791 adult curlers, 2,891 school boy curlers and 740 clubs in the organization and that the OCA had 25 per cent of the membership of the Dominion Curling Association.

He showed that the advent of artificial ice had produced more and better curlers but that bottlenecks were developing due to the rapid increase and it was time to lay plans for further expansion. He introduced men like the late W. H. Biggar of Belleville and former Kingston representative Grant Hunter in curling in the primitive years.

Another factor in the increase in this popular winter pastime was there were more opportunities to curl and that practically one-third of the membership of the OCA was concentrated in the Metro area. He admitted that school boys and university curlers would and must become the backbone of the association in the coming years and that he favored bursaries for these school boy curlers with no proviso that they in turn impart their knowledge to others. The speaker also favored more divisions of the association so there would be closer liaison between the association and the various clubs.

"There has not been enough attention given to the game of curling, the fastest growing pastime in the province", the speaker stated.

The speaker showed that a $1 a member is assessed for the finances of the Association but that many clubs were not registering all of their players, just sufficient ones so that the clubs could compete in the various events sponsored by the Association. "This is not the right attitude" said the speaker. Dr. Sturgeon explained the functions of the rules committee, the competition committee and the improvements made in office management and concluded his remarks with praise for all the wonderful people who have given so much to keep the curling game on such a high plane. At the question and answer period that followed the members favored individual pins for division winners and plaques for the club and that umpires should be fully instructed in their duties and call the plays as they see them. At times the discussion was quite plain and forceful, especially on the question of "sweeping" in the house and the OCA executive have lots of food for thought on this question. It was shown that the rules are rather ambiguous on this point.

PLAYOFFS ANNOUNCED

The playoffs for the year were announced for the school boys at Peterborough on Jounary 22nd. Tankard and Burden trophies at Toronto on January 28th, Governor-General and the Globe and Mail at Toronto on January 29th, British Consuls at Brampton on February 9th, 10th and 11th, Macdonald-Brier 22nd Colts at Thornhill on March 3rd and Junior Tankard at Oakville on April 11th and 12th.

Carl Leishman, vice-president of the OCA and Charles Miller, both of Kingston also expressed thanked the speaker for taking his time to appear at the meeting. After the meeting the members broke off into small groups and talked "shop" till the wee small hours. It was an interesting and most instructive evening.

W. D. Newell, Operations Manager, said, "we were very successful here last year with our campaign, and if possible, I would like to see make an improvement on that fine effort.

"What a person gives depends upon many things, the size of his family, his salary and so on. It is up to the individual. You people working as canvassers know the people you will be contacting, and you know what a fair donation from them is."

Dick Hughes, in-plant co-ordinator for the CNR's campaign, said, "We have found in the past the payroll deduction plan is much more successful. It is easier for a person to give say $1.00 a month, than it is to give a lump sum out of one pay cheque."

Ed McKinney, vicechairman of the Belleville United Appeal Campaign, was at the meeting to answer any questions the canvassers had.

Question:—"Will there be a house-to-house canvass this year? We do not want to be asking people for a donation if they have already donated at home."

Answer: — "Basically, there will be no house-to-house canvass. There is some canvass, however, but on a very limited scale. We have two groups who will be canvassed at home, the first special group of names of people who have donated from their homes in the past, and the second, anyone who is not connected with any organization and thus would not be reached at work. Pensioners will be a third group."

Question: "Some people who work in Belleville and live outside the city wonder why they should contribute to the Belleville United Appeal."

Answer: "Most of the agencies in the Belleville Appeal extend themselves to the outlining areas, such as Foxboro and Canniton and so on. People who work in Belleville probably use the Belleville facilities to some extent anyway. And if they wish, donors can allocate their donations to the particular agencies that serve their area."

Question: "If a person allocates his donation to a particular agency, does the money really go to that agency?"

Answer: "Yes. There is one qualification though. At the beginning of the campaign, the agencies all agree they will take no more than their allotted budget, and, therefore, there would be no point in having such carefully worked out objectives. If the final pay over the top, an agency would have its budget met and any money allocated above that would go directly to that agency. However, it is just a theoretical situation because we have never reached our objectives."

Urban Planning

With the steady movement of population into our cities there is the problem known to community planners as "urban sprawl." It is one which is being tackled with varying degrees of success with the development of attractive housing on the outskirts of towns and cities throughout Canada.

The Bramalea housing development 25 miles northwest of Toronto is an example. A community in itself, as distinct from a city suburb, Bramalea serves mainly as a dormitory town for young Toronto businessmen and their families. When completed the community will cover more than 8,000 acres.

A group of British magazine and newspaper editors visited Bramalea last week and were impressed with the variety and choice of house designs, the amount of space around them and the general planning that had gone into the development, which includes an industrial area, shopping centres and schools.

One editor, Robert Bruce, was quoted as saying he felt a buyer got more for his money both in regard to space, and kitchen and bathroom facilities. Two of the homes inspected had three bedrooms and were priced at $18,800 and $19,900.

However, another visitor drew attention to one of the bogeys of the planning scene on this continent—overhead power lines. T. M. Williams, an editor of the magazine Shiz, said he was surprised to see that a city the size of Toronto still had overhead power lines. In England they would be underground. Which is true. Wherever possible British cities have placed the wiring underground.

Perhaps the most interesting comment of a general nature, was that made by Sally Russell of the Glasgow Evening Times: "I get a sense of tranquility here," she said. "There is less hustle and bustle than in some U.S. cities. Canadians seem to be a quiet people."

Teenage Marriages

The Victoria Times laments the fact that Canadians "have not yet begun to find a solution for the prevailing unhappiness bred by teenage marriages."

"Unless the country is reconciled to the increasing trouble arising from broken and unsatisfactory homes, a serious search will have to be launched for a remedy."

The B.C. newspaper suggests that compulsory marriage counselling for certain age groups would be a start.

But what use is marriage counselling to people who essentially are too young for marriage, who have had little experience of life, who may not even have travelled outside the bounds of their own district, who have had no opportunity to explore the outside world and at the same time discover themselves?

Instead, they might better take the advice of someone like Dr. I. A. Burch, director of the divorce conciliation service for Illinois circuit court. He says, "We are probably the wisest words on life and love and sex in a long time, Dr. Burch said that too much emphasis on sex education and insufficient training in other modes of life were making American girls unfit for marriage.

"They are brought up to think all they need is their femaleness, which often turns out to be helplessness, hesitancy and indecisiveness."

"Many divorces," he went on, "can be blamed on wives who have been brought up to feel they have the right to expect a man to guarantee them an easy life simply because they are female."

The obsessive concern with sex education, he said, gives girls a bizarre outlook. "They believe that sex is love. This is absurd. An obvious condition of life is that one be deserving of it. And this comes from self-realization in other, areas than sex."

He suggested the remedy—and this would seem to answer the problem posed by The Victoria Times—was to stop stressing sex education "and start stressing personal education, the development of inner resources, the discovery of self from which love for others is born."

The history of London is the history of the Thames. London happened to grow where the Romans built a bridge across the river. And it's where you build a bridge across the river that roads start, and there you get a market and there, before you know where you are, you get a city, and that's how London grew.—Eric de Mare, author of outstanding works on Thames-side architecture.

I am unalterably opposed to retirement based solely on age. A number of times I've seen farmers come to London to retire, and cease all activity after the strenuous life on the farm. As a consequence, they came to London to die.—Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck, of London, Ont., on retirement.

Two Types of Cirrhosis Are Distinctly Different

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between biliary cirrohsis and alcoholic cirrhoosis?

When one doctor recommends moderate activity with two hours of bed rest in the morning and two in the afternoon, and another recommends complete bed rest except for three hours a day, how does a patient decide which advice to follow?

Also will you please explain the significance of a total bilirubin reading of 10.1, 5, and 2.6? — M. R.

Biliary cirrhosis of the liver is not common. It features enlargement of liver and spleen, and long-standing jaundice (or yellowing of the skin) which, however, can be variable.

It usually affects younger persons, and is thought to result from some toxic factor or infection of the bile ducts.

The other type of cirrhosis (which I do not call alcoholic, because alcohol may not be involved at all) is much more common and tends to occur in older people. True, alcohol can be a prominent factor, but not in all cases.

Anyway, in this latter type, the liver is small rather than large; jaundice is slight; there are other technical distinguishing factors.

A great deal of rest is a fundamental necessity for biliary cirrhosis. One doctor tells you that you can stay up three hours a day. The other tells you to get back to bed four hours a day. Assuming that you go to bed early and get up late, you may have a lot of rest at night, the difference in the two instructions is only a matter of degree.

If you are going to have two doctors, you should let them know it, so they can resolve the matter. In any event, the amount of bed rest would vary in accordance with how you respond. One doctor suggests that I start with more rest and perhaps reduce it; the other starts with a little less. With the idea of perhaps increasing it. Unless the doctors know which advice you are following, it leaves them in the dark as to just how to proceed in your case.

As to the bilirubin readings, look back to the first paragraph of my reply to you. Note that the jaundice can be variable. It varies with the amount of yellow pigment which is lodging in your blood, skin and other tissues instead of being normally discharged by your system.

The bilirubin reading is a chemical measurement of the amount of this pigment in the blood and hence a more exact determination of the degree of jaundice than merely trying to gauge "how yellow you are" by sight.

Dear Dr. Molner: How can I get rid of psoriasis of the scalp? I have tried lots of things and nothing will heal it. My scalp itches and my hair comes out in patches and the pimples get pus in them and it spreads. Please tell me what to do. — Mrs. E. M. C.

From your description, one might question whether you have psoriasis. Rather, it evidently is some other form of skin disease.

That's the trouble with buying "remedies" for an ailment without really knowing what it is. You spend good money but don't get results.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 70 and recently developed a mild arthritic condition. There seems to be some thought that drinking soft water (I installed a softener system in my home 18 months ago) has a tendency to develop this ailment. What is your opinion? — H. F. W.

There is no evidence that soft (or softened) water has anything to do with arthritis. At 70, most of us can expect that the years will have made our joints somewhat creaky.

Ferdinand Foch, supreme commander of the Allied armies at the end of the First World War, was born 114 years ago today — in 1851. An author of military textbooks, Foch proved his practical generalship at the battle of the Marne in 1914 and at Ypres the following year. It was not until 1918, in the face of German successes, that the Allies agreed to unify their planning and command staff. Chosen for the supreme position, Foch won the second battle of the Marne and inexorably drove back the German advance.

Those Grade 13 Failures

Letter to Windsor Star from Brad Sloan of Sarnia.

As a Grade 13 student, I have read with interest your recent comments about the whys and hows of the increased failure rate of departmental examinations.

Every day the list of causes grows, and I am in complete accordance with each factor. You mention "new exams, computer-originated passing scales, new teaching methods, standards, sloppy students and poor teachers."

I would like to see you delve a little further into the problems of computer-originated passing scales, just to sate my own curiosity. This past year I was introduced to one of these passing scales, which my history teacher tells me is put into use with the departmentals.

It is called "Marking on the curve." This mode of marking stipulates that a certain number of students must fail, no matter how good their score is. My opinion is that the functioning of this method of marking entails comparison of the results of students — somewhat like match play in golf.

But I can't be sure—because this curve-marking was explained very poorly. And if I am any indication of students generally, the blackness of our minds needs illumination — as we are the ones affected. I would dearly love to see some research done of this mystery.

Before I close, I would like to compliment past Grade 13 students for the manner in which they have accepted their "fate. They have been an unceasingly non-complaining bunch, who have waited those long eight weeks with tremendous patience. This isn't much of a tribute to you, my buddies, but I hope it says something for you . . .

Water Lack Worries U.S.

Chicago, American

Canada has one-third of the world's fresh water in its rivers and lakes and is realizing now what a priceless possession that is — a realization quickened by New York City's drought. The latest water estimate of the U.S. says that if the drought continues, New York might run out of water by the middle or end of February.

A number of proposals have been made for changing the direction of flow of Canadian rivers into American waters. Canadian officials, saying truly that they must look after Canada's interests first, are preparing to bargain effectively. An idea offered by a Member of Parliament is that before Canada agrees to sell water for use in the United States by reversing streams, the United States should agree to support the growth of Canadian industry. This would mean that manufacturing — orders, particularly for defence purposes, would be placed with Canadian firms rather than American.

Water is under the jurisdiction of the various provinces. Quebec is interested in using its rivers to create electric power rather than in supplying Americans with water, and Ontario is afraid that diversion of water with the United States would interfere with the development of Northern Ontario.

So it appears that if American water problems are to be solved with Canadian water, the United States must be prepared to trade valuable commercial and industrial concessions.

Ottawa Offbeat

Is There Coalition in Canada's Political Future?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Scene: Hamilton, Ontario, on the parking lot beside the Royal Connaught Hotel, late on an April afternoon, 1963.

Cast: Prime Minister (then Liberal Leader) Pearson arriving by car for an evening rally, and a score of newspapermen waiting to question him.

Plot: Was he planning a coalition if he should edge, but by only a thin minority, Conservative Leader (then Prime Minister) Diefenbaker's still-ruling though rapidly-collapsing regime?

His answer then was a "no," but not, understandably, a very firm one, since two of the newspapermen in the crowd swarming around him had gossiped it about that in an off-the-record chat, just the other day, he had told them that a coalition could be one way he might solve a minority problem.

With one leader half-hearted and far from convincing denial, the story died . . . but not completely.

For it was only two years later — in fact, this very April past — that word seeped down from High Places that now, after the next election, come when it might, if the Prime Minister should win re-election and still find himself in an uncertain minority position, there could be a coalition.

And significantly, this time, nobody was the story down. Even half down.

MIDDLE OF THE ROAD

Earlier, this past Spring, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, appalled by the prospect of the deepening political crisis, certainly at the Federal level and in sections of the Provincial strata, particularly Alberta, had suggested that a National Government could save Confederation from what many people then seemed to fear could be a crack-up.

Hopefully, if naively, Mr. Thompson had envisaged creation of all five parties in what he called a "Cabinet of Many Talents" of such a National Government.

Of course, nothing came of it. But then there did come the hint — and no remote connection with Mr. Thompson — from the man who had described as the Inner Circle within the Administration that the Prime Minister must prefer coalition to another minority.

The way it was told only five months ago, it would be a union of what might best be called middle-of-the-road men, ready, even anxious to forget political partisanship in the interests of National Unity.

And now, with the election in full swing, the Prime Minister keeps saying, over and over again, that National Unity is the issue and a "strong central Government" the urgent necessity.

The Prime Minister hasn't said — possibly because nobody so far has made a point of it — that such a "strong central Government" of necessity must be a Liberal Government.

It is only assumed that that's what he means.

What's perhaps most interesting is that the Prime Minister hasn't said — and again, per haps because nobody so far has made a point of it — that "strong central Government" couldn't, in circumstances of a fine minority necessity, be a Coalition Government.

LIBERALS IN A HURRY

For any Prime Minister, it must be maddening to face today's emergencies at home and abroad in a minority position and be unable to do what must be done about what all Party leaders at one time or another in recent months have called the "Crisis of Confederation"— or, at least, do it decisively and rapidly enough.

In such a crunch, if another minority verdict should be returned by the national jury of confused and bewildered voters, the quick, sense-making way out could be the recruiting of some of the Oppositions' best men in — well, they're talking of it, and they call the "Confederation Coalition."

If it is a Liberal minority, and, then, to be recruited from the Opposition?

Likely New Democratic Leader Tommy Douglas. For haven't the Socialists been called — and by such knowing authorities as former Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent — really only "Liberals in a hurry"?

But if it were to be a Conservative minority, what then?

Just before the Diefenbaker Government fell after the Palace Revolution in the Cabinet, quiet overtures were described as Robert Thompson. The word then was that former Justice Minister Davie Fulton — and not a Conservative candidate — carried the message. And the answer was no.

This time, to hear the reports from the battlefronts, there is no such Message Secret reached to make the do-or-die difference, even in the unlikely event the Conservatives were in the market for a coalition.

"Can all you can can because you can't eat what you don't can, so if you can can, you should can all you can can."

There is wisdom behind the nonsense patter of Victor Borge, famous radio comedian. The stocked shelves will be a big help next winter.

The easiest vegetable to can is the tomato and its wide variety of uses makes it a "must" for winter meals. With a supply of canned tomatoes and juice, the housewife will have an appetizer and a vegetable always on hand.

The home economists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried out a series of tests on canning tomatoes and tomato juice. These experiments have proven the tall, narrow-necked containers, such as quart bottles, to be unsatisfactory for tomato juice. A high rate of spoilage and loss of vitamin content resulted when these bottles were used.

James V. Ross, superintendent of the local office of the government employment service, had much difficulty yesterday in getting men to assist a trucker in moving the machinery and stock to a new location. Between 20 and 30 men registered at the employment office during the day, but, claiming that it was "too heavy," men standing around on the street corners, to whom he spoke offered the job, giving the same excuse. Finally he found two men who were willing and anxious to get a day's work.

Worry Is Not A Masai Trait

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

It may be that significant results flow from Prof. George Mann's African experiments with blood pressure readings, but we rather imagine a number of Masai warriors will continue walking their heads over the antics of the crazy Americans. Prof. Mann and a team of Vanderbilt University researchers recently visited Masai country to make certain comparisons between the tall, lean Africans and American college students.

The purpose was to find out why the Masai never seem to get heart disease in spite of a sky-blood-and-milk diet that outrageously high if cholesterol.

The Masai spend most of their time tending cattle, but they can hitch 50 to 80 miles a day without noticeable Brain.

As could be expected, they performed equally well. Prof. Mann's portable treadmill, two of them walking it right off its mountain scale. Thirty-nine warriors averaged just a bit less than 10 minutes on the machine set by an American youth who had practised on the machine for six months.

The studies showed the Masai have no hypertension, but we doubt whether this is related to their ambulatory proclivities.

If we were to guess, we might suggest that their stout hearts are due to the fact they do not fret-about such things as leaving people on treadmills.

Going Places

Tips on Luggage, Money, Wine and Food Are Given

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Q. "Would you please explain the European system of transferring baggage between hotels and railroad terminals?" B. J., Philadelphia

A. It's an excellent system, and we wish North American hotels would use it. Here's how it works:

If your hotel is within walking distance of the station — and many are in European cities — you merely give your luggage to a station porter on the platform, tell him the name of your hotel, and get a baggage check. Then forget about it until you're in your room.

Depending on how busy the porter is, but usually within half an hour, he'll deliver your bags to your hotel, for which he'll receive a minimal fee, usually about ten cents a bag. This is added to your bill. Then the hotel porter delivers your baggage to your room. You may tip the hotel baggage man if you wish — most Americans do — but actually his service is paid for by the service charge on your bill.

When you check out, just tell the hotel porter what train you are taking. You'll see him next on the platform, and he'll place the bags on board for you (be sure to tell him whether you're travelling first or second class so he can choose the proper car.) There will also have been a small charge on your bill for this service, but again, you may want to tip him extra.

Of course, if your hotel is not within walking distance from the station, you'll ask to have your bags placed in a taxi when you get off the train, for which you tip the usual 25 cents or so per bag.

WINE PROBLEM

Q. "Like most Americans, we are not big wine drinkers. We do like to order a bottle with our dinner when travelling abroad, but so often at least half of it goes to waste. Is there any way to avoid this problem?" A. K., Miami

A. Two ways. One, order a half-size bottle. If the wine you choose is not available in half-bottles, order a small carafe of ordinary local wine, which will probably be a better wine than you can have in a bottle.

In hotels you can follow a fine European example: Ask the headwaiter to cork up the leftover wine and save it for the next meal. It will be on your table when you come down for lunch or dinner.

Q. "Is there any way of avoiding that awful coffee they serve in most foreign places?" Mrs. F. D. L., Montreal.

A. Instant coffee isn't much of an improvement in our opinion, but at least it's available in nearly all foreign countries now. Ask for 'Sanka,' which has become the generic term for instant coffee in most countries, even though you may get another brand.

Or you can try a method we used on our last trip. Mix half instant and half brewed coffee. It's only half bad.

CURRENCY PUZZLE

Q. "We always seem to be getting stuck with unwanted quantities of foreign currency when moving from one country to another. At best it's a nuisance to find the time and pay to exchange it, and at worst it's very expensive. We've always been told that dollars are the currency of the country we're going to is not available. What's the best way to lick this problem?" T. S., Tulsa

A. For one thing, have most of your traveller's checks in small (ten dollar) denominations. You may have to sign your name a few more times when paying larger bills, but you'll have less local currency on hand most of the time.

Western Europe enjoys a free exchange of currency — you can spend one country's funds fairly freely in another.

Q. "Any trick or easy tips on keeping weight down while travelling and still maintaining foreign food?" S. R., Springfield, Mass.

A. The problem isn't as bad as it may seem; you run around and work off a lot of calories when travelling, and portions in most countries are smaller than they are here. But try these suggestions:

1. Stick to coffee and rolls for breakfast.

2. Try the European system of a larger meal at lunch time, a smaller one a night.

3. Skip pastries and/or appetizers.

4. Enjoy wines and cheeses. They're not very fattening and said digestion.

5. Eat sparingly the first day of your trip. You'll be less active because you're merely travelling and will be more in the mood to treat yourself. More extra pounds and upset stomachs develop during the first day of travel than at any other time during the trip.

And if you can't lick it, join it. Eat, drink and be merry — for tomorrow we may diet.

'BYE TO MARINER

PASADENA, Calif. The U.S. spacecraft Mariner 4, now 191,000,000 straight-line miles from earth, is beginning to show signs of age. The error rate in its radio signals is increasing.

Mother's Helper

TIRED of stumbling over children's jackets, raincoats and sports gear dropped in the middle of the hall, instead of being put away? Nagging doesn't help. One exasperated father we know devised the idea of simply dropping all misplaced garments down the basement stairs! When the children wanted them again, they had to fetch them. The father swears that after a few trips, the offspring took the hint—without a cross word being spoken!

Ann Landers

Bathtub No Playpen For Child Only Three

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a woman who decided the day my daughter became a mother that I would never interfere with her in any way, and above all that I would never tell her how to raise her children. Something has come up now and I'm finding it difficult to keep quiet. Please advise me because this may be a matter of life and death.

Yesterday while we were having coffee I asked my daughter where the 3-year-old was. It seemed very quiet in the youngster's room. "Oh, Martha is playing in the bathtub," was the answer.

ANN LANDERS

I was horrified that my daughter would leave such a small child alone in the tub. I went to see what was going on. There was Martha, having a great time with her rubber toys and celluloid boat. My daughter said, "See, . . . she's perfectly fine."

Ann, it takes only a few seconds for a tragedy to occur and I am worried sick that something might happen. What is your opinion? — PANICKY GRANNY.

DEAR GRANNY: No child under seven years of age should be left alone to play in a bathtub. Many people do not know that a child can drown in a few inches of water if he falls face first. I urge you to call this to your daughter's attention. This is not interference.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl who will be 17 very soon. My problem is that I am going with a boy who isn't 16 yet.

I am not old enough to think seriously about any boy and I am worried sick that something might happen. What is your opinion? — TROUBLES.

DEAR TROUBLES: Your parents gave you good guidance. If you are not uncomfortable about the age difference, simply ignore the comments from the bleachers. How a boy conducts himself is more important than when he was born.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading your column for many years but never have I written made me so furious as the one from the donkey who said he would gladly have kissed the draft board doctor had he known homosexuals did not have to serve in the armed forces.

As one who loves God and country I am happy his kind are in the minority. He does not deserve to live in a country that others fought and died for.

During World War II, I volunteered for Navy duty and served 42 months — two years of it on hot, steaming islands in the Pacific. If my service contributed to the preservation of our freedoms I do not regret a single day of it nor do I feel that my attitude is especially heroic. There were millions more like me. If you print my letter sign me, simply — MEMPHIS VOLUNTEER.

DEAR VOLUNTEER: Thank you for your excellent letter. True, there were millions like you but each man who served made his own personal sacrifice — and his own special contribution.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

VON Nurse Reports on 161 Patients

President Mrs. J. N. Nelles welcomed members back from the summer recess. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Olive Roote.

Mr. Rector presented the financial statement and Mrs. Nelles stated that canvassers were organized from the board to help make the coming United Appeal a success.

In her nurse's report, Miss Dorothy Connor stated that a total of 17,072 home visits nursing care were made during the summer months, on a total of 161 patients.

During May and June preschool health checks took place at Douglas Atkins and Canniff-Corbyville schools.

Mrs. Hepburn from Picton and Miss Janet McClung of Ottawa received field experience with the VON in Belleville during May and August.

QUESTION

Please print recipe for Ripe Cucumber Pickles . Mrs. R.J.

ANSWER

RIPE CUCUMBER PICKLES (repeated from Sept., 1963)
(Yield: 5 pints)

Pour medium-large ripe cucumbers, 2 medium red sweet onions, ½ cup salt, 4½ cups sugar, 6 cups spirit vinegar, 1 tablespoon salt (2nd amount); 2 tablespoons whole cloves, 2 tablespoons whole allspice, 3 tablespoons mustard seed, 3 sticks cinnamon. Pare cucumbers, cut in halves lengthwise and scrape out seeds and soft pulp. Cut into lengthwise strips 2" long. Peel and slice onions and sprinkle the ½ cup salt over onions and cucumbers in layers in porcelain or enamel bowl and let stand overnight. Drain, rinse well with cold water. Tie spices in bag and add to vinegar, sugar and the 1 tablespoon salt and boil 5 minutes. Add drained vegetables and boil only 4 or 5 minutes, turning them over gently once or twice. Skim out vegetables into sterile pint jars, remove spice bag, pour boiling syrup over cucumbers to cover. Seal.

QUESTION

Will you be kind enough to give me the recipe for Cornish (Rock) hens and dressing; and how to cook them and proper menu for Thanksgiving?

Mrs. T. S.

ANSWER

It is coincidence that I received 4 requests today for Cornish game hens, or bargain sales!

ROCK CORNISH GAME HENS WITH WILD RICE STUFFING

Stuffing: 1 cup raw wild rice, ½ cup chopped onion, ½ lb. mushrooms, sliced, 1 cup shaved filberts (optional), 8 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon marjoram, ½ teaspoon thyme.

Wash rice and cook in 2½ cups boiling water with 1 teaspoon salt 40 minutes. Drain. Saute onions, mushrooms, filberts in the butter until limp but not brown. Add to rice and seasonings. This yields 3½ cups stuffing - ample for 6 hens. Sprinkle cavities of hens with salt, and stuff and truss them. Place a half slices bacon over each bird, and roast uncovered at 350 deg. F. for 1 to 1½ hours until tender. Baste with pan drippings to which you have added the 2 tablespoons butter, but overbake these tender little birds.

Menu: Smoked Salmon Canapes, Chilled Vegetable Juice Cocktails, Stuffed Cornish Game Hens (above), Pan Gravy, Braised Celery or Zucchini, Green Beans with Almonds or Fresh Corn Mexican, Tomatoes Vinaigrette on Endive, Creme Brulee with Green Gage Plum Sauce. (Recipe for Creme Brulee has been mailed to you).

SATURDAY Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Dief Likes Hat Wife Purchased

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. John Diefenbaker went shopping for a new hat for her husband Friday, but found it no easy chore.

She admitted his old grey fedora had "great character, but I'm not sure character is what you want in a hat."

However, the men's wear department of the store had neither his size nor favorite light grey color. A salesman made a hurried call to another branch of the department store, then told the wife of the Opposition leader that Mr. Diefenbaker's size was available.

She discovered later that the color wasn't light enough.

"I'll take it," she told the salesman, "but if he doesn't like it I'll have to send it back."

But her fears subsided later at the hotel.

Mr. Diefenbaker beamed before a mirror with the new hat on his head.

"This isn't my birthday, but I'd say that's a pretty nice hat," he said.

THREATEN VIOLENCE

NAIROBI (AP)—Kenya's internal security ministry announced Friday it is investigating the activities of an organization called the Kenya Liberation Front, which is believed to be pledged to drive all remaining whites from the country. The front has sent messages to white farmers threatening violence unless they pack up and leave, the ministry said.

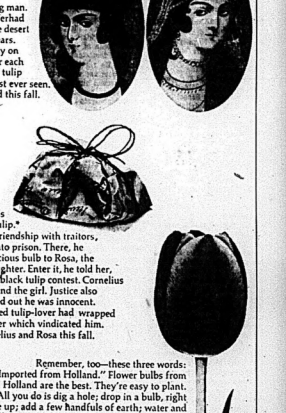
Waste not tears that made a desert bloom or the dream no prison could contain.

Buy Dutch bulbs this fall.



A young Persian, Ferhad, fell in love with the lovely maiden, Shirin. But Shirin spurned the young man. Broken-hearted, Ferhad wandered into the desert and wept bitter tears. The gods took pity on him and wherever each tear fell—a lovely tulip sprang up. The first ever seen. Remember Ferhad this fall.

All Cornelius van Baerle wanted was to grow a black tulip.* But, accused of friendship with traitors, he was clapped into prison. There, he entrusted his precious bulb to Rosa, the jailer's lovely daughter. Later, he told her, in Holland's first black tulip contest. Cornelius won the contest and the girl. Justice also triumphed. Turned out he was innocent. The absent-minded tulip-lover had wrapped his bulb in a letter which vindicated him. Remember Cornelius and Rosa this fall.

Remember, too—these three words: "Imported from Holland." Flower bulbs from Holland are the best. They're easy to plant. All you do is dig a hole; drop in a bulb, right side up; add a few handfuls of earth; water and walk away whistling. When spring comes, pick a tulip, daffodil or hyacinth for your beloved. He (or she) will love the brilliance of tulips; the beauty of the daffodil; the fragrance of the hyacinth. OPERATION CROSSROADS AFRICA

"I'm very happy ! Everything is different here, but I love it !" — Julie Bradford.

Did you know that one of our Belleville girls spent this summer in Africa? To bridge the gap between us and remote peoples was none other than Julie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bradford, 298 Albert Street.

She was moved by "the appearance of concrete possibilities" for real action, when Dr. James H. Robinson, the founder of Operation Crossroads Africa spoke at Western University (where Julie was majoring in French, and recently graduated) to explain :

"It is a work-camp-study seminar, friendship and aid program (privately and voluntarily organized) which takes students, teachers, professors and other specialists to countries in Africa for short-term programs during the summer."

"This group and this effort really were the progenitors of the Peace Corps . . . President John F. Kennedy admitted, only to date, over 1,000 persons have participated from all parts of North and South America, and its inception in 1957, when just 60 students and a staff of 15 teachers and leaders made the groups, made 'a very large and significant impact upon the African continent.'

Julie sought and successfully met the high selective standards required to become a participant in this project and went to the African-speaking country — Dahomey, with a group from the United States and Canada.

These facts, as well as many more detailed ones, are the roots from which Julie's experience flowered and we are privileged to share glimpses of it through letters to her family, with the kind permission of all concerned:

June 26, 1965: "We arrived in Lagos, after a smooth flight from New York. Stopped for an hour in Dakar, Senegal and Abidjam, Ivory Coast, but weren't out of the Air Terminal.

Our first view of Africa was one of an arid, flat country with miles and miles of sand. As we travelled east, we noticed a bit greenery and at Abidjam the aerial view revealed thick green forest with the occasional clearing here and there where villages were established. The few roads could be easily detected, as they appeared as long snakes winding their way through the forests.

Also we were able to see a distinct system of lagoons which extend from a few miles in off the coast to the edge of the woodlands. This area is similar to Dahomey."

FORM OF TRANSPORTATION

June 28: "We drove from Lagos to Porto Novo yesterday on a "Mammy Wagon" a bus type vehicle, and we were met by a member of the United States Information Service, who took us to our residence in a Girls' Secondary School in Porto Novo. We are delighted with our accommodations. We have a large "dorm" for the girls. On the opposite side of the building, another one for the boys is located. We have our own washrooms; sheets are supplied and we don't even need to use sleeping bags.

There is someone at the school who will wash and iron for us, and we make our beds. If we so desire and our leader seems to think that is best, it is a good idea. So we are most comfortable.

Our project — (we are building a maternity clinic) — is located at the village of Avanakou, five miles away. We'll go to the work site in an army truck. Five African students will be working full time with us. At least five other young people will come each day from one of the surrounding towns — (there are 60 or more of them) and each wants to be represented. Many whom we meet are trying to get the time off work so that they can come and help us. We start in Thursday. Everything is so different here, but I love it.

July 4: "We have not yet started working. On Thursday we went to Avanakou, where we'll be building the clinic, and in typical Dahomian tradition, the materials had been delayed and we were unable to start.

However, we were warmly welcomed. All the villagers came to the sub-prefect's office and, after being told who we were and why we had come, they led us into the centre of town, chanting and dancing all the time. We passed the site of our project and at this place the sub-prefect explained to his people that "they were to help us and not to be lazy; that we were counting on them as much as they were counting on us." They clapped and cheered and seemed satisfied. We were then taken on a tour of a palm - oil factory which was most interesting, for they obtain many products from this tree, which is the wealth of the country.

Following this we were taken to the home of the wealthiest and most important chief in Avankou. He received us in a large room and we sat in a big circle around him and drank youki soda, the local soft drink.

The high-lights f this visit was his presentation of two live turkeys which we brought back with us and which our cook killed, plucked, cleaned and cooked.

I have been acting as translator and so the chief, who speaks no French, spoke his dialect, which was translated into French by one of his sons, I then translated this into English for our group. When we thanked him the procedure was reversed: English - French - dialect.'

ENJOYS SIGHT-SEEING

We have done much sightseeing. We visited an Agricultural School which is organized by the Scouts. Young boys are trained here for a year and then sent to work on a farm. Scouting is well developed here, but unlike Canadian groups, their main purpose seems to be to train young boys in Animal Husbandry and Farming.

Saturday we were invited to a play presented by a local group and following this, there was a dance. The play was the story of the dethroning of an ancient king and it was interpreted by folk-songs and dances.

I am doing as much as I can. I am in the unique stage of every opportunity to talk with people, to walk in the streets, to be doing something. I feel I am accomplishing something. What? — in little ways it is easy to bring joy to the people here — a smile, and "bonjour" is worth a million dollars. I think teaching here would be most rewarding.

We visited the father of the Dahomian Attache to Washington. We had met this boy at orientation in New Jersey before coming here and it was hard to imagine him living in the mud hut which had been his home for so many years.

This experience is proving to be even more than I had hoped for. I have been meeting so many new people and challenging situations. Already I have learned a great deal."

Thelma Christina Cooney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cooney of R.R. 1, Foxboro, and William Walter Chatten, son of Mr. Jesse Chatten of R.R. 1, Corbyville, and the late Mrs. Chatten, were married by Rev. C. C. Gilbert in Foxboro United Church on September 25, 1965, at 2.30 p.m.

Mrs Ferne Spencer was organist and the soloist was Mrs. Irvin Badgley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin peau de soie sheath gown, with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline, long lily point sleeves and a full flowing over-skirt. The bodice was highlighted with appliques of Alencon lace. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a tiara encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones, and she carried a bouquet of red roses, white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The maid of honor was Miss Barbara Pearson of Belleville and the bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Cooney of Foxboro, sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Chatten of Corbyville, sister of the bridegroom. They were identically attired in aqua silk organza A-line dresses with Channel jackets, featuring three-quarter length sleeves, round necklines, and self bows on the bodice fronts. They wore matching headdresses with mantilae veiling and carried cascade bouquets of white and aqua 'mums.

Mr. Jack Chatten of Peterborough, brother of the bridegroom, was the groomsman, and Mr. Murney Cooney of Foxboro, brother of the bride, and Mr. Wayne Chatten of Peterborough, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

At the reception at the Church Hall the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a jade matelasse dress with heart-shaped neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and a self-corded flower at the waist. Her accessories were black and her corsage was of yellow roses.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Smith of Lindsay, who wore a black and blue silk jersey dress with a blue hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

A Lift for Living

Are No Private Affairs; None Exist Independently

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

There are no private affairs. We are so bound up in a common bundle with other forms of life that no person can even exist independently of the rest of the world, let alone live happily apart from others. When someone criticizes our conduct we may protest, "Leave me alone; this is my personal affair," but in this inter - related world everything we are and do has far-flung effects beyond our widest imagining.

Sir James Jeans, the eminent English physicist, said that an infant cannot throw a toy from a baby carriage without disturbing the farthest star. It was the scientist's way of metaphorically stating a law of life: we live in an inter-connected universe where everything, by ties that may be plain or obscure, is linked with everything else.

We boldly insist upon maintaining our "independence," but we have never possessed any real and ultimate independence in the first place. Complete independence of life, thought and conduct is a mere unsupported by the facts of human existence. By unbreakable bonds we are related to the unseen oxygen about us and to the earth beneath our feet, to the most uncivilized savage as well as to those who love us most dearly.

The phrase of an old song, "Take good care of yourself! You belong to me," seems to be the theme of the universe. When the light from a distant star is dissected by the spectroscope, it is revealed that the farthest heavenly bodies are made of elements present here on earth, and of substances that are used in our bodies. So the stars and men belong to each other.

We are linked to the plants that grow around us, the trees and grasses on our lawns, the grains and vegetables in fields and gardens, and they are related to us, since their expired gas is inspired oxygen, and our expired carbon dioxide is the "breath" they breathe.

The lowly bacteria and earth-worms in the soil are our benefactors. They work on organic material there, breaking it down, thus preparing earth for the use of plants which later become our food. When we eat vegetable matter, part of that matter is made into cells so that the plant quite literally becomes us.

People of centuries past belong to us and we to them. From the moment of our conception we were linked to long-ago generations. When you were merely two jointed cells, not so large as a pinhead, you carried heredity and potentialities that were inherited from countless remote forbears. We are all greatly indebted to these people of the past for benefits they have bestowed upon us, and our debt can be partially repaid if we fulfill their ideals and ambitions and exert our best efforts in to our own time.

ALL RELATED

Moreover, not only are we related to people of the past and future — but everyone in the world at the present moment belongs to everyone else now alive in the world. This is one meaning of the Lord's Prayer which begins "Our Father . . ." We all belong to the same God, and thus in the same family. We had best remember this and start calling men of all races and creeds "brother" and "sister" before others reach them with the name "Comrade"!

The expression in Paul's letters to the Ephesians was never more appropriate than now: "We are members one of another." Like a human body that sustains an injury and infection in the foot and then hurts all over, so humankind is so interrelated that whatever happens to anyone anywhere has some long-range effect upon everyone everywhere. World events shout aloud man's essential unity. An infection in Viet Nam may be plain or obscure, is linked with everything else.

Successful Living

Overeating Is Result Of Other Problems

DEAR DORIS: My husband has just finished another session of nagging me about my weight. I know I'm a lot heavier than I should be, but taking off weight is a lot easier said than done. I know I won't be successful until we solve some of our problems (financial and sexual mainly.)

I am six months pregnant and have already passed the 20-pound limit. The doctor says I must control my weight or I shall have trouble delivering.

Jim has been on my back for a long time about this but honestly, Doris, he is 31 and when I look at him I wonder which of us is pregnant. He weighs a very badly distributed 225 lbs., though he would never admit it.

Could you advise us who to contact to discuss our problems? — POUNDS AWAY.

DEAR POUNDS: At least you recognize your confusion for what it is; a resort to eating as a way of making up for other lacks. Jim's discomfort (and hence his nagging) is increased by his lack of exercise.

And while you are forced to exert all sorts of self-control to carry on at all, there's just not enough self-discipline left over for refusing food.

You have jumped the hurdle of deciding to go to a counsellor; fortunately you live where there are some! For Belleville the marital counselling service is the Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street.

Mr. Robert McAlpine of St. Catharines was groomsman, while Mr. James Aziz of Trenton was the usher.

For the reception at the home of the bride's parents which was decorated with pink carnations and white baby 'mums for the occasion, guests were greeted by the bride's mother who wore a forest green wool dress with a corsage of bronze cymbidium orchids. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who was wearing a green and bronze brocade dress with a corsage of Talisman roses.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crone

VIOLINS AND PEOPLE

During the month of April, 1964, Itzhak Perlman, an 18-year-old Israeli violin prodigy, borrowed a rare 18th century violin. He played this instrument and won the 23rd international competition of the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation in Carnegie Hall, New York.

Immediately following the competition, while receiving congratulations of his admirers, this violin was stolen from Perlman's dressing room. It was a genuine "Guarnerius", and was worth $50,000. The next day, a New York pawnbroker, reading of this theft in his newspaper, remembered that he had taken a violin in pawn the day before. Examining the instrument, he found the word "Guarnerius" on the inside. The bank was stamped "Juilliard No. 65" and the Juilliard School of Music confirmed the identification. The thief had pawned this instrument for $15.

This happens to people, too. Far too many lives are being sold cheaply. We let them go for material wealth . . . or political power . . . or short - lived fame. Still others throw them away for sheer excitement . . . a bottle of whiskey . . . a package of dope . . . or an hour of illicit pleasure.

Human life is of the greatest value. Man is God's masterpiece. God created him for a high and noble purpose . . . the purpose of glorifying His Creator. Let's not sell ourselves cheap.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." (Ephesians 2:10)

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Bolstered by public assurances of backing from four provincial administrations, John Diefenbaker headed today into southwestern Ontario to continue his federal election campaign on good fighting ground.

From Toronto — where his Progressive Conservatives were shut out of the 17 metropolitan seats in the 1963 general election—he moved to the Conservative - held ridings of Kent for a meeting tonight but also will do some campaigning in the neighboring Liberal-held Windsor area.

Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership, which has been assailed by out- and - on challenge within the party, received warm endorsement Friday night here from four spokesmen for Progressive Conservative provincial governments, three of whom are prospects as his successor.

Premiers John Robarts of Ontario, Duff Roblin of Manitoba and Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, along with Acting Premier Andrew MacNair of Prince Edward Island, put their weight behind Mr. Diefenbaker's bid for a fourth mandate to date. There were an estimated 7,000 in Varsity Arena, plus several thousand listening outside by loud speaker.

HEES-ON HAND

A fourth leadership prospect —former trade, minister Hees, who walked out of Mr. Diefenbaker's Cabinet in a spectacular split—also was on hand, though he did not speak. Sitting with other Ontario delegates from running in Northumberland—he told a reporter he and the leader had settled their differences.

"We've got a good leader going for us this time and we're going to win," he said as he angrily repudiated "dump Dief" leaflets that were distributed outside the auditorium by a few people calling themselves Young Canadians for George Hees.

All four provincial government spokesmen pointedly emphasized Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership qualities, and Mr. Robarts and Mr. Roblin particularly underlined support for his platform promise of an early federal-provincial conference on the future of Confederation.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a Conservative victory in the Nov. 8 election would put Canada "on the high road again." The time had come to establish a new political purpose when everything permeated the "very heart and soul" of an administration.

SPLITS IN THE PAST

Mr. Diefenbaker indicated the intra-party split that preceded the last election are strictly in the past.

"In 1963 there were divisions. There were times I felt almost alone and we still won 96 seats. This time we are united and the result is already anticipated."

Prime Minister Pearson had called the election because he thought the Conservatives were divided.

"He has his answer tonight."

Mr. Diefenbaker said his party would save and preserve Confederation. Liberal policies of the last two years had set province against province and race against race.

"We do not seek Canada without Quebec," he said, "but we cannot seek Quebec without Canada."

On the same theme, Mr. Robarts said an open federal-provincial conference on Confederation is necessary and is the first realistic step toward the preservation of confederation that has been put forward.

The briefs, desires and ambitions of Quebec must be understood by the rest of Canada. The other provinces had their aspirations. There must be an opportunity for Quebec and the other provinces to negotiate as equal partners.

HITS AT LIBERALS

Premier Stanfield said Liberal policies present "a grave, perhaps mortal, threat to the idea of Canada as we have known it." Confederation was threatened not so much by French-Canadian aspiration as by "the pernicious anemia that affects the present national administration." The Conservatives would provide unity, decision and determination "to meet the needs of today."

Pearson Will Campaign in Every Province

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals have often attributed their inability to win a majority in 1963 to the assertion that they "peaked" too soon.

They're trying not to take any chances this time that Prime Minister Pearson will reach the crest of his campaign too soon. "Peaking" and the Nov. 8 polling day are supposed to coincide.

Mr. Pearson continued this week with his deliberately slow start, sandwiching an old-fashioned political rally in St. John's, Nfld., Thursday between two non-political appearances in Toronto Wednesday and Ottawa Friday.

But the non - political stuff now is pretty well behind him. With five weeks of campaigning left, he ventures into Northern Ontario and Manitoba next week. He has said he will campaign in every province.

THEN OUT WEST

On Tuesday he goes to Kirkland Lake and Timmins, returning here that evening. He flies to Winnipeg and will be at Winter and Dauphin, Man., Thursday. Plans beyond that have not been announced yet.

It is difficult to steer away from politics in the middle of an election campaign but Mr. Pearson managed this pretty well in Toronto and Ottawa.

In Toronto he philosophized about housing needs, recalling how his mother used to draw water from a well and scrub the clothes on a washboard in a wooden tub.

He didn't promise anything, confining himself to a statement that the federal government will have to "consider" new housing legislation and increased housing aid to the provinces and municipalities.

In Ottawa he discussed foreign aid. He did say Canadian aid will be increased but External Affairs Minister Martin had already announced that anyway.

ALMOST DOUBLE

He mentioned no figures but Mr. Martin has said foreign aid will be increased from $226,000,000 this year — the amount includes loans as well as gifts—to $400,000,000 in the next five years.

The Prime Minister said there is a current disenchantment, indifference and malaise about foreign aid in the rich nations.

The misery of the dispossessed and their rising expectations formed the raw material of world-wide revolutionary violence and subversion. This movement, especially in the case of China, was taking on an ominous strain of racism.

"We are living on a powder keg of anger and revolt. . . .

"Why should we think that our western world, with its vast and growing resources, is, in some way, exempt from the judgments of history and of God?

Student Loan Plan Attacked By Douglas

By BEN WARD

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—T. C. Douglas wound up the first big week of his federal election campaign Friday night with a sharp attack on the government's student loan plan, calling it a disgraceful substitute for free university education.

The NDP leader said a student will have to pay up to $1,000 in interest charges if he uses the maximum $5,000 loan obtainable during five years of study.

"I think this is disgraceful," Mr. Douglas told an audience of 1,400 that filled all but a few gallery seats in the Beal High School auditorium. Students and staff members from the University of Western Ontario made up a large section of it, the biggest turnout he had drawn so far in the campaign.

He repeated his pledge that a New Democratic Party government would give immediate priority to making education free at every level by providing the provinces with the financing necessary to remove tuition fees from universities.

The province of Ontario was the first to provide free primary and secondary school education. "But you and I today must take up where our ancestors left off."

TRIP TAKES TOLL

Mr. Douglas appeared to have lost much of his bounce and energy after a sleepless night in Sudbury followed by a flight to Toronto, a press conference there and an afternoon flight to London.

He told a reporter on the plane that a loud drinking party in a motel room next to his had made it impossible for him to sleep after his speech in Sudbury Thursday night.

After landing there he had less than an hour to shave and dress for a $2.50-a-plate turkey supper staged by NDP campaign workers and attended by 440 persons.

Key figure in the NDP campaign in this area is Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, 59-year-old theology professor at Huron College — an Anglican affiliate of the university—who is running for the Middlesex East seat.

Mr. Douglas told the dinner group the party is getting its biggest response and "most enthusiastic I've ever seen. Don't let anybody tell you it's impossible for the New Democrats to win this one. If we get out and do the work it will pay off this time."

Caouette Says Party to Hold Power Balance

By REMY d'ANJOU

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette predicted Friday that no party will get a clear-cut majority in the Nov. 8 federal election and that his party will hold the balance of power.

Mr. Caouette told a press conference that because of this balance of power the Creditistes will be able to impose their will "on the aspiring Canadian prime minister."

"He who wants to become prime minister will have to sign an agreement with us to the effect that, in the first speech from the Throne, he will announce an increase in family allowance—according to the cost of living index—a reduction in taxes, an increase in old age pensions to $100 a month with a later objective of $125 and the granting of interest-free loans to municipalities and provinces."

Mr. Caouette was in Quebec City to attend a day-long closed meeting of his party's organizers. Aim of the meeting is to map out party strategy for the forthcoming electoral campaign.

PREDICTS SWEEP

Describing himself as being in good health, "dangerously good for the opposition," the Creditiste leader and member of the last Parliament for Villeneuve said his party will take between 35 and 50 of Quebec province's 75 Commons seats.

After having visited Quebec Mayor Wilfrid Hamel and signed the city's Golden Book, the Creditiste chief began firing comments at accompanying reporters.

He described the entry of Jean Marchand, Gerard Pelletier and Pierre Elliott Trudeau —three Quebec intellectuals into the ranks of the Liberal party as "a flagrant infiltration of socialism and communism into that party."

Mr. Caouette said the three should have joined the New Democratic Party, which he called a "step toward communism."

The Liberals allowed the three to join their party because of "intellectual nonchalance" and because they were ready to "do anything to retain power."

Between now and Nov. 8 the Creditiste leader is to tour the province by car, visiting 60 constituencies.

Le Ralliement des Creditistes has no election fund and doesn't need one, as we can count on volunteer workers," Mr. Caouette said.

Banff Oil

shares changing hands.

In Edmonton, H. Simmerville, deputy Alberta minister of mines and minerals, said the province has no estimate of proven resources of the Rainbow Lake area. There was not enough information available on which even to base an estimate.

Mr. Laing had said government officials had estimated the field has a potential of 6,000,000,000 to 7,000,000,000 barrels.

"We've discovered an oil field there which is the largest oil field ever discovered on this continent including Texas," he said in Saskatoon.

". . . at a delivered price— I'm talking about the end of pipelines — that one oil field would discharge the total net debt of Canada. . . ."

However, in Winnipeg Friday, the minister said he had not directed his comments to any one firm. He added that he did not mention Banff, its Rainbow Lake activities or any firm by name.

He said he had intended only to underline the development of Western Canada.

Sukarno

said they could not evaluate the situation. Communications with other countries remained cut but Jakarta airport was open to both incoming and outgoing flights.

No details were available on the fighting in central Java. The newly - appointed army chief, Maj.-Gen. Suharto, was said to have sent troops to deal with the commander of the Semarang area who had declared himself in support of the rebels.

A broadcast said the commander, Col. Suherman, had been dishonorably discharged from the army. Semarang is about 150 miles east of Jakarta.

It was not known whether there was fighting elsewhere in Indonesia, a 3,000 - mile long chain of islands.

Broadcasts said Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, Sukarno's defence minister, had restored order in the capital after the attempted coup by Untung.

CLAIMED PLOT

A relatively obscure officer, said he seized power to save Sukarno from a plot concocted by a council of generals. He did not name them but said the council was a "subversive body" headed by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. The U.S. state department denied the charge.

The best available information said Untung was supported by three battalions.

Hutterites Appeal Case Under Study

CALGARY(CP) — Judgment has been reserved in an Alberta Supreme Court action to test the province's set aprons ing establishment of Hutterite colonies declared invalid.

Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain said Friday he objects to the language of key sections of the Communal Property Act and commented that his judgment "might take a little while."

The statements of claim filed by lawyers Max Moscovitch of Lethbridge and W. G. Gill of Calgary contend the act is "illegal," discriminatory and ultra vires of the Alberta legislature.

The statements seek to prevent prosecution of charges against six butterflies and eight farmers for the alleged sale of land to establish a colony 36 miles southeast of Calgary.

Preliminary hearing of the charges was postponed to Dec. 10 after Mr. Moscovitch obtained an injunction restraining prosecution of all such charges until the Supreme Court made its decision.

in Carleton County were rated at 50 per cent. Thus a farmer with 50 cattle would be subsidized for 25 tons of feed.

Actual drought conditions set in during 1963 and some farmers have reached and overreached financial limits.

The scrap is that rainfall in the June-September period was two inches above normal. But it came at the wrong time.

"I think we had had the grain in July that we have now," said Mr. Black of Ottawa, representative for Carleton county.

Claude M. Isbister, Cool, Efficient Deputy Minister Of Immigration Dept.

By GERARD MacNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The citizenship and immigration department, whether dealing with a band of angered Iroquois or a big deserter, usually emerges the unpopular winner.

Because such cases catch the public eye, the big federal department seems to be continually sundering Chinese families or shattering the ambitions of Greek seamen.

Often overlooked is that it operates an education system for 53,000 Indian children and brings about 125,000 immigrants into Canada each year.

"Our business isn't keeping people out of the country, it's bringing them in," says Claude M. Isbister, the cordial, cultivated deputy minister.

This crack 51-year-old administrator has been a key figure in the broad reorganization of structure and policy now going on in citizenship and immigration.

Cool and efficient, Mr. Isbister came to the department in 1963 after 18 years in important government trade and financial posts.

His background with figures conceals a feeling for individuals. He has much of the altruistic nature he attributes to others in the department.

"A lot of immigration employees would have been missionaries in another age," he says. "They are selfless people who aren't working for money."

WORK PURSUES HIM

Since Immigration Minister Jack Nicholson is responsible to Parliament for every immigrant and every Indian child, his deputy minister must handle an enormous, continual flow of information.

The telephone at the Isbister home on Revelstoke Drive, near the Rideau River in south-end Ottawa, often rings after midnight.

He takes a battered briefcase home nights and weekends and seldom leaves the office on the 11th floor of the department's new building before 6:30 p.m.

"If I ever leave at five, I feel a little embarrassed," he says.

In a sensitive government department that has always been secretive, Mr. Isbister tends to be as frank and open as possible.

He is enthusiastic about a community development program to generate initiative on Indian reserves.

"We're giving our junior officers training courses you can't get in any Canadian university and it's turning them upside down, stretching their minds, creating decision makers."

The job of the community development officers will be to encourage decision - making and independence among Indians, rather than massive reliance upon the system.

EXPERT IN ECONOMICS

Immigration is undergoing important changes as well. The European service and the Canadian set-up are being improved and an office has been opened in Tokyo.

"This is a big administrative show," says this man who helped build Canada's international trade structure after the Second World War.

Mr. Isbister holds a PhD in economics from Harvard and he was assistant deputy minister of finance from 1958 to 1963, two qualifications that have brought him solid membership in Ottawa's inner circle.

He also belongs to the Cercle Universitaire, a club where intellectuals of both main cultures mingle.

With other members of this exclusive group, he lunches at the downtown Rideau Club and relaxes at Five Lakes Fishing Club in the nearby Gatineau hills.

This summer his daughter Kathryn, 12, spent three weeks at the home of Linda Dicicco in Thetford Mines, Que., learning some French first-hand. Linda, who barely spoke English, returned the visit and the girls became close friends.

SONS BOTH TALENTED

Sons John William, 23, and Alex James, 19, reflect their father's influence and broad interests.

Both have worked on collective farms in Israel, John has done volunteer work in Senegal and Alex spent this summer working with the American Friends (Quakers) Service in a Negro slum in Detroit.

Their Winnipeg - born father earned scholarships in the 1920s when the competition was fierce, and won an arts degree at the University of Manitoba.

He took economics at the University of Toronto, taught mathematics back at Manitoba, then won his doctorate at Harvard in 1945. He also was an instructor there.

He must use a cane because of a left leg shortened by a childhood illness, but this hasn't diminished his physical or mental vitality.

The Isbisters are devout members of Ottawa's small, intellectual Unitarian congregation, where the Sunday sermons are described as vigorous mental workouts.

BEGAN AS STATISTICIAN

His public service career began in 1945 when he came here from Harvard as assistant Canadian statistician, his task the organization of national accounts.

In 1947, he became assistant director of the economics branch in the then C. D. Howe department of reconstruction and supply.

The basic of reconstruction policy was that Ottawa should assume responsibility for Canada's pace and direction in booming post-war economic development.

In 1949, he became director of the International Trade relations branch of the trade and commerce department and practically consumated across the Atlantic until 1957 as Canada's man at conferences of GATT and other world trade associations.

By the time he was appointed assistant deputy minister of finance in 1958, the vague plans he had had at Harvard for an academic career were long gone.

"I became so interested in government work that I just never looked back."

OTTAWA (CP)—The Macdonald-Cartier Bridge will be bilingual at the Quebec end and unilingual at the Ontario end.

The bridge across the Ottawa River is within sight of Parliament.

It will be a major artery for Quebec - Ontario traffic here and is named after Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Georges-Etienne Cartier, key figures in Confederation.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

TRANSPORT DRIVERS

A transport driver is one who works for an employer whose principal business is the transportation of goods and passengers and whose duties require him to be away from the municipality or metropolitan area where his employer's business is located.

A taxpayer who drives a truck around the city or area where his employers business is located is not recognized as a "Transport Driver" and is not entitled to any of the deductions allowed to a "Transport Driver."

A transport driver who is away from his employer's place of business in the performance of his duties may deduct any outlay for meals and lodging for which he has not been reimbursed or entitled to be reimbursed. He must be prepared to substantiate such deductions by the proper receipts He should obtain a TL2 form, complete it, and attach it to his income tax return.

I have received numerous letters from transport drivers who deliver bread and pastries from the central bakery to all parts of their district including various towns and cities, asking why their expense claims were disallowed. Such claims have to be disallowed as the employers principal business is baking and not the transportation of goods or passengers as laid down in Section 11 (7) of the Income Tax Act.

A transport driver with a regular run will only need to submit receipts for one trip with the "Tramp Driver" or one with no regular run should keep a running record for each trip and submit such records with as many receipts as possible to verify his claim.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am a transport driver on a cross country run. I leave home at 9 a.m. and must use my car to get to the terminal as no buses are running at that hour. Can I claim the cost of operating my car?

Bass Are Back in Shallows 'Larding Up' for Hibernation

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

All too many outdoorsmen seem to fall into the habit of regarding bass fishing as a summer sport. Many of them plan their vacations with bass fishing in mind. That, of course, takes place during the warm months as a rule, July or August. Vacation over, so is the bass job again, the bass tackle is put away and the shotgun is taken out of its case. Time to get things ready for the hunting season.

This average sequence of events is all right, perhaps, for the fellow who can't get away from work too often — the once-in-a-whiler. But the fact remains that in planning that if times in the outdoors, they make a vital mistake. By following the usual schedule they are passing up some of the finest fishing of the year, the fall bass fishing.

Actually, the summer bass fishing, while fun, isn't the best fishing by a long shot. Both smallmouth and largemouth bass are governed to a great degree by temperature. That is particularly true of smallmouth. Their critical water temperature seems to be 70 degrees. That is the temperature they prefer for spawning and, that matter, for comfortable summer living. Thus, when July and August roll around the bass have already left the warmed-up shore line and moved into deeper, cooler water.

Meanwhile, the natural food of the smallmouth lives in the shallows. Thus, when a bass is hungry he must cruise the shallows in search of food and this means that he must, of necessity, move about in warmer, less comfortable water while he finds a meal. But he doesn't stay there very long after he has found his appetite. Instead, back he goes to cooler, deeper water. Thus, in the summer, bass are not big fish most of the time.

With the arrival of the frosty nights of fall, the temperatures in the feeding areas of the smallmouth cool down to his liking. Being a warm-water fish he can tolerate temperatures in the 50's and below for a time, but, as I say, his preference is for water in the high sixties. In the fall of the year he is back in the shallows again, available for bass bugs and surface lures.

Bass, as you know, go into complete or partial hibernation during the winter months. Nature enables them to do this and remain healthy. Their heart beat slows down and their rate of metabolism is reduced. They feed seldom or not at all until the warm spring sun brings the water back to comparative comfort. But, like all living creatures, they must be fed in order to stay healthy. They solve this problem by living off the accumulated layers of fat that they have laid on before the arrival of winter.

Fall is the time of the year when a bass must build up these all-important layers of fat in preparation for hibernation. Then the fish feed ravenously until ultra-cold temperatures drive them into winter quarters. It is for this reason that the fall bass fishing is good; better, as a rule, than you will find in the summer months.

The largemouth bass follow along in the same general pattern. True, their temperature preferences are higher than those of the smallmouth, about 10 degrees higher on the average. But, in general, the same rules apply.

The choice of lures for fall bass fishing should, I think, be confined to the top-water and shallow-running varieties. The deep-running lures, excellent in the summer, confine themselves comparatively deep water and in the fall there aren't very many bass living in the deep water. Your chances are better in the fall if you fish where most of the bass are apt to be — in the shallows.

PREFER OILY FOOD

If you are a bait fisherman, your choice of baits in the fall is important. Bait that are quite productive during warm weather tend to lose their appeal in the fall — bolgramites, crayfish, stone catfish, etc. To lay on layers of fat the fish prefer the more oily baits such as riffle pike, chubs, shiners and so on. These, as you know, do not produce too well during the warm weather but when fall arrives, they seem to have definite preference, the oilier the better. What a bass wants then is a fat-producing bait and the little food fish will do exactly that.

Another thing to bear in mind in your fall bass fishing is the vital fact that the same daily cycle of feeding periods and comparative rest or inactivity periods still governs the behavior of the bass in the fall just as it does in the summer. Big bass feed only once in a while, but during the Sohmar Periods of activity you will find the big fellows, the tackle busters, cruising the shallows with their smaller relatives. It is a wise plan to keep track of fish daily. Sohmar Periods — for your convenience the Sohmar Tables are published in this newspaper — and to plan your fishing days accordingly.

So this fall take time out from your shooting and sample the fall bass fishing. If you haven't already done so, you are in for a pleasant surprise.

Who's Afraid of The Big Bad Bee?

Mr. Saurioi knows his subject. He keeps 750,000 bees in an apary in the Don Valley in Metropolitan Toronto.

As for the people—they blame bees whe they're stung by yellow jackets and wasps.

In most cases the 68-year-old stinger be removed promptly stinger be removed promptly and baking soda, crushed rhubarb or moist earth applied.

Bee stings, however, can be fatal to the small percentage of people allergic to the protein in bee venom. Food such people doctors can inject an extract, made from poisonous insects, which can stop the allergy in about 95 per cent of the cases.

Mr. Saurioi began keeping bees in 1940. He retired from a publishing firm several years ago and now spends much of his time reading and talking about his hobby.

His hives consist of from three to seven foot-high boxes weighing about 40 pounds. Inside the boxes are eight to 10

GIVES THE UNITED WAY

HOW YOUR BELLEVILLE BRANCH RED CROSS DOLLARS WERE SPENT IN 1964-65

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society Ontario Division is a partner with the Belleville United Appeal and receives one of the largest amounts of monies distributed each year to the Participating Agencies of the Belleville United Appeal.

At campaign time many people are of the opinion that the largest portion of the money received by Red Cross is sent out of Belleville. This is not true.

It is true however, that because Red Cross is a National and International Organization that Branches are expected to send to their Provincial Division a fair portion of the money they receive to support National and International Red Cross. In 1964 Belleville Red Cross sent away $2,000.00 for this purpose out of the $11,901.00 received from the United Appeal.

HOMEMAKERS SERVICES $19,970. This entire sum was paid in earnings to our Women Homemakers and Supervisor in Belleville. Against this expenditure we received $15,100. for services rendered to people in Belleville and in the County of Hastings.

BLOOD DONOR SERVICE $1521. This is all spent in Belleville primarily to Food Stores and Dairies for refreshments at the Clinics. To unemployed men working at the Clinics, and Radio and Newspaper Advertising.

DISASTER SERVICES $943. This was all spent in local stores for new clothing and bedding for victims of Fire Disasters. This money is all refunded to Belleville by Ontario Red Cross. We assisted some 34 families during 1964.

LOAN CUPBOARD $510. This is spent on the purchase of Hospital Beds, Wheel Chairs, Walkers, and Crutches which are loaned on request at no charge to any person needing them within the limits of our supply. In all 125 people were assisted during the year.

INDIVIDUAL EMERGENCY AID $719. This was all spent for Food, Drugs, Clothing, Temporary Shelter, medical and dental assistance and many things on an emergency basis only to assist 24 families and some individuals.

WOMEN'S WORK $708. This was all spent for wool and material for our women volunteer workers to knit 103 pairs of socks, 109 children's sweaters with socks, 20 pairs of mitts. Also to make 21 tropical dresses, boys' shirts, overalls, layettes, 12 quilts and many other articles of clothing. This clothing is sent to Toronto Red Cross for relief and disaster services anywhere in Canada or in the World where it is needed most.

HOME NURSING $87. This was for a twelve week Red Cross Home Nursing Class from which 10 members of the class were presented with certificates and badges.

WATER SAFETY $116. This was spent locally during the Belleville Water Safety Week, to encourage and assist Water Safety in this area.

Rent, Administration and Publicity expenses amounting to $1,011. all spent locally makes up the remainder of our total expenditures of $27,585. for the year 1964.

Far outweighing the $2,000. we sent to Ontario Red Cross was a gift from Toronto Red Cross to the Citizens of Belleville and District through the Belleville General Hospital of 3523 bottles of life saving whole blood during 1964 which cannot be assessed in terms of money.

The Golden Years

Retiring to a Lake Cottage Not All Peaches and Cream

By THOMAS COLLINS

As you continue trying to master the art of retiring — an art that still eludes most people — you come eventually to a cottage on a lake.

Such a cottage is a popular retirement idea these days and that with all the lakes that have been created around the country in recent years. From about age 55 on, many people start pricing lake lots, or contracting for shell houses they can complete themselves, or buying established cottages that are for sale.

Should you follow the parade?

Here is an autumn appraisal of what retirement to a cottage on a lake is like, based on talks with a hundred or so retired people who are trying to do it:

— It is a chic thing to do. There is little doubt that friends back in the city and former fellow-workers at the company will envy you.

— It is a less expensive life than the city, partly because everything is informal but mainly because there is little to spend money for except a Ferris Wheel ride at some nearby County Fair.

— You won't have much fun fishing, nor will you catch much to brag about. The lakes are being fished to death. Even the fish that are hatched to restock the lakes are biting the dust before they're four inches long.

— In summer, swarms of vacationists will be milling about you because lakes have become a major lure. In the spring you will like the excitement of this influx; by late August you'll be pretty sick of it.

YOU GET CONDITIONED

— Vacationists bring boats with them, usually with motors attached. All summer they roar back and forth, often with yelling kids riding water skis behind them. It's noisy, but you get conditioned to it by mid-July and don't notice. Nights are quiet.

— You will find that a lake area usually gets as hot as a frying pan in summer, and your inclination will be to stay indoors from about 10:30 to 4 each day and let the young folks take over.

In the fall you will first feel great relief as the vacationists depart and then, except in the hot climates, you will enter a lonely winter of isolation. You won't like it much.

— You'll not have as many deadbeat house guest from the city as is generally supposed. A few, but not many. In fact, during the winters, you'll wish you had more.

— In general, the lakes of recent times are well removed from urban areas. Your cottage most likely, will be out of touch with civilization except for some nearby rural town and the junky small businesses that grow up around lake resorts. Your shopping will be satisfactory enough, with prices reasonable — if it's not the vacation season and-or if you tell the merchants you are not a vacationist.

— Doctors will not be inclined to ride down your rutted road at night to make house calls. If, indeed, there is a doctor around. You'll have to check out your medical facilities, maybe establishing contact with a suitable doctor and hospital in a nearby small city.

— Retirement cottages on a lake are usually not very good houses. Many are Jerry-built, or do-it-yourself projects of amateurs. You will find around any large lake a retired couple of age 72 or so who is living in a cottage that is falling down around their heads, because it was sorry to start with and who is no longer physically able to make repairs. You'd better watch this, and at the same time make sure the well and septic tank — both of which you may have to use — are adequate for a long pull.

— About boats. They are synonymous with lake life. But you don't get them with trading stamps. They cost. They also don't pull very easily on the bill to your basement in the fall. Not after age 63. Maybe you can ride in a neighbor's boat. Buying him some gas, or something.

What has been said here doesn't tell you to, or not to, buy a lake cottage in retirement. You'll have to make a plus and minus column of the factors given and make up your own mind. You're an individualist, you see — with a spirit that is yours alone.

Labor, Tories Under Fire on Immigration

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's two chief political parties are both strongly attacked for their Commonwealth immigration policies in a new book by Paul Foot, son of Britain's chief United Nations delegate, Lord Caradon.

Foot, a newspaper man, and member of a noted left-wing family, warned that the color issue seems to be establishing Nkrumah as "a crucial feature of British politics."

His book, Immigration and Race in British Politics, was written before the Labor government's new Commonwealth immigration curbs were announced Aug. 2. These put an 8,500-a-year ceiling on work permits for these immigrants, who come chiefly from the West Indies, India and Pakistan.

But Foot criticized an earlier Labor party reversal of its opposition to restrictions, first introduced in 1962 by a Conservative party administration.

How are you going to feed her?

Sometimes it takes drought conditions like those suffered in Eastern Ontario to make dairymen appreciate the value of forage feed produced in their fields. Every extra mouthful you produce helps keep outside purchases down.

To get more forage from your fields you need an Agrico Fall Fertilizer Program. It will pay off in extra yield, extra grazing days and extra feed value for the animal.

AGRICO FALL RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Topdress pasture and hayland to boost yields, extend grazing time and improve nutritive content.
2. Topdress alfalfa and other legumes this fall to build a vigorous stand that will resist winter stress and get off to a fast start in the Spring.
3. Use Agrico bulk delivery and bulk spreader services.
   SAVE TIME—spread 20–40 acres per hour.
   SAVE LABOUR — no bags to handle.
   SAVE MONEY — $6.00 per ton discount for bulk.

Agrico's new 6-ton spreaders are available for your use at a nominal cost.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

(Bill Bittle, wildlife department chief, Lands and Forests at Tweed personally "covered" the opening day of the duck hunting season. Here's the way Bill saw it:)

Fog, what hunters dreaded most of all, settled in over most of the marshes during the darkened hours of the morning. By 5 o'clock the stir of excitement was felt. Gear was placed in boats and some wanted to get started. It was still nearly 1½ hours before regulation time.

Soon the boats were to push off and then the confusion—as some paddled, others rowed, but the majority "potted" along using small outboard motors. The fog soon swallowed them all and confusion became almost a panic. Motors stopped and started; boats turned and voices shouted out—"where in he . . . is the channel?"—"did you see my blind?"—"pull up in the weeds anywhere you d fool, it'll soon be daylight,"

And while this was going on, other hunters were plodding through wooded areas to their favorite beaver ponds. They stumbled and cursed and hurried on.

By 6 o'clock most had found their blinds or a place to hide. A lull settled in, and at this moment a self-styled "Son of Curb" and a more often thought of "misnomopon" started up his version of another attempt to find his way. He was blessed in no uncertain terms. Finally all is quiet again and the wait is on.

Thousands of hunters are crouched down, stretching their eyeballs to see through the dim and greying sky; their ears straining to catch that old familiar sound and on everyone's lips is that silent prayer:

"Give me a gun and some old marsh
And the whistle of wild duck's wings,
Where the roar from my shotgun
Wakes the morn
And a thousand flying things."

And then the morning is shattered by a blast from a 12 gauge shotgun—it roars across the marsh and echoes off the wooded banks like war thunder. The hunt is on, if one can call it a hunt. Perhaps it's more like a test. Each man testing out his gun to see which can shoot the most and the farthest.

The sound of whistling wings. "Here they come, stay down!" Bang—bang—bang. Whoinhell shot!" "The guy in the blind behind us." "Your shot came right into our boat." "Your blind to blame, who said you could hunt there?" "Shut up and keep down." "Crazy fool."

"We judge the speed and proper lead
As only a hunter can,
There's honor, too, and a comradeship
Among the hunter clan."

The spontaneous roar across the marsh eventually gives way to an occasional burst. Shots are less and less, and then an outboard is started and yet another. The search is on. "Did you guys pick up my duck, I saw it fall over your way." "No, that was a mud hen you shot, you fathead—go look for yourself." "Hey, has anyone got a dog? I knocked one down in the marsh grass and can't find it." After the fog and smoke is cleared there isn't a duck left.

Back at the landing a "Warden" checks the hunters. "How did you make out?" For response a hand is held up indicating a circle for nothing. "How many shots did you fire?" A look at the shell box shows two shells—"twenty three." "Bad eyes?" "No, the ducks were too fast." "What did you shoot for?" "Huh, did you expect me to sit out there and not git my gun off—do you think I'm stupid or sumpen?"

The final count—769 hunters checked; total hours 2642; total ducks 720. That is you can see is less than one bird per hunter with a hunting effort of over 3½ hours for every duck bagged.

There was a scarcity of wood ducks in the south, but lots of teal (green and blues.) The remainder were mostly blacks and mallards. The beaver ponds in the northern parts yielded wood ducks, blacks, mallard and teal in that order of abundance. Ringnecks were foremost in the bag checks in the large inland marshes. A few bluebills, wigeons and pintails were taken. The little hooded merganser (not included in the bag limit) was fairly numerous.

Dodgers Can Clinch Pennant Today

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It would be fitting if Sandy Koufax clinched the National League pennant for Los Angeles Dodgers. But he may not get the opportunity.

Koufax, whose 25 victories have led Los Angeles' drive for the pennant, is in a position to nail it down for the Dodgers, who clinched at least a tie for their third flag in seven years Friday night, despite a 2-0 loss to Milwaukee Braves.

But due to television commitments the Dodger game will start one hour and 15 minutes after the second - Place San Francisco Giants take the field against Cincinnati Reds, who mauled them 17-2 Friday night.

If the Giants lose before Los Angeles finishes its game, the Dodgers would have the pennant clinched before Koufax had an opportunity to wrap it up.

As the race now stands, with the Dodgers leading by two games and only two remaining, either a San Francisco loss or a Los Angeles victory ends the struggle. The best the Giants can hope for is a tie by winning their games while the Dodgers lose twice, thus forcing a playoff.

FACES CLONINGER

Koufax will start against the Braves' 23-game winner, Tony Cloninger, in the finale, while Ron Herbel, 11-9, against Jim O'Toole, 3-9.

In other games Friday night, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Houston Astros defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets were rained out.

The Dodgers, who had won 13 games in a row, could have clinched Friday night by winning one more, but Milwaukee's Denny Lemaster, winning only his seventh game against 13 defeats, set them down on five hits.

Claude Osteen, now 15-15, matched Lemaster until the Braves broke through for an unearned sixth-inning run.

Felipe Alou led off with a walk and raced to third when catcher John Roseboro picked up Mack Jones' bunt and fired the ball past third base. Osteen walked Hank Aaron intentionally, then struck out Joe Torre and got Gene Oliver to rap a sharp grounder to third baseman Jim Gilliam.

ALOU SCORES

Gilliam threw high to Jim Ledebvre in a try for a force play at second base, and Alou scored when Ledebvre's toss to first base was too late for an out there.

Alou drove in the Braves' other run with an infield single in the seventh inning.

It was no contest at San Francisco after the first five batters had swung away at Bob Bolin. Pete Rose singled, one out later, Vada Pinson walked and Frank Robinson and Gordy Coleman then hit consecutive homers for a 4-0 lead and Sammy Ellis had more than enough working room as he posted his 22nd victory by shutting eight hits.

Before the game was over, Rose and Deron Johnson also had homered for the Reds while San Francisco manager Herman Franks called on eight pitchers in an attempt to stem Cincinnati's 21-hit assault.

The Pirates won it in the ninth against the Cubs on Jim Pagliaroni's two-run single with the bases loaded.

Doubles by Chuck Harrison, Rusty Staub and winning pitcher Robin Roberts helped the Astros to a three-run second inning against the Ca-

Canadians Fourth

Player, Pal Top Canada Cup Pack

MADRID (AP)—Gary Player and Harold Henning shot three-under-par 68s Friday to send South Africa into an eight-stroke lead after two rounds of the Canada Cup golf matches.

Player, the reigning U.S. Open champion, also led the field in the individual race with a total of 139.

Kel Nagle of Australia was one shot behind with 70-70—140 and Henning was third at 141 over the 7,066-yard, par-72 Club Campo course.

The Canadian team of 28-year-old George Knudson of Toronto and Wes Hornsveld, 39, a native of Yorkton, Sask., held fourth place at 280, two strokes behind second-place Spain and one behind Australia.

Knudson fired a 73 Friday to tie three others, including pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, for fourth position in the individual standings at 143.

Homemade shot 71 to jump into 18th place with a two-round 174.

The team and individual championship ends Sunday.

Player turned in some steady golf and sank a tricky five-foot putt on the 14th for a birdie four. He rarely strayed from the fairway, but complained at the end of the round about the whirring movie cameras around some greens.

Nicklaus said he drove the ball well but his long iron game was not sharp enough.

Two-man teams from 35 nations, Hawaii and Puerto Rico are competing in the 72-hole tournament.

Cats Tangle With Bombers

Riders, Stampeders Clash In Big One

By DOUG MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Football League's campaign may be be paying off at the box office but it's been murder on quarterbacks.

Signal callers Bill Redell of Edmonton Eskimos, Kenny Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Eagle Day of Calgary Stampeders are all hoping to shake off the effects of injuries and return to action in weekend games.

And Joe Zuger and Frank Cosentino will continue their battle for a first-string job with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In interlocking contests, Ottawa Rough Riders, will take what is considered the country's most dangerous offence into Calgary to meet the Stampeders Saturday and Tiger-Cats will take the country's most grudging defence into Winnipeg for a game against the Blue Bombers Sunday.

The Ottawa - Calgary clash—a meeting of conference leaders—will be televised nationally by the CBC at 11 p.m. EDT, Saturday. The Hamilton-Winnipeg contest will be televised nationally by CTV at 3:30 p.m., EDT, Sunday.

Riders Healthy

In the only other weekend game, an all-western conference affair, the revitalized Edmonton Eskimos visit the defending Grey Cup champion British Columbia Lions Saturday night.

Hamilton and Ottawa are engaged in a neck-and-neck run for the Eastern Football Conference lead.

All five teams in the WFC are scrambling just to make sure they reach one of the three playoff positions. Only six points separate last-place Edmonton from first-place Calgary.

Stampeder quarterback Day, out since Sept. 11 with stretched knee ligaments, has been declared ready to return to action.

Whether he will dress depends on coach Jerry Williams, who could decide to use Canadian Jerry Keeling at quarterback and dress an extra import somewhere else.

Ottawa has no problems on offence.

HAS THE LEADERS

It has EFC passing leader Russ Jackson, EFC scoring leader Moe Racine and the EFC rushing leaders Jim Dillard and Bo Scott.

Dillard will be facing his old teammates for the first time. Calgary traded the halfback when he threatened to play out his option because he was not carrying the ball enough.

Ploen, out almost four full games with a sprained wrist, will make his own decision if he is ready to play against Hamilton.

"If he decides to play, his head will be heavily taped," said head coach Bud Grant.

Ploen's return would free two-way man Dick Thornton to return to the defensive backfield.

Grant is also concerned about the Tiger-Cats, who he believes have the best defence in Canada and who have the statistics to prove it.

EXPECTS HOT CLUB

He believes the Texas will be at a fever pitch after being upset 9-3 by Edmonton last time out.

Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio will have to choose his starting quarterback between Zuger and Cosentino, neither of whom has been able to move the club consistently.

The lack of a leader at quarterback has been an occasional source of embarrassment to Tigcats, who traded off veteran Bernie Faloney over the winter.

Edmonton's Redell, out since Sept. 20 with a dislocated collar bone, will be ready for full-time duty against Lions Saturday.

ESKIMOS THREATEN

Eskimos — conceded the title "the best fifth-place club in WFC history" before the season opened — are threatening to push their way into a playoff position.

"But we've got to have a balanced attack," coach Neill Armstrong said Friday. "You can't just rush against B.C. We'll be throwing the ball."

Lions will be without two-way back Ron Morris and halfback Willie Fleming. Four others, Dick Fouts, Steve Cotter, Tom Brown and Greg Findley, are all bothered by injuries.

Packers Tangle With Bears

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four teams go into Sunday's 10 - game U.S. pro football lineup with clear victory states.

Defending - champion Buffalo Bills, only unbeaten squad in the American League with three winning records behind it, play host to Oakland Raiders with their best receiver, Elbert Dubenion, out for the season.

Unbeaten teams in the National League playing Sunday are San Francisco at Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions, all 2 - 0, Dallas Cowboys at Los Angeles and Louis Cardinals Monday night.

Added attractions Washington Redskins, 0-2, at least a change against the Lions at Detroit, Pittsburgh Pat Richter's recovery from a kidney injury and the return of Charley Taylor should help Washington.

Baltimore's trip to San Francisco could result in real trouble for the Colts, 1-1. The 49ers are No. 1 in the NFL on the ground scrace, with quarterback John Brodie the passing leader.

In other NFL games, defending champion Cleveland Browns, 1-1, meet the Eagles, 1-1, at Philadelphia; New York Giants, 1-1, play the Steelers, 0-2, at Pittsburgh, and Minnesota Vikings, 0-2, meet the Rams, 1-1, at Los Angeles.

In the American League, Houston, 21, meets San Diego Chargers, 0 - 0 at New York Jets, 0-3, meet Denver Broncos, 12, and Boston Patriots, 0-2, meet Kansas City Chiefs, 1-1.

Koufax Won't Toss Opener

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandy Koufax, Los Angeles' 25-game winner, says that if the Dodgers win the National League pennant he definitely will not pitch in the opener of the World Series against Minnesota Twins Wednesday.

"I didn't want to say anything about it before because we were not in a position to attach the pennant," the Dodgers' ace left-hander told The Associated Press Friday night. "But now I did I ever consider it. I will definitely not pitch."

The last previous word on the subject had been that Koufax, who is Jewish, would consult a rabbi to determine whether he could pitch Wednesday, which is Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the year for the Jews.

But Koufax dispelled that thought before Friday night's game against Milwaukee when he firmly stated that he would not pitch. Koufax is reported to have it written into his contract that he does not have to pitch on Jewish holidays.

Chisox Favored For Second Place

Tied With Birds

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Anyone for seconds?

Al Lopez, who already has more than enough to pass around the table, is standing in line for one.

Lopez' Chicago White Sox whipped Kansas City Athletics 6-1 Friday night, moving into a tie for second place in the American League with Baltimore Orioles, who split a doubleheader with Cleveland, losing 3-2 in the Indians after winning the opener 2-0.

Both Chicago and Baltimore have two games left, but the White Sox have the edge since they play last - place Kansas City while the Orioles meet the Indians, who still have a chance for fourth.

By finishing in the runner-up spot behind the champion Minnesota Twins, Lopez would extend his second - place finish streak to three straight seasons, one short of his personal record in the majors.

It would give him 10 second-place finishes in 15 seasons of major league managing, but it would be the first time he didn't end up behind New York Yankees.

TOOK FIVE SECONDS

Lopez, now 57, began his big league managerial career in 1951 with Cleveland. In six seasons with them, he placed second five times and first once.

Moving to the White Sox in 1957, the former catcher came up with two seconds before winning the pennant, then finished third, fourth and fifth before getting back to second for the last two years.

There were no other games in the American League, rain washing out Detroit at Washington.

The White Sox went into the eighth inning tied with the Athletics 1-1. Tommy John, who pitched a four-hitter, led off the eighth with a single. Chicago eventually loaded the bases and Pete Ward cashed the winning runs with a two-run single.

Baltimore won the opener of its doubleheader behind the two-hit pitching of Dave McNally. The Orioles scored in the fourth on a bases-loaded walk to Jerry Adair and in the eighth on Brooks Robinson's single.

The Indians came back in the nightcap as Vic Davalillo rapped three singles. Dick Howser singled across the first run and scored the third when catcher Dick Brown dropped a throw to the plate on Leon Wagner's single.

Napanee Shades BCI

By DAVID TEMPLER

In B.C.I.'s season-opener at the Fairgrounds on Friday, Napanee edged the seniors 14-20, while BCI's junior collegians won 32-6.

In the senior game Napanee started off very quickly as BCI fumbled on the kickoff and lost the ball on their own five yard line. Napanee's strong, fast fullback, Don Arnott, rifled off-tackle for first blood. The conversion was missed.

With three minutes left in the first period, Jim McCreary advanced the Collegians 40 yards on some quickie play which gave BCI a first down on the 29-yard line. Terry Weisely marched them to left end to the one-yard line. Kirk Lightfoot dove for the tying major. The try after was unsuccessful.

With a minute remaining a penalty against BCI gave Napanee the ball on the 31-yard line. Driving mass by Dave Forbes and Eric Poulsen positioned Garry Weese to score from the ten. The convert was missed.

In the second quarter McCreary ran back Napanee's kick-off 30 yards to the 45. Lightfoot went off-tackle for first on the 29. Walsh then romped over the goal line but the score was nullified by penalties to both teams.

A third down John Chalmers punted into the end zone where a Napanee player fumbled and Ron Walsh recovered for a TD. Convert was missed.

Near the end of the first half Collegian quarterback Bill Hallam hit Wellesley with one of the few passes of the day on the 21. Walsh scored with a left-end sweep. The convert was missed.

In the second half BCI reached the Napanee one-yard line but could not score. Forbes for Napanee climaxed a pow-er series of drives by scoring with an end sweep from the twenty. The convert was missed.

Wellesley booted two singles for BCI in the last five minutes of the game but with 40 seconds left Forbes hit Chris Miller in the end zone from 35 yards out for the winning major.

JUNIOR

Napanee's Mike Peacock scored first from the 45-yard line on an end run. BCI came back fast. First on a punt, then on a kickoff the Collegians recovered Napanee fumbles in the end zone. The BCI scorers were Ted Shaw and Greg Burnitt.

Near the end of the half Ling booted a rouge.

A key block by Brian Babcock sprung Sam Bolder on the right end for a 45-yard touchdown gallop.

On the kickoff BCI scored a rouge.

But the last Napanee TD was revived. Ed Hooper went 60 yards to the ten yard line on a pass from Campbell for the major.

A long gain-by Hooper helped quarterback Peacock add another touchdown; but the three conversion touchdowns were not enough.

A great effort by Hooper of Napanee and good showings by Hiuser and Baker for BCI were highlights of the game.

Pitching — Denny Lemaster, 20-7, Braves, held Los Angeles to five hits in a 2-0 victory that ended the Dodgers' winning streak at 13. The Dodgers, however, clinched a tie for the National League pennant when San Francisco lost to Cincinnati.

Batting — Frank Robinson, Reds, belted his 32nd homer, a three-run, first-inning shot that triggered Cincinnati to a 17-2 victory over San Francisco Giants.

No mountains of pigskin upholstered their shoulders. They wore short shin-pads topped with a knee protector. Their elbows were "bare." Today's standard equipment of a half-milsi of tape per person had not been invented.

Their gloves were designed more for keeping their hands warm than fun-protective purposes. The goalie in full gear resembled the wicket-keeper of a cricket team.

Ice conditions in those days depended on the whims and vagaries of the weather man. They played some heat and high water. Artificial ice was not yet in cube form.

No three-minute stints sissies were these fellows.

"We played" said Hank Penn, the team's goalkeeper "until we were winded or the underwear became too heavy with sweat.

Three sets of long johns were standard equipment.

"We changed between each period. The dressing room looked like washday at a lumber camp".

The GWVA team won the senior city league championship in 1921 defeating Point Anne 10-0 in overtime in "six inches of water".

Dr. J. M. Wilson was the president; Everett Liddle, secretary; L. G. Madden, manager; Leo Barrett, referee and A. Turney the club's mascot. Jim Barry, a bdxer of the era, was the trainer.

They played their games at the now defunct Turnbull Street arena owned by the late Richard Arnott.

On one occasion, this writer was informed, the rink balcony crashed spewing spectators over the ice surface.

It was also reported, true or false, that rapid hometown fans used to poke broom-handles through knotholes in the boards to trip opposing players.

The teams in the senior league of that day were besides the champion GWVA squad, Point Anne, Ontario Hydro, Belleville Hardware and the Bankers.

"Them were the days".

The Roaring Twenties

'Them Were The Days That Was'

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

They traded their khaki tunics for turtle-neck sweaters. They swapped their British .303 Lee Enfields for hockey sticks.

They stepped, so to speak, from the mud of Passchendaele, the cobblestones of Ypres and the chalk of the Somme to the comparative purity of a hockey arena.

That was back in 1921, the opening year of the Roaring Twenties when they danced the Charleston, sang "Yes, We Have No Bananas." bought suits for $19.50 tailor made, and steak at two pounds for two-bits.

They joined the ill-fated Great War Veterans Association and wore that body's insignia on their sweaters.

Wrestling Season Ends

Referee Was The Loser

It ended in a wild melee, a draw or no contest—call it what you will.

The blonde bombshells, the Garvin boys, tangled with a pair of Hangmen (one unmasked) in the main bout of the wrestling card last night and the only one licked was the referee.

The platinum plasterers shellacked the Hangmen in the first fall, got the worst of it in the second, then suddenly turned on the official in the third.

Once, twice, thrice they socked him in the puss as he waved the timekeeper to stop the brawl.

The hangmen went to the ring too and the result was a flailing melange of arms, legs and the official.

It was an action-filled main bout that brought down the curtain on wrestling for the season.

They mixed the "giants" with the "pygmies" in the other tag-team match with the Mad Mongrel teaming with midget Frenchy Lamonte in tall and short battle with Roger Littlebrook and Mike Durman.

The little guys didn't tangle with the big one but they put on a show that almost stole the night's thunder.

The "Mongrel" pinned Durman in the first fall but Littlebrook bested his pint-size mate in the second and third to win the bout.

Look For Second Win

Argos Tangle With Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — If coaches Jim Trimble and Bob Shaw have their way, there won't be many comebacks passes in Sunday's Eastern Football Conference game between Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts.

Coach Trimble of the Als said Friday that Argos freshman quarterback Peter Liske can look forward to a big rush from Alouettes' defensive ends John Baker and Joe Williams.

"Baker and Williams gave Joe Kapp a hard time in Vancouver and they'll do the same to Liske here Sunday," Trimble said, referring to the Als' 11-6 upset of the Grey Cup champion Lions in Vancouver Sept. 18.

"Argos and Liske got a good job of blocking from fullback Dave Thelen when they beat Winnipeg last Sunday and we don't intend to stand back and let him throw like that against us."

Argo coach Bob Shaw said quarterback Bernie Faloney and flanker Terry Evanshen of the Als will come in for special attention. Jim Rountree will be assigned to cover Evanshen.

"We'll try everything we can to contain Faloney, but he's an old pro," Shaw said. "About the only thing we can hope for is that Faloney will have a day when he isn't doing everything right."

Shaw considers the Montreal game "as close to being a key game as you can get."

A win would put the Argos back in contention for a playoff spot. Montreal holds down third three wins in nine outings.

Soviet Union and China Facing Difficulties in Border Disputes

PARIS (Reuters) — Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publisher, said Thursday he does not believe border disputes between China and the Soviet Union will be settled without great difficulties, perhaps even to the extent of armed conflict.

In a speech to the American Club of Paris, Lord Thomson recalled that he has had interviews with Soviet Communist leaders, and said:

"My observation is that top Communist officials in the Soviet Union are greatly concerned with the Chinese situation. They have a long border with China, much of it in dispute.

"I do not believe these border disputes will be settled without great difficulties, perhaps even to the extent of armed conflict."

Lord Thomson said he also is firmly of the opinion that almost no development short of an actual attack on the Soviet Union could cause them to go to war with the West.

"Most of the hostility which is expressed towards us from the Soviet Union from time to time is, I am sure, designed to support their position of leadership in the Communist world."

It would be a great disaster for the world if the Soviets lost their Communist leadership to the Chinese.

Lord Thomson said that Communists are accommodating themselves to various capitalist practices, such as the profit motive, higher wages and other incentives for more or better work — more management authority in individual factories, rather than dictation by central planning bodies.

"This certainly contradicts the principles of communism," he said.

He believed the time has come when the West should take a long look at its policy toward Communist nations.

"They are bending their principles. It is obvious they are prepared to compromise. They no longer have the same feeling of hostility towards us. Surely it is our responsibility to meet them halfway."

Distributor Heart of Car's Ignition System

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The combined effects of mechanical and electrical wear on distributor parts gradually disturb ignition operation and bring on sub-par engine performance. That's why occasional tune-ups are needed. Things gradually move from bad to worse if this service is bypassed; and you begin paying more in gas and oil.

The distributor is the very heart of the car's ignition system. It's not exactly delicate, but it certainly can't shrug off continued neglect. With a little regular help, it will give you long and dependable service.

Breaker point troubles and poor spark timing are the most common distributor ailments, but a lack of maintenance can add many more bothersome conditions to the list. Among these are corroded cable sockets, a defective condenser, cracked distributor caps, a damaged contact arm, burned, corroded or cracked rotors, worn vacuum advance, broken pigtail wires, and lubrication loss.

From G. O.: "Over the years, I have found that rear end squeaks which mystify many car owners are nothing more than rear springs crying for lubrication."

...or loose spring shackles.

T. N. writes: "My tires still squeal on turns. I checked the air pressure as you said and keep it exactly at recommended 26 lbs. but this isn't the answer. You could be taking the turns too fast.

* * *

R. Z. asks: "We have a 1965 sedan which I may turn in for a '66, depending on the trade-in allowance I can get. How much do they usually figure for depreciation?"

The first year bite is the biggest — usually about 30 percent of the original purchase price.

P. L. writes: "When either of my car's front wheels hits a bump or rut, the steering wheel kicks back. Steering, springs, shock absorbers, tires — just about everything has been checked out."

The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like Robert Martin, a 55-year-old skilled tradesman who earns $100 a week ($5,200 a year).

If Robert works full time until age 65 he can look forward to a monthly retirement income of $104.17 from the Canada Pension Plan and $75 from Old Age Security—a total of $179.17 a month. When his wife, who is two years younger than Robert, receives her Old Age Security pension, the Martins' monthly income will rise to $254.17.

If Robert becomes disabled at age 60, having contributed for five years, he will get a disability pension of $103.13 a month until he reaches 65 when his retirement and Old Age Security pensions begin.

If Robert dies after contributing for three years, his wife will receive a widow's pension of $64.06 a month until age 65. From then on her widow's pension will become $62.50 and she will also receive the $75 Old Age Security pension—a total of $137.50 a month. At the time of Robert's death, Mrs. Martin will also be paid a lump sum of $500.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Robert, are employed and have earnings of $5,200 spread evenly over the year, you will, commencing in January, pay at the rate of $1.59 a week until your contributions for the year amount to $79.20. Your employer will pay the same amount.

This advertisement is one of a series which relates some of the important benefits of the Canada Pension Plan to individual circumstances.

Pope Arrives To Plead For Peace

Fear Rhodesian Showdown Due At London Meet

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Britain and Rhodesia have been edging toward a showdown over the self-governing colony's racial policies for the last 10 years or more.

Rhodesia has been shifting to the right politically with almost every change of government or premier since the Second World War.

Racial pressures have caused the swing and the Newfoundland - size, white - ruled territory has managed to halt, at least temporarily, the southward march of African nationalism at the Zambesi. The population totals 219,000 "Europeans" and 4,020,000 Africans.

There were key aspects of the situation as Prime Minister Wilson and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley prepared for the visit of Premier Ian Smith, the 4-year-old Rhodesian leader who arrived in London today.

Smith has been threatening a unilateral declaration of independence — his now - famed "UDI"—for the stated reasons that independence is needed for stable government and to attract investment.

BRITS CRITICS AT HOME

Some reports indicate Smith's line has not been tough enough, however, to suit some of the right - wingers of his party, the Rhodesian Front. Already in London today was the man said to be slated as Smith's successor should the party take yet another lurch to the right.

This was Internal Affairs Minister William Harper, 49, who was born in Calcutta where his family had lived for generations. As it happens, both Smith and Harper were Second World War fighter pilots. Harper is reported to be even more "determined than Smith that the so-called native problem is a possible compromise with Britain, and his promise not to be pushed around by anyone "be he British or Rhodesian."

Mother, Daughter Slain

TORONTO (CP)—A mother and her five-year-old daughter are dead and an eight-year-old boy is in critical condition in hospital here after police found them in their blood-spattered east - end home today.

Mrs. Hilda Richart died shortly after she was taken to East General Hospital. Her daughter, Heidi, was dead on arrival at hospital.

Helmut Richart, the dead woman's husband, was also taken to hospital but his injuries are not serious police said.

Det. Sgt. Norman Hobson of the homicide squad said a knife and a chisel, both stained with blood, were found in the house.

A neighbor, Mrs. Pearl Hayward, said she heard one of the Richart children screaming for an hour between 6.45 and 7.45 a.m. today. Coroner Ken Baxter was called to the scene.

Mr. Richart is a factory worker. The family has lived in the 1½ storey brick home for two years and sold the home about a week ago, real estate agent Al Tiley said.

She is Alba Griman, 39, who has been head of the United Nations department of the Cuban foreign ministry and three times a delegate to the UN general assemblies.

Sukarno Said Well And Safe

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno says he is still "firmly in charge" of Indonesia, but there are fears that rebel troops from central Java will attack the capital.

"The leadership of the army at the moment is directly under me," Sukarno said in a broadcast Sunday. He added that he was safe and well.

The broadcast was his first public statement since a "revolutionary council" led by an officer in Sukarno's palace guard attempted to seize power Thursday.

In a later broadcast message the 64 - year - old Sukarno appealed for unity of the armed forces so that "the air force and army will not clash with each other."

He also said earlier suggestions that the air force was involved in the coup attempt were not true.

Army units loyal to Sukarno cleared the rebels out of Jakarta Friday, but a commander in central Java who came out for the rebels, Col. Suherman, was reported refusing to obey orders from Jakarta. There were fears that his troops would march on the capital.

Units of the loyal Siliwangi Division guarded all roads into the city and their tanks and armored cars were poised at vital installations, including the civilian airport.

Anti - aircraft guns were placed in the square opposite the presidential palace.

The Jakarta military command issued an order calling on all who were given arms by the rebels to turn these in within three days or face death.

Three Migrant Fruit Workers Drown in Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Three migrant fruit workers were drowned and three others were injured late Saturday when their car plunged 125 feet into the gorge of the lower Niagara River about 10 miles north of here.

Dead are Douglas Smeer, 19, of Durham Centre, N.B., a 20-year - old girl from Quebec whose name has not been revealed and Henrietta Beaudreau, 18, of Queenston.

Thousands Gather At Airport To Welcome Pontiff To U.S. For United Nations Speech

SIGN OF THINGS TO COME — Young Americans of Polish ancestry carry banner welcoming the visit of Pope Paul VI as they parade past the New York Public Library on Fifth Avenue during the annual Pulaski Day parade. More than 100,000 took part in the march. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (CP) — Vast throngs lined the streets as Pope Paul, bringing a plea for world peace, travelled the 24 miles from John F. Kennedy airport into the heart of New York City today.

"God bless this land of yours," said the thin, earnest pope as he landed after the first papal flight to the new world.

Besides an urgent appeal before the United Nations, he also will meet U.S. President Johnson.

It marked an innovation for the Roman Catholic church, injecting its influence into the strained arena of secular societies.

At the airport, and across the populous reaches of the city, vast throngs packed the streets to shout and wave their salutations.

From the "spiritual city of peace," the Pope said he brought his petition of conciliation to the "terrestrial city of peace" sought by the United Nations.

Waves of applause and excited calls broke out as United Nations Secretary-General U Thant escorted the Pope along a red carpet to a low, scarlet-carpeted platform for his remarks.

SUPPORT UN

He came, The Pope said, to give his support to "its supremacy and its development" in preserving peace.

Crowds pressed around him, stretching out their hands, even as he departed the tightly restricted airport for his motorcade trip into the heart of the metropolis.

He started in an open car, but after about 10 minutes, the procession halted, and he shifted to a limousine with a clear plastic top, apparently because of the chill weather.

The sun was bright, warm and the temperature was in the 40s under a bright sun.

The stirring, cross-town motorcade came after formal airport greetings from top officials of the United Nations, the U.S. government and the church.

It was the end of a 4,200-mile non-stop flight for the Pope, but he appeared rested and fresh.

Fierce Fighting Breaks Out

SAIGON (AP)—Fierce fighting broke out today between a South Vietnamese army battalion and a strong Viet Cong force in Binh Dinh province, 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman said the battle was still raging late today. Government losses were described as heavy.

South of the Da Nang air base an estimated 150 to 200 Viet Cong ambushed a U.S. marine patrol of 13 men and killed or wounded 10 of them Sunday. Reinforcements sent to aid them also suffered some casualties, a marine spokesman said.

Three companies of marines, backed by mobile artillery, swept the rice paddies and sugar cane fields five miles south of Da Nang but could not find the enemy force. At least 11 Viet Cong were reported killed.

Meanwhile, another major battle appeared to be developing in South Viet Nam's southernmost province of An Xuyen, 220 miles southwest of Saigon.

Several government battalions caught up with a Viet Cong battalion but there were no reports of casualties on either side. Full-strength Viet Cong battalions run from 500 to 600 men and regular South Vietnamese Army battalions from 300 to 450 men at full strength.

Pope Brings New Dimension To Vatican Diplomacy by Visit, Opens Ways for New Travels

By EUGENE LEVIN

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul's trip today to the United Nations in New York brings a new dimension to Vatican diplomacy and opens the way for further papal travels, even to the Communist East.

By stepping on American soil —the first pontiff to do so—he will be making a visit to one of the great protagonists of the East-West struggle in today's world. His next trip might be to the other side, to Communist Poland.

Such a trip has long been rumored. Some Vatican aides have been dismayed at the thought of his going to a Communist-ruled nation, but a trip to New York will supply the element of balance in advance.

Just as his Holy Land and India pilgrimages brought a flood of invitations from around the world, his New York journey is bound to spur a fresh flurry of requests for visits.

Vatican aides have mixed feelings about this prospect. They realize that Pope Paul cannot accept every invitation, so some Catholics are bound to be disappointed.

Pope Paul, 68, relishes travel. Before his election to the papacy in 1963, he had made two visits to North America—on one of them he visited Canadian cities—and an extensive tour of Africa.

He had the mood and outlook to break the papacy out of its Vatican confinement — and he did. His pilgrimage to the Holy Land in January, 1964, was the first papal trip outside Italy in a century and a half. His trip to Bombay last December took him 3,504 miles from Rome on history's longest papal journey.

The trip to New York will be even longer, 4,066 miles.

Pope Paul has spoken repeatedly of internationalizing the largely Italian central administration of the church at the Vatican. His own travels have become a demonstration of his role as spiritual leader of 550,000,000 Roman Catholics, not just the 50,000,000 in his native Italy.

Both the trip to the Holy Land and to India were basically religious.

The trip to the United States is different. It is, in the words of John Cardinal Heenan of England, "a mission to the secular world." Political overtones make the religious aspects secondary. Primarily the trip represents a public act by Pope Paul to underline his expressed readiness to mediate when war threatens the world.

Cite Prayer By Francis Of Assisi

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope Paul's peace pilgrimage today fell on the church's first day of the "man of peace," St. Francis of Assisi.

Thousands of copies of the famous prayer attributed to that gentle 12th - century Christian were being distributed in the metropolitan area by Franciscans, in connection with the Pope's visit.

It goes:

Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace.

Where there is hatred . . . let me sow love.

Where there is injury . . . pardon.

Where there is doubt . . . faith,

Where there is despair . . . hope,

Where there is darkness . . . light,

Where there is sadness . . . joy.

O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled . . . as to console,

To be understood—as to understand,

To be loved . . . as to love.

For it is in giving . . . that we receive,

It is in pardoning . . . that we are pardoned,

It is in dying . . . that we are born to eternal life.

Castro Reads Letter From Che Guevara Leaving Cuba to Fight in 'Other Lands'

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro says Ernesto (Che) Guevara, one of the key leaders of his revolution, finished his work in Cuba six months ago and moved on to revolutionary activity elsewhere.

Castro talked about his former close associate in a speech to a rally Sunday night. He did not say where Guevara, a native of Argentina, had gone or where he now is.

Guevara's Cuban wife was in the audience, dressed in black. The crowd gave her an ovation when she entered, and she appeared near tears.

Guevara had been minister of industries and in the first years of the revolution dominated the economy. He disappeared last spring, and since then there have been numerous conflicting rumors about his whereabouts and fate.

Castro read a letter which he said Guevara gave him April 1. It said "other lands of the world" needed his services.

"I have fulfilled the part of my duty that bound me to the revolution in your territory," the letter said.

"I formally resign from my post as major (the highest rank in the Cuban army), as minister (of industries), and my status as a Cuban (he was proclaimed a native Cuban citizen in 1959).

"My only mistake of any seriousness," the letter continued, "was not to have confided more in you since the first moments of the Sierra Maestra (where Castro's revolution started), and not having sufficiently understood your qualities as director and as revolutionary."

In the new battlefields I shall carry on . . . the obligation to fight against imperialism wherever it may be," the letter said.

The letter expressed fond regards to Castro and other friends. It also expressed confidence the Cuban people would take good care of Guevara's wife and children.

Castro said he was "confident this explains everything" about Guevara.

Patient Care Outlined At CARS Board Meet

The first fall meeting of the board of directors of the Belleville branch of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at city hall on Wednesday evening.

The president, Mr. Geo. Brown was in the chair. Mr. Brown brought to the attention of the members added publicity on television and radio and in the newspapers, during the month of September, this being Arthritis month across Canada.

Miss Gladys H. MacDonald, secretary-treasurer, gave the financial statement, and a very detailed and informative report on the correspondence and the business carried on during the summer recess.

Mrs. Kathryn Brown, staff physiotherapist with the local branch, gave her report for the past three months, as follows: 109 treatments were given in June, 42 treatments were given during two weeks in July, the treatment centre was closed for two weeks for vacation period; July and 69 treatments were given in August.

Mrs. Brown expressed her appreciation to the volunteers help from the CARS Auxiliary and St. John Ambulance. The past months have been very busy ones and the treatment centre has had a very heavy case load.

The consultation clinic, July 13, with Dr. Hugh Smyth, rheumatologist with the Ontario Division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was in charge, last night's speaker. These clinics still have a waiting list.

The next consultation clinic will be held within a month.

Miss Hilda Collier gave the report from the society's Auxiliary of CARS and told of the entertainment that had taken place for the patients during the summer. She said two walkers had been purchased for the local centre and one of these is already in use.

Mr. A. K. Chatland, representative for the local branch of the society on the Belleville United Appeal, gave his report. Publicity for the society was discussed for the coming campaign.

Mrs. Jessie David, chairman of public relations, said that unfortunately arthritis does not get the attention it deserves, because it is not fatal enough. It does not kill, it merely disables; it leaches away life savings and leaves its victims from earning a living. She recalled on a recent visit to the treatment centre, she talked with the husband of a patient who said his wife had been receiving treatment at the centre since May. At first she had to be born had to help him carry her from the house to the car. Now, with very little assistance, she is able to walk. He was most enthusiastic about her progress and very grateful for the service the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Arthritis-Society is providing. He was high in his praise for the physiotherapist, Mrs. Kathryn Brown and her capable, patient staff.

Mr. George Brown, president, paid a very tribute of the board pay a visit to the treatment centre at the hospital, and that they would, at first hand, the good work being done for the arthritics in the vicinity.

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is a participating agency in the Belleville United Appeal.

Mrs. Lee Grills received the guests, assisted by other members of the Ladies' Progressive Conservative Association.

The P. C. candidate, Lee Grills, was introduced and, until late most candidates five weeks before an election, did not give political speeches, Mr. Grills added his personal welcome to those present, particularly to those attending from out of town.

The candidates said he had been, late in arriving since he had been in Toronto at attend the big Tory rally at Varsity Stadium. He told the audience that the hall was packed and was packed to the rafters."

who represents the moderate wing of the Rhodesian front. Wrathal is reported to have learned that finance and business circles in London are much less sympathetic than are the idea of a UDI than he had believed.

SEES TREASON

This was hardly surprising since Prime Minister Wilson has said UDI would be regarded as treason against the Queen and would be met by economic sanctions.

British newspapers note, however, that Rhodesia already has a famous precedent in the American declaration of independence.

"All secessions since then have received the blessing, even if reluctant, of the Imperial Parliament," says The Sunday Telegraph.

Actually Rhodesia, founded by empire - builder Cecil Rhodes 75 years ago, has been able to do as it pleases in internal affairs for more than 40 years and, in fact, has an air force and army of its own.

The present Rhodesian constitution, which came into force in 1962, does not rule out eventual African rule but Smith says it should not come in his life time.

OPPOSE BREAK

African nationalist leaders, some in jail and some under restriction since their parties were outlawed, are dead set against breaking of the British tie without guarantees for majority rule.

Smith and his ministers, on the other hand, apparently feel that with the Independence Bag firmly they will be able to consolidate their hold on power in conjunction with the Portuguese, Portuguese Mozambique and Angola and South Africa.

At present some 270,000 Africans work in agriculture and allied industries at a rate of £67 (£301) a year while whites working in the same industries earn £1,283 (£5,800). Nearly 40,000 Africans work as domestic servants at an annual wage of £110 ($330).

77 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 77 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, with 30 of the deaths occurring in Ontario, twice as many as in any other province.

Additionally, there were 61 traffic fatalities, eight drownings, three fire deaths, two shooting deaths, a fall, a youth crushed by a tree and a woman crushed by two tractors.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, shows Ontario's toll as 24 traffic, two drownings, the three fire deaths and the youth killed by the tree.

Quebec reported 15 deaths, including nine in traffic, five drownings and a fatal fall from a tree.

Alberta had 10 road deaths. British Columbia had six traffic fatalities and a drowning.

In Manitoba three persons died in traffic mishaps in addition to the woman crushed by two tractors.

Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia each had three traffic fatalities. Newfoundland had two and Prince Edward Island one.

In New Brunswick, two persons were accidentally shot—a man on a duck - hunting trip and a girl who was target shooting in a group.

Thousands

per in his hands, while spectators stood behind, intent on his words. Leaving the airport, police motorcycles and a cruiser led the way.

Thousands of spectators, most of whom had been on hand for several hours, watched his Alitalia plane land and taxi close to a small raised platform where the welcoming ceremony took place.

Huge choirs of Roman Catholic school children were among the crowds lining the 24-mile motorcade route from the airport to St. Patrick's cathedral in midtown Manhattan, where the Pope was scheduled to lead noon-day prayers. The city's 700,000 Catholic school children have been given a holiday.

Police barricades were in place at numerous intersections along the motorcade route and all traffic to and from Kennedy airport, on the city's southern edge, before the Pope's arrival and during the procession.

The pope sent this message, in French and English, to Governor-General Vanier:

"To your excellency and to all Canadians, we express our warmest salutations and good wishes from the airliner passing through the air space of Canada on our journey of international peace to the United Nations, and we call down upon Canada and its people abundant divine favors and graces."

It was the longest trip ever made by a pope, but not by much. The Vatican press office said his trip to Bombay last December covered a 3,954-mile route, and his trip to New York 4,066 miles.

Police Commissioner Vincent Broderick has assigned 18,000 of his 26,000 men to duty during the entire 14 hours of the papal visit.

This is the largest commitment of police to a single job in New York's history, Broderick said. Some 10,000 men were posted along the roads to be taken by the pope, the 8,000 at the places where he will stop.

Accepting the invitation, the spiritual leader of the world's 550,000,000 Roman Catholics said it was an opportunity to make a possible contribution to world peace that he could not forego.

At the Vatican Sunday, he posed a cheering crowd of 20,000 to pray for the success of his mission. Then he withdrew from public view to prepare for his midnight departure from Rome.

The Pope was to meet Johnson in the Waldorf Astoria hotel suite of Arthur Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, early this afternoon before going to the United Nations. It would be the first time a U.S. president had ever met a pope outside the Vatican.

In addition to his speech to the assembly, to be given in French, the Pope was to have separate, private meetings with Thant and with Aminture Fan fani, Italian president of the assembly, and to say a few words to the staff of the UN secretariat.

He was to spend three hours at the United Nations, followed by a brief meeting with Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders at Holy Family Roman Catholic church, near the UN building.

Then he would eat and rest at Francis Cardinal Spellman's residence before going to Yankee Stadium. A pontifical mass at 8:30 tonight at the famous baseball park will be followed by a visit to the Vatican pavilion at the New York world's fair, the final public event in which the Pope participates before his departure for Rome at 11 p.m.

Covered Wagon Calls Here On Calgary-Halifax Trip

"Wow, they look just like the guys on Wagon Train," commented youngsters as they looked over a horse-drawn covered wagon driven by Cecil Rivers of Calgary, Alberta, and Bill Stiff of Fort William, Ont.

An ex-member of the Calgary police force, Cecil Rivers left Calgary on the 5th of April, 1965 with his two horses Spike and Bonnie, and his dog White.

Travelling six days a week (the horses rest on Sunday), at an average speed of 25 miles a day, Rivers reached Fort William on July 18th; there he was joined by Bill Stiff, an ex-transport driver. A group of Fort William businessmen donated a horse to them.

During the 2,424 miles covered in reaching Belleville, Rivers has been very busy. He is writing three books, one on the trip itself, one on the historical background of the areas they are travelling through and one on the psychological reaction they are receiving from people encountered. On top of all this he is shooting thousands of feet of 16 mm color film of the trip, with the idea in mind of making it into a two-hour documentary film on Canada.

Leaving Belleville this morning via No. 2 Highway, Rivers and Stiff have 1,100 miles to go before reaching Halifax. They plan to arrive the first week in December.

Retarded Children's Body Co-operates With Appeal

A mix-up in dates posed a sudden problem last weekend for United Appeal officials and the executive of the Belleville and District Retarded Children. Just as the annual United Fund drive was set to get underway, the Retarded Children's Association tag day was also beginning. The matter was quickly solved when, at the request of Mayor J. R. Ellis, the Retarded Children's Association withdrew its volunteer canvassers from the various shopping areas.

"Sacrifice and co-operation are the only words to describe the wonderful response from the Association," said Mayor Ellis. "Without a moment's hesitation, the Association officials went out to the various locations and brought their canvassers in. This was a considerable sacrifice," he said.

FINE CO-OPERATION

"While this organization is not a member of the United Appeal, this unfortunate incident indicates the degree of cooperation that does exist within our community organizations," said Mayor Ellis.

John D. O'Flynn, Jr., United Appeal campaign chairman, said, "We are most grateful to the Retarded Children's Association for this spirit of cooperation. We fully realize the many hours of planning and preparation that are necessary to begin any campaign, and we trust it was not all in vain.

"We trust that in the future we may, perhaps, be working together with the Retarded Childrens' Association as members of the United Appeal.

NEED FUNDS

Asked about the need to raise money, Retarded Children's Association President, Mrs. T. Stovell said that "while the Department of Education – since January of this year – now provides teachers and supplies for our school, we must supply the building and keep it in good repair. The necessary money for such maintenance comes from local Association funds. Our school is only for the trainable retarded from 5 to 18 years and there is much to be done in other age groups. For example for pre - schoolers, the adult retarded for our graduates. There is a need too, for a community workshop, and all this takes money".

The Association's school is located at 281 John Street in Belleville a former Catholic high school. Its 31 students are housed in four classrooms. Principal of the school is Carson Stratton, a former staff member at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville.

"In all liklihood, a second tag day will be held by the Retarded Children's Association this fall", said Mayor Ellis, "on a date convenient to the Association".

VON Nursing Services

Seventh of a series of articles on the 24 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal Campaign.

If you need nursing care and prefer the comforts of your own home surroundings, the Victorian Order of Nurses provide a part-time nursing service on a visit basis.

The VON gives nursing care and health instruction in the home on a visit basis.

"The fee is set according to the is on a sliding scale," says Miss Dorothy Connor, Nurse-in-Charge of the Belleville VON. "The fee ist according to the circumstances of the family. If the family can not pay anything, they get the visits just the same.

"The money we do get for our calls does not come close to covering the cost. We are helped out some by our school nursing service in Thurlow Township, which we also paid for, but it still does not cover the overall cost of our operations, here."

FOUR NURSES

There are three full-time VON nurses and one relief nurse on staff, giving 24 hour service. Calls after 5 p.m. are for emergency cases only.)

The VON is a visiting nursing service, established in 1897. There are now over 100 branches in all the large urban areas and many smaller centres from coast to coast.

Working with the family physician, the VON provides nursing care in the home. The VON visits two or three times daily, depending on the needs of the patient and on doctor's instructions.

The nurses are all graduate registered nurses, the majority of whom have additional preparation in public health nursing.

The Belleville Branch covers the city, a three - mile radius around the city limits in Sidney Township and Prince Edward County and all Thurlow Township.

The service is available to everyone, under the direction of the family physician, regardless of age, race, religion or financial circumstances. It involves over 700 visits annually.

REHABILITATE PATIENTS

"We try very hard to rehabilitate patients," Miss Connor said. "Very often when people who have had strokes or fractures get home from hospital, they tend to get lazy and do not want to exercise. We try to encourage them so they will want to do their exercises and rehabilitate themselves."

Late one afternoon, the VON office received a telephone call asking if some help could be given immediately for a local resident whose doctor could not be located. The case involved a lone widow with a completely helpless child.

Within an hour, a VON nurse arrived at the home and discovered that the mother had been ill early in the day and could not help either the child or herself.

The nurse was able to ease the mother's condition and make her comfortable as well as do something for the little daughter. Through a neighbor's assistance, arrangements were then made for night care. When the nurse returned the next morning the doctor had been located, had prescribed medication and left instructions for her. Due to the circumstances of this particular case, free nursing care was given.

VON services are given in many areas: maternity - prenatal instructions, baby bath demonstration and care after return from hospital, attendance at home confinements; medical and surgical care — treatment as ordered by the physician; convalescents — nursing care for patients home from the hospital after an operation and accident or acute illness; and service to the chronically ill and aged — supervision and nursing care for patient's comfort and encouragement to a more active life.

HELPS FAMILY

They encourage and teach a patient to be as independent and self sufficient as his disabilities allow and help him regain his confidence as a member of the family. The VON also helps the family gain a better insight into the problems of the patient, thus relieving much of their anxiety and helping them create a more relaxed home atmosphere.

In 1964, the VON, Belleville Branch, had 506 cases, 40 per cent of them medical and surgical cases, 40 per cent chronic illness and newborn and 28 per cent other health instruction.

The cases, during 7,000 visits, were largely involving elderly people—about 70 per cent. The VON received full pay for its services, only 19 per cent of the time and part pay 24 per cent.

"Often elderly patients who have had fractures are frightened to walk on a leg that was injured," Miss Connors said. "We try to encourage them to encouragement they need to overcome this fright."

GAVE ASSISTANCE

In another typical VON case, a man who had suffered a stroke and been in hospital for two months came home and was just able to get out of bed with help. A neighbor girl used to help him get around.

The family phoned the VON for a cane for the man and the VON nurse went to see him. His limbs had been stiffening up from lack of use, and he could barely move.

With the consent of the family doctor, the VON nurse began a series of exercises. Now the man has a good grip, he walks with a cane and ties his own shoes—something that may seem mundane to most people, but to someone who a few months ago could barely move, a great achievement.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is working for the community, providing nursing service for anyone who needs it. It depends upon the United Appeal for financial help, just as the United Appeal depends upon you for its success.

A "Torrid" Pace

The word "torrid," like the word "sophisticated," is one that is grossly overworked. The dictionary defines torrid in several ways; it can mean "dried by or subjected to intense heat, especially in the sun." It can be something that is scorched, parched or arid, and it can be someone who is "highly passionate, ardent, zealous, etc."

It is fashionable to speak of golfers setting a "torrid pace." And likewise, politicians. Thus, to the extent that Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker is running everyone except himself off their feet in the election campaign he is, indeed, setting a torrid pace.

Mr. Diefenbaker, at 70, is putting in long hours, covering prodigious distances, and leaving virtually everyone behind.

By comparison, Liberal leader Lester Pearson, though not dawdling, seems to be crawling. Cartoonists reflect this trend; an Ottawa Journal cartoon shows Mr. Diefenbaker, a boyish grin creasing his face, sharpening his sword in preparation for a duel with Mr. Pearson, while the latter stands glumly in the background, still wearing his top hat and cloak, a twisted and blunted sword lying at his feet, while Campaign Manager Mitchell Sharp whispers to him "Show More Eagerness and Confidence . . ."

Mr. Pearson of course is as keen a political strategist as any. November 8 is still a month away and while Mr. Diefenbaker is campaigning like a man possessed the question is, how long can he keep up this sort of pace. There is still time for Mr. Pearson to gain maximum exposure before the electorate, while at the moment conducting his campaign at a fairly moderate pace.

Those I. Q. Tests

Aptitude tests, though not so widely favored today as they once were, are still being used in business and educational circles.

The Globe and Mail for instance, notes that Dec. 4 and Jan. 8 are the dates when Grade 13 students planning to enter the University of Toronto will take their tests.

Ironically, the university is relying on American aid in this endeavor. The United States is apparently the repository of IQ tests of every description and the tests to be given the students with their sights on the University of Toronto are those which have been devised for U.S. College Entrance.

The report said arrangements for the tests were made by the board's head office in Princeton, N.J., and centres will be set up at schools throughout Ontario in accordance with the board's ruling that no student be required to travel more than 75 miles to take the test.

From all this it may be wondered if universities are not continuing to place too much reliance on this form of testing. IQ tests are nasty bundles of tricks, bearing little or no relation to the subject matter that a student ultimately must master. Those with a mathematical bent probably have least difficulty with them, but others, those of an imaginative, literary or creative nature, find them difficult to fathom.

However, the Toronto report says that Grade 13 results will continue to be the main factor used by the U. of T. for the first few years at least, while the university "tries to correlate test results and achievement at the U. of T.

"The public for the first year," the report says, "is that no one will be rejected on the basis of college board results."

And that is all to the good.

Accident Toll

An accident at Stittsville in which five people, including a senior civil servant, died last week, was one for which police could discover no apparent reason.

The accident occurred just after midnight, but visibility at the intersection where the collision took place was good. The two vehicles collided with such severity that the five victims were thrown onto the roadway.

Behind the statistics on accidents are many imponderables. In most cases there is no doubt what led to a fatality, but in others the cause is difficult to determine; this was the case in the Stittsville accident.

Gordon Taylor, president of the Canadian Good Roads Association, told convention delegates in Toronto that traffic accidents could be cut by as much as 90 per cent if every driver could be persuaded 40 leave liquor alone and to drive in accordance with the law.

If this is so, it is clear that only enforcement of the law is going to be effective in bringing about such a reduction. It would be satisfying to believe that the entire driving public will co-operate—as when Mr. Taylor said: "We must use every ingenuity available to touch the hearts and minds of all Canadians in order that safe walking and safe driving will become habitual."

The trouble is some people are unreachable, immune to all pleas, and they are the ones who in many cases are the cause of accidents. This is where law enforcement comes in. Many drivers are recognizable as accident potential, by the speed and manner in which they drive. They are the ones who must be watched.

Little Chance of Baby Being Choked by Cord

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: It happens to be wall-washing time in our home, and I'm being bawled out for doing it because I'm pregnant. I'm told that when I reach the cord will wrap around the baby's neck. Is that so or is it another old wives' tale?

If Nature protects the baby pretty well in its growing period, just how would the cord get in that position? Do you have any suggestions as to what work a pregnant woman can do? Bending, digging, lifting, reaching, etc.? — Mrs. H. K. B.

The cord usually is about as long as the fetus — the unborn baby. That isn't long enough to do any tangling, certainly the neck or anything else. Nature is practical. It makes the cord long enough so the baby can move a bit, short enough not to cause trouble. That is one of the myriad of natural facts which accounts for our being here.

Occasionally a cord can be shorter or longer, because Nature makes mistakes. A cord of abnormal length can become twisted, tangled, wrapped around a neck, arm, leg. Usually nothing bad happens even then.

Visualize the situation. There is the sac, filled with the fluid and inside is the forming baby, floating in the fluid and protected from bumps, light, noises and even TV commercials. The cord is a connection through which the baby receives nourishment from Mother.

If Mother reaches, bends, lifts or even has the blessing, the cord is not going to be disturbed.

You've probably worked some of those simple but difficult jigsaw puzzles with three or four small steel balls and some little holes that the balls will rest in if you get them in just the right position. You get two or three in — and when you try to manoeuver the last one, the rest fall out.

It's even harder than that to manage to get a cord wrapped around the baby's neck, foot, thumb or anything else. Baby, floating easily in the fluid sac, just unwinds again.

We can't deny that, of all the millions of babies, a few have an abnormally long cord, and a few of these babies happen to squirm so the cord gets tangled. But it's an uncommon accident when this causes any harm.

And certainly nothing the mother does has any effect. You are surely familiar with the way women used to work in the fields (and in many parts of the world still do) right up to the time the baby was ready to be born. These babies were born successfully, else we wouldn't be here to worry about things.

No, don't fret about these bits of folklore that say the mother shouldn't lift, reach or even wash walls.

If, in specific cases, a woman is known to be subject to repeated abortion, miscarriage, or bleeding during pregnancy, then she should be very careful, and rest a great deal to avoid strain. But not because of "the cord wrapping around."

The normal, healthy mother-to-be can do whatever physical work she ordinarily does. If she gets too tired, the feeling of tiredness will tell her to slow down.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to paint your throat with cotton dipped in merthiolate if you don't swallow any of it? —H.P.

The more important point is that it is a rather futile, ineffective gesture. A hot, weak salt solution for a gargle will do more good, and will soothe the throat. (A quarter of a teaspoon of salt to a glass of water is about right. Too strong a solution will be irritating.) The heat is important.

His Kind of Woman

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Peter Lawford, the actor, is related by marriage to the highly political Kennedy family of Massachusetts. In Montreal the other day he made a remark which leaves us guessing as to whether he has acquired some of that political savvy.

Mr. Lawford said frankly that beautiful women bored him, and added: "Give me a woman who is honest, who has a sense of humor and who is easy to talk to and you can keep all the gorgeous dishes."

It could be that Mr. Lawford will win grateful support from the legion of the non-gorgeous while alienating the gorgeous minority. But since gorgeous women are like most others in believing that they are honest, have a sense of humor and are easy to talk to, perhaps Mr. Lawford has cleverly flattered all women! Here's the catch: how many beauties women will be offended by the suggestion that their real charm derives from plain qualities such as honesty?

The supreme test of Mr. Lawford's political diplomacy may come when he reaches home, if he hasn't already. For he was also quoted as saying that his wife is "not a beautiful woman. She has good strong features. She has a wonderful sense of humor, and she wears well."

We hope he's right.

Feminine Look For Boys

From the Detroit News

"Creeping feminization" is the latest issue to embroil the men's and boys' clothing world. The trade is divided over whether there is in our midst a threat to masculinity.

Parents whose sons wear slim tight pants, soft bloused out and pointed shoes, all topped by a bushy mop of hair, are sure that feminization is more than creeping. It's an awful fast of life.

Whether we are going to be engulfed by boys who look like girls is not the only social or sociological question that can't be answered there. But if we have to be, there's hope in the perspective expressed by Margaret Mead, the noted anthropologist:

"Today there is the peculiar notion that elegant plumage and fine features are not proper for the man, when actually that is the way things are in most species. Since the industrial revolution men have worn sombre, drab work uniforms. Now we find them returning to normalcy."

Birth Control And the Law

Toronto Financial Post

The Planned Parenthood Association is about to demonstrate, not for the first time, how badly out of step with public opinion and usage Canadian law can be.

In Toronto the association will operate three new birth control clinics. It will invite the city's backing. Yet the Criminal Code makes it an offense to sell, offer for sale or even give away any contraceptive or advice on contraception.

True, the code says that it plea that the public interest was served is a good defense; but this does not exempt anybody, whether he be a druggist, a clergyman or the mayor of a metropolis from prosecution.

The Roman Catholic Church maintains its rule against limitation of births, except by the rhythm method, but that does not justify a law on the subject. Cardinal Cushing of Boston said recently that Catholics do not wish to force their opinions on people of other faiths.

The clause in the Criminal Code referring to contraceptives should be repealed. There is enough disrespect for the law without giving it this superfluous excuse.

Beauty Business Is Booming

St. Thomas Times-Journal

In case you haven't noticed, the beauty business is booming. It is true, of course, that a pretty face and figure have never been any real handicap to a girl. But the rewards are now fantastic. Take the case of 19-year-old Deborah Bryant of Kansas, for example.

When delectable Debbie walked down the long runway in Atlantic City recently as newly crowned Miss America, she was literally heading for the bank. Along with the $10,000 scholarship she won with her crown, she can count on taking in about $100,000 in the next year in fees for personal appearances and in other queenly emoluments.

To earn this kind of money, Miss America may have to be just a wee bit commercial as well as plenty glamorous. For while sponsors love pretty girls, as who doesn't, they love them even more when the pretty girls prettily plug the pretty product. And with four sponsors, Miss America has the privilege of plugging four products — an automobile, a soft drink, a home permanent and a certain brand of fabrics.

It is true that she is permitted to work only four hours a day, lest she develop too tired and perhaps less beautiful. But she does have to be chic, charming, vivacious, personable, affable, courteous, tactful, kindly, and a model of deportment 24 hours a day, day in and day out. Have you ever tried it?

That dough as it is, the job doesn't seem to scare away applicants. Some 70,000 girls, for instance, entered the preliminary contests, each dreaming of becoming Miss America and working her pretty head off. And this is only the Big League Beauty. Down in the minors are thousands of Miss This and That, would-be prodigies named after such glamour symbols as pickles, breads, sausages, bridges, calvert, beverages and other product children of eager sponsors.

Add up all the rewards, prizes, scholarships, advertising budgets and the aggregate cost of thousands of contests, pageants and promotions on local, state, regional and national levels and you have a beautiful, bountiful, booming, big-time business.

But it's nice to know that millions of girls who have never even tried to win a beauty crown still look pretty darn good to a lot of people, including boys, and seem to be surprisingly content. So despite the big payoffs for pulchritude, maybe whoever said beauty is only skin deep had something after all. But probably no sponsor.

Child Pawn In Legal Issue

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A Detroit area girl, Gerri Lynn Ernst, lies in hospital, an emotional wreck, according to her doctor, at the age of five. The child is the victim of a custody tug-of-war that pits her maternal grandparents against her father, a three-married truck driver. The little girl said not let anyone else near her other than her grandmother. She has lived with her grandparents since she was five month sold.

Said the doctor: "This child is an emotional wreck from this ordeal. I understand the laws have to be obeyed, but from a medical standpoint, her mind and body can't take much more. She will wind up in a mental institution."

Gerri has been in the middle of family strife all her life. Before the battle for custody rages, friends of the grandparents and the father have entered court with petitions signed by scores of people eager to see their definition of justice done.

Through it all, Gerri, who was to have entered kindergarten this term, remains in hospital, her temperature rising and falling, her child's mind unable to comprehend why those who say they love her continue to make her life a misery.

Gerri is only one of the thousands of children who are subjected to emotional torture by callous parents who seek only to satisfy their own selfish ends. She is an object lesson for those who so thoughtlessly advocate quick and easy divorce.

Crash Program Could Help Negroes

By Sidney J. Harris

The only fast way I can see to solve the Negro problem — which is the white problem, of course — is through a massive, billion-dollar re-educational program that probably ought to be called Operation Fame.

You see, it isn't that whites object to Negroes as such living next door to them, at least in most of the North. What they object to are obscure Negroes. Almost everybody is willing to accept a famous Negro.

What we have to do, obviously, is to initiate a crash campaign among Negro pupils — to get them to concentrate on two fields, entertainment and athletics. Junk like History, English, or Math won't help them a bit in finding a better place to live.

For instance, a friend of mine, who happens to be a real estate management executive, was publicly humiliated on the subject. They were uniformly against having a Negro move next door to them, at least in most of the North. What they object to are obscure Negroes. Almost everybody is willing to accept a famous Negro.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

After most of the insects have done their worst on the gardens and farms of the eastern seaboard, the W.P.B. announces that D.D.T. will be made available for civilian gardeners.

After all the O.W.I. publicity, D.D.T. as an extremely well known insecticide. That is to say that it is well known by reputation but in reality it is not well known at all, for its effect upon the delicate balance set up by nature may be more murderous and productive of greater economic and social problems than the atom bomb.

Like the atomic bomb, DDT eliminates all insects without regard to their destructive or beneficial habits. It attacks the insects which destroy vegetation and it attacks the insects which pollinate the blossoms. For example, if applied to tomato plants and cucumbers in the early summer, there will be no damage from insects, but also no fruit.

Much amusement was created by the staging of a mock political meeting, each party candidate was able representing by a Rotary past president. Ed Bernstein for the Conservative party, Jamieson Kone for the Liberals; Charles Spaulding for the Reconstruction party; W. B. The whole affair was carried off in the best of serious manner, with much heckling and many witty sallies and no one enjoyed it more than the candidates.

His Grace Archbishop Sprati of Kingston will conduct the Confirmation service at St. Michael's Church tomorrow.

The ladies of St. Michael's parish gave a tea at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in aid of the Red Cross Fund. It was a most enjoyable and successful.

An automobile accident occurred yesterday afternoon near Foxboro when a Belleville car ran into Fairfield's bridge and the car was badly damaged. The driver was not injured.

Tried in Secret

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

When a British newsman noticed a youth being led away from a London courtroom, at which reporters had been excluded, he assumed something of interest the man had been secretly sentenced. His disclosures resulted in a reprimand by British law authorities, that if a judge holds a trial in a closed court, he must announce the sentence in open court. Without this protection, a man could be spirited away for 20 years, without anyone knowing where he is or has gone. It is amazing that this holdover from the Middle Ages should have persisted as long as it did.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Banff Oil jumped $1.30 to $8.50 in active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The issue was ahead $1.20 Friday after Resources Minister Arthur Laing said that the Rainbow oil field in Alberta, in which Banff is drilling, had potential reserves of 6,000,000,000 to 7,000,000,000 barrels.

Banff officials, however, said no estimates can be made because drilling to date is insufficient to provide such information.

Investors apparently believed that where there's smoke there's fire and bid for the stock spiritedly. And their enthusiasm spilled into other western oil issues.

Scurry Rainbow was up ¼ to 18 and Triad 6 to 2.61. Among speculatives, Amican Leduc gained 1 to 13½ cents, Mill City 5 to 64 cents and Dynamic 4 to 1.13.

Speculative mining issues also attracted some attention. Texmont was up 7 to 1.52 and Kelly - Desmond .14 to .67 cents.

In senior base metals, Patino gained $1.05 to $10. The company is involved in a group which reported some copper showings in Gaspe, Que. East Sullivan and its affiliated company, Sullivan Mines, were ahead 35 cents and 15 cents to 8.85 and 5.85 respectively.

Industrials were a fraction lower. CPR dipped ¼ to 67 and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to 63.

On index, industrials fell .04 to 167.02 and western oils .26 to 190.02. Golds were ahead .36 to 158.22, base metals .37 to 80.88 and the TSE index .01 to 166.97. Volume at 11 a.m. was 702,000 shares compared with 1,186,000 at the same time Friday.

Brahma Bull Takes Swim In Lake

TORONTO (CP) — A 1,500-pound Brahma bull took a swim here Sunday and it took six cowboys from a rodeo and the Toronto Harbor Police to land him again.

The bull was being ridden in the rodeo at Maple Leaf Stadium when he threw his rider and took off out the nearest exist. He pounded a block down the road to the lakeshore and plunged in.

Jury Sends Accused to Insane Asylum

OTTAWA (CP) — George Gervais, 37, charged with the March 16 slaying of his wife, Saturday was found not guilty of capital murder "by reason of insanity."

An all-male jury reached the verdict after a little more than two hours of deliberation.

Gervais was immediately committed to the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene by Mr. Justice J. W. Brooke who congratulated the jurors "on your just verdict."

Gervais' wife, Margaret, 31, and her mother, Mrs. Isabelle Clow, 51, were shot to death about a month after Mrs. Gervais left her husband. The charge against Gervais was for shooting his wife.

A defence of not guilty by reason of insanity was entered by the defence team of Royden A. Hughes, prominent Ottawa criminal lawyer, and Roydon J. Kealey, a member of Mr. Hughes' law firm.

Last witness at the trial which lasted 12 days was Dr. Kenneth Grey, professor of forensic psychiatry at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Gray said it was his opinion that Gervais was suffering from a "depressive mental illness" aggravated by alcohol at the time of the double slaying.

Lesage Will Consider Teaching Ukranian in Montreal Schools

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage said Sunday night he will speak to his education minister about the possibility of Ukrainian being taught in Montreal public schools to students of Ukrainian origin.

Mr. Lesage, who made the statement following a meeting with the Ukrainian Committee of Canada, said there were some 20,000 persons of Ukrainian origin in Montreal.

Senator Paul Yuzyk, speaking for the committee, said it recognizes that Canada is bilingual and supports the point of view which maintains that French must be used in schools in all parts of Canada where the French-speaking minority group is sufficiently large.

Asked whether this agreement in principle with representatives of 400,000 Canadians of Ukrainian origin could be considered the main achievement of his Western tour, the premier replied:

"I couldn't say. I want to be able to judge the effects of my tour from a distance, and as a whole."

Mr. Lesage said his promise to discuss the needs of Montrealers of Ukrainian origin with Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie applied equally to that city's Italian population.

Study Guild Discusses Book on 'Art of Loving'

The season's first meeting of the Women's Study Guild was presided over by Mrs. Calbert Roulet, the new president, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, Eastwood Park Drive, with a large membership in attendance.

The officers for the year were announced, and the part of the constitution which deals with the aims and purpose of the Guild was read for the benefit of new members. Mrs. Ellis read a letter from Germaine Strouzi in Tunisia — the girl the members sponsor through the Canadian Save The Children Fund; Germaine's progress is followed with interest by the group.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. S. C. Else, the theme "finding God through love".

The study topic was a review of Erich Fromm's book "The Art of Loving," presented by Mrs. C. Boulet and Mrs. D. Settle. Dr. Fromm is a German born pschoanalyst, social philosopher and author, now an American citizen. He now divides his time between Mexico and New York City, and is the author of several best sellers in his field. His book, "The Art of Loving" was introduced to the Study Guild as one much worthwhile.

It presents a picture of people of all ages confronted with the problem of being separate and alone — and seeking a solution to this separateness. Dr. Fromm's book suggests that love is the answer to this universal problem of human existence. Love, he holds, is not a passive experience, but an art.

SEVERAL FACETS

This art has several facets — brotherly love, motherly love, erotic love, self love and love of God — and all of them seem to need to be in part the brotherly love as it is meant by the Biblical teaching to love thy neighbor as thyself. And the art of love needs to be practiced if it is to be perfected. In order to practise the art, individuals need to develop within themselves as self love ,a self respect, as well as the characteristics of discipline, concentration, patience and supreme concern necessary to the development of any art.

The book discusses the disintegration of love in contemporary western society, where so often man is forced into a mould of standardized tastes, consumption, co-operation, until he begins to feel more like an automaton than an individual. Most thought provoking also is the chapter on self-love, which is defined as respect of one's own integrity and uniqueness. Self love is understood as the direct opposite of selfishness, for it is felt that a truly selfish person does not really love himself at all.

INTERESTING COMPARISON

The development of man's ideas about God is traced through the centuries from ideas of a mother centered religion, to a Father God, afterbut just, and on to a symbol that man is striving for, of love, truth, and justice. There is an interesting comparison of Western Religion with its emphasis on right belief, and Eastern Religion with its emphasis on right conduct.

Changes are needed in this society's way of life which will give every man the dignity of being able to realize his own potential. An active concern for other people and other nations is expressed in a feeling of responsibility for them. This active concern, which is love, and faith that our love can produce love in others, is the key which could solve the world's problems.

Hostesses for the social hour which followed were Mrs. J. A. Buchanan and Mrs. N. Meldrum.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

CANNIFTON — The September meeting of the Canniflon UCW was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Pound with a good attendance, and was opened by the president, Mrs. J. Lucus.

Mrs. Alex Allison was elected 1st vice-president and Mrs. George Graham 2nd vice-president.

Mrs. Duane Martin, convener for Christian education, gave a reading on the experiences of a school teacher who began her profession in 1922. As well as a teacher for 110 first graders and physical education, she was a nurse and a social worker.

Mrs. George Graham, convener for historical research, took charge of the program. A reading was given by Mrs. Duane Martin.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. George Graham introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Mary Plumpton, who gave an interesting talk on the early history of Thurlow township, and surrounding district.

In the beginning Belleville was called Thurlow. The first 30,000 United Empire Loyalists received help from Britain, but later, pioneers increased and help was unavailable.

Lord Simcoe was sent out from Britain to govern the wilderness here. He decided to create ten townships in the Home district, called counties and later townships. The first town was King's Town, later called Kingston.

The first church was built in the Kingston area in 1800 by the Indians. In 1787 100 lots were claimed in Thurlow. John Walton Meyers founded Belleville. In 1870 lots were sold to tained free. This brought in the Americans. Foulkes was first known as Smithville. In 1850 the centre of the township was beginning to open up. In 1816 there were 150 people living in Belleville. There were no roads, the river was the highway. There was one council to begin with, the Thurlow council. The first act of the Council of Upper Canada was to make marriages legal.

The first Belleville newspaper was published in 1802 and was known as the "Plain Speaker." Dr. Hayden was the first doctor in Thurlow, he was also the founder of the first Masonic Lodge in Thurlow. The first officer in Thurlow was the town clerk who kept all records in his own home. There are no records earlier than 1870 — all records before that were lost or destroyed. In 1811 there were only two families living in Canniflon. In 1806 the back part was bought by John Canilf. Canniflon was first called Sludge Alley and in 1854 it was petitioned to call it Canniflon.

Mrs. Harold Elliott displayed a number of articles of old fashioned clothing, magazines and patterns.

Mrs. Frank Howes received the prize for the member living in Thurlow township for the most years.

Mrs. Lucus thanked Mrs. Plumpton and the hostess.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social period followed.

Will Present Third Annual Art Show

The third annual Café Art Show will take place at Tabernacle United Church this coming Wednesday afternoon and evening.

As in former years this art exhibition is noteworthy for years reasons especially for the variety shown by the semi - professional and professional work of 20 different painters, six of whom are invited from out-of-town. Along with straight representational painting one may also get a glimpse of the so - called trends. The media is varied with oils, water-colors, monotype, acrylics and mixed media.

The atmosphere created by a so - called cafe decor will be stimulating and conducive to good viewing, good conversation and good coffee.

For the past two years the calibre of the show has attracted those who wished to buy and those who merely wished to view and learn more about this fascinating hobby.

It has been noted that there is no place more suitable to the showing of good paintings than in the church for this reason Tabernacle United Church is pleased to have had the first large show of its kind in East Central Ontario.

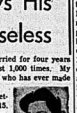
Ann Landers
Husband Knows His Accusations Baseless

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married for four years and have undergone the third degree at least 1,000 times. My husband refuses to believe he is the only man who has ever made love to me.

He knows very well he was my first sweetheart. We started to go together when I was 15. I was 19 when we were married. There has never been another man in my life and there never will be — unless my husband makes me so miserable with his accusations and badgering that I am forced to divorce him to keep my sanity.



ANN LANDERS

I'm thankful he doesn't accuse me in the presence of others. He waits until we are alone and the lights are out. It's always the same — "If you will just tell me I promise I won't get mad. I'll never throw it up to you." Ann, it's almost as if he wishes there was somebody else. Why does he behave this way? It doesn't seem normal. Please tell me what to do. — NOT GUILTY.

DEAR NOT GUILTY: When I tell you why he behaves this way you'll know what to do about it.

Some people find out-of-this-world-fantasy essential to their sex life. They cannot function without it. The thoughts they entertain (or the thoughts that entertain them) never cross their minds at any other time. Your husband conjures up mental images of you and other men because it excites him. He knows very well that it's all in his head, so don't let his questions bother you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am being married in a few weeks and liquor will be served at the wedding. I am a few months under 21 and many of my friends are under 21 also. I am not drinker although drinking is not against my religion or my moral scruples. I just don't like liquor.

Would it be wrong if I drank a toast at my own wedding? I'll bet you've never been asked this question before — THE DRY ONE.

DEAR DRY ONE: Don't bet your honeymoon money, Kiddo. Precious few questions are new to me.

If you don't like liquor why drink it? A toast is just as effective if done in ginger ale in the glass — or even water.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a middle-aged man who has been dating a middle-aged woman for over a year. (I will call her Lillian.) We both have very good jobs and money is no problem to either of us. Whenever I take Lillian out for an evening, whether it's to the theatre, a movie, or a concert, she insists on paying her own way.

She does not embarrass me publicly but she forces the money on me when we have a good night. I have told Lillian repeatedly that I enjoy her company and I can well afford to pay her way. It makes me uncomfortable to accept money from her. Her reply is, "I don't want to be indebted to anyone."

I'd like to know what to do about this awkward situation. I feel like a gigolo. — GRAND ISLAND.

DEAR GRAND: Lillian is attempting to preserve her independence at the expense of your dignity.

She insults you by suggesting she would be under obligation to you if you paid for her dinner and took her to a movie. Explain your feelings and make it clear that from now on you insist on paying her way.

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

Mrs. Ross Sickle was hostess to the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute for the September meeting. In the absence of the president, Mrs. L. Bewley, the business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Arnold Ketchenson, 1st. vice-president. Correspondence included the annual report about the adopted boy; as this included the word, "Help still very much needed," there was a unanimous vote to continue to share with Constance and Pine Grove the support of the boy in Macao.

Mrs. A. Finkle, president of the West Hastings district of the Women's Institute, was introduced by Mrs. Ketchenson. Mrs. Finkle asked, "How do you rate a key W.I. meeting?" This question asked not only of the members of this branch but also of herself was a challenge to each one present. Mrs. Finkle spoke of the duties, privileges, interest and influence which members may share in the branch, district, in her own country, and through her affiliation with Associated Country Women of the World — with women of similar interest throughout the world.

Mrs. Finkle was thanked on behalf of the members by Mrs. A. Dunn, and presented with a gift from the branch by Mrs. A. Ketchenson.

Mrs. P. Jordan was in charge of the program and hints from the roll call. Members brought some interesting ideas and this theme was continued when Mrs. Dunn read a letter from the Department of Agriculture on the growing of day lilies; this was followed by coloured pictures of new varieties of this plant.

A contest conducted by Mrs. Ketchenson was enjoyed.

Lunch was served by the hostess and the committee and a social time enjoyed.

Lord Simcoe was sent out from Britain to govern the wilderness here. He decided to create ten townships in the Home district, called counties and later townships. The first town was King's Town, later called Kingston.

The first church was built in the Kingston area in 1800 by the Indians. In 1787 100 lots were claimed in Thurlow. John Walton Meyers founded Belleville. In 1870 lots were sold to tained free. This brought in the Americans. Foulkes was first known as Smithville. In 1850 the centre of the township was beginning to open up. In 1816 there were 150 people living in Belleville. There were no roads, the river was the highway. There was one council to begin with, the Thurlow council. The first act of the Council of Upper Canada was to make marriages legal.

The first Belleville newspaper was published in 1802 and was known as the "Plain Speaker." Dr. Hayden was the first doctor in Thurlow, he was also the founder of the first Masonic Lodge in Thurlow. The first officer in Thurlow was the town clerk who kept all records in his own home. There are no records earlier than 1870 — all records before that were lost or destroyed. In 1811 there were only two families living in Canniflon. In 1806 the back part was bought by John Canilf. Canniflon was first called Sludge Alley and in 1854 it was petitioned to call it Canniflon.

Mrs. Harold Elliott displayed a number of articles of old fashioned clothing, magazines and patterns.

Mrs. Frank Howes received the prize for the member living in Thurlow township for the most years.

Mrs. Lucus thanked Mrs. Plumpton and the hostess.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social period followed.

GOLDEN PUMPKIN BUNS

When I said I was going to make pumpkin buns Margy said "Great! Now I can make a pumpkin pie and have a way to use up the leftover in the can." These buns are not designed to use up leftover pumpkin for you need 1½ cups but, since most pumpkin pie fillings call for 1½ to 2 cups strained pumpkin, you could buy a 28-oz. can (3½-cup size) and make no.h items from one can. This would produce an economical batch of oven beauties. Serve hot the pumpkin buns are creamy and rich. Served with sweet butter they are fit for a queen. (See Pumpkin Pie tomorrow.)

1 package granular yeast,
2 tablespoons lukewarm water,
5 cups all-purpose flour - not sifted before measuring,

Scald milk. Soak granular yeast in the lukewarm water 5 minutes. Into your large mixing bowl pour the scalded milk and add the butter, sugar and salt. Stir to melt them dissolving. Add pumpkin. When this mixture is lukewarm stir the yeast liquid into it. Add half of the flour and mix well. Add remaining flour, mix it in as well as you can, then turn dough out onto well floured board and knead until smooth and elastic - about 100 turns and punches. Return to scraped down bowl, cover and let rise for 2 to 2½ hours, or until very light. (If desired and you have time, stir down dough and let it rise a second time. This second rising produces a finer texture.) Turn dough out on well floured board and knead 100 times. Divide dough in halves. Under your palms shape half into a long roll, 2" in diameter. Cut into 20 or 24 pieces, and shape into little round buns and place on greased baking sheets 2" apart. Steep second half of the dough the same way or into crescents or twists. Glaze tops by brushing with 1 beaten egg diluted with 1 tablespoon water. Let rise 1½ hours or until light and bake at 400 deg. F. about 20 to 20 minutes. Time depends on size and number of buns. Serve hot.

If you have leftovers reheat them in the oven in dampened paper bag before serving a second time. These are a sensation for a Sunday morning brunch with marmalade and coffee.

ONE PLUG AFTER ANOTHER

Dear Susanna: One of the best small investments I ever made was a 20' extension cord for my vacuum cleaner. Now, by using the hall plug-in, I can vacuum all the rooms on one floor without ever having to get down on my hands and knees that second or third time to move the cord to the next plug. I don't mind vacuuming, it was that old bend and crawl routine that bothered me. — Mrs. G. K.

Has your husband ever "blown a personal fuse" when he attempted to turn on his favorite lamp or radio in the bedroom only to find someone had pulled the plug to run the vacuum? And of courshe never put it back afterwards, so that he has to get down himself and re-plug everything? Does it happen all the time no matter how much you remind yourself, or the cleaning lady, not to leave it that way?

Don't let it happen one more time. Into whatever outlet you usually plug the vacuum, insert a three-way plug so that there is always one extra for the cleaner.

Why upset him with little things when you've got all those big things stored up to upset him with?! — SUSANNA

COAT HANGER FOR MANY COLORS

Dear Susanna: If your children are like most, they are always mislaying their scarves. Get them a colored coat hanger with some colored clothes pins snapped onto the bar. They'll enjoy fastening each scarf to a peg as it is taken off. I'm no kid, but I had the bad habit of leaving my scarves here and there about the house — now I use the coat hanger. Scarves and gloves too, are there in bright, easy reach when needed. No slipping down on the floor either. —Chris J. Bonnar

Successful Living

Secret Meetings Lead To Certain Disaster

DEAR DORIS: I am 15 and I like a boy of 22. My mother and father liked him before they heard some rumors of him having a police record. If anybody sees me out with him or even if I just talk to him in the store people tell my parents they wouldn't let their daughter do that.

I have asked him about the police record. He has very good answers which I believe. To me he doesn't seem to be a person who would steal a thing. If he had a police record wouldn't the police have him in jail?

My mother and father will not let me see him any more, so sometimes we see each other secretly right in my yard after my parents are asleep. — SECRET LOVE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SECRET: Are you good at figures? Do you realize this man is a man — half as much again as old as you are?

No matter how nice he seems, he is not in your league. While a police record may be explained away, or he may have honestly reformed, a secret meeting in the back yard after dark is dynamite. And it is hardly honest!

This time mother knows best. Do as your parents say you should.

DEAR DORIS: If a previous pastor and family came to our village to visit with a friend would it be our duty to go to this friend's house to visit with the pastor or is it his duty to call on his devoted parishioners? Where is that we should go to see him and not make him spend all his vacation making calls. My friends think differently. Who is right?

Then again if a close relative come home to visit with his mother, should he go to visit all his brothers, sisters, nieces and nephews, or should they make the first move. — JUST WONDERING.

DEAR JUST: Your ex-pastor has a right to his vacation. He is no longer on call. If you have reason to think he'd like to see you, arrange to go where he is.

About the close relative, this is a matter of mutual interest: It may not be easy for him to get around to everyone separately. Why doesn't someone give a party and make him the guest of honor?

DEAR DORIS: I am a widow. I have met a man who is divorced, well educated, very attractive. He is rather fresh at times but behaves when I tell him to get lost. How do you hold a man who is so intelligent and what does one really do when they get fresh?

He is so smooth and really quite wonderful. What happens when a man has been permitted one small liberty? Does he lose interest when he is not permitted another? — ON TENTERHOOKS.

DEAR ON TENTERHOOKS: Putting defences back up when you have let them down takes resolution and character. While your friend may try something, he'll appreciate your refusing any more liberties. Remember, he wants to respect you — and himself!

You hold an intelligent man by revealing your own good brain. By intelligent conversation. By activities which show a keen interest in living. You hold any man by being good to him.

DEAR DORIS:
(1) I have an accumulation of receipts dating back some time and I would like to destroy them. On two or three occasions it has been proved to me (by attempts being made to charge me twice) that it is wise to keep receipts. I have been told by a friend that after seven years it doesn't matter since no one can collect anyway. Is this true?

(2) A relative of mine works for a company on commission. In 1960 he made a special sale for which he has yet to receive the money. He has mentioned it to the manager but it is always promised as forthcoming. He realizes that he could raise a fuss about this but he doesn't like unpleasantness.

Should he get this debt recorded in writing? Is there a period of time after which he will be unable to collect it anyway? What if the man should go out of business or die? — DEBTS AND DOUBTS.

DEAR DEBTS:
(1) Yes. Keep receipts by all means, for six years. Then simple contract debts, and such things as claims for wages or rent, are outlawed. In Quebec the period is five years.

(2) If your relative wants the money he'd better show he means business. Time's awasting! Even a written acknowledgment of the debt, now, would keep the claim alive for six more years; and if the man should die or go out of business there's be evidence to back up a claim on the estate or company.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

A discussion period followed on the responsibility of UCW members in social, moral and political life.

The leadership development committee enacted a drama called "Don't Play the Races Tonight, Mother." This depicted many social evils such as gambling, lotteries and sweepstakes.

The meeting was closed with a musical workshop with Mrs. Cameron Sine at the piano and Mrs. Maurice Dafoe taking the solo parts.

PICTON NEWS

By LLOYD THOMPSON

Victory smiles were evident when Michael Starr congratulated A. Douglas Alkenbrack at Saturday night's Progressive Conservative nomination convention in Napanee. Mr. Alkenbrack won over H. J. McFarland, mayor of Picton.

Shown are winners of a soap box derby staged at Picton. Left foreground racer Ricky Harris who came third; centre Pete Thomis winner of first place in Lake Ontario Cement Co. sponsored derby; right front Ted Ross, 2nd place winner. Rear row left, Dr. Lionel G. Dockrill; centre, E. Glen Irwin; right Wayne Ring Picton Recreation Director.

Although 14 were nominated only Mr. H. J. McFarland opposed but the ballots cast by the 514 delegates out of a possible 600 swept Mr. Alkenbrack into the candidacy with a with a strong majority contrary to the before-hand rumor that it would be a close race.

Mr. Alkenbrack in asking for the support of the delegates, thanked them all for the help he had received since being elected M.P. in 1962. He stated he would give proper representation in Ottawa and said the Conservative Party offers no gimmicks; no promises or no panaceas but good honest government. He also stated that Mr. Diefenbaker has carried Conservatism across all the ridings of Canada which has confounded the prophets and the party has prevailed.

Mr. McFarland-in asking for support said that his record lies in the two counties, Prince Edward and Lennox where as a young man he threshed for the farmers and later built his business up with God's help. He said, My heart is with you, I want to go out and do a job for all the people who have helped me "God Bless You All".

Nominated but declined after thanking the people, who had nominated them were Col. Harry Babcock, James Bird who spoke asking the people of Canada - to get rid of the sloppy housekeepers now in Ottawa who are sweeping dirt under the rug and then throw it in people's faces, the Darian report and say nothing is wrong, J. Plumner, Phil Dodds, Barney Hepburn who accused the Liberals of forgetting the little people and the small ridings, he said look what happened to the Picton and Napanee armories and now Picton does not even have a Canadian National Express office. He further stated he had heard that the government was thinking of moving the Picton Unemployment Insurance office to Belleville and the people do not want it moved to a bigger place, J. Hepburn, B. Jones, C. Milligan, J. K. Pearce, D. Walker, R. Walmsley, L. Smart, mayor of Napanee, who as most people present knew, favors another party, but Lorne Smart said he was proud to have his name mentioned along with all the other nominees, and L. Neatherby who looked over the approximately 800 people present and said "where did all the Tories come from, I thought there were none, and how did they get here, they did not get here in the cheap automobiles promised by Lester Pearson.

Chairman for the rally was Mr. A. Osborne assisted by Mr. E. J. Morrison, secretary of the Association. Pastor Robert Black, president of the Prince Edward Ministerial Association gave the invocation.

PLATFORM GUESTS

Miss Kaye McFarland introduced the platform guests who were as f ollows, Mr. Norris Whitney, M.P.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, Rgeve W. Wagar, Warden Barney Hepburn, Mr. Rod Webb M.P. for Hastings-Frontenac, Mayor L. Smart, Mr. Lee Grills P.C. candidate for Hastings South, J. K. Pearce, D. Walker, W. Briscoe, H. Bonter, D. Reynolds, C. Milligan, former M.P., George Tustin former M.P., Mayor H. J. McFarland, Mr. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P. and the former Minister of Labor, the Honorable Michael Starr.

Musical selections during the evening were provided by a trio named the A.B.C's who are in reality Bill Hinch, Ken Clarke and Noreen Alger. Mrs. W. Nind gave a humorous recitation "The Baseball Game".

Mr. George Tustin introduced the guest speaker the Honorable Michael Starr.

MUST WORK HARD

Mr. Starr began his remarks by telling the delegates their job was just begun, they have chosen one man but they must see he is elected, the people must work hard so the Conservative party will not have a bare majority as they did before but give them the biggest majority ever. Canadians did not want this election but now they have a chance to return back to a government of old-er fashioned honesty and integrity. The Liberal government is frustrated, on one hand they are saying they did not have a working majority so could not bring about proper legislation, then on the other hand they are telling they brought about 22 pieces of legislation.

Mr. Starr asks why the Prime Minister thought it necessary to issue a code of ethics to his ministers, if they are honest men. It must be he had some doubt in mind, even then. Furthermore, Mr. Pearson called in his followers to Ottawa for instructions on what to say and what not to say in the forthcoming campaign. They will not use their own brains, but will say what is written down for them by someone else. We do not do this, but we let the people use their own minds, they don't have to have instructions from Ottawa.

PREDICTS PENSION RAISE

Mr. Starr accuses the Liberal government of pitting Quebec against the rest of Canada, and they built up such an enormous thing it got out of hand. Unity can only be created by equal rights for each province.

Mr. Starr continued when the Conservative party is elected, they will bring about equality to the provinces, the old age pension will be raised to $100 a month, the party realizing that the taxpayers are overburdened with municipal taxes will receive a $500 deduction on their income tax for this purpose, and also the Conservative government will find export sale for the surplus products, the same as they did for industrial products.

Mr. Starr said he has never seen such a resurgence in a party as the Conservatives made in Toronto, Friday evening where they had to turn people away and the provincial members are marching along shoulder to shoulder with the federal members.

Mr. C. Milligan thanked the speaker.

Board Will Report on Rezoning

PICTON (Staff) — The planning board is expected to present its findings to Picton Town Council Monday night on a request to rezone a Lake St. property from Industrial to commercial. The request was made by a Kingston Real Estate broker on behalf of a client who wishes to open a grocetería and landromat on the site. Another matter likely to appear on the agenda for Monday night is the two new cascade pumps purchased recently which have never worked properly. Town officials are trying to get the pumps off their hands and get their money back.

Chinese Desperately Poor But Everybody Eats; Bureaucracy Is Made Palatable by Iron Honesty

Peking and the other cities of China are coming alive, with bright clothes, more money and more goods. But the real China of the countryside is still desperately poor, which helps explain the government diet —propaganda in place of bread. A widely travelled Dutch political writer and novelist visits the new China.

Written for The AP
by HANS KOENINGSBERGER

PEKING (AP)—I had a picture in my mind of Peking as a huge, greyish town, rather like an oriental Moscow, with buildings in Stalin's kind of gingerbread architecture and a subdued population.

I had not particularly looked forward to visiting such a place and when I finally got my visa after four years waiting—I set out more from a sense of duty than a sense of adventure. I arrived here, on a sultry Sunday, after a seven-hour flight from Moscow and almost immediately felt the great shock of how different it was.

Peking, the capital of the Chinese People's Republic, with more than 7,000,000 inhabitants in its municipal area, looks very little like a metropolis right now. It is a vast, rambling, spread-out town or rather collection of villages, teeming and tropical.

FORMS LARGE SQUARE

The monumental buildings which the officials love to show and to photograph for their publications, are there: The great hall of the people and the museum of Chinese history—both, one is told again and again, built in 10 months—forming two sides of one of the largest, or perhaps the largest square in the world.

The new university buildings are there, the railway station, and the factories to which guides take the first western tourists who are making their appearance. But all these structures just make a pattern, dotted here and there by an old imperial temple. Filling in this grid of avenues and monumental architecture is a vast web of little streets, Asian streets, with courts and alley ways, and swarming with people—people, who as in all towns of Asia, do their business, have their meals, and spend their leisure on the street or in full sight of the street. And leisure there seems to be plenty of.

Tien Chiao, the fair grounds at the southern town gate, is still in full swing, and I found there shows, carabets and operas filled to the last seat with men who seemed to have as little to do as a race track crowd.

SHOPS WELL STOCKED

The shops, too, came as a surprise to me. They were well stocked and with a more varied collection of goods and even luxuries than I had expected. All Chinese made. They were better than in the stores of Moscow.

They don't have the suffocating crowds of the Russian stores, either; partly of course, because in local terms they are quite expensive. The town people look healthy, quietly cheerful and reasonably well-dressed. There is now quite a bit of color in their clothes.

How do some Chinese in the towns, in this 16th year of communism, live? Let me give one of the many sample budgets I collected:

A young worker in a textile mill was making 50 yuan a month (a yuan is equivalent to 40 cents). He lived in a dormitory within walking distance of his work and shared a room with three other men. He paid one yuan rent a month. In the factory dining room he spent 10 to 30 Chinese cents a meal; the meals were abundant and quite tasty. (100 Chinese cents (fen) make one yuan).

The housing development where he lived had a swimming pool (five cents a visit). He had money in a savings account, from which he had recently bought a bicycle, price 145 yuan.

A shirt cost him 10 yuan, sandals, four yuan, and cigarettes 20 to 50 cents, depending on their quality. A movie would cost about 30 cents. He paid no taxes, and his medical bill was paid by the factory.

His work week was eight hours a day, six days a week; vacation would be given only to visit parents or for some emergency. The physical working conditions in the factory were up to Western standards.

China's history, however, has always been decided not in her cities but in the countryside. After the disastrous three years following the "great leap" and the great drought, things have improved there; everyone eats.

The minimum rice ration, for people who do not work, is a pound a day. A peasant gets two pounds and 20 pounds of meat a year, average; fish, chicken and vegetables are ration free. Since June of this year, sugar is free too.

The countryside still looks desperately poor.

The vast bureaucracy is made palatable to peasants by the iron honesty and incorruptibility of the new officials. About this unusual state of affairs there is no doubt and the peasants are well aware of it.

If ever the morale of the regime would weaken, this is where the cracks would appear; lagging officials are probably the greatest long-term danger to Peking.

I think that much about the war of words, which the government wages in the papers and on the air, may be explained by this.

Northern Man To Address Chamber Here

Mr. Stuart Richardson, community relations manager of the Northern Electric Company, Montreal, will address the members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the fall meeting on Wednesday October 6th at the Tops Motel. The subject of Mr. Richardson's talk will be "It's A Big Land", a subject dealing with the development of Canada. Mr. Richardson has travelled from Newfoundland to British Columbia addressing Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade, under the sponsorship of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. He was born in England and spent his early life at sea. He came to Canada in 1928. He was a charter member of the Junior Board in Montreal in 1931.

Mr. Hammond, the hunter on the right, has found his London Life policy to be a surprisingly good investment. Details below.

ROYAL BANK

How Mr. R. E. Hammond's London Life policy can now pay its own premiums with the money it earns for him

As well as giving protection, a London Life Jubilee policy earns dividends year after year. The experience of R. E. Hammond shows just how valuable these dividends can be.

IN OCTOBER of 1925, Mr. R. E. Hammond —now a senior buyer with the CNR in Toronto—bought a $5,000 London Life Jubilee policy.

This is a profit-sharing policy. So Mr. Hammond has been credited with dividends every year for 40 years.

This can be a handy arrangement as Mr. Hammond approaches retirement. He would not have to dip into his savings to pay premiums, yet he would continue to build an estate.

When he bought the policy, Mr. Hammond had a choice of taking his dividends in cash or leaving them with the Company to accumulate for him. (London Life insurance is surprisingly flexible.) He chose to leave his dividends to accumulate with interest compounding each year.

Nine years ago he could have used these dividends to pay all future premiums—under a special option contained in Jubilee policies. (This is a sensible move for the man who plans to retire early or expects his income to decline sharply in later years.)

The policy will continue to build savings because the cash value goes up each year. This year, in addition to his dividend exceeding his premium, his cash value increased by $80.

If Mr. Hammond should decide to withdraw his savings when he retires, he can take them as a lump sum, as an income for life, or as an income for a definite number of years. Once again, flexibility.

Here are three more reasons why a London Life Jubilee policy is an excellent buy:

(1) It is a surprisingly good investment. It is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than most common stocks.

(2) If you buy when you are young, you can get double your money back by age 65.

Example: If you are 25 and in good health, you can buy a $10,000 Jubilee policy for $13.09 a month. To age 65, you will pay in $6,283. But at age 65 you will have built up savings of about $13,790: (This is made up of $8,210 in accumulated dividends and $5,580 in guaranteed cash value.)

The dividends above are based on the Company's current dividend scale. While they are not guaranteed, the Company has had an outstanding record of dividend payments. Dividends allotted to owners of London Life profit-sharing policies for 1965 exceed $29 million.

(3) Dividends are high because the London Life Insurance Company invests wisely and profitably in Canada. (In 1964, the Company earned 5.72% on its investments—after investment expenses.)

The Dodgers won the National League pennant through sheer desire, the ability of their mound corps and defiance of the experts and opposition to say they couldn't do it.

They hung in there all season holding first place - much of the time as the writers wondered editorially and the competition verbally how Walt Alston and his athletes did it.

San Francisco defeated them twice over a holiday With that the Giants launched the National League's longest winning string in 14 years.

The Giants winning 14 in a row opened up a gap that while it appeared more and more insurmountable as the twilight days approached still did not crush the Dodgers.

Overlooked was the fact they won seven of ten themselves during this period which, as Alston stated, is about as good as we can play."

Then they went to Chicago and lost the first two games of their final trip, even some of the writers travelling with the club authored their obituaries.

Again the Dodgers made the death notices appear a bit premature, as they rebounded with three successive victories that brought this comment from Stan Musial in St. Louis:

"This thing is going right down to the wire, and I'll say this, from what I've observed of the Dodgers, if they lose it, it won't be because they quit."

It has been a sore point with the veteran members of the cast all season long, that the nine other clubs have held them in little light regard.

"We know we don't frighten them and I think that's one of the compelling reasons we did as well as we did," said a veteran.

General manager Buzzie Bavasso took a dim view of the writers and fans who hung a "no talent" label on the Dodgers as a team.

Captain Maury Wills said: "You can stand it when the fans don't think you'll win, or when the writers say the team doesn't have it, but when you don't have the respect of the opposition, that gets you."

"I get tired of that reference to the club," said Bavasso. "The idea is to win. That's what we did and still it took more abuse than any other club."

However, despite the fact that most people—professional and fans alike—have wondered how the Dodgers did what they did as a team, the individual heroics continued to unfurl almost each inning.

Sandy Koufax in notching his 23rd victory on September 18 created a unique situation. Including this game he had won only three since August 14 and all were by 1-0 scores.

He became the first pitcher of 1965 to hurl over 300 innings and hang up a strikeout record. At that time the Golden Arm winner of the coveted Cy Young Award in 1963 looked more and more like the outstanding candidate again.

The next day Don Drysdale became a 20-game winner for the second time in his spangled ten-year career. In that game and the one the next night he and Koufax lost a combined total of 25 pounds in the St. Louis humidity.

Both had been relieving as well as starting in their desperation drive against the Giants but the whole team, as it has all season was putting out 100 per cent.

And that is what carried them to the wire and the pennant in that roaring six-game drive against the Giants.

Some say all they've got is pitching. That figures—but they've got team effort—and that might earn them the series gold and glory.

Koufax Clinched It ★★★★★★ ★★★★★ New Mound Gold

Dodgers Grab Flag In Starry Finish

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Walter Alston might have discovered a new Sandy Koufax.

He's Howie Reed-Bob Miller Mike Kekich-John Purdin-Bill Singer-Dick Wilhite.

Alston unveiled his new pitching weapon Sunday as Los Angeles Dodgers, the newly crowned National League champions, concluded the regular season with a 3-0 triumph over Milwaukee Braves.

Reed - Miller - Kekich - Purdin - Singer - Wilhite held the Braves to three hits one day after Koufax became a 26-game winner by halting Milwaukee on four hits in the Dodgers' pennant-clinching 3-1 victory.

Manager Alston, giving his second-line pitchers a chance to work, started with Reed, who gave up a double to Frank Thomas in his two-inning performance. Miller, who receive credit for the victory, followed with one inning of hitless ball. Then came Kekich, who permitted only a single by Woody Woodward in two innings, and Purdin, who relieved all six batters he faced.

GIVES UP SINGLE

Singer took over in the eighth giving up another single to Woodward before Wilhite se down the Braves in order in th ninth.

The shutout was the eighth for the Dodgers in the streak—16 victories in their last 17 games—that carried them to their seventh pennant in 14 years.

And as the Dodgers prepare to meet Minnesota in the World Series starting Wednesday their pitching staff has allowed only five runs in the last 87 innings, a fantastic earned-run average of 0.52.

In other season-ending games in the national League, San Francisco Giants defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-3; Pittsburgh Pirates downed Chicago Cubs 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies swept New York Mets in a twi-night double-header 5-3 and 5-1, St. Louis Cardinals beat Houston Astros 5-2.

The Giants started in the pennant race till the bitter end Saturday, nipping the Reds 3-2 1½ hours before Koufax closed them out with his victory over Milwaukee. In other Saturday games, Pittsburgh downed Chicago 3-0, St. Louis whipped Houston 6-3 and the Phillies blanked the Mets 6-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Dennis Bennett who played to a scoreless 16-inning tie.

GET THREE SINGLES

While Alston's sizzling six stymied the fifth-place Braves Sunday Los Angeles scored one run - scoring singles by Ron Fairly, John Kennedy and Hector Valle.

The second-place Giants, finished two games behind the Dodgers while dumping Cincinnati to fourth with the help of Willie Mays' 52nd homer, a Giant record and high in the majors this year. Ken Henderson's two-run single capped the winning three-run rally in the seventh.

Pittsburgh vaulted into third place, winning their 11th game in 13 as Robert Clemente hit a home run and scored on his second consecutive National League batting title. The Pirates won with a four-run eighth-inning rally, two of the runs scoring on Jim Pagliaroni's single.

The eighth-place Cubs lost after executing their third triple play of the season. All three, which tie the major league record, came with Bill Faul pitching.

Bob Gibson became the National League's most valuable pitcher and the majors' ninth, scattering nine hits in seventh-place St. Louis' victory. Ninth-place Houston ended the season with a total attendance of 2,151,470 under the dome.

The sixth-place Phillies won their opener against the last-place Mets on consecutive pitches by Bobby Wine and pitcher Ray Culp in the ninth inning. Bill Sorrell's baseball bounced in the Philadelphia 12th won the night - cap and handed Jack Fisher his 24th loss, high in the majors.

DODGERS MOB KOUFAX AS PENNANT IS WON — A happy band of Los Angeles Dodgers descends on pitcher Sandy Koufax (32) moments after he pitched the team to the National League pennant with a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves in Los Angeles. Facing Koufax is pitcher Don Drysdale. (AP Wirephoto)

Conigliaro Batting Champion

White Sox Clinch Second Place

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Killebrew, three-time American League home run champion, was dethroned by Tony Conigliaro of Boston Red Sox Sunday, but he hit his 25th homer in Minnesota Twins' 2-1 victory over the seventh-place California Angels.

The homer was Killebrew's second in two days and third in five games, giving the Twins what they hope will be additional power when they open the World Series against Los Angeles Dodgers at Minnesota Wednesday. Killebrew, who missed 48 games because of a dislocated elbow, finished with his lowest homer total since he began playing regularly in 1959. It was the first time he has hit fewer than 30 homers and came after he had won the homer title three consecutive years with totals of 48, 45 and 49.

Conigliaro, who did not connect in ninth-place Boston's 11-5 loss to the sixth-place New York Yankees, won the crown with 32—the lowest winning total since Larry Doby also hit 32 for Cleveland Indians in 1954.

In other season-ending games, Chicago White Sox clinched second place by defeating Kansas City Athletics 3-2, Baltimore Orioles wound up third with a 2-1 victory over fifth-place Cleveland and the eighth-place Washington Senators edged the fourth-place Detroit Tigers 3-2.

BOMB TAIL-ENDERS

Chicago bombed the tail-end Athletics 12-0 Saturday while the Orioles nipped the Twins 5-4, Cleveland shaded Baltimore 2-1, New York whipped Boston 6-4 and Detroit swept a double-header over Washington 9-1 and 6-2.

Whitey Ford became the biggest winner in Yankee history when he posted victory No. 232 against the Red Sox despite surrendering 11 hits, including homers by Jim Gosger and Carl Yastrzemski. Tony Kubec drove in three runs for New York.

Tom McCraw hit a homer for the White Sox in the fifth inning, his third in three days, and broke a 2-2 tie. Eddie Fisher worked in relief for Chicago, setting an AL record with his 52nd appearance. John Wyatt of the Athletics pitched in 81 last year.

Sam Bowens' ninth - inning homer and Steve Barber's three-hit pitching gave the Orioles their victory over the Indians and Sam McDowell. McDowell struck out seven, bringing his total to 325. He is the first pitcher in the AL to exceed 300 since Bob Feller.

Rookie Joe Coleman Jr., whose father was a major league pitcher, gained his second complete-game victory in six days for the Senators as he checked the Tigers on five hits.

Bombers, Stamps Whip Riders, Cats

Lions Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After two or three weeks in which defence predominated, the offence took over in football games in the West during the weekend.

In three games the six teams scored an aggregate of 166 points and gained a total of 2,005 yards.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 26-21 Sunday and in Saturday night games British Columbia Lions outscored Edmonton Eskimos 41-27 while Calgary Stampeders downed Ottawa Rough Riders 31-18.

Tonight Ottawa plays its second game in three days, meeting Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina. The game will not be televised.

The weekend games left Calgary still in first place in the Western Conference with 16 points—two more than Winnipeg. British Columbia is third with 13, Saskatchewan is fourth with 11 and the hapless Eskimos fifth with eight points in 12 games.

Ottawa and Hamilton are tied at the top of the Eastern Conference but the Riders have a game in hand.

FIVE CONVERTS

Before a crowd of 31,602 Vancouver fans, Willie Fleming and Bob Swift each counted two touchdowns, Bill Munsey and Mack Burton scored a touchdown apiece and Peter Kempf kicked five converts.

Randy Kerbow went for three touchdowns for Edmonton while Butch Pressley got the other and Tommy-Joe Coffey kicked three converts.

Quarterback Joe Kapp was a standout for B.C., passing for two touchdowns and using passes to set up two others. He completed 26 of 35 pass attempts for 347 yards.

Coleman galloped 69 yards for one touchdown and threw a 21-yard forward pass to flanker Bobby Taylor for another.

Day tossed a 70-yard touchdown pass to end Frank Budd and moved Stampeders into position for Coleman's touchdown.

SEVEN SINGLES

Herman Harrison scored the other Calgary touchdown. The other seven Calgary counters all were one - pointers. Larry Robinson converted all four touchdowns and boooted two singles and Jim Furlong punted for a single.

Ottawa points came on touchdowns by quarterback Russ Jackson and end Ted Watkins, two converts and a field goal by Moe Racine and a single by Bill Cline.

Before 18,450 fans at Winnipeg, the Bombers were down 20-0 in the second quarter but rallied to outscore the Tiger-Cats 26-1 for the remainder of the game.

Fullback Art Perkins scored two touchdowns for Winnipeg, one a 51-yard, pass-and-run play late in the fourth quarter. Farrell Funston and quarterback Ken Ploen also counted touchdowns for Bombers and Norm Wilson kicked two converts.

Hamilton's points came on touchdowns by Tommy Grant, Willie Bethea and defensive lineman Marty Martinello, two converts by Don Sutherin and a single by Joe Zuger.

Bills Remain Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sunday grabbed a key four-yard touchdown pass from Quarterback Jack Kemp in Buffalo Bills' 17-12 victory over Oakland Raiders.

The pass — the only one caught by Warlick during the game and only his eighth reception in four games this season—broke a 10-10 tie midway through the third quarter and kept the Bills undefeated in the American Football League. It was also the first touchdown pass in two years for Warlick.

In other games, San Diego Chargers remained undefeated by riding John Hadl's three touchdown passes to a 31-14 victory over Houston Oilers, Kansas City Chiefs' defense produced two touchdowns in a 27-17 triumph over Boston Patriots and Denver Broncos edged New York Jets 16-13 on Wendell Hayes' two - yard touchdown run with 56 seconds remaining.

Drysdale Faces Grant In Opener

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers, who has never lost a World Series game, and Jim Maloney of Grant of Minnesota Twins who has never appeared in one, will be the opposing pitchers in Wednesday's opener of the post-season series for the world baseball championship.

Drysdale will be working with nearly a week's rest. His last effort was a 4-0 triumph over Milwaukee Braves Thursday which extended the Dodgers' pennant-winning streak to 13 straight. A 23-game winner with a 2.78 earned-run average, Big Don pitched 308 innings during the regular campaign. The total is second only to Sandy Koufax's 335. He also hurled seven shutouts.

Grant, the Twins' leading pitcher with a 21 - 7 record, tuned up for the big one Saturday and was roughed up by California Angels. The overarmed right-hander was tagged for three runs in two innings and was charged with the loss.

Dodger manager Walter Alston said before his team departed for Minnesota today that he would use only three starters in the series regardless of how many games it lasted.

He had Koufax, his 26-game winner, primed for the second game in Minnesota Thursday. Southpaw Claude Osteen with a season 15-15 record will pitch the third game Saturday at Los Angeles.

KAAT CALLED!

Manager Sam Mele of the Twins was expected to start Jim Kaat, a left-hander, in the second game and probably Camilo Pascual, the erstwhile right-handed star in the third game. He also has Jim Perry, a right-hander, and Jim Merritt, a southpaw, at his disposal as possible starters.

Alston also said he would start the same lineup he has used all season. The only possible changes will be in the batting order.

The Dodgers, whose principal attack consists of a walk, stolen base, error and wild pitch, will enter the series with the lowest team batting average by a pennant winner in National League history. They finished with a team batting average of .245, yet won 15 of their last 16.

Dodger pitchers allowed only 17 runs in the last 16 games, which included eight shutouts.

The Dodgers hit 78 home runs, to rank last in the majors. They hit only 26 at spacious Dodger Stadium.

The Twins, noted for their power, added a new dimension this years. Reports have come back to Alston that the Twins employed a diversified attack in 1965, relying more than ever on speed on the basepaths. He has been cautioned to pay special attention to speed sters Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva.

Final Dates For Minor Registration

Close to 300 boys have registered thus far in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, Russ Soules said today.

Regardless of whether a boy feels he will be chosen to play on one of the all-star teams, or is planning to try out for the city's junior "B" team, he must register with the BMHA.

The final registration dates are Friday, Oct. 8th, 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, October 9th, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

No registrations will be accepted after October 9th. It is the general feeling of the executive Mr. Soules points out, that adequate time has been allotted for registration.

If a boy has a legitimate excuse for not being able to make it on these dates due to illness or just moving into the city he will not be denied the opportunity to play in the association.

Opening date for BMHA play has been set for Tuesday, November 2nd.

South Africa Team Winners

Player Wins Canada Cup Single

By JOHN FARROW

MADRID (AP) — Gary Player, 29-year-old South African, left Madrid today as the king of the golf links—the man who has won all the big ones.

Player won the individual title in the 37-team Canada Cup golf championship which ended Sunday by three strokes over defending champion Jack Nicklaus of the U.S., whose iron play in him down for the 7,096-yard, par 36-36—72 Club de Campo course.

"There's little left for me to conquer in golf," said Player.

He has won the United States Open, Masters, Professional Golf Association, the British Open, the World Series and now has added the Canada Cup to his list of triumphs.

Player's victory in the 72-hold individual Canada Cup tournament and his triumph with Harold Henning in the team tournament made Player the favorite to win the award as the Golfer of the Year.

Player dethroned Nicklaus with a four-round total of 70-69-68-74—281. That was seven under par for the sun-baked course.

Nicklaus, winner of the individual title for the last two years, wound up in second place with 71-72-71-70—284.

LEMA WAY DOWN

Nicklaus's teammate, Tony Lema, was way down the field with a total of 76-76-71-75—298.

The South African team won the team title—held for the last two years by the United States —with a total of 571, eight strokes better than second place Spain. Lema and Nicklaus came third with 587.

Knudson, 28-year-old leading Canadian on the U.S. Professional Golfers Association tour this year, shot a 71 Sunday and ended with a 291 total. He was tied for seventh place in the individual competition. His Sunday was one-under-par and the second time he beat par in the tournament. He shot a 70 on the tournament's first day.

Homenuik, 26-year-old Yorkton, Sask., native, shot a 73 Sunday and ended with a 294 total and a 13-place tie. His best performance was a one-under-par 71 Friday.

Errors, Injuries Helped

Summer Ended, Giants Too

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The end of summer brought the fall of San Francisco Giants.

Leading baseball's National League by four games with 12 to go, the Giants went into the sixth inning at Cincinnati Sept. 21 leading the Reds 4-1.

They came out of the inning trailing 7-4, the eventual final score. From that point on it was down for the Giants and up for Los Angeles Dodgers who clinched the pennant Saturday.

Four of the Cincinnati runs were unearned. With two runs in, two out and the bases loaded, Willie McCovey at first base fumbled Tommy Harper's grounder for an error allowing the tying run to wagon.

Vada Pinson's second hit of the inning drove in the final two tallies.

DROPPED SEVEN

To that point, San Francisco had won 17 of 18 games. From Sept. 21 on, they lost seven of 11 while the Dodgers dropped but one to clinch the flag.

During the slide, pitching ace Juan Marichal lost two starts and didn't finish another when he hurt his left thumb during the seventh inning of a game the Giants eventually won.

Errors plagued San Francisco in the later stages. In a five-game stretch from Sept. 26-Oct. 2, they committed a dozen errors.

Over - all for the crucial month of September, the Giants posted one of their best months, with a 21-9 record. It wasn't good enough. The Dodgers who had been 1½ games ahead Aug. 31, fashioned a 20-7 September with their winning streak at the end of the month.

The Giants fattened up through the season on second-division clubs, with a 40-30 record against them, but failed to come up to .500 against other first-division outfits.

Parsons Defeat Batawa

Belleville Parsons Cleaners defeated the Batawa Braves by 3-0.in a game played at Zwick's Island on Saturday. This win resulted in a 3 way tie for the last playoff spot in the 'A' series. Goal averages will decide the fourth spot between Parsons, Batawa and Smith Falls.

In a hard hitting first half both clubs failed to take advantage of good scoring chances.

Parsons took the initiitive early in the second half, a three way effort produced the opening goal. Crowle put Kleigl away, and his pass was slammed into the net by Alan Brown.

Terry Clough kept Parsons from scoring with some daring saves, but S. Kleigl made it 2-0, when a penalty shot was awarded against Batawa.

At this point only strong refereeing kept the game under control, play was very fast and rough.

With two minutes remaining in the game Steve Kleigl made it 3-0, heading home a free kick from Joe Iasenza.

Details of Parsons playoff games will be decided early next week.

Brown Sets Record

Williams Hero In Brown Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Colts' best defender against San Francisco end Dave Parks turned out to be the 49ers' Monty Stickles.

And, if that sounds confusing, consider Green Bay's Vince Lombardi, who was disturbed by the Packers' 23-14 victory over Chicago and the Bears. George Halas, who was defeated by it.

Furthermore, the hero of Cleveland Browns' 35-18 victory over Philadelphia Eagles wasn't fullback Jimmy Brown, who scored three touchdowns and set a National Football League record, but an unsung linebacker named Sid Williams, who caused a key fumble.

It all happened Sunday as Baltimore hung on despite Parks' brilliant performance and beat the 49ers 27-24, Green Bay scored its third straight victory but disappointed Lombardi and Cleveland came from behind to whip the Eagles.

Elsewhere, New York Giants outlasted Pittsburgh Steelers 23-13, Detroit Lions stopped Washington Redskins 14-10 and Minnesota Vikings topped Los Angeles Rams 38-35.

Dallas Cowboys visit St. Louis Cardinals tonight.

Parks caught nine passes for 231 yards and three touchdowns as the 49ers put on a late spurt against the Colts. He might have had a fourth scoring pitch but for team-mate Stickles.

Baltimore was leading 24-10 early in the fourth period when John Brodie lofted a pass for Parks, who was clear in the Colts' end zone. But Stickles, also out as a receiver, reached up near the goal and tipped the ball away.

"The pass was intended for Parks," San Francisco coach Jack Christiansen said later. "But Stickles was held up by the middle linebacker, and when he spun around and saw the ball coming, he stuck up his arm."

The Packers' third straight victory left coach Lombardi unimpressed though Halas was happy.

"We finally got out offence rolling and that's the first time we've done that in two years," he said.

IBEW Wins City Peewee Championship

Despite the cool weekend weather, the IBEW Pee Wees remained hot, to weep both of their weekend games from Sine's Shell and capture the A. & P. trophy with a 3 games to 1 series win.

On Saturday, it took a two run outburst in the 7th inning to give the winners a come-from-behind 5-4 win while on Sunday the scores was 12-7.

SATURDAY (3rd Game)
IBEW 5, Sine's Shell 4

IBEW led most of the way, scoring one in the 1st and two more in the fourth without a reply from Sine's. However, Sine's fought back with four runs in the sixth to take a 4-3 lead. That's how it stayed until the bottom of the seventh when the winners wrapped it up with a final pair.

Moe Thompson pitched the win. He gave up six hits while striking out five. He did not walk a man. Jeff Mason was the catcher. Peter Fralick with relief from Barry Cullen (4) and Terry Meagher in the seventh handled the loser's chore. They had seven hits in all while walking five and claiming nine on strikes. Gary Edwards was their catcher.

Mario Venutti paced the winners at the plate with a pair of doubles while Dean Lang had two singles. The other hits were contributed by Don Peterson, Jeff Mason and Art Wellesley.

Rick Meagher had a pair of singles for the losers while brother Terry had a double. Peter Fralick, Ralph Lepore and Gary Edwards chipped in singles.

SUNDAY (4th Game)
IBEW 12, Sine's Shell 7

Taking full advantage of 16 free passes, the winner jumped into a 4-0 first inning lead but trailed 5-4 after two innings. They tied it in the third and never looked back as they added two in the fourth, three in the fifth and a final trio in the seventh.

Moe Thompson again went the route for the winners. He gave up seven hits, struck out eight and walked four. Terry Meagher was the loser. He suffered control trouble throughout, walking 16 in all. He gave up eight hits and claimed eight on third strikes.

Mario Venutti again paced the winner's attack with a three run homer, double and three walks in five trips. Dean Lang and Moe Thompson each had two singles while Steve Burke and Jeff Mason also hit safely.

Graham Hill Wins 2nd Grand Prix

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) England's Graham Hill won his second Grand Prix of the United States in as many years Sunday by driving his BRM to a 12.5-second victory over Dan Gurney of the U.S.

Rain and mechanical trouble with world champion Jim Clark's 32-valve Lotus kept the average speed at 102.96 miles an hour for the 255-mile race. Gurney, driving a Brabham, was one minute and 15 seconds ahead of Australia's Jack Brabham.

Defeat Argonauts 25-8

NFL Castoff Leads Larks To Victory

By GARY McCARTHY

MONTREAL (CP) — J. W. Lockett is a National Football League castoff but his running and scoring ability have been a welcome addition to the Montreal Alouette backfield.

The 28 - year - old fullback scored two touchdowns Sunday in leading the Als to a 25-8 victory over Toronto Argonauts in the Eastern Football Conference cellar-dwellers, before less than 18,000 rain-soaked fans.

A heavy downpour started about an hour before the game, turning the field into a mud bowl.

Lockett, who now has 46 points in the EFC individual scoring race, was picked up early this season after being released by the Washington Redskins of the NFL.

The first of his two touchdowns Sunday came at the halfway mark of the third quarter on a one-yard plunge. He scored the final points of the game early in the fourth quarter when he skirted around right end and chased his own two-yard line fumble into the Argo end zone.

ARGOS SCORE FIRST

The Scullers opened the scoring early in the first quarter when halfback Let Sparks snapped up a 39-yard pass from quarterback Peter Liske.

Jackie Parker converted the touchdown to give the Argos a 7-0 lead with only five minutes gone in the quarter.

Five minutes later the Als tied the score when halfback Jackie Simpson recovered a fumble by Larry Ferguson on the Toronto 10-yard-line and romped across the goal line.

Pat Batten converted the touchdown, the only successful Montreal convert in four attempts.

The only scoring in the second quarter came when Montreal halfback Ed Learn was rouged on a wide field goal attempt by Argo Jackie Simpson.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney scored Montreal's other touchdown, using five plays before carrying the ball nine yards himself for a touchdown at the 2:17 mark of the third quarter.

The win—Montreal's fourth in 10 outings—leaves the Als in third place with eight points, four points behind Hamilton Tiger Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders who are tied for first place with 12 points apiece.

Anyone who thinks it's a sports car has been taken for a ride.

Our new Volkswagen fastback sedan can fool you.

When you take it for a ride, it corners and handles so well you might forget it's a family car.

But don't worry. You're not alone.

Even some sports car bulls are astonished at the way it performs. One enthusiast went as far as to say it handles a lot like a $6000 Porsche.

We just blushed.

Mind you, we can see how some of its features might give the impression our fastback is a bit of a sport.

Like 4-wheel independent torsion bar suspension. Bucket seats. 4-speed floor shift. Dual carburetor engine. And front-wheel disc brakes.

You don't normally find those things in a family car. Any more than you find a back seat in a sports car. Or 17 cu. ft. of luggage room.

Some sports cars barely have 17 cu. feet of sports car.

Our fastback sedan uses regular gas. Gets about 34 miles to the gallon. And goes to a Volkswagen dealer for service.

With features like that you really can't call our fastback a sports car.

Can you?

Book Sale By Women's Club Enjoyed

PICTON (Staff) — The annual book sale of the Picton University Women's Club, held on Saturday afternoon was reported a success. The sale is the fifth annual event and took place in the hall of St. Mary Magdalene Church.

Thousands of books of all kinds were on sale to greet the early shoppers at 2 p.m. when the hall opened. There were old books as well as new, fiction, non-fiction books of all types, children's books and paper-backs. By late in the afternoon all of the collection of books were sold and the other tables were beginning to look rather empty. Customers were seen leaving the sale with arms full of books, one customer was seen to buy a box full and to choose from it was diff cult to find anything specific. There were some orders book collectors present, looking for the treasure of a rare edition and no one lady said, "I thought I had looked them all over until I saw a friend leave with the very book I was searching for".

Greek Ship Still Hard, Fast on Shoal

PICTON (Staff) — The Greek freighter Prostatis was still hard and fast on the rocky shoal some two to three miles off Point Traverse on Sunday. All efforts to dislodge the ship on Saturday failed. The ship carrying scrap iron was east bound when she ran upon the shoal.

The tugs Herc. McAllister from Montreal and the sea going tug the Graeme Stewart as well as the small guard cutter Simcoe are standing by. It is expected that no further moves will be made until the ship can be lightened as she is reported damaged as a result of gale winds which whipped the 440-foot vessel on Friday.

Kingston marine consult..nt George L. Brough has been aboard the grounded ship since Friday and is expected to remain until she is dislodged.

The converted Liberty ship is the second to run aground off Prince Edward County within the past year and a half. The Star of Suez an Israeli vessel ran aground on Salmon Point in June 1964. The Prostetis is aground in approximately the same position at which the J. A. Cormet sank on July 10, 1949.

Diefenbaker Asks Mandate to 'Clean Up Mess'

CHATHAM (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker continued his campaign tour of Western Ontario today after telling a Saturday night audience that re-election of the Liberal government would be an invitation to wrongdoers.

Visits to several newspapers in the St. Thomas-New Glasgow area are to occupy most of Mr. Diefenbaker's daylight hours. In the evening he speaks to a meeting at Simcoe.

In the Memorial Auditorium Saturday, the Opposition leader appealed to any Liberals among the crowd of about 1,600 to support him so the Conservatives can form a government and "clean up this mess."

"You've got a government that lacks backbone," he said. "I put it as simply as that."

After La ving about Mike Banks, former Great Lakes union boss who jumped bail to the United States, and the central figures in the Dorion report on attempts to win bail for Lucien Rivard, Mr. Diefenbaker said there is a new kind of Liberalism now.

"These things did not happen in other days. If perchance the Pearson administration were returned what is the inducement it would be to wrongdoers," he said.

About "$50,000 or $60,000 for the Pearson brand of Liberalism" would have been paid had Rivard been released on bail, Mr. Diefenbaker added.

NO MORE CHANCES

"They will be no second chances. If the Pearson version of Liberalism were to win, the rights of your children and your children's children will be determined on a basis that is a contradiction of all the goodness and traditions of our past."

He also challenged Mr. Pearson to state whether he intends to proceed with the Fulton-Favreau formula for amending the British North America Act.

Earlier Saturday, in Windsor, Mr. Diefenbaker said he expects the federal government is trying to bring about lower automobile prices before the Nov. 8 federal election.

"I would think that the powers that be would be exercising that interest at the moment that might achieve the objective of reduced prices," he told a press conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who has accused the Pearson government of ignoring the interests of consumers, said it continues the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement, said earlier in the campaign he would not be surprised if prices went down before voting day.

But he had given no indication how this might be achieved.

Mr. Diefenbaker began his whirlwind tour of Ontario Saturday with 75 persons at a shopping centre. Watching on was Paul Martin, MP and top external affairs minister who represents the city riding of Essex East.

Real Caouette Raises Sceptre Of Communism

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette raised the spectre of communism and Canadian troops in Viet Nam at the official opening Sunday of his Nov. 8 election campaign.

Speaking to an often passive crowd of some 1,200 persons, the leader of Le Ralliement des Creditistes spent much of his time talking of life in Russia and Czechoslovakia "where working people are less well off than those living on social security here."

Mr. Caouette said President Johnson has asked Prime Minister Pearson for aid in the war in Viet Nam.

The Creditiste chief said the United States should "mind its own business and let the Vietnamese live their own way of life, as they are in Quebec and want to settle our affairs."

At a press conference Friday Mr. Caouette said the Liberals "called the federal election to gain a majority government so it could send 100,000 Canadian soldiers to Asia."

Mr. Pearson has denied that there is any truth to this statement.

Mr. Caouette said the Creditistes will form a strong Quebec group in the House and will "defend the rights of Quebec, for we don't want to harm anyone but we do want to work for our province."

The battle in Quebec, he said, will be fought between the Liberals and the Creditistes, "because the New Democratic Party and the Conservatives count very little or not at all."

The Creditiste leader said he will not make promises any newspaper in Quebec to obtain publicity.

He suggested that all party members write personal letters to their friends and families, asking them to vote for the Creditiste candidate.

"If the news p a p e r s don't want to write about us, we'll make our own publicity," he said, returning to a theme he has been dealing with in election campaigns of 1962 and 1963.

Large Crowd On Hand for Soap Box Derby

PICTON (Staff) — The Lake Ontario Cement Company sponsored their first annual Soap Box Derby in Picton on Saturday afternoon.

A large crowd were in attendance to watch the proud young contenders show off their homemade speedsters on Prospect Ave. hill. There was only one spill during the day's action's racing when young Ted Ross spilled his car going down the course.

Winners of the impressive trophies were, in first place Peter Thomas age 13, second Ted Ross age 12 and third Ricky Haris. Although the race was run under the auspices of the County all of the races were won by Picton boys.

Officiating at the race were members of the Cement plant staff, Wayne Ring, recreation director for the town, other interested citizens and Dr. Lion G. Dockrill, who reportedly is stated he will let his husband and seek nomination for the Liberal party candidate representing Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Good Western Last Vestige Of Symbol of Male Virility

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "In a good western, you'll find the last vestige of the symbol of male virility," said actor Chuck Connors. "It's the lone man overcoming obstacles and it's always got a lot of people identifying with the hero."

Connors was talking at the opening of television's new season and as the start of a very healthy western series called Branded. But less than 10 months before, the western as a popular television form had been pronounced dying if not already dead.

Thus, there were Gunsmoke and Rawhide on CBS, Bonanza and The Virginian on NBC and Wagon Train on ABC. But the diagnosticians were attributing their health to attractive stars, good scripts, happy locations on the evening schedules—everything except that circa-1870 old west locale, the horses, gun-play and saloon brawls that have become traditional ingredients since William S. Hart.

DARING MOVE MADE

In January, NBC replaced—with considerable daring in view of this widely-held diagnosis—a fading comedy series on its Sunday night lineup with a ripsnorting horse opera in the old tradition. It was Branded, a 30-minute adventure saga with Connors playing a roaming ex-cavalry officer cashiered—wrongly of course—for cowardice.

To the delight and surprise of many it immediately caught the public fancy and jumped the list of the top 20 shows.

Thus, this season the western is back, full of good health strong and all over the three networks. There are, in fact, 26 shows occupying 26 hours a week of prime evening time.

This new wave comes as a surprise to Andrew J. Fenady, the producer of Branded. In fact, in May, 1963, Fenady wrote an article for Variety, the trade newspaper, suggesting that obituary notices for The TV western were premature. He recalled that in 1993 western star Ken Maynard took a four-word advertisement in the same paper to proclaim "Westerns Are Not Dead."

His theory—like that of his star, Chuck Connors—is that the adventure, heroics background and all the trappings serve merely as icing on a very satisfying dramatic cake.

ROLE SUITED TO STAR

For Connors, a rangy giant of a man, Branded means a return to the type of role in which he is most convincing.

A former first-base slugger with the now defunct Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League, Connors leaped to stardom with the lead role in another western television series, The Rifleman.

Two seasons back, he had a short, unhappy experience co-starring in a contemporary cops-and-robbers series called Arrest and Trial. It tried to wrap up two integrated stories over a 90-minute period. Nobody cared much.

Pace-setter of Jet Set, Baby Jane Wants to Act

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Baby Jane Holzer, pace-setter of the international jet set, says she's going to work as an actress.

Which means that acting, long Out in high society, is now in. Jane jetted into Hollywood the other day and proclaimed in her fashionable little - girl whisper: "Now I'm going to like acting."

She wound up with a bundle of movie offers.

At 25 or so, Jane is the young woman whom millions of other women have been copying the last two years—down to her ess mane of hair, three-inch false eyelashes and hipstickless lips, to her boots and above-knee skirts.

Fifth Avenue stores ordered mannequins resembling her. Fashion magazines devoted whole sections to her.

"There were so many girls at Ondine's (a fashionable New York restaurant) the night I went up looking like me, that people I've never met would go up to the door and ask, 'How are you, Baby Jane?' "

SIGNED FOR TOUR

She was signed to guide a jet-set tour of New York for one television show (ABC's The Wild, Wild East, Nov. 9), and taped a Frank Sinatra-Sammy Davis Jr. television special (CBS, Nov. 24).

But not before taking acting lessons. Which may have put the kibosh of the other jet-setters who've toyed with acting.

Iran's Princess Soraya was passed by critics in her first movie. Princess Radziwill, Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, decided it was wiser to take acting lessons instead of accepting an offer in Summer Stock.

Baby Jane, "said Jane, 'is now, my acting roles have been so far off - Broadway, they've been practically underground."

Quarter Winds Up In Jail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Henry Jackson, Toronto Rifles' elusive quarterback in the Continental Football League, wasn't lost in the draft.

He wound up in jail instead.

Jackson, 26, was arrested in the Toronto locker room by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Wheeling, W. Va., while dressing for Sunday night's game against Wheeling Ironmen on a charge of draft evasion.

The FBI said Jackson was indicted in July, 1964, by a federal grand jury in Valdosta, Ga., on a charge that he violated the selective service act by failing to report for induction.

Jackson moved to Toronto in 1962 and three weeks ago became a Canadian citizen.

While Jackson languished in a cell, the Rifles won 13-10 behind substitute quarterback Bubba Marriott. Then they bailed Jackson out, posting a $1,000 bond. A hearing has been set for Wheeling Oct. 22.

Defeat McGill, Queen's

Blues, Western Win Openers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Art Froese and Bryce Taylor were the heroes as University of Western Ontario Mustangs and University of Toronto Blues won opening games in the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association football schedule Saturday.

Froese a halfback, ran for 196 yards, scored two touchdowns and kicked a pair of converts to engineer the Mustangs to a 33-20 upset over Queen's University Golden Gaels in Kingston.

The loss was the first in two years for Queen's against OIAA opposition.

Taylor put on another oneman show as the Blues dumped McGill University Redmen 28-6 in Toronto. A 205-pound quarterback who was to alternate with sophomore Vic Wozniuk, Taylor earned the position for himself by scoring two touchdowns, kicking four converts, completing 12 of 18 passes for 183 yards and guiding the Blues to scoring position on several occasions.

Froese took advantage of an injury - riddled Queen's squad that played with veteran quarterback Cal Connor on the sidelines nursing a shoulder injury he picked up in an exhibition game the week before. Don Bayne, a wingback, was thrust into the role of Gaels' quarterback.

Injuries to key players forced a severe shakeup in the Queen's defensive backfield as middle guard Merv Daub and defensive back Bob Latham missed the game with shoulder dislocations. They were joined early in the game by Don Smith, a rookie linebacker with a pinched nerve in his neck.

Quarterback Bob Israel, halfback Larry Burridge and defensive tackle Tom Beynon scored Western's other touchdowns. Robin Wearing kicked a 46-yard single. Heino Lilles, the league's top rush last season, ran for 134 yards and scored two touchdowns for the Gaels. Jamie Johnston gathered in an 11-yard pass for another and Larry Plancke kicked two converts.

Feel Like 100'

Sandy Was 'Dog Tired'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I feel like I'm 100 years old."

A weary, perspiring Sandy Koufax, speaking just a decibel above a whisper, confided that he had reached the end of his endurance when he retired Denis Menke of Milwaukee for the last out in the ninth inning Saturday.

The put-out by left-fielder Lou Johnson brought pitcher Koufax and the Dodgers a 2-1 victory and the National League baseball championship.

The brilliant southpaw, too spent to get out of his sweat stained baseball uniform, sat slumped in a huge four-by-eight in country western music. kitchenette alongside the commissary, where the rest of the Dodgers were celebrating their triumph by dowsing each other with champagne.

"I'm tired, very tired," Koufax murmured.

"I don't remember ever being so tired in my life. I don't believe I could have gone on any longer."

The Brooklyn native had just posted his 26th triumph, a four-hitter over the Braves, in which he struck out 13 and raised his season total to a record 382.

WALKED WOODWARD

But it had taken a double play to help him out in the ninth, when he gave up a hit to Mike de la Hoz. Then he walked Woody Woodward.

Manager Walt Alston came out to the mound to talk to Koufax after he had pitched one ball to Menke

"How do you feel?" asked the worried skipper, who knew, as did the 41,574 people in the park, that the Giants had defeated the Reds, pulling the pressure of winning on the Dodgers.

"I'm dog-tired," Sandy replied honestly. "But I think I have enough left to get this guy."

That was enough for Alston, and he ambled back to the dugout.

Canada Produced Surprise Hit in Toronto Symphony

LONDON (CP)—Canada produced one of the surprise hits of the first Commonwealth Arts Festival, which ended Saturday, with the Toronto Symphony acclaimed by London as one of world class.

The orchestra gave the last concert of the festival here Friday to an enraptured audience in the Thames-side Royal Festival Hall.

Sunday Times critic Felix Aprahamian says the orchestra's two London concerts "brought an unexpected element to a homely festival—orchestral virtuosity of the great international class."

Aprahamian gives lavish praise to the conducting of 29-year-old Seiji Ozawa—who less than eight years ago was dishwashing on a Japanese freighter—and says he has the potential of a "super-Karajan."

Ozawa's results with the orchestra after only one week's rehearsal, says the Sunday Times, "gives one cause to envy Toronto, for this is the kind of personality that can build up a regular faithful public."

Varied Program Brings Capacity Crowd to Tweed For Annual Fall Fair

That just about sums up the annual Tweed Fall Fair which Saturday was the centre of attraction for hundreds of Tweed and district residents.

Long time fair secretary, Mr. John Sager, who retired several years ago, along with Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East, officially opened the fair. Sunday was Mr. Sager's 86th birthday.

Also speaking briefly at the fair opening ceremonies were Robert Temple, Liberal member for Hastings South in the last federal parliament, and Lee Grills, PC candidate for Hastings South.

There was a big cattle and horse show, Tweed district 4-H clubbers held their achievement day and there was a full program of harness racing.

A feature of the fair this year was the commercial exhibit in the Tweed - Hungerford Memorial Arena, where new model cars and household appliances were shown.

Special features were items of historical interest, including a couple of mid-twenties automobiles, and household equipment of yester-year.

A big disappointment for the kiddies was the lack of a midway — the midway company scheduled to appear ran into financial difficulties and failed to show.

But filling in was the grandstand performance in charge of Lloyd Price. There was the ladies' nail driving contest; an old-time fiddling contest and children's pie eating contest. Davey Gibbs and his Country Hoppers, provided musical entertainment.

Of special interest to the ladies was the display of home cooking and needle work. The cheese show was an attractive exhibit in the same building.

Fruit and apple cider salesmen did a big business, while side attractions includgd a six legged flintstein calf shown by a Thurlow townsnp farmer.

Tweed Fair is never complete without a baby show. Saturday's show had approximately 20 entries. The show was in charge of Belleville St. John Ambulance officials, Mrs. Cannift Ashley and Mrs. Harold Reid.

Deaths of Five Are Linked To Gangland Purge

By RICHARD ABBOTT

MONTREAL (CP)—Five men have been killed and others may have been slain in an underworld attempt to block crime investigations, Quebec's justice minister said Monday.

Claude Wagner said two of three bodies found in recent discoveries already made public by police are those of persons "who were probably witnesses to or implicated in fraduient bankruptcies."

The minister, who has pushed investigations of fraudulent bankruptcies and related arson cases, said:

"It is very possible that we shall find six or seven other bodies in the Montreal or Quebec City regions."

He added:

"The purpose of these murders is to suppress proof or to ensure silence."

TWO MORE FOUND

He told a specially-summoned press conference in his Montreal office that two other bodies now are being unearthed in the same general vicinity as that in which the first three were found —the region south of Quebec City.

Four men are being held, said the minister, in connection with the killings but no charges have been pressed.

The three bodies already unearthed were found, covered with cement lime, in wooded swamp land near St. Gilles, 30 miles south of the provincial capital. They were discovered Sept. 24, 28 and Oct. 2.

Mr. Wagner said the fourth and fifth bodies are near St. Nicholas, 20 miles from the capital, and near Thetford Mines, 50 miles out.

Mr. Wagner declined to identify the slain men.

He invited those who might be involved in any way in fraudulent bankruptcies or cases of arson to get in touch with his department or the police immediately "before they get the same treatment as the others."

Rhodesian Parley Underway

LONDON (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith opened crucial talks with British government leaders today on his bid to preserve white rule in the central African colony.

Smith and other Rhodesian ministers met with British Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley to begin negotiations that were billed in advance as "final and conclusive."

Hanging over the conference was Smith's threat to declare independence for Rhodesia unless Prime Minister Wilson's administration guarantees the continuance of white rule there.

Wilson has said such unilateral action would amount to an act of rebellion against the British crown.

"Careful what you say about Smith old chap. There are so many of them."

Rebel Fighting Slackens

By JOHN CANTWELL

SINGAPORE (AP) — Reports from Jakarta today said organized rebel resistance in Central Java appears to have collapsed.

The reports, sent through diplomatic channels, said small pockets of rebel forces were still scattered throughout the central part of Indonesia's main island but these were believed to be ill - armed and poorly led.

The diplomatic reports said an American businessman, who was not identified, drove the length of Java in the last two days and found little fighting.

The American encountered rebel forces but found them friendly. He reported that many people he had spoken to in Central Java were supporters of Lt.-Col. Untung, the leader of the attempt last week to overthrow President Sukarno.

Radio Malaysia reported today that the army forces in control of Jakarta had begun a crackdown on Communists in the capital, arresting 200 persons. Without giving the source of its report, it added that 5,000 people at a rally in Jakarta had demanded that the Indonesian Communist party be banned.

CALLS MEETING

Jakarta radio announced that Sukarno had called a meeting of his political and military high command Wednesday at his summer palace in Bogor, 40 miles south of the Indonesian capital. The meeting was expected to shed some light on the murky political situation in Indonesia.

Earlier, the Malaysian government radio reported that fighting between government forces and pro-Communist rebels had broken out in sections of Central Java. The broadcast did not give the source of the information.

The army high command was reported to have ordered the loyal Siliwangi Division into central Java to clear out the rebels.

If You Wish To Be Brothers Let Arms Fall From Hands

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Pope Paul called on the United Nations Monday to bring an end to war and said disarmament is the key to world peace.

The peoples of the world turn to the United Nations "as the last hope of concord and peace," the pontiff told the 117-nation General Assembly, with only the Albanian delegation absent from the crowded blue and gold hall.

"If you wish to be brothers, let the arms fall from your hands," he said after thanking Secretary-General U Thant for the invitation to address the world organization. "One cannot love while holding offensive weapons."

The leader of the half-billion Roman Catholics around the world was escorted into the assembly hall by Thant, a Buddhist, and by Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani of Italy, the assembly president.

The secretary-general said in welcoming the pontiff that "it was the cause of peace—universal peace, for all men on earth,

Welcomed Home

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul came home today from the papacy's first transatlantic pilgrimage, a day-long mission of world peace and brotherhood.

Unlike his quiet departure before dawn 36 hours earlier, a ceremonious and enthusiastic welcome awaited the Roman Catholic pontiff.

without distinction as to race, religion, nationality or political belief—which led me" to make the invitation.

HISTORIC TIME

"That historic occasion has now arrived," said Thant. "It is taking place at a time when there is a renewal of confidence in our organization. It is a time, also, of grave dangers to the peace of the world."

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who was in New York to head Canada's delegation to the UN on this historic occasion, said after the address that it "could well mark the beginning in a new turn in world affairs."

"The Pope spoke not only as a head of a particular church but as a man of peace . . . a

Pope Returns to Rome After 14 Hours in U.S.

NEW YORK (CP) — With a "God bless you all!" Pope Paul returned to Rome today, leaving behind him eloquent pleas and prayers for peace that were heard by the envoys of nearly all the powers and dominions of this earth, and by a multitude of humbler citizens who cheered themselves hoarse at the sight of him.

A Trans-World Airlines jetliner bore the Pope aloft from Kennedy airport here at 11:30 p.m. EDT Monday night, 14 hours and three minutes after he had landed at the same airport on an Alitalia flight.

"We shall never forget this extraordinary hour," he said in farewell. An estimated 3,800,000, the greatest outpouring in New York City annals, had acclaimed his to-and-fro passage from one stirring scene to another.

In the chancelleries of the nations, powerful men weighed the impact of this white-clad wayfarer's impassioned summons to quit war and lay down their arms. So did plain citizens.

"We must make our own the cause of peace," he told a vast host of them, massed under the stars at Yankee Stadium. "Serve it!" He quoted his Lord, "blessed are the peacemakers."

In a swift, day - long round of unprecedented confrontations, with the great and the many, with President Johnson, and before the United Nations, he pressed that same urgent exhortation.

"If you wish to be brothers, let the arms fall from your hands," he implored the UN General Assembly. He challenged it to make real its noble

On disarmament— "If you wish to be brothers, let the arms fall from your hands. One cannot love while holding offensive arms . . . especially those terrible arms, which modern science has given you, long before they produce victims and ruins, nourish bad feelings, create nightmares, distrust and sombre resolutions; they demand enormous expenditures; they obstruct projects of useful and useful collaboration; they falsify the psychology of peoples."

On war and peace—"The blood of millions of men, that numberless and unheard of sufferings, useless slaughter and frightful ruin, are the sanction of the pact which united you, with an oath which must change the future of the world: No more war, war never again! Peace, it is peace which must guide the destinies of peoples and of all mankind."

Visit May Be Just What World Needs To Get Us Thinking How to Win Peace

PRESIDENT AND POPE CONFER — President Johnson gestures as he talks, with furrowed brow, to Pope Paul VI in New York's Waldorf Astoria hotel. The Pope appeared before the United Nations in his plea for world peace. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson says Pope Paul's visit to New York "may be just what the world needs to get us thinking of how to achieve peace and getting us to make progress in that area."

The Pope said he was extremely happy that his 50-minute private conference with Johnson Monday "revolved about a mutual desire to work for peace."

After the first meeting of a president and pope in the United States, the two world leaders invited five newspaper men to the living room of the presidential suite at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel to view a formal picture-taking session.

Johnson said he and Pope Paul discussed possible routes to peace and talked "in some detail" about current trouble spots in the world—India and Pakistan, Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and others.

The president said "we discussed . . . the great progress made by the United Nations in trying to provide help in these trouble spots."

The two men, who conferred prior to the Pope's address to the United Nations, also discussed efforts to fight illiteracy and disease throughout the world, the president said.

Dundas Street River Bridge Proposal Referred Back

Belleville city council will take a close look at alternate proposals before voting on whether to go ahead with the Dundas and Smith, consulting engineers, plan for a new Dundas Street river bridge and new street route up the Devil's Elbow Hill.

Decision on the matter was stated for yesterday's session of council, but after hearing more objection from one of the property owners involved, voted to refer the plan to the public works committee for recommendation.

The committee will be expected to take into consideration the Dundas and Smith plan for the new Dundas Street route up the Devil's Elbow hill, proposals by William Finkle and by Everett Black and any other proposals.

The Dundas and Smith plan for the street route up the Devil's Elbow hill would follow generally the present street route.

MUCH FILL NEEDED

This, however, would necessitate considerable fill at the bottom of the hill with result that retaining walls would be necessary and the Finkle Machine Shop and Black's property and properties would be denied access onto Dundas Street.

The Finkle proposal generally is to move the Dundas Street intersection at the top of the hill further west, thus allowing for an easier grade without the necessity of retaining walls.

The proposal would also entail moving the CPR tracks slightly south from their present location.

Local consulting engineer Anthony Lassing told council that from a layman's view of the proposal he felt that at worst it would be no more expensive than the Dundas and Smith proposal and at best might cost from 10 to 15 per cent less.

Ten days of council meetings heard the Dundas and Smith report and recommendation on the Dundas Street proposal, Alderman Donald Joss introduced a notice of motion calling for a reconsideration yesterday on the matter.

SOME NOT SATISFIED

But some councillors are still not satisfied that the Dundas Street project, to cost an estimated $1,140,000, was necessary.

One of these was Alderman Donald Whalen who said that he did not feel the city had a traffic problem warranting the bridge.

Other councillors felt the Dundas Street bridge would eventually be a reality but at the same time wanted all proposals considered, together with possible estimate of costs.

Mayor J. R. Ellis told council that Dundas and Smith felt they had covered and considered all possible alternate proposals for bridge and street route. Further studies would only result in high engineering costs.

Alderman Thomas Carruthers introduced the amendment calling for referral of the matter to public works. The amendment for referral carried by a 2 - 2 margin, with only Mayor Ellis and Ald. Joss dissenting.

CJBQ Manager Critical of Fowler Report

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) Frank Murray, president of the Central Canadian Broadcasters Association, said Monday privately-owned broadcasters will permit the industry to be "buried" in a mess of bureaucracy."

Mr. Murray, general manager of CJBQ Belleville, Ont., spoke at the 15th annual meeting of the CCBA. He made the statement; whiel commenting on the Fowler Committee report which recommended a single authority governing both public and private broadcasting in Canada.

The Fowler report contains severe criticism of some aspects of private broadcasting.

"We know from our own day-to-day activities that Mr. Fowler has displayed fantastic ignorance," said Mr. Murray.

"He has passed judgment without the possession of all the facts. We know, too, that Mr. Fowler had disclosed some truths that we may not find acceptable.

"Mr. Fowler may wish to destroy the whole structure of freedom in broadcasting," he said. "But we will defend the controlled freedom that has been obtained only after years of dedicated labor. . . ."

Mead Johnson Officials, Employees Presented With Flag of United Appeal

Mead Johnson of Canada Limited was presented with a Red Feather Flag from the Belleville United Appeal yesterday in recognition of the company's great efforts in past campaigns and with the hope they will continue to be such enthusiastic supporters of the campaign.

Tom Fell, presented the flag to Gerry Wishart, Vice-President of the Company at an informal ceremony in the plant in the presence of company officials and employees.

"On behalf of the Belleville United Appeal," said Mr. Fell, "I would like to present Mead Johnson, and more particularly the employees of Mead Johnson, with this Red Feather Flag.

"Mead Johnson is receiving this flag because of its excellent achievements in the United Appeal in the past. Last year 68 per cent of the employees gave, and the average gift numbered you among the leaders in industry in Belleville."

Mr Wishart told the gathering, "I assure you we will fly this flag proudly during this campaign. I am sure all of us are as proud as I am in accepting this flag.

"All of us as a group lived up to our citizenship responsibilities in the United Appeal last year.

Sometimes people say "I may never have to use these agencies, so why should I give.'

"I liken these agencies to the Fire Department. We hope we may never have to use the Fire Department's services either, but we must have them there in case we ever do require assistance.

"The agencies of our United Appeal are a part of our community life and without them our community would not be as good a place to live in as it is.

"For my own part, I have decided to increase my gift to the United Appeal because there are two new agencies in it now, and I hope everyone else will see clear to do likewise.

"To those people who in the past have not seen fit to give, I hope they will think seriously about the services the United Appeal provides and be guided in their final decision by full conscience."

Development Of Bay Front Is Advocated

A call for progressive thinking by members of city council with respect to development of the city's bay front Foster Ward area, was made yesterday at council by Alderman Donald Joss.

Alderman Joss made the plea as he withdrew a motion calling for a change in zoning for the Foster Ward area from the present district "E" (limited industrial) to district "B" (multiple dwelling rooming houses etc.)

The alderman said his original intention was to draw attention to the Foster Ward area which he said needed redevelopment making it one of the more beautiful districts in the city.

He said residents in the area were anxious and willing to help in the redevelopment of their area.

The bay shore, he said, should belong to the public and council should be thinking in terms of a bay shore drive along the waterfront.

McFarland Gets Paving Contract Of Pinnacle St.

Paving of Pinnacle Street is going to cost approximately $36,000 more than the original estimate, city council learned yesterday.

Subject to the Ontario Municipal Board and Department of Highways approval, the low bid of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company Ltd., for the paving job was awarded by council. The McFarland, the lowest of three received, was for $18,055.00 The higher than expected paving would increase the city's share of the project by about $16,346.

Several councillors felt the higher than expected cost was excessive and wanted to know the reason.

Alderman John Deacon, said there was no answer but pointed out Pinnacle Street simply had to have a base coat asphalt job done.

The tender called for a June, 1966 completion date, but Mayor J. R. Ellis said the base coat could be put down this year, as expected to be completed this year.

The June completion date for the finish coat would allow for any settling over sewer excavations, he said.

Social Welfare Costs Below Budget Estimate

Expenditures in the various city departments to the end of August have been fairly well in line with budget estimates but a reduction in department expenditures for the balance of the year will be necessary to ensure against an over all deficit.

This is the advice of city manager J. R. Reynolds in his budget report for city revenue and expenditures from January 1st to the end of August.

In his summary Mr. Reynolds reported that revenue of $3,497,621 to the end of August had exceeded expenditures by $537,444 despite the fact that a number of accounts had exceeded budget estimates.

Possibly the brightest spot in city expenditures was in the where costs have been low in social welfare department relation to budget estimates. The budget for this department was set at $298,031 of which, $140,450 had been expended by the end of August.

Mr. Reynolds said if the present trend continued, expenditures in this department would be substantially below the budget estimate.

Bev. Foster, second from right, vice-president, Belleville and District Real Estate Board, welcomes some distinguished guests to the third Annual Belleville Civic Night last night. Realtors Advised to Take Active Part in All Community Affairs

H. Peter Langer, blasted Canadian realtors for not taking more active part in community affairs, and also lashed out at those people who object to realtors being on planning boards on the grounds of vested interest.

"I believe that we all have a dual responsibility towards our community," Mr. Langer said, speaking at the third annual Civic Night at the Hotel Quinte last night, sponsored by the Belleville and District Real Estate Board to honor Belleville's civic leaders.

"As individuals we should assist in alleviating the misery, hardship and suffering of any of our unfortunate fellow man. You may do this individually, or, as members of the many outstanding service clubs and similar organizations. In this respect, your motives should be entirely unselfish, with no thought of material reward."

The speakers, who is director of the Ontario Housing Corporation, continued, "As members of a professional organization, we also have the responsibility to assist our community by offering our knowledge of matters connected with real estate. We have then, both a moral and practical obligation to take an interest in civic affairs, and in particular an interest in the affairs of our own local municipality."

Mr. Langer quoted William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, who said, "Every city has its striking monuments to the affluent society, but the common characteristic in this country is a sprawling patchwork of identical houses ringing a drab, a decaying city centre. To look at the average main street in Canada is to be looking at a running sore.

"I can not understand why business did not assign high priority to the problems of slum clearance and urban redevelopment, which are among Canada's most urgent problems."

Mr. Langer said, "Youth and every community throughout the country is faced with the problems of urban decay and blight. A report by the planning board of the City of Toronto informed city council that there are some 25 areas within the city proper which require immediate attention — areas which we may as well bluntly call slum areas.

"Many municipalities have become extremely concerned with these problems. But municipalities can not tackle this vexing problem of urban renewal on their own. Both the federal and provincial governments fully appreciate this, and recent changes in the National Housing Act, and enabling legislation promulgated by the Province of Ontario, are now offering all required assistance to those municipalities which want to undertake an urban renewal scheme.

MUST TAKE INTEREST

"Yet, you may well ask — with all this assistance available, how is it possible that suddenly the City of Toronto finds itself in an almost intolerable situation?

"Let me tell you what we in organized real estate can and should do, not only to alleviate these problems, but what we should do to try and avoid them before they get this far

"Just a little over a year ago, I finally convinced the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards that organized real estate must be take an active interest in such matters as urban renewal, new development and planning in its widest sense.

"You could be amazed how relatively few boards across Canada are holding Civic Nights. You would not believe how few boards or their members participated in municipal affairs — how many do not even have the slightest trace of communication with their municipal officials.

"I feel very strongly about municipalities calling on their local real estate boards for advice and assistance. Who could possibly know the real estate market better; who else has had the practical experience of selling or leasing properties; who better understands the economics of real estate than the local realtor who deals with these matters every day of the year.

"With all due respect to the planners, architects, university professors and politicians — who all have a proper place in urban renewal — do they have the practical experience? Do they know what rent the merchant will pay and where he will locate? Do they know what amenities the user of office space requires? Do they know where the investor is prepared to put his money?"

SHOULD SERVE

He told the realtors, "You should be prepared to serve on any board or committee established by your municipality, and your municipality should want you to serve on these bodies.

"There is one argument I have heard repeatedly from politicians - 'We don't want a realtor on the planning board. He has a vested interest and could take advantage of the knowledge gained on the board.' this is balderdash!

"What more advantage can he take than any other member — and I don't suggest either could take any advantage. A realtor could be a tremendous asset to any planning board.

"This worn-out argument reminds me of the time the redevelopment council of Toronto was formed. The Toronto Real Estate Board was very anxious to have a member of the board serve on that council — after all, our members are responsible for at least 90 per cent of the downtown redevelopment. But we got the same old argument — "A realtor might have a vested interest." But who do you think are the members of that council? Representatives of the big banks, insurance companies, Bell Telephone, Eaton's, Simpsons, and so on — in short, all the largest land owners in downtown Toronto — perhaps they don't have a vested interest!"

Mr. Langer spoke briefly about the Ontario Housing Corporation, pointing out it has cut red tape and is now building the much needed housing in Canada.

GUESTS WELCOMED

"There have been 12,000 low-rental housing units built in Canada in the past 15 years. We are going to provide 12,000 more in the first three years of our existence."

In other business at the civic Night, James R. Fox, president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board, welcomed the guests to the dinner.

Mayor Jack Ellis introduced the city aldermen present and presented a key to the city to Mr. Langer.

"Over the past few short years on Civic Night," Mayor Ellis said, "it has become the custom to present the speaker with the symbolic key to the city. Tonight, this key is especially deserved, because the speaker, over the past few months, has been so helpful to our council in development plans for urban renewal for the city of Belleville."

Ed. McKinney, secretary of the real estate board, spoke on behalf of the United Appeal.

"Both in real estate and civic affairs, we have to sell our product. There is a group of agencies in this city that need no selling—they are the 14 agencies which come to the citizens of Belleville in the form of the United Appeal.

"Tonight, therefore, as we pay tribute to you, our civic leaders, we ask you to use your leadership, influence and enthusiasm to make the 1962 Belleville United Appeal a success."

Besides the mayor and the city council, city hall officials, politicians and other civic leaders were also honored.

Mr. Langer was presented with a token of appreciation on behalf of Black Diamond Cheese, City Council and the Real Estate Board.

— JAIL CELLS BUGGED

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP)— The Hopkinsville police department moved Monday into its new $212,000 headquarters building including a jail with a microphone in each windowless cell. Police said any conversation, even a whisper, will be picked up by the microphones and transmitted to a radio room where an officer will be on duty at all times.

Mayor Jack Ellis, left, presents a symbollic key to the City of Belleville to Mr. Peter Langer, guest speaker at last night's Civic Night festivities held in the Hotel Quinte. James F. Fox, president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board, sponsors of the Civic Night, looks on.

Two Tenders Received But Not Opened

TRENTON — Tenders for the purchase of the Sidney St. armory site would be opened at last night's meeting of town council.

They weren't — for a very good reason.

The town had also asked for a tender on a small lot on Leopold Street.

Two letters, marked "tender for land," were received. Nobody would know until they opened the envelope which tender was for which.

Besides, the advertisement for the tender had read, "the lowest tender will not necessarily be accepted" — when it should have read "highest."

The town isn't now sure it wants to sell the armory site. Councillor Duncan McDonald suggested the town might want to use the land for a Home for the Aged.

When council gets all these matters sorted out new tenders may be called.

Meanwhile, nobody knows for sure where to return the unopened tender letters — or the name and address of the sender is inside the unopened letter.

Elmer Safety Flag Run Up At New School

TRENTON — At 9 a.m. today, the Elmer Safety Flag was run up on the pole at the new P. W. Carswell Elementary School on Reid Street. The 200 some students were lined up to watch the ceremony; principal Wayne Brooks and his teaching staff and the school caretaker were there also.

Representing the police department were Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, safety officer and Constable Jack Graham.

Sgt. Steenburg and Cpl. Johnson both addressed the students reminding them of the boost in keeping safety watching over the school. (Should a student from the school be involved in a traffic accident, the Elmer Flag is lowered, and this event generally leads to tears in the lower grades.)

Country Club Protests Move On No Parking

TRENTON — F. J. Aziz, president of the Trenton Golf and Country Club came before Trenton council last night to protest the recent approval by council of a traffic committee recommendation that on parking be permitted (up until 5 p.m.) on the north side of King Street between McColl Street and First Ave., directly across from the club.

Mr. Aziz said as parking on both sides of the street was allowed from McColl Street right down to the Division Street railway tracks, he felt the club was being discriminated against.

Some time ago, council forbade parking on the south side of King, also in front of the club. This, said Mr. Aziz, the 400 member club could understand, but the cutting off of parking on both sides of the street would cause great inconvenience to golfers and curlers alike.

Dr. J. V. Byrne, a club director, also attended the council meeting and said that he had been "appalled" when he heard of council's decision as to the north side of King Street.

Mr. Aziz was asked to attend the next meeting of the traffic committee, whose chairman is Councillor C. V. Graham, and take up the matter there.

Town Officials Are Unable To Find Reported Bylaw

TRENTON — What Trenton's mayor, James MacDonald described as a "cloak and dagger" affair was discussed at Trenton council last night.

A letter from the Pieton solicitors of ex-councillor Gerald A. Weaver - Ward and Mc-Laughlin, had been received previously, asking why the terms of a by-law, which the letter said had been passed "some years ago" had not been made public during recent reports of a dispute between Mr. Weaver and a local real estate firm, Fraser and O'Neil. The letter had pinned to it a newspaper report of the passing of the by-law referred to, which the letter said had been clipped from the local newspaper, the Trentonian. What issue of the paper the item had been clipped from, the letter didn't say. Accordant to the clipping, at some time, ex-councillor R. J. Whitley had requested the passing of a by-law, by the terms of which a property owner could open up an adjoining property in order to affect repairs to his land. The letter from the solicitors also asked that the firm be supplied with a copy of the council meeting at which the by-law was passed.

Since the receipt of the letter from the lawyers, town officials have been tearing the town office apart, searching for any possible reference to the council meeting—minutes from all meetings from 1956 to 1962 have been searched in vain.

"Council matters should not be conducted under the table," said the Mayor and McLaughlin letter. "this has a nauseating legal odor."

Yesterday, the mayor received a registered letter from the same legal firm. "As an answer to letter No. one must be sent by 12 noon, Oct. 6."

There's some question of secretion of records and willful non-disclosure." letter No. 2 said.

Yesterday, town employees renewed their efforts to find a back reference to the clipping. (It is understood the newspaper staff has denied any also to the fruitless search.)

Town solicitor Roderick Mc-Donald was asked to send a letter out to his fellow-solicitors.

"Let a solicitor answer a solicitor—it would only confuse the issue to let a layman answer it." — (Councillor Ross Hart.)

Mr. Campbell will assure his fellow barristers that "nobody is hiding anything."

"You should add that council will take legal action if it must before taking any more unmitigated abuse," said Councillor Paul Tripp.

"As for me, they don't scare me a d—— bit." Councillor Ross Burtt had the last word —at least, for the present.

East Ontario Key Clubs Attend Rally

TRENTON — On Saturday, 70 members of Kiwanis-sponsored Key Clubs from Eastern Ontario attended a rally, hosted by the Trenton Key Club. Mayor James MacDonald welcomed the delegates in the afternoon session when attended a business meeting and took part in a sports' program at the high school.

In the afternoon, the Key Clubbers, were taken on a tour of the air station and in the evening attended a banquet in the Red Lion Restaurant, E. M. Trayes Jr., a past lieutenant governor of Kiwanis was the guest speaker. The out-of-towners were also welcomed by Trenton Key Club president, Al Russell.

KICK OFF CAMPAIGN

Nostrand Sprague, secretary of the Trenton Lions' Club, attended a meeting of the Bowmanville Lions' Club last night to "kick off" the Bowmanville Lions' preservation week activity.

District chairman of the committee which is attempting to raise funds for the camp for the blind at Lake St. Joseph, Mr. Sprague showed the Bowmanville members colored slides of the camping activity this year.

On Oct. 14, Mr. Sprague will attend the Cobourg Lions' Club where he will be presented with a cheque for $2,000 for the camp. District Lions hope to raise more than $150,000 for the camp this year.

Street Light Offered by Councilman

TRENTON — Councillor Joseph Gould is a very kind man . . . when it comes to senior citizens.

At last night's meeting of Trenton council, he offered to put up a street light near the senior citizen's home on Wragge Street, at his own expense. . . if the utility commission can't see its way clear to do so.

The councillor said he had promised the residents of the apartment house to get the light up before daylight saving time goes out.

However, Mayor James MacDonald said he would do everything possible to get the PUC busy on the project.

"At the last commission meeting I got h . . . because they said council hadn't told them Burtdale lights had to be serviced with water mains, and they said they didn't even know where the V.P. Carswell school was located," complained the mayor "and then when you ask them to put up a few lights . . . they forget."

Mayor MacDonald added that he had finally proved to the commission that reference had been made to the Burtdale Heights development, when utility manager James Page went back in the minutes to 1962.

"Besides that, I told them they don't read the newspapers," said the mayor, making reference to the fact that thousands of words have been written and printed about the Burtdale Heights development and the new school.

Trains of the Future

The train has long enjoyed a reputation for safe and reliable transportation. True, railroads have often suffered from the vagaries of weather conditions with resulting derailments and loss of life, and there have been collisions, with similar tragic consequences. But by and large the train is one of the best ways to travel, and introduction of improved equipment and means of handling heavy traffic have increased the safety factor greatly in recent years.

And trains are very much a part of future planning. There has been the success of Canada's two major rail companies in improving their services and increasing passenger traffic on their trans-continental routes. There has been talk also of the eventual introduction of commuter-rail services in densely-populated areas such as eastern Ontario, serving Toronto and surrounding communities and extending to communities in the Seaway region.

Similar trends may be observed in the United States, where, according to U.S. News and World Report, new and fast train services are on the way. A federal program paving the way for such services has been authorized by both Houses of Congress.

The new trains are to make their appearance on major segments of the "corridor" route between Washington and Boston, via New York. The Pennsylvania and New Haven Railroads both plan to lure back to the trains thousands who now travel by car.

They will run at speeds up to 150 m.p.h. Coaches will be entered through sub-way-type doors and seats will be roomier than in equipment now in use. And the rail companies will borrow from the well-tried hospitality of the airlines, by introducing meal service for parior car passengers. Stewardesses may be employed Coach cars will have snack bars.

The journey from New York to Washington in one of the new trains will take no more than three hours, compared with 3 hours and 35 minutes for the fastest train now running.

New Highway Link

The 21-mile stretch of controlled highway between Watertown, N.Y., and the Thousand Islands bridge, opened last week in the presence of Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Candian government representatives, completes a direct link between the New York Thruway and Highway 401 on this side of the border.

Interstate Highway 81 now provides four lanes of uninterrupted travel from the bridge to Syracuse, a distance of 92 miles, and contracts to be let in the near future will carry the road farther into Pennsylvania. New York highway engineers say it is now possible to drive from anywhere on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway (401) to Manhattan with only four traffic lights along the entire route.

Governor Rockefeller said the new highway would increase contacts between the two countries and at the same time provide safer travel for highway users. "And even if it seemed trite, he made a telling political point when he said: ". . . we build roads across our borders, and the communists build walls."

Ontario minister of tourism and information James Auld pointed out there had been a 50 per cent increase in traffic across the bridge in five years, with 850,000 vehicles crossing this year. His estimate of some 1,700,000 vehicles would by 1970 is indicative of the continuing need of highway developments of this nature.

Teen Is Parish Clerk

Teenagers are forever in the spotlight. No one will leave them alone, they are pulled and tugged in every direction, observed, analyzed, hated and loved at one and the same time—but seldom ignored. Teenagers are a distinct group and a powerful one. Good and bad, hardworking and lazy, they are the people of tomorrow's world, the hope of the future.

Often the target of criticism, there are nevertheless many young people around like Carol Brown, who is 18 and lives in a small village called Lilley (population 477) in England.

Miss Brown, who is still at school, has just taken over the job of clerk of the parish council because none of the adults wanted the responsibility.

"I'm interested in local affairs and I hope some more young people will come forward to help out. There is a general apathy in the village—except for the complaints," she said.

Her predecessor, Gilbert Summerfield, 52, who resigned, said: "It's the most frustrating job you can imagine. You have to write at least half a dozen letters to get even the smallest thing done."

So good luck to Carol Brown and other teenagers like her. When you are young and are given a little responsibility it is amazing what can be achieved.

No Shortage of Cabinet Talent in Diefenbaker Camp

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So who might qualify for the new Cabinet if Opposition Leader Diefenbaker should become political history's second — Sir John A. Macdonald was the first and so far only — Conservative to get another chance as Prime Minister?

To hear the Liberals and the New Democrats, too, tell it, scarcely anybody.

"Who's left?" asks Transport Minister J. W. Pickersgill, still the Liberal hatchet-man. "Who's there after they did Dief in with the 'Palace Revolution' in his Cabinet?"

The answer to that — and it is not a pure or even an easy one, but a fact based on a careful day-to-day record of Parliamentary performance to be found in the word-by-word report of the Commons in Hansard — is quite a list.

A goodly and well - qualified few, at that.

In fact, many more than enough.

At the moment, Prime Minister Pearson has the biggest Cabinet of all the years and governments of the past: 24 men and Judy LaMarsh.

So where would Dief get 25 more and women to match when the Liberals still persist in calling their "Cabinet of the Multi-Talents," despite the changing way some of the more astonishingly accident-prone Members — like Finance Minister Walter Gordon, La Belle Judy and at least four of the Quebec Ministers — so often did flat on their faces?

And the answer to that, of course, is from all over, from every province and every corner of them.

ROLL CALL

Apart from what the election might surprisingly produce in instantly qualified gleaming new freshmen talent, the choice is widely varied and richly promising.

From Ontario, Mr. Pearson has nine Cabinet Ministers, including, of course, himself.

Then what is the potential of Diefenbaker Cabinet talent from Ontario. Well, if they re-election, how about these?

Former Cabinet Ministers Waldo (Heckle) Monteith of Perth, Michael (Labor) Starr of Oshawa, Dick (Citizenship) Bell of Carleton, (George) Hamilton Rees of Northumberland, Frank (Without Portfolio) McGee of Scarborough, Wallace (Trade) McCutcheon, now a Senator and on "list" song and safe — and such front and centre Tory backbenchers as Patty Whip Erik Winkler of Grey-Bruce, James McBain of Elgin, Alfred Hales of Wellington South, Jean Casselman Wadds of Grenville-Dundas, Richard Thrasher of Essex south, Wallace Nesbitt of Oxford, and Gordon Aiken of Parry Sound- Muskoka.

From the Maritimes, the Liberals have four Ministers.

In the Atlantic Provinces, the selection for Diet would offer former Solicitor General Leonard Brown of Newfoundland; Robert Muir of Cape Breton North and Victoria, Allan Cruose of Queens Lunenburg, Donald MacInnis of Cape Breton South or Robert Coates of Cumberland from Nova Scotia; former Premier Hugh John Flemming of Victoria-Carleton, Gordon Fairweather of Fundy-Royal, son of Saint John - Albert from New Brunswick; and former Fisheries Minister James Sinclair of Queens from Prince Edward Island.

TOO MANY, NOT FEW

And from British Columbia, Dief could tap two, three or perhaps four of these:

Former Cabinet Ministers Howard (External Affairs) Green of Vancouver-Quadra, Davie (Justice and Wards) Fulton of Kamloops, or Backbenchers George Chatterton of Esquimalt-Saanich, David Tuck of Okanagan-Boundary.

To match the two Pearson Ministers from the Prairies, Dief could select, he himself still representing Prince Albert, from among former Cabinet Ministers Douglas (Defence) Harkness of Calgary East, Alvin (Agriculture) Hamilton of Qu'Appelle, Walter (Northern Affairs) Dinsdale of Brandon-Souris, Gordon (Defence and Veterans) Churchill of Winnipeg South Centre, (Marcel (Veterans and Speaker) Lambert of Edmonton West, and such Backbenchers as Gerald Baldwin of Peace River, Eldon Woolliams of Bow River.

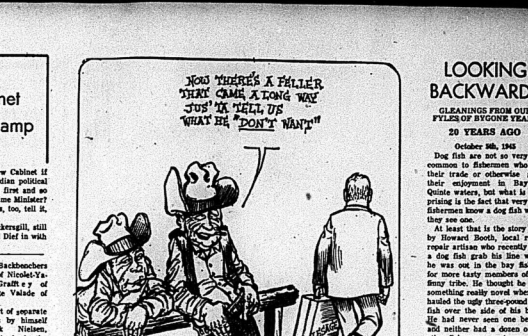
The Liberal Cabinet draws six Ministers, or 25 percent of the Ministry, from Quebec.

From this weakest of the Conservative flanks, Dief could recruit former Cabinet Ministers Paul (Mines) Martineau of Pontiac, Pierre (Defence) Sevigny of Montreal, Theo (Without Portfolio) Ricard of St. Hyacinthe-Bagot, and Raymond (Defence Production) O'Hurley of Lotbiniere and Backbenchers Clement Vincent of Nicolet-Yamaska, Howard Crafter of Brome and George Valade of St. Mary's.

Then off in a sort of separate geographical class by himself is Yukon Erik Nielsen, the Backbencher who broke the Garden Island scandal, a possible, even, some think, the likely nominee as Justice Minister.

Shortage of talent?

And just think, as Prime Minister again, Dief would be in a position to draft Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield.



China Builds On Its Youth

Ottawa Journal

Once more the schools have consolidated their grip on our young people. For a while in late August it may have seemed that order and purpose could hardly come to the young mass so wrapped up in having a "fun". But order and purpose there is now, perhaps even welcomed by the vast majority of young who have that they are in fact more in life to learn than the Top 40 Tunes or the art of loafing.

Even so, can we fail to note the contrast between our own youth and that of another generation? Consider the disturbing recollection left with Women's Canadian Club this week by Mr. Charles Lynch of his recent visit to China; that the teenagers were the great strength of China," were thoroughly proud of the new-China. Youth in China, he said, believe that the Chinese brand of communism is the system of the future and they are working at it.

This is the nub of the matter facing the world's future.

Putting it broadly, perhaps even in exaggeration, the situation seems to be that the West-ern democracies are uncertain of their youth and the Russian and Eastern Communist countries are building on their youth.

If Communist youth surges to rule a new world we cannot but be concerned about their future: for their youth has only the strength of an idea but has the fanaticism of zealots.

Then let us take the Dominion one step further: if youth is not building and creating and believing the fault must be largely in ourselves, the adults, for we have reared them and given them the world that disillusions them. If youth lacks faith or spirit it ill becomes adults to feel free of the blame.

Food Costs In Canada

Windsor Star

Food, especially for large families uses up a substantial part of the weekly budget. So all too often the high cost of living is blamed on food prices —even though the Canadian consumer pays a lesser proportion of his income for food than do consumers in most countries. Official statistics bear this out.

The truth of the matter is that the average factory worker with an hourly wage buys far more in food than it did 15 years ago. According to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, an hour's work now buys 9.8 loaves of bread instead of 8 pounds of beef against 1.9 and 4 dozen eggs compared to 1.7 in 1949.

The cost of food has risen 33 per cent in 15 years, while industrial wages have gone up 40 per cent and that of medical care by 76 per cent. And it must be remembered the farmer only gets a portion, sometimes a small portion, of the retail price of food. It has been said, for instance, that what the farmer gets for the vegetables or fruit contained in a can is less than the cost of the can itself.

Men Are Not Natural-born Killers

By Sidney J. Harris

In any discussion of the possible ways to abolish war from the world, one is always liked to hear a strident voice raised in the ringing declamation: "You'll never do away with wars — because men really like them."

There is not, and never has been, the slightest evidence for this statement. Anthropologists tell us that primitive man, in fact, far from being a fighter, was a peaceful farmer, fisherman and hunter — until his economic survival was threatened.

Nor is fighting an "animal instinct." The most ferocious animals do not kill each other, and hunt lesser species only for food. Darwin's "survival of the fittest" did not mean survival by combativeness but by adaptation to the changing conditions of the food supply. (Otherwise, the dinosaurs would have conquered the world, instead of perishing.)

The history of the human race offers more than sufficient proof that men do not like war. If they did, millions would not have to be drafted, and then carefully trained in sophisticated savagery. Armies spend many months and many millions in making loyal murderers out of average men who would rather switch than fight.

Even in the American Revolution, when the colonists were trying to overthrow a tyrant and establish self-government, Washington's most difficult task was getting and keeping enough troops on hand to meet the Hessian mercenaries hired by the British.

Men had to be bribed and paid increasingly large bounties — and still not enough volunteers were to be had. Washington complained to Congress that many recruits took their bounties and then deserted.

In the War of 1812 and the war with Mexico, three months' pay and 160 acres of land were offered to each recruit — and the results were disappointing. Desertions were also rife in the Civil War; and, in 1863, when Lincoln called for another 100,000 militia, only 16,000 responded, and the Union was forced to draft 26,000 men — of whom at least 25,000 were "substitutes."

Men may sometimes enjoy fighting to obtain release for their natural animal spirits, but they are not natural killers. In a well-run society, their aggressive drive is safely channeled into sports and other forms of non-lethal activities.

Wars occur because of national pride and economic rivalry, and it is a libel on the human race to suggest that we have a built-in "instinct" for wholesale homicide. Men may go to war for patriotism, or under compulsion; but no one in his right mind goes to war because he loves the smell of blood.

To Your Good Health

Surgical Menopause Cures Endometriosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you please explain endometriosis, what causes it, the symptoms, and treatment? — P. W.

We'll have to start with the endometrium. That is the inner lining of the uterus, and a very special type of tissue. In response to the cyclic variation in female hormones, the endometrium sloughs off, and then a new lining is created, ready for a pregnancy if one occurs. The menstrual flow represents the portions of the endometrium being discarded.

In some women, some of this tissue manages to get through the fallopian tubes and become implanted on the outside of the uterus instead of the inside.

However, it is still the same kind of tissue, and still responds to the monthly cycle of hormone changes, attempting to respond to sloughing off, but unable to succeed because of its location on the wrong side of the uterus. This is endometriosis.

The chief symptom is increasingly painful menstrual cycles, usually in women past the age of 35. The symptoms disappear after menopause, because the hormone cycle ceases then. Special hormone therapy is the usual treatment.

Removal of the ovaries (thus creating a "surgical menopause") and putting an end to the rise and fall of hormone activity), also will end endometriosis, but this is a measure to be avoided if at all possible. If a woman is close to menopause age, then there is less objection to the surgery.

Occasionally the implants of endometrial tissue are so extensive that surgery is necessary to remove them. But usually hormone therapy is sufficient.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 65 and very active in home and garden. My left leg from knee to ankle is practically black with varicose veins. Is it advisable to cut down on physical activities? Elevating my feet gives some relief. I enclose the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "How to Deal With Varicose Veins." — E. E.

A reasonable amount of activity shouldn't harm you, but be careful not to injure the skin area. Wounds don't heal well, and besides injury can make the original problem worse. Yes elevating the feet from time to time is known to help, and the reasons are explained in the booklet. Have you had your circulation tested by your doctor to see whether surgery would afford substantial relief? A supportive stocking will give you some relief while you are active.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has Buerger's disease which I understand is a circulatory disorder, since not known, but the condition is aggravated by nicotine.

You've known of this for five or six years. First he noticed the ends of his fingers turning white in cold weather and terrific pain when it began to get warm. This has spread from the tips of the fingers to the second or third joints.

He has been instructed not to use tobacco in any form, and he has stopped smoking for periods up to a year at a time. However, he always starts again.

What are the dangers of smoking? — Mrs. E. B.

The dangers are grave — not only the discomfort, but the risk of gangrene in the extremities. Nicotine causes the small blood vessels to contract, further interfering with the circulation which is already deficient.

Total abstinence from tobacco is an absolute "must" with this disease.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 5th, 1945

Dog fish are not so very uncommon in waters who ply their trade or otherwise get their enjoyment in Bay of Quinte waters, but what is surprising is the fact that very few fishermen know a dog fish when they see one.

At least that is the story told by Howard Booth, local radio repair artisan who recently had a dog fish grab his line while he was out in the bay fishing for more tasty members of the finny tribe. He thought he had something really good when he hauled the ugly three-pound dog fish over the side of his boat. He had never seen one before and neither had a dozen or so other fishermen sportsmen contacted in an effort to identify his catch.

Finally a bait dealer on South Front Street identified the specimen for him, stating that dog fish occasionally were caught in nets by commercial fishermen, although seldom with hook and line. They are stated to be members of the shark family with fins running the entire length of their backs and with tail somewhat like an eel. Their flesh is not edible.

N., whose home is a short distance east of Centreville Church in Sidney township, will leail Oct. 18 from Montreal for Liverpool on the first lap of her long journey. She will be one of a party being sent out by Canada's Sudan Interior Mission of Hamilton. Miss Ray is a graduate of the Belleville General Hospital and of the Toronto Bible College and has been active in missionary work in Ontario for the past three years. Miss Ray will be relating her experiences and showing animal spoils, but they are not natural killers. In a well-run society, their aggressive drive is safely channeled into sports and other forms of non-lethal activities.

Electorate's Responsibility

Hamilton Spectator

All things being equal, if one party's program or promises mesh identical to the voters, then presently government is be-for Canada. But to urge majority government for the sake of it is unwise and voters who allow themselves to be swayed by this argument alone will deserve what they get.

But now, more than any time in the recent past, Canadians need to think carefully. The key may be the individual candidate in each riding. With weak leadership and confused party alignment in this states looms unusually large and must be questioned and requestioned thoroughly until November 8.

WILLIAM Scoresby, the English scientist and Arctic explorer, was born 176 years ago today—in 1789. He made his first voyage at the age of 10, aboard his father's whaling ship, and was on board in 1806 when the Resolution reached 81½ degrees north, the highest latitude then reached by a freely navigating vessel. Scoresby gave up Arctic exploration when his wife died while he was on a voyage in 1822, and became an Anglican minister.

1939—The British airship R-101 crashed in France on its maiden voyage, killing 46 people.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—Russia and Bulgaria severed diplomatic relations; the resignation of the pro-Allied Premier Venizelos of Greece was forced by a political crisis; Bulgaria demanded the cession of Serbian Macedonia.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 32. Pound sterling was down 1-16 at $3.01 9-16.

John O'Flynn, right, General Chairman of the United Appeal, presents a brief to Mayor Jack Ellis, left, asking council's endorsement of the campaign. Brad Bradley, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce looks on. City council later officially passed a motion to endorse the United Appeal Campaign after hearing appeals presented by Mr. O'Flynn and Mr. Bradley.

Unanimous Endorsation Given United Appeal by Members of City Council

City Council yesterday endorsed the United Appeal, after a presentation on behalf of the Appeal by John O'Flynn, general chairman of the Appeal, supported by Brad Bradley, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Alderman Enos David moved the council, "endorse the United Appeal both by recommendation and contribution." His motion was accepted by all.

Mr. O'Flynn said to the council, "I am before you today hoping that you, as members of the Belleville city council, unanimously endorse this campaign. The funds being collected are for essential services provided in our area by the 14 agencies in the United Appeal.

"The record in Belleville is not something to be proud of. We have never reached our target and have fallen behind by about 20 per cent each year. Last year, in spite of raising more money than ever before, the sum of 585,867.54, we still managed to raise only 81 per cent of our goal.

"Are we aiming too high?

"Not according to comparative figures of campaigns in comparable municipalities.

"Are we putting enough effort into the campaign? We have approximately 800 volunteer workers. At this moment there are in-plant campaigns by hundreds of employees in our large and medium industries. The Kinsmen have canvassed the Front Street merchants. The R.C.A.F. are having a canvass of all members who live in Belleville. The entire business community is being covered, along with the civil service, professional groups, and the financial institutions, and a partial canvass is being carried out by those who would not be canvassed at their place of employment.

LONG WAY TO GO

"It would appear we are well on the way to a successful campaign, but we have a long way to go.

"The strength of the United Appeal is obvious — one campaign a year, the maximum use of a canvasser, the minimum use of his time, the total spread out among many, the most effective use of publicity, the minimum of expense and overhead costs, and most important, one gift covering 14 essential community services which can be spread out by way of payroll giving or pledging over the whole year.

"The weakness is the failure by many donors of keeping in mind their one gift covers 14 essential services, and the amount they give should reflect this.

"Last year we had 4,600 donors. This year we are looking for 2500 new donors.

"Gentlemen, can you afford not to support these agencies? Can Belleville afford not to have these services available now or in the alternative to have services limiting their programs and proper development of the services provided because of lack of funds that should be forthcoming from a prosperous area like the one we live in."

"Unsuccessful United Appeals do not enhance the City of Belleville's image. Why should an industry locate in a city where the citizens year after year do not fulfill their obligations to community welfare?

"You ask what can you do?"

GIVE GENEROUSLY

"You can give generously to this appeal, not just the minimum, but an amount that you would have given if canvassed during the year by staff agency.

"You, as leaders in the community, can assist by endorsing the campaign strongly and loudly among the citizens of Belleville."

Brad Bradley told the Council, "I am here as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, and on behalf of the officers, directors and members of the Chamber of Commerce, I am expressing our sincere interest in the community welfare.

"Therefore, we heartily endorse the United Appeal and all it stands for. We therefore urge all the citizens of Belleville, and the Council as the community leaders, to wholeheartedly support the United Appeal."

were in Central Java: Col. Suherman, commander of the Diponegoro Division; Air Vice-Marshal Omar Dhani, the pro-Communist head of the air forces and Lt. - Col. Untung, leader of the coup last Thursday.

Radio Jakarta claimed that many men of the Diponegoro Division had surrendered to the government forces, heeding appeals by the former division commander, Maj.-Gen. Sardini, to remain "loyal to the ideals of the republic."

The army's new chief, Maj.-Gen. Suharto, accused the air force of "mercilessly" killing the former army chief of staff —Lt.-Gen. Achmad Yani, an anti - Communist — and five other army generals.

The mutilated bodies of the six generals were found in a common grave near an air force base just outside the capital. They were buried with full military honors today in Jakarta's war heroes' cemetery.

Quinte Pupils Attend Drama At Stratford

By ROSALYN VAADEN

A long day, but well worthwhile, was the verdict of a bus load of Quinte students who attended the last performance of the season of Henry IV, Part One, at Stratford on Saturday.

The bus left at 8 a.m. and stopped at Newcastle and Kitchener on the way. The students arrived in Stratford at 12.30 and ate lunch in the beautiful park in which the theatre is set. The performance did not begin until 2 p.m. so they had plenty of time to feed the famous swans and explore the grounds and river bank.

The interior of the theatre is hexagonal, with a dome shaped ceiling. There is no scenery on the stage, which is just above floor level, and any essential props are carried on by extras. The actors come on from three ramps from below the floor, or four entrances at the back of the stage. There is also a trapdoor set in the centre of the stage, which caused quite a stir when first used by Prince Hal.

Before each performance, trumpeters play a fanfare at the door to warn latecomers, since no one is allowed in after the doors are closed. The production of the play presented quite a different face on the image of Shakespearean plays from that which some of the students had had. They were all in stitches at the antics of the incredibly fat Falstaff and the contortions of the inn staff and carriers.

After the actors had taken their bows, Tony Van Bridge (Falstaff) came back and, amidst much laughter told the students the purpose of the theatre and answered any questions about the play. He even undid his shirt to show us his foam-rubber stuffing.

The students returned home around 11.15 p.m., with a greater appreciation of Shakespeare and drama in general.

Fire Prevention Week

A siren wailing in the night . . . a sickening scream . . . a child crying for help . . . death!

Not very pleasant things to think about, but they are real happenings. Frightfully real.

Last year alone, 596 people died in Canada from fires, and 200 of them were children.

Just think of it — 200 children, dead.

This is Fire Prevention Week, time when the terrific waste caused by fires to human lives and human resources hits the spotlight. But this week is only a reminder of what we should be thinking of all the time.

Fire consumed over $147 millions in property last year in Canada. What a staggering figure . . . a terrific waste.

And what is worse, most of the waste could have been prevented, just as most of the lives lost could have been spared.

Firemen will tell you how often parents stand over the charred remains of their homes and their children and sob, "We only left them alone for a few minutes."

Part of the problem is actually a social problem.

Many of the deaths are in the homes of the underprivileged, people who often are forced to live in one-room shacks, or fire traps, with their large families.

People often tend to be unsympathetic towards cases where the underprivileged persons are involved. "They shouldn't allow people like that to have children," is the oft-sung phrase.

They ignore the fact that most people caught in a situation where they have to live in a fire trap with their families do not do it out choice. They do it from force of circumstances.

And even all this aside, the terrible truth is that children are forced to live this kind of existence; forced to get along by themselves while their parents are out; forced to live in a dangerous shack.

It is shocking indeed, and being told as we are that while it is Fire Prevention Week, it is also United Appeal time.

And if you have ever said, "Yes, it is sad, but what can I do about it?" then the United Appeal provides at least a partial answer. How to do it question.

But what about the other deaths? What can be done to cut down deaths in the other areas of society — the areas where it is not an economic circumstance but just plain carelessness. (Not that I am excusing the underprivileged for being careless, but too often they have very little motivation to care about anything.)

Let us forget about the lives lost through fires for a moment — of course, if a life that was dear to you was lost, forgetting it for even a moment would be impossible.

Looking at the economics of fires, the average cost of a household fire has doubled, from $400 to $800. In industry, many factories destroyed by fire are forced out of business and never open again. How can you assess fire loss if this happens?

But with the cost of fires growing, and the number of fires increasing, insurance companies will go up. Even if you never have a fire in your home, or never have a member of your family lost in a fire, you are still hit by fire, through your insurance rates.

There are many things you can do to prevent fires. Make a check list of hazards in your home or office. Look for rubbish and trash accumulation, missing doors to basements and bedrooms, flammable liquids improperly stored, painting materials and oily rags, congestion in storage or work areas, combustibles too near heating devices, evidence of careless smoking habits, defective chimney and smoke flues and pipes, electrical circuits overloaded, improper fusing, gas appliances unvented, excessive use of extension cords, defective wiring, building maintenance, unsafe rubbish burning and gas leaks or odor.

Also, in case there ever is a fire, have an escape route planned.

Fire prevention is in everybody's best interest. Don't let yourself, your home or your family go up in smoke. They can never be replaced.

Council Agrees to Rezoning Of Area for Medical Clinic

After months of on and off discussions, city council yesterday finally agreed to the rezoning of lots 200 and 202 Dundas Street, East, which would allow the operation of a medical clinic in the area.

The application for re-zoning from Dr. H. F. Williamson was before council several weeks ago and had been referred to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board for recommendation.

Two weeks ago the Planning Board recommended the application be not approved, but council decided the matter to allow Dr. Williamson to appear before council to explain the intended use of Dundas Street property.

Yesterday Dr. Williamson said he had purchased the Dundas Street property on the understanding that the area in all probability would be re-zoned to allow a medical clinic.

He said it was still his wish to rent office space in his building to other doctors although the original parties were no longer interested.

Dr. Williamson told council that he wanted to be able to do this legally without the necessity of establishing residence. He said, however, that if it was necessary, he was prepared to establish residence.

Following discussion council turned down the Planning Board recommendation to deny the re-zoning and passed a new motion to allow the requested change.

first said to be that of a woman, but there was no indication of that from Mr. Wagner, who Monday made reference only to men.

In August, Revenue Minister Eric Kierans of Quebec released a report which said fraudulent bankruptcies in the province had cost his department "as much as $1,500,000 a year" in lost taxes since 1959.

The report said there were bankruptcy rings connected with the underworld. The method was to form a company, buy goods on credit, sell the goods and then dissolve the firm, though the process varied with different rings.

One ring had a string of 60 companies in its operations, the report said.

Russian Girl Who Knew Many Foreigners Gets Rough Court Treatment

BY JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—This is the unhappy story of a Russian girl who knew too many foreigners.

Her name is Galina Stepanova Petrovskaya, but she likes to be called Ingrid. She even had some cards made up inscribed Ingrid Von Gross.

Clad in slacks and wearing dark glasses, she hangs around Moscow's Ostankino hotel and restaurant, where she meets a succession of foreign men, mostly tourists. She fraternizes with them and some give her money.

The hotel management becomes suspicious. Investigation shows that she is well known at restaurants and hotels frequented by foreigners.

Police, checking on her background, find that she was born into a respectable family. In recent years, though, even her parents despaired of her dissipated way of life. "We think nothing can help her," they say. "It is necessary to send her away. . ."

After an "educative" talk with police, Ingrid promises to try to mend her ways. She moves to Tsiolkovskaya, 15 miles from Moscow, but usually she comes bored with rural life and moves back to the city—and into her old routine.

LOOKING FOR HUSBAND

Though 32 years old, she does her best to look youthful and beautiful, wears foreign clothes and continues to cultivate foreign acquaintances, obviously looking for a husband; her first one left her a long time ago.

Authorities decide to publicize Ingrid's case as a warning to other Soviet girls who might be tempted to follow the same dissolute path.

After the details are published—in the newspaper Vechernya Moskva (Evening Moscow)—there is an outpouring of wrathful indignation.

"Petrovskaya brings shame on all Soviet women," write 67 female employees of a Moscow fabric factory. "We demand that she be sent from Moscow."

"Petrovskaya disgraced the honor of Soviet women," somebody else writes.

"Such people should be disgraced," argues still another, a female student.

A laconic one-paragraph item in Vechernya Moskva tells of Ingrid's fate. Tucked onto the end of the protesting letters from outraged womanhood, the item relates that the "Petrovskaya case" has been heard in Dzerzhinsky district people's court, Moscow.

"Witnesses and documents completely confirmed that she lives a parasitic, anti-social life.

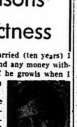
"The court sentenced her to be sent from Moscow to a special region for five years with obligatory physical work."

Hundreds of Muscovites present at the court session applauded the sentence.

Successful Living
Husband Imprisons Wife With Strictness

DEAR DORIS: Ever since we've been married (ten years) I have not been allowed to go anywhere or spend any money without a fight. Even when I am working myself he growls when I spend a little money, but I don't listen as I'm earning it myself. He pays the mortgage.

The crisis came recently when my uncle died. We had always been very close so naturally I wanted to go to his funeral. Being unable to get time off from work my husband was unable to go. I would have gotten a ride there and back for probably nothing but would need a few dollars just in case something would happen.



DORIS CLARK

When I mentioned going he said I couldn't afford the money. Of course I ended up home. I was heartbroken. He spends more in a couple of days on liquor than it would have cost me to go.

When one of his relatives died some time ago he lost a day's work to drive his sister, free of charge, to the funeral, just as far as I had to go.

I feel like a . . . . . PRISONER.

DEAR PRISONER: What folly! He could bind you to him far more closely by letting you go. No one persists in having warm happy thoughts about a person who kills their personality. No matter how much you try, your regard for your jailer will wane.

I'd suspect you are clashing in other ways too, and really need personal counselling to support your side of things and to help him see the light. Seek this help where you are and don't give up the ship until you have tried everything. But refuse to be subdued.

DEAR DORIS: The problem I'm writing you about keeps growing; it's my hair. I refuse to get it cut and a pony tail hurts my head.

I have dark brown straight hair (it's to the middle of my back.) The top of my hair is cut shorter and I keep it curled while the rest hangs straight. I would curl the sides and ends every night but it's so heavy the curl won't hold and I've tried a perm in the ends and it still won't stay curled.

With school starting I want my appearance neat, this being my sophomore year. I was wondering if you have any ideas for long hair? — LONG HAIR.

DEAR LONG HAIR: You aren't the first Young Hopeful who treasured her lengthy tresses to the point of desperation. It hasn't struck you yet that after a couple of years you'll chop it all off and wonder why you waited!

I have consulted an expert hairdresser about you, nevertheless. She says long thick hair with blunt ends will just never hold a curl. It is too heavy. It should be thinned out and tapered, then permanently waved for the last six inches. All by a skilled hairdresser. It is still be hard to keep neat. She and I both strongly recommend that you at least shorten it to shoulder length.

Confidential to MORTIFIED MOLLY: No reason why you shouldn't send a brief note to give him your new address. Might say: "This is just so that if you feel like it some time, you might give me a ring."

Don't be so completely foolish as to tell him you will try and change for him. Nobody wants you to get down on your knees and apologize for nothing! He is treating you casually. Return the compliment.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Guidance Is Topic for IODE Meet

MARMORA — "Guidance as applied to present day education" was the subject chosen by Mrs. Charles Brady at the last meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. She explained how various tests assist the teacher in working with students.

The potluck dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. Helen Maynes was presided over by the Regent, Mrs. G. J Meikle-John.

A centennial project for the chapter is to be a poetry contest on a local or historical subject. The contest, open to any Marmora student attending Marmora or Madoc High School, will begin this year and conclude June 1st, 1966. Prizes will be $10 and $5.

Mrs. Mel Borland, convener for services at home and abroad, will be in charge of the rummage sale in October. She reported on the assistance given a needy family during the summer months.

I.O.D.E. members were canvassers for the blind this week.

More Responsibility Placed On Inmate Says Prison Head

BEDFORD HILLS, N.Y. (AP) "The biggest thing we've done is eliminate fear," says Mrs. Lillian V. Fish, superintendent of New York State's only women's prison.

In her three years as head of Westfield State Farm, Mrs. Fish related, "We have instituted a consistent program of discipline, we've placed more responsibility on the inmate, and we let them know in advance when a change is due."

The 204 - acre complex, 40 miles north of New York City, costs $2,500,000 a year to operate. About 250 persons are employed at Westfield, which houses a reformatory as well as the prison.

There are about 245 women in the prison, which can accommodate 325, and this is the reformatory, which can house 262.

Each arriving inmate has an interview with Mrs. Fish or the deputy superintendent.

MEETS INMATES.

"It's important for the girl to see who is in charge and to know we have a personal knowledge of her case," Mrs. Fish said.

Elected representatives of the inmates meet weekly with a staff member. Personal interviews also are granted.

"I want to handle the gripes before they explode," she said. "The biggest problem with running an institution like this is getting a well-qualified staff. By that, I don't mean educational degrees. I mean the right attitude of mind.

"It might be easier to run a cell-block prison where you lock and count, than an open institution like Westfield, but we can accomplish more with a treatment program."

For some inmates, Westfield is a better home than they have ever known.

"The majority of our population come from the most socially - deprived background," Mrs. Fish said. Few even have a high school diploma.

GIVEN TESTS

Each new inmate undergoes a two - week quarantine during which she is tested by a doctor, dentist, psychiatrist, psychologist, guidance counsellor, police officer and chaplain.

Pregnant girls receive an additional problem. Nine per cent of those admitted are pregnant and of these only one-third are married.

Westfield has a nursery for 50 babies. The mother decides whether to keep the baby or put it in a foster home.

Westfield inmates who score lower than grade 5 level must take an academic program. A high school equivalency course is offered, and last year 64 girls graduated in four formal caps-and-gown ceremonies. Six illiterates were tutored individually. Courses given at the prison and rehabilitory include secretarial skills, beauty culture, industrial sewing, laundry, arts and crafts and restaurant work.

Inmates are allowed one beauty appointment every three weeks.

Reforms May Improve Lot Of Czech Girls

BRNO (AP)—Details of economic reforms have been disclosed, and visitors to this pleasant city hope they'll improve the lot of Czechoslovak girls.

Dresses generally have no style and the colors hurt the eyes. Dominant are loose pink sweaters and baggy pants for the girls. The Brno lassies are supposed to be famous for their figures, but you would never know that by looking at them now.

With the shortage of some consumer goods, smugglers from neighboring Austria have a field day. The main line of the racketeers is in textiles, from nylon hosiery to raincoats.

With economic reforms, giving managers a freer hand and larger incentives to workers, the Communist government hopes to get production up, prices down and quality higher.

Key industries are to be reorganized, with a "profit system" to serve as a yardstick to the profitability of industrial enterprises and to help weed out unprofitable plants. But personal profits will be limited to bonuses for efficiency.

Furred Styles Show New Ideas

Coats and suits for fall wear for in unusual ways. Notable is the advance of the fur-lined coat and, to some extent, the fur-lined suit.

Linings "spill over" to form fur collars, or the entire coat may be reversible from fabric to fur. And the once bulky look of the fur-lined coat has vanished. The linings are deftly shaped to maintain a line nearly as slim as that of an unlined coat.

SOAP SAVER

Dear Susanna: I have noticed on several occasions that you have given ideas for nylon necklaces. Here is an original one of mine which has proven to be very popular. I call it my soap saver.

Cut a piece of nylon net about 6" by 12". Then tie up loosely with bit of bar soap and are delightful for the skin when bathing.

SUSANNA

SOAP FOR TEANS

Dear Susanna: There are certain T.V. programs through the week I really look forward to seeing, so I made a deal with my mother. On special nights she allows me ½ to 1 hour T.V. watching time, depending on how heavy my homework is and how much I buckle down to it, but I must agree to iron in return while I'm watching. Since I like ironing anyway, it works out great. I'm happy, mom's happy, and I really concentrate on getting through my school work because of what's in store later. — Mary Jane Carter

Jacqueline Kennedy Getting Into Social Swing

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—When the Maharaja of Udaipur was on a rare visit to the U.S. a year ago, Mrs. John F. Kennedy invited a few close friends to her apartment to meet the man who had been host to her at his lake and elaborate palace during her India tour in 1962.

It was a small, quiet event. But his highness Bhagwat Singh of Mewar was reluctant to mention it because he feared the public might criticize the mourning-wife of the late American president.

Last month, 22 months after her husband's assassination, the beauteous young widow shrugged her gloom. She began to bloom again by giving one of the most spectacular private parties of the year. Her public had no audible criticisms. Only applause.

This time Mrs. Kennedy was free to do the Indian theme up really big with a party honoring the former U.S. ambassador to India, Canadian-born John K. Galbraith. It began at her home, gathered momentum as it moved to Asia House for an Indian painting exhibition, and wound up as a directoire party she called Galbraith A-Go-Go.

In Boston two evenings later, a more sedate Mrs. Kennedy in shimmering silk formal wear reigned over the opulent 85th birthday charity ball benefitting the Boston Symphony.

On both occasions her presence magnetized the throngs—the press, sometimes unkay, but never critical public. There was no hint of her old shyness, no reticence at the size of the ogling crowds.

Poised and self-assured, she made her way through the blinding flash bulbs, the flurry of waving hands, seemingly pleased by affectionate shouts of "Jackie, Jackie."

"I think she realizes she has an identity of her own now," said one dowager in the Boston receiving line.

Outside that New York restaurant where her Indian a-go-go party was swinging, an elderly lady, catching glimpses of Mrs. Kennedy on the dance floor, said, "It's about time she was having some fun."

Only the young waiters in the restaurant could find any fault with the new Mrs. Kennedy. They thought she could use a lot more practice with the new dance steps.

FAVORITE PUMPKIN PIE

Yesterday I gave you a recipe for Golden Pumpkin Buns. It called for 1½ cups strained pumpkin. I suggested that if you bought a 28-oz. can of pumpkin you could make a pumpkin pie too.

I have a splendid recipe for pumpkin pie given to me to try by Nora Gilmer. You may remember her pickle recipe, tested by me and given here on August 19th.

Nora's pumpkin pie recipe is for 2 pies. I reduced the recipe and made 1 pie which was custardy yet retained the sweet spiciness we all expect in our Thanksgiving dinner dessert. (See Thanksgiving Dinner Menu tomorrow).

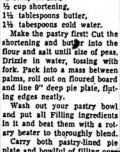
2 small eggs,
1 cup light brown sugar,
½ teaspoon salt,
½ teaspoon ginger,
½ teaspoon mace or nutmeg,
½ teaspoon cinnamon,
1½ cups milk,
½ cup 18% cream,
½ teaspoon flour.

Pastry: 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour,
½ teaspoon salt,
½ cup shortening,
1½ tablespoons butter,
1 tablespoon cold water.

Make the pastry first! Cut the shortening and butter into the flour and roll out the pie crust. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork. Pack into a mix between palms, roll out on floured board and line 9" deep pie plate, flute edges and prick.

Wash out your pastry bowl and put all Filling ingredients into it and beat with a rotary beater to thoroughly blend.

Carry both pastry-lined pie plate and bowlful of filling over to the stove. Have oven preheated to 450 deg. Fahr. (Be sure top burner is turned off.) Pour filling into crust without overflowing it and carefully place at centre of oven. If any filling is leftover add it 10 minutes later when you reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 50 minutes longer or until filling is barely set at centre.



Lamb Stew with Vegetables and Dumplings; Individual Lettuce Wedge Salads with Roquefort Dressing; Fruited Jelly; Lemon Cupcakes; Coffee.

AMOUNTS OF PUMPKIN PIE FILLING FOR THREE DEEP 9" PIES

4 cups strained pumpkin (Note: you can make one 28-oz. can stretch for 3 pies),
4 large eggs,
3 cups light brown-sugar,
1½ teaspoons salt,
2 teaspoons ginger,
1 teaspoon cinnamon,
1 teaspoon mace or nutmeg,
4 cups milk,
1 cup 18% cream,
1½ teaspoons flour.

Colourful Fall Finales

From across the ocean comes a wonderful combination for a big meal with fruit and cheese in place of a heavy dessert. Happily it's one we can easily adopt here. An arrangement of plums, pears, peaches, pears and apples accompanied by an assortment of delicious cheese makes a colorful finale and mighty good eating too, this time of year.

Simple Teamwork

Flavorwise it's simply a matter of teaming up one of the many types of cheese now being made in Canada with a complimentary fruit. A world of discovery awaits, as you mix and match to suit your own individual taste.

Pears A-Plenty

Try ripe juicy pears with rounds of Camembert Cheese. Served at room temperature, Camembert has a soft runny center that's just right for spreading on pear slices or, if you prefer, on crisp crackers. And yes, do eat that thin grayish crust as well.

For the Blue Cheese Fans

Apples and Cheddar Cheese are always favorites, but very the pattern this month. Dip apple wedges in lemon juice so they won't discolor, then arrange around a wedge of Blue Cheese—the kind you crumble into salads.

A Delicious Pair

While homegrown pears are at their best, serve them with Brick Cheese and medium cut. Originally you could always identify this cheese by its "brick" shape, but now it's sold in blocks or slices of varying weights for your convenience.

Don't Miss Swiss

With the sweet nut-like flavor of Canadian-made Swiss Cheese goes tangy orange or tangerine segments. Cut it into cubes or fingers for easy eating at dessert time.

Cheddar is Champion,

No introductions are necessary to our world famous Canadian Cheddar Cheese, the year-round partner for all fresh fruits. Nowadays many manufacturers age it carefully so it reaches us at peak flavor and texture. "Old" cheddar (aged at least a year and rated premium prices, however both "medium"; aged about 8 months, and "mild", aged at least 2 months, have their devotees! Try them all this October Cheese Festival Month.

Exciting Work But Sometimes Is Dangerous

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—The Stan Hustons are responsible for first aid along 1,100 miles of the lonely Alaska Highway.

It's exciting work but sometimes dangerous, Mrs. Huston told friends on a visit here.

"I once travelled on snowshoes for five days through the bush to reach an Indian woman about to have a baby."

With her only equipment a pair of scissors, Mrs. Huston delivered the baby with the help of an Indian midwife.

She persuaded the family to leave the bush following the birth, and five of the children were found to have tuberculosis.

"The father blamed the sickness on my interference," she said.

Despite its problems, both the Hustons love the north. "We couldn't live in this hot south country of yours very long."

Girl Needs Friends And Psychiatrist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old girl whose parents want me to do something I consider cruel. Please advise me.

My best friend who is also 18 tried to commit suicide yesterday. I don't think she really meant to kill herself. She is a smart girl and she'd know how to finish the job if she really wanted to. I think she was only seeking attention.

This girl is attractive and lives in a lovely home and has plenty of money to spend. She's always had trouble with her parents. They give her money and gifts, instead of love, and she resents it.

ANN LANDERS

My folks say I must stop seeing her because she is not right mentally and she might attack me. They also say it will hurt my reputation if I go around with her.

My friend tells me things she could never tell anyone else and I know it helps to get things off her chest. She needs me more than ever now. What shall I do? — TORN.

DEAR TORN: Your loyalty is admirable, and I agree that it would be wrong to abandon the girl completely. Nonetheless, you should loosen the lines. Your friend is unstable and the attachment could be destructive to both of you.

She should be unloading on a psychiatrist. Urge her to get that kind of help.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem that I have never heard of in my whole life and I'll bet you have never heard of it either.

I'm 16 years old, a good student, better than average looking and I have plenty of dates. So what's the problem? My mother. She wants me to get steady, and I don't want to.

My mother was born in Europe and she came here at age 19. This may account for some of her odd ideas. She says it is not decent for a girl to date five or six different fellows. According to her it means that the boys pass the word from one to the other that she's an easy mark and they are all having a good time with her.

I tried to explain that the chances for getting intimate are reduced when a girl goes with many boys rather than with one. She said, I'd rather have the girl get intimate with one nice boy than go with every boy in town."

This shocked me. What is your problem? — DAZED.

DEAR DAZED: I hate to tell a girl that her mother is wrong — so I won't. I'll just say I don't agree with her.

People who were raised in another country often have ideas which are different from ours. Mark it up to a foreign culture and stick to your own ideas.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I read your column every day and we are tired of letters from married people who fight all the time. We thought you might enjoy hearing from a blissfully happy couple for a change.

Richard and I have been married for 13 years and we have eight beautiful children. We are as much in love today as we were the day we got married. We think we have discovered the secret of a happy marriage and we want to share it with the world. Here are the rules we live by:

1. Always kiss each other good night no matter how bad an argument you may have had during the day.
2. Always kiss each other before leaving the house.
3. Work together and play together.
4. Whichever one asks for a divorce must take the children. In closing I would like to say we don't have much money but we feel like millionaires. — MRS. R.K.B.

DEAR MRS. B.: Your letter was so sweet I decided to scrape off the chocolate-marshmallow sauce and print it.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hastings Patrol Wins Area Leadership Contest

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment added another feather to its cap of achievements over the weekend.

A regimental patrol commanded by Lieut. Mike Evans won the Eastern Ontario Area Initiative and Leadership competition at Petawawa.

Lieut. Evans' patrol defeated all units between Oshawa and Ottawa in a gruelling 13-hours' competition which started at 3 a.m. Saturday.

The patrol will represent Eastern Ontario Area in the Central Command competition between all units in Ontario slated for Petawawa October 16 and 17.

The regimental unit captured the handsome trophy symbolic of the championship from the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, which have held it for the past two years.

It defeated such units as the Princess of Wales Own Regiment of Kingston; the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Regiment of Cornwall; the Lanark and Renfrew Regiment of Renfrew; the Brockville Rifles; the Governor-General's Foot Guards of Ottawa; the 50th Field Regiment RCA, Cobourg and the Cameronn.

Colonel T. de Faye, MBE, Co., Eastern Ontario Area Commander will present the trophy to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment patrol and Lieut. Evans in a special ceremony at the Bridge Street armouries Thursday evening.

In winning the award Lieut. Evans roused his 20-man patrol in pre-dawn darkness and headed into "unknown territory" armed with FN rifles and grenades.

It established a base in "enemy country" and sent out its own patrols, one of which took a "prisoner."

Overcoming enemy resistance the patrol captured a truck after 25 miles of cross-country navigation.

GROUP-CAPT. W. E. LEE

Various Ways To Boost Appeal Are Described

Twenty-nine different methods of getting the message of United Appeal across to the people of Belleville were passed on to local Rotarians yesterday by Group-Captain William M. Lee, special assistant to the Minister of National Defence.

They include not only the press, radio and television but the following media: telephone, word of mouth, information kits, brochures, photographs and cartoons.

In brief, the message must be put across to the entire community, representing people of many different occupations, interests and background.

Group-Captain Lee, who in addition to his job at the defence department is active in Community Chest—United Appeal Work, urged Belleville to get behind the appeal in a "total community effort."

AVERAGE GIFT LOW

He said the city's objective of $127,900 for the 14 agencies involved was a realistic one, representing a per capita donation of about $4. Last year Belleville raised $85,000, not quite $3 per capita, which he said compared unfavorably with other centres. For instance, Peterborough's per capita contribution was $4.20 and Fredericton's $3.67. Other centres had also exceeded Belleville in the per capita contributions.

"Last year, in Belleville, only 13 per cent of the total population donated to the United Appeal," said Group-Captain Lee. "This is not good enough. Until more people realize the true value of the United Appeal and support it with their donations you will never have a successful campaign."

"The citizens of Bellville don't realize that your objective must be increased each year as new agencies join the United Appeal, and as the responsibilities of the member agencies increase. The problem together can be solved in one way, and one way only, and that is by generating a greater community spirit, and a greater awareness by the general public to the needs of the United Appeal," he said.

MUST BE UNDERSTOOD

Group-Captain Lee said that because the general public was congnizied of so many different categories of people, with many different occupations, cultures, levels of education and values, likes and dislikes, the Appeal must have the means of getting its message across so that it would be understood by all.

"This is not an easy task . . . but for a campaign to be effective and successful it must be accomplished," he said. "All the people connected in any way with all 14 agencies have a duty to fill in the gaps to clearly know how they were serving the interests of the community. And not only to do it not just at campaign time but all year round."

In addition to representatives of the local United Appeal campaign and other service clubs, the guests included Mayor Jack Ellis, who introduced Group - Captain Lee. He was thanked by Jack Deacon.

Rotary club president Ernest Burnham presided.

Mr. Harold Bonter (second right) local apple grower, is discussing the varieties of apples with Mary Moore food columnist and Dorothy Batchellor McKinnon home economist, guests at the reception dinner, along with agricultural representatives Walter Rutherford (second left) and Morley Webster (extreme right.)

Need for Apple Industry Promotion Stressed at Dinner for Tour Guests Of Ontario Growers' Association

By ALICE STICKLE

"The apply industry is here to stay," concluded Mr. Arthur Kemp of Burlington, president of the Ontario Vegetable and Fruit Growers' Association as he spoke briefly along with other head table guests at an Apple Growers' Association reception dinner held at Sun Valley Motor Inn, last evening.

The event was arranged by local grower Harold Bonter of Carrying Place and Irwin Colliwill of Newcastle with assistance from agricultural representatives Walter Rutherford and Morley Webster. Tour directors were Rae Perigoe and Patricia Taylor of Prusentation of Canada, Ltd.

Those present along with the various growers, co-op managers and processors were distinguished personalities from the various newspapers, magazines, radio and TV, and representatives from the Ontario Department of Education and the Canada Department of Agriculture, along with a number of home economists including local home economist Dorothy Batchellor MacKinnon of the Poultry Products Institute. Also present was Mary Moore, well known food columnist, who has her columns published in 14 newspapers.

WELCOMES GATHERING

A brief reception period took place previous to the serving of a tasty beef dinner. Grace was said by Mr. Kemp and Mr. Bonter welcomed the guests and expressed appreciation to the growers, packers and cold stores for their co-operation. He also introduced head table guests and these included Irwin Colliwill, agriculture representative; Warden F. Beckett who brought greetings from Hastings County; Warden Barney Hepburn who gave a warm welcome from Prince Edward County. Mayor J. R. Ellis of Belleville, although having a previous engagement, arrived and brought greetings from the city. Other brief addresses were given by Norris Whitney, M.P.P., who recommended the purchase of locally grown farm produce, and by Mr. Russell Rowe, M.P.P., of Northumberland, who maintained that advertising does pay off as there had been a per capita increase from 17 to 22 pounds of apples consumed.

Other head table guests were Rae Perigoe who along with Patricia Taylor from Presentations Limited, Toronto, were directors of the tour; also retailer Don Watts; packer and exporter T. Knight; Arthur Kemp of Burlington, and Van Vlack, apple representative from the Picton area and Clifford Phil Flagler who concluded the speech making with a few humorous remarks.

The walls of the banquet room were adorned with many posters recommending the use of apples and their many benefits. It was stressed by all concerned that for the benefit of the apple industry everyone must keep up with the times and through promotion and education educate the public to use more apples. Each of the tables was graced with a large bowl of popular apple varieties.

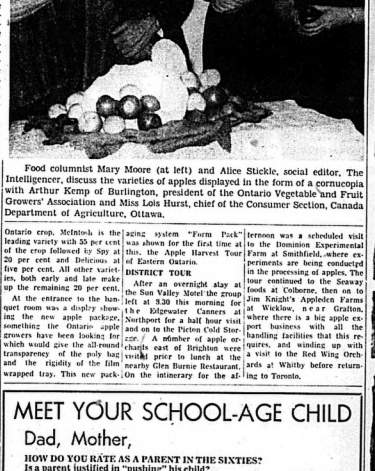
APPLE PRODUCING AREA

It was noted in a pamphlet distributed in the gathering that the north shore of Lake Ontario from Toronto east and including the Bay of Quinte district is one of the major apple producing areas in Ontario, with slightly over 6,000 acres bearing trees. Production in this area averages about 1,600,000 bushels, approximately ⅓ of the Ontario crop. McIntosh is the leading variety with 35 per cent of the crop followed by Spy at 20 per cent and Delicious at five per cent. All other varieties both early and late make up the remaining 20 per cent.

At the entrance to the banquet room was a display showing the new apple package, something the Ontario apple growers have been looking for which would give the all-round transparency of the poly bag and the rigidity of the film wrapped tray. This new package is gaining favor. "Form Pack" was shown for the first time at this, the Apple Harvest Tour of Eastern Ontario.

DISTRICT TOUR

After an overnight stay at the Sun Valley Motel the group left at 8.30 this morning for the Edgewater Canners at Northport for a half hour visit and on to the Picton Cold Storage. A number of apple orchards east of Brighton were visited prior to lunch at the nearby Glen Burnie Restaurant. On the itinerary for the afternoon was a scheduled visit to the Dominion Experimental Farm at Smithfield, where experiments are being conducted in the processing of apples. The tour continued to the Seaway foods at Colborne, then on to Jim Knight's Appleden Farms at Wicklow, near Gratton, where there is a big apple export business with all the handling facilities that this requires, and winding up with a visit to the Red Wing Orchards at Whitby before returning to Toronto.



Food columnist Mary Moore (at left) and Alice Stickle, social editor, The Intelligencer, discuss the varieties of apples displayed in the form of a cornucopia with Arthur Kemp of Burlington, president of the Ontario Vegetable and Fruit Growers' Association and Miss Lois Hurst, chief of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Martin quoted Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as having described Pope Paul's speech as "one of the most important statements ever delivered in the General Assembly".

U.S.—Ambassador Arthur Goldberg said the American people are deeply gratified that the Pope, by his visit and his strong appeal for peace, has strengthened the efforts of the United Nations in this vital work."

MORAL RATIFICATION

The Pope said "we might call our message a ratification, a solemn moral ratification of this lofty institution," and then he added: "Allow us to congratulate you for having had the wisdom to open this hall to the younger people, to those states which have recently attained independence and national freedom."

"Their presence is the proof of the universality and magnanimity which inspire the principles of this institution," he added. "So it must be."

Speaking on the subject of birth control, the pontiff told the delegations:

"Respect for life, even with regard to the great problem of birth, must find here in your assembly its highest affirmation and its most reasoned defence.

"You must strive to multiply bread so that it suffices for the tables of mankind, and not rather favor an artificial control of birth, which would be irrational, in order to dominish the number of guests at the banquet of life."

oath: "No more war, war never again!"

The 39-year-old leader of the world's 500,000,000 Roman Catholics brought his visit to a solemn and emotional end Monday night when he celebrated mass in the cold open air at Yankee Stadium before 90,000 persons were present.

He told the huge gathering: "This day is that which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad today! This is the day which we have desired for centuries. . . ."

In a brief sermon during the mass, the Pope told the throng he wished to leave in their hearts a stronger desire for peace among men.

"Peace be to this house, to this continent, and to all those who inhabit it," he declared.

"You must serve the cause of peace," he pleaded," . . . and not make use of it . . . as a cover for cowardice or selfishness, for which refuses to make sacrifices for the common good . . . ."

Vote on Sunday Movies Dec. 6, Liquor Votes Moved to Nov. 22

Municipal voters in Belleville this year will have another opportunity of voting on whether they want Sunday movies.

The vote will be held in conjunction with the December 6th municipal elections, but the originally planned plebiscite on two liquor questions scheduled for the same date, will be stepped up to November 22nd.

Mayor J. R. Ellis told council that on consultation with the chief electoral office it was decided that holding the two liquor plebiscites in conjunction with the municipal elections would be just too complex.

He said that separate voting lists corresponding to federal lists would be necessary, while separate polling books would also be called for.

So it had been decided that holding of the liquor plebescite on municipal election day was simply impossible.

IRELAND'S PROVIDE NEW ADVANTAGES

Jack Ireland announced today that the official opening of his new location at 390 Front Street will take place on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Although Ireland's have been doing business in this store since the first of the month, the official opening was delayed until old stock could be sold and new merchandise placed on display.

In this store Ireland's can offer a new, low overhead operation and can sell high quality, name brand merchandise at the lowest prices in town. Located just south of the upper bridge, there is much less traffic congestion and more parking which means easier access to the store. In addition, Ireland's have provided FREE PARKING behind the store for their customers.

Mr. Ireland believes that these two factors — low overhead and ample parking—will mean greater customer satisfaction and increased business.

To help acquaint the public with the facilities at this new location, Canadian General Electric and Jack Ireland are cooperating in this grand opening. Special values will be offered on appliances, televisions, stereo and furniture with numerous free gifts.

Watch for Ireland's advertisement in tomorrow's paper and be sure to visit their new store at 390 Front Street — just south of the upper bridge.

Students to Vote

VANCOUVER (CP)—University of British Columbia students will be allowed time off to go home to vote in the Nov. 8 federal election, Dr. John MacDonald, university president announced Monday. The move would solve the voting problem for about 2,000 to 2,500 out-of-town UBC students who otherwise would be barred from voting because of a residence clause in the Canada Elections Act. They were not in residence at the university when the election writs were issued.

Roy Cadwell, Madoc, Liberal Candidate for Hastings-Peterborough

By HARRY MULHALL

MARMORA — Roy Cadwell, an articulate lawyer and author, last night was commissioned the latest Liberal man-o'-war to besiege the Conservative Gibraltar of Hastings-Frontenac.

But his first party broadside against the Tory stronghold may have been spiked by a soft-spoken veteran Liberal campaigner who later admitted now having thoughts about running for the NDP.

The dramatic turn of events was caused by William Shannon, reeve of this village, county councillor and thrice a plucky besieger of this well-sigh Conservative stronghold. And, the roots of the incident may be traced back to Prime Minister Pearson.

However, last night William Shannon went onstage before his fellow Liberals to express his pique against an attitude by Tories and Grits which, he claimed, left his hometown riding ignored by senior governments.

The crux of the bitter political paradox was this, he said:

The riding was so safe for Conservatives that when in power they took it for granted. When a Liberal government ruled — the riding was politically intransigent.

"How long can this needy area of Hastings-Frontenac afford to be forgotten by all political organizations and where does lie the road of recognition for this very needy area," he queried delegates at the convention?

AWESOME CHALLENGE

Hastings-Frontenac is an awesome challenge to any Southern Ontario politician. Thinly populated, it sprawls over an estimated 10,000 square miles from close to Peterborough almost north of Kingston and south of Stirling. Only once since Confederation has it returned a Liberal MP — in the 1930s — and Reeve Shannon is among the list of unsuccessful Liberals, who have tried to turn the constituency at each election.

He fought first against the late Sidney Smith when the minority Diefenbaker government sought a safe riding for its External Affairs minister. Mr. Smith's sudden death after a brief tenure of office cast the reeve against Rodney Webb, who inherited the Conservative tenure.

Reeve Shannon recalled to the convention his fruitless attempts at election in those campaigns as "so alone... giving everything of myself, everything I had, knowing that victory was most unlikely."

Last night he arrived from directing a council meeting while the convention was in progress at Marmora hall. He was scheduled to introduce guest speaker Pauline Jewett, now fighting for re-election in Northumberland against former trade minister and 1963 Conservative Party rebel Gorge Hees.

Before introducing Dr. Jewett he launched his attack against senior-government acceptance of his riding, to the detriment of its development.

"The riding, he said, "had been forgotten by both Liberal and Conservative regimes."

He recounted the shutdow of Deloro Mining and Smeltin Company, add uranium mine at Bancroft; the riding's need industry; the departure of it young people; the difficulties o residents to meet education needs of their offspring.

Admitting he was using th occasion to express his views, the Marmora reeve added: "My message here is for any politician to work for Hastings-Frontenac because we can't have a continuance of the world passing us by."

He said he felt "almost forced to direct my efforts in-any channel" to bring economic aid to the riding.

FELT BETRAYED

In 1963 he had claimed Prime Minister Pearson had personally promised him the Liberals would aid the ailing uranium industry — once the wonder-industry of the riding — if the party was elected.

Later the Prime Minister was queried on this in the House and had denied making the promise, said Mr. Shannon.

"I think if he'd said that day 'I'm sorry but it's not economically possible to keep those mines open' but that he'd made a promise to the candidate (for Hastings-Frontenac) I would have no feeling of being betrayed.

"But I did feel betrayed."

Asked if he had been approached by any other party — say the NDP — to stand in the riding, Mr. Shannon replied:

"Yes I have . . . and I'm considering it but I've not made a decision.

"But whether I do or not I think it's time for this Hastings-Frontenac to get up on its high horses."

His earlier remarks onstage were noted by Dr. Jewett who said the federal government in the last two years had striven to encourage area development.

However, this was on a regional basis and furtherance of the program relied on provincial governments to break it down into local patterns.

"The Ontario government has not yet grasped this fact," she said.

While Ottawa can do much to encourage broad regional development local settlement of industry, under the federal-provincial system, "is something that should be done and has not been done by the provincial government."

AGREED WITH REEVE

Mr. Cadwell, after the convention naming him Liberal candidate for the November 8 election, agreed with Reeve Shannon that the riding had been ignored by all federal governments.

Hastings-Frontenac constituents live in a marginal economic area, he pointed out.

"Simply because we're a marginal people we should not be neglected and we have been neglected by both parties. The federal governments can do much for this riding if it wants to."

The 57-year-old Mr. Cadwell is well known as founder, with his wife, of the Madoc Art Centre on Highway 7, which has attracted students for the past 14 years.

Born on a farm in Wilton, Saskatchewan, he graduated from University of Toronto and later practised law. In 1953-56 he was special legal adviser to the Canadian truce commissioners in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, with Lester Pearson then his boss in the Department of External Affairs. He resigned in 1957 to write a book "Communism in the Modern World"—an independent commentary on communist strategy and tactics.

"It is accepted much more readily in the United States than it is in Canada," he confessed to reporters. The volume is now on the curricula of two U.S. universities.

Mr. Cadwell has been living in the riding for the past 20 years.

He was nominated over Douglas Thompson, Belleville store manager, on the first ballot. A third nominee, Carl Heath, feed mill operator at Hastings and former Hastings farmer, withdrew from the contest.

Return to PC Govt. Would Cause Chaos In National Affairs

-- Pauline Jewett

By HARRY MULHALL

MARMORA—Return to power of a Conservative party divided over its own leadership would cause chaos in national affairs, Pauline Jewett warned here last night.

Dr. Jewett's charge—to a Liberal nominating convention returning retired lawyer and author Roy Cadwell as its candidate for Hastings-Frontenac —also was a barb aimed at her own political opponent in neighboring Northumberland.

As Liberal incumbent for Northumberland, the political science professor is fighting for re-election against former trade minister George Hees. The sudden return to politics of Mr. Hees—whose dramatic 1962 rebellion against John Diefenbaker preceded a Conservative defeat—has raised predictions that the Tory leadership may be up for grabs in the near future, with Mr. Hees a principal in the bidding.

The next few years may be the most crucial for Canada since World War II, said Dr. Jewett. The Liberal party has done more to promote unity and fellowship within this nation and between nations than any government in my memory."

It has succeeded in bringing together all national groups and classes under a leadership which understands the problems of all parts, not just some parts of Canada."

Simultaneously, it has retained within its own leadership mutual understanding and high regard unmatched by any other party.

"This is as crucial a point as any other today," warned Dr. Jewett.

"It would be chaotic for our society if we should put into power a party which had simply papered over its cracks and which was to spend the next two or three years fighting among themselves as to who should get power within the party.

"We're different. We want our leader."

Light-heartedly referring to her own election problems she confessed she would have to work hard to beat Mr. Hees and confessed to feeling something of "an underdog myself."

At one time, after calling on her audience to vote for the present government she added with steely good-humor: "That reminds me. At least I have a vote in Northumberland — which is more than I can say for my opponent."

"Of course he may do but he wasn't there when the election writ was issued," she added.

Politically serious, she devoted the major part of her address to the accomplishments of the Pearson government since it took office in 1963.

One of its greatest achievements was the reduction of deficit spending introduced during the Diefenbaker regime.

It was impossible to continue deficit budgeting year after year without dampening confidence in the national economy, she said.

The Liberals had created a buoyancy resulting in a growing economic climate.

At the same time it had also tackled the complicated problem of a national social security system.

Now the government was planning on tackling a complex medicare program and "this is going to be, in my view the most exciting achievement in the whole field of health and welfare in the next two years."

Dr. Jewett hoped the first phase of a universal, portable medicol coverage program would be approved by 1967.

One of the most essential of government moves was its emphasis on promoting Canadian investment in national industrial expansion.

Yet, if Canadians wish to own and direct their own economy they must be encouraged to invest in their country.

"Now, there is nothing "anti" about this as some of our opponents have made out," she said.

The Liberal party also had produced legislation to ensure the ownership of finance companies and the press remains Canadian.

"There are certain important elements in our society that must be Canadian if we are going to have a Canada," added Dr. Jewett.

She reminded farmers in the audience that one of the biggest national industries is dairying and forecast it would a "larger area of change in the next year or so," involving a "fairly high degree" of co - operation at the provincial level."

Kinsmen Aid Downtown Canvass

Members of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville have massed behind the United Appeal Campaign to canvass the downtown area.

A total of 25 Kinsmen and 13 Kinettes have covered the area along Pinnacle and Front Streets, from Station Street to Dundas Street East.

Murray Atkinson, Kinsmen organizer for the project, said, "In previous years, envelopes have simply been left with the merchants and picked up later — usually still empty.

"The Appeal has never been talked up before. The response from the merchants this year is very good. They have really rallied in support of the Appeal."

The Kinsment have made a total of 163 calls on behalf of the United Appeal.

Mr. D. Kane, left, manager of Loblaws on Front Street, presents his store's United Appeal contribution to Jack Canning, treasurer of the Belleville Kinsmen Club. Murray Atkinson, assistant manager of the store, and himself a member of the Kinsmen Club, looks on. The Kinsmen and Kinettes canvassed the downtown merchants last week for the United Appeal Committee.

It's too bad the Minnesota Twins or the Los Angeles Dodgers didn't sign Ole Satchmo Paige.

It would have been a rich icing on the record cake of professional baseball's Methuselah.

Glimmick-minded Charles O. Finley, director, producer and owner of the faltering Kansas City Athletics had worn the donkey-Charles (!)—riding to a frazzle in home and away games. He looked for something new for his weary customers.

So he tuns a mellowing Paige out of the history book of baseball.

He focused the spotlight of attention on the "A's" bullpen where he had ensconced Satch in a lazy rocking chair with a grizzled water boy and a personal nurse to take his pulse when the club won a game.

For a few games the "A's" faithful "cricked their necks," switching glances like tennis fans, from Satch to the scoreboard.

Eventually the sight of baseball's Whistler's Father in full color "to-ing and fro-ing" in the ole rocker lost its novelty. So Finley decided to do something about it.

The pewsters huffed, puffed and gasped in surprise the "her day when the starting pitcher did a shuffling Belanglen Robinson to the mound, long arms adangling at his sides.

Strong men wilted. A few old ladies fainted. The youngsters did involuntary Watusis in the bleachers.

"She nut" a couple of colored gentry breathed, It's Ole Satchmo—and a starter, at that."

A silence fell over Kansas City's Municipal Stadium when Satchmo started his warm-up pitches. They couldn't believe what they saw.

The aging grey-funned flipper that has whizzed "aspirant" past frustrated batters for nearly a half century had lost none of its "rubber" quality. His "hesitation" pitch drifted tantalizingly towards the plate.

He said he could pitch—and he did. For three innings he held the Red Sox batters runless and gave up just one hit, a double by Carl Yastremski.

He proved he is baseball's answer to soccer's Sir Stanley Matthews and makes hockey's Gordie Howe and Allen Stanley look like kids out of a kindergarten.

The "color line" barred Satch from pro baseball in his younger days. He had played 22 years in Negro ball before he was given a chance in the majors by Bill Veeck in 1948. The Cleveland Indians signed him that year and he appeared in the world series as a relief pitcher.

That was 17 years ago and at that time he admitted he was "maybe a little below forty." Some claim he is now sixty past.

Before reaching the majors Satch pitched 10 and even 12 months of the year day after day against the top players of the 1920's, '30's and '40's.

He never had a relief pitcher. He often pitched two games on a hot afternoon. He went three full seasons without losing a game to the National and American Leagues all-stars.

"The only time they ever beat me," he says, "is when they put together an all-star squad from both leagues."

Paige's appearance with the Athletics erases two records in baseball's archives. Previously the oldest man to play in the American league was the famous clown, Nick Altrock, who was a pitch-hitter for the Senators in 1933 when he was only 57.

In the National League James O'Rourke of the New York Giants caught a full game when he was 52.

Satch says "when people start knocking me around and I rainy get 'em out, I'll quit pitchin'."

Clean Sweep? ★★★★★ Twins Hopeful ★★★★★

Dodger Mound Magic Series Broom

By JOE REICHLER

"Win it all, Twins," the signs here implore but feeling is Minnesota may not take a single game from Los Angeles Dodgers, whose matchless pitching may perpetrate a four - game sweep of the World Series by the National League champions.

In 1963, the same Dodgers, behind the dazzling pitching of Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and John Podres, stunned New York Yankees in four straight. Koufax and Drysdale are still around, more menacing than ever. Podres has been replaced on the big three by another southpaw, Claude Osteen.

Osteen's 15-15 record for the campaign is modest compared to Koufax' 26-8 and Drysdale's 23-12, but Dodger manager Walter Alston is mindful that when Osteen pitched for Washington Senators in the American League, he defeated the Twins six times without a loss.

Minnesota's Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Jim Kaat and Camilo Pascual do not exactly comprise a sticky trio but not even the most avid American League rooter would put them in the same class.

Pitching, as everybody concedes, is 75 per cent of the game. In the Dodgers' case, it is 90 per cent. Since good pitching usually stops good hitting, it would not cause too much of a stir if the Dodgers won in the shortest time possible.

DRYSDALE vs. GRANT

The Series, 42nd between the rival league champions, opens Wednesday with Drysdale opposing Grant.

The 30-year-old ace of the Twins' staff posted a 21-7 record during the regular season.

Professional odds-makers favor the Dodgers behind the right-handed Drysdale by 10-to-11 odds for the opening game despite the Twins' home advantage. The same betting quarters rule the Dodgers a 5-to-7 favorite to win the Series and will give 15 to 1 against a Dodger sweep. The odds against a Dodger sweep in 1963 were 27 to 1.

Power must win it for the Twins. Manager Sam Mele will rely on the heavy hands of Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, Jimmie Hall, Don Mincher, Bob Allison and Earl Battey to offset the Dodgers' superiority in speed and pitching.

Los Angeles writers called the Dodgers a "cap gun" offence team. One writer said he'd seen more power in a second-hand lawn mower.

"I keep hearing that we don't score any runs," observed Alston, "but we usually manage to score more than the opposition. We use what you might call a scratch, slide and steal type of attack."

MIGHTY LINEUP TACTICS

"We may surprise somebody in the World Series," Alston added. "We might change tactics and even hit a home run or two."

Grant has never pitched against the Dodgers. Neither has Drysdale against the Twins, but Don has the advantage of pitching to Grant high man at 21. Topped by Sandy's record of 26, the three Los Angeles pitchers total 753 strikeouts to the Minnesotans' 577.

Fall statistics aren't available on the clubs' base-running ability but the Angeles shortstop Maury Wills is in a class by himself with 94 stolen bases —easily best in the majors. Zollo Versalles, his opposite number with the Twins, has stolen 25 same season as Dodger runner-up Willie Davis.

16 KILLED

SEOUL (AP) — Sixteen persons were killed and scores injured today as an estimated 500,000 people aimed around a new stadium for opening ceremonies of Korea's national sports games in Kwangju, 160 miles south of Seoul. The recently completed stadium has a capacity of 30,000.

National Hockey League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It must have been either Punch Imlach or Milt Schmidt who wrote that old song hit, How're You Goin' to Keep them Down on the Farm?

Schmidt and Imlach, the respective coaches of Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, are still two weeks away from trimming their rosters to the National Hockey League limit of 13. And already their early rejects are coming back to haunt them.

It happened to Schmidt Saturday when the Bruins were flattened 4-2 by Oklahoma City Blazers, their Central Professional League farm club. And Imlach's turn Monday night as the Leafs were beaten 5-2 by Rochester American, champions of the American Hockey League and the No. 1 Toronto farm club.

The dignity of Toe Blake, whose Montreal Canadiens took the Stanley Cup last spring, remained unruffled Monday as the Habs whipped Quebec Aces 5-1 for their third successive victory over minor league opposition.

Two of the three Rochester goals were scored by Jim Pappin and Ed Joyal, players loaned to the Americans for the evening. The third came from Gerry Ehman, a Leaf playoff hero seven years ago who doesn't figure to be back.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

Dave Keon and Bob Pulford gave Toronto an early two-goal lead before the rest of the line on the Leafs, who were playing their third game in as many nights.

A former Leaf, left - winger Dick Duff, fired two goals for the Canadiens and Jean Beliveau added a 4-0 lead over the Aces before Wayne Hicks put the hosters on the scoreboard in the third period. Red Berenson, Jean Beliveau and Terry Sawchuk were the other Montreal scorers.

No other exhibition games were played by NHL clubs but the Bruins and Rangers were busy sorting out personnel problems.

Boston stacked away the signed contracts of Reggie Fleming and Johnny Bucyk, two of Schmidt's top scorers last season, plus rookie goaltender Bernie Parent, defenceman Bob Woytowich and right - winger Ron Stewart, who came to the club from Toronto in an off-season trade.

Injuries Claim Three Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Three members of Hamilton Tiger-Cats were on the injured list after the team's 26-21 loss to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Canadian Football League interlocking game Sunday in Winnipeg.

Art Baker damaged an ankle while in the game and preliminary examination Monday indicated he may have suffered a ligament fracture.

Herb Paterre, who went into the game nursing a sore shoulder and wrist, damaged a bone in the second quarter but continued to play after it was tightly taped.

A knee injury forced Edison Kelly to switch from offensive tackle to offensive tackle in the game.

Coach Ralph Sazio is hopeful that six days' rest between the Winnipeg game and next Monday's Eastern Football Conference game against Ottawa Rough Riders in Hamilton will give the players time to recover.

Fonthill carded a 333 team total.

Fort Erie was second in the 16-team field with a 338 margin. Oakville Trafalger placed third, just one stroke back of Fort Erie.

Individually, Allan Billyard of Welland led the field of 64 competitors with a 78, six over par, under extremely poor weather conditions.

Gary Bannister and Gord Mc-Innis, both of Fonthill, tied for second with 80s. A playoff was held to decide the position with Bannister winning on the second extra hole.

Sandra Post, the only female performer in the field and representing Oakville Trafalger, carded an 82. Miss Post is the current Canadian junior women's champion.

Superior At Plate
If The Twins Can Hit, Look Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

On paper, the 1965 World Series shapes up as a contest between the pitching and base-running of Los Angeles Dodgers and the hitting and base-running of Minnesota Twins.

The odd thing about it is the Twins' superiority at the plate in a year in which the National League outshone the American League in pitching, hitting category.

Minnesota's team batting average of 2.54, a league-leading mark, was inferior to that of the National League champion Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee — and equalled by St. Louis. But the Dodgers won the pennant hitting a modest .254, which ranked no better than seventh in the National League.

The Twins' offensive margin over the Dodgers carries across the board. They have a 774-608 edge in runs scored and 711-548 in runs batted in. In home runs their output almost doubles that of Los Angeles—160 to 78—and the edge in hits is 1,300 to 1,209.

On a man-to-man basis the Twins are clouded by the Twins' policy of platooning in left and centre field. With Bob Allison and Jim Hosnak in the outfield against left - handed pitching, the Dodgers have a 53 edge on batting average, although the count is reversed with Sandy Valdespino and Jimmie Hall facing the righthanders.

Either way, the Twins are superior at six of the eight positions to be batted in and at five in home runs.

BOAST SUPERIORITY

In pitching it's another story. Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Claude Osteen, the three Los Angeles starters, all have superior earned - run averages to Jim Kaat, the best of three Minnesota starters.

Koufax leads the majors with a 2.04 mark. Drysdale's E.R.A. is 2.77 and Osteen, despite his mediocre won - lost record of 15-15, is right behind him at 2.79. The Twins' trio consists of Kaat, 2.82, Jim (Mudcat) Grant at 3.30 and Camilo Pascual, 3.35.

The Dodgers' big three have a total of 64 victories, topped by Koufax at 26, to the Twins'

Sasky Riders Gallop Over Ottawa

Reed The Hero

By DOUG DULMAGE

REGINA (CP) — Fullback George Reed propelled Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 21-14 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League home game here Monday night.

Reed scored three touchdowns, ran for 165 yards, caught one pass for 35 yards, moved the third place in the WFC scoring race, and moved Ottawa coach Frank Clair, a 15-year veteran of Canadian football, to exclaim:

"I have never seen anyone run as hard as Reed did tonight. He was better than I've ever seen Lovell Coleman."

It was no small tribute. Coleman, Calgary Stampeders' fullback, has been a Western Conference all-star for the last two years and was named Canada's outstanding player last season.

Reed broke 24 yards off tackle for the first touchdown, smashed one yard for the second after getting the team a crucial first down on a third-and-one situation and carried three yards around right end for the third.

It gave him 35 points on nine touchdowns and a single and moved his league-leading rushing total to 1131 yards in 12 games.

It also gave Saskatchewan another chance to take a good solid look at a playoff position, moving them into a third-place tie with British Columbia Lions at 13 points. Calgary leads with 14 and Winnipeg Blue Bombers have 14, but B.C. has a game in hand.

More than 12,500 fans in Taylor field watched as Saskatchewan took a 21-0 lead into the fourth quarter.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson struck for two quick touchdowns on passes to end Ted Watkins to move within a converted touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

"Jackson showed great courage out there," Clair said. "He jammed his thumb badly in the second quarter. It swelled badly and he practically had to palm his passes in the second half. But he almost pulled it out."

Watkins lost fullback Jim Dillard in the first quarter and Clair said he has a possible broken shoulder. He said x-rays will be taken in Ottawa today.

Jack Abendschan kicked two converts for Saskatchewan to hold fourth place in the scoring race with 54 points. Martin Pahl kicked a 40-yard single.

Moe Racine converted both Ottawa touchdowns.

"Does Nothing For Minor Football"

East York Coach Puts Blast On CFL

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

"The Canadian Football League does absolutely nothing for minor football in Canada."

That's a sweeping indictment and Herb Capponi, general manager of British Columbia Lions, could shoot it down with a bunch of figures. And Lew Hayman, managing director of the Toronto Argonauts, didn't waste any time doing it.

The speaker was a man deeply involved in the minor game.

He is coach John Bennett of Toronto East York Argonauts of the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union. He made his statement in an interview the other night, minutes after his club galloped over London Lords 51-10 before an almost - empty house in Toronto.

What Bennett is undoubtedly meant was that CFL clubs could do a lot more to help minor football. Specifically, he took off on Argonauts.

HAND IN HAND

His East York Argonauts — not to be confused with the other Argonaut club — are a bunch of dedicated young men with possibly the best record in Canadian football. They're now on a 21-game winning streak and that includes a 41-25 decision over St. James Reds in the Canadian final in Winnipeg a year ago.

The other Argos? They made the to the East-West Grey Cup final way back in 1952.

Here's Bennett's rap at Argonauts:

"They don't pay much more than some teams of our annual budget. I won't tell you what our budget is (another source said it was close to $10,000) and they give us band - me - down equipment and uniforms. We're thankful for that.

"But every player on this club had to dig down for $20 of his own money to get to Winnipeg last year when we won the Canadian final.

"My beef is against the Argonaut club management, not with coach Bob Shaw who has been extremely good to us. I have no knock against Shaw in any way."

Hayman came out swinging.

"East York Argos are fully owned by East York Argos. They are not a farm club of ours. We've been through this basic argue, and ago. We contribute annually to East York Argos and we get the right to players of our team for two years.

"As far as that $20 is concerned that Bennett talks about, our club has nothing to do with the Canadian final. The CFL gives X number of dollars from its member clubs to the Canadian Rugby Union which promotes minor football and Canadian championship games.

"The CRU tells a club how many players and officials it can take to a Canadian final. East York apparently wanted to take more than the stipulated number. They were to go by train but they didn't want that. They wanted to go by plane. And we paid the difference between train and plane fares."

Apart from this talk, it would appear that Argonauts maybe hay with the East York Argos this season.

The Eastern Conference club called up 10 East Yorkers and six—at last count, anyway—are still on the roster. They are:

Rankles Walt Balasiuk and John Vikmas, quarterback Gord McTaggart, end Bob Blair, flanker Pete Warren and center Ilonbacker Pete Martin.

The price Argonauts pay—and Hayman says it's "in the vicinity of $15,000 to $20,000 a year" on all kinds of minor football—certainly has to be a cheap way of getting pro players.

And that was what Bennett meant when he said the pros aren't doing anything for minor football.

SISLER FIRED

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Dick Sisler was dismissed Monday as manager of Cincinnati Reds, apparently because of the club's failure to win the National league pennant. No successor was named. It was Sisler's first year as a major league manager. The Reds, pennant contenders a week before the season ended, finished in fourth place, eight games behind the champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

Eastern Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Moe Racine increased his scoring lead in the Eastern Football Conference and Ted Watkins climbed from fifth to fourth place as Ottawa Rough Riders dropped a 21-14 Canadian Football League interlocking decision to Saskatchewan Roughriders Monday night.

Watkins scored both Ottawa touchdowns and Racine converted them.

Watkins now has seven touchdowns for 42 points, six more than teammate Bo Scott, who dropped to fifth place.

Racine has 56 points on 24 converts, nine field goals and five singles. Second is J. W. Lockett of Montreal Alouettes with 48 points while Don Sutherin of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is third with 47.

The Trots

Dusty Lightning, a three-year-old filly owned by Claire Bryan of Clinton, Ont., led all the way in the sixth race and returned $55.30, $24.70 and $9.60.

Dusty Lightning won by a neck over Capetown Lad, owned by Phil Alexander of Toronto. Capetown Lad paid $22.70 to place and $6.30 to show.

The daily double of Theigers in the first race and Frisco Lou in the second returned $49.20.

A crowd of 2,107 wagered $124,106.

LONDON, (CP)—The exacta paid $266.60 at the Western Fair Raceway Monday night when Sue Sue, driven by Orwell Morrissey, came home first and Cunny's Lou Yocke second.

It was the second win of the night for Morrissey who came back in the fifth for a disqualification victory. Mid's Boy, owned and driven by Herb Young, finished first but was placed second for interference.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Dee Voted, a western New York horse, won the featured $1,700 trot in freezing weather at Batavia Downs Monday night by a head over Gay's Buddy.

Armindo, leased by John R. Reid of Alisa Craig, Ont., won the fifth race.

Brundage Brings Up Old Topic

MADRID (AP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, warned Monday that the 1968 Winter Olympics may be taken away from Grenoble, France, if an East German team is not allowed entry into the country.

Brundage made his comment at the end of a meeting of representatives of the International Olympic Committee and national Olympic associations.

The Olympic Congress opens Wednesday with the East and West German issue the thorny problem.

Germany has sent united teams to the last three Olympics, but East-Germany wants to enter its own team in the 1968 Olympics at Grenoble in the winter and at Mexico City in the summer.

In general, East German teams are refused travel visas by the NATO office in Berlin. That means they cannot compete in sports events in NATO countries, and France is a NATO country.

SEEK ALLIANCE

ESSEN (Reuters) — Krupps, the mammoth West German heavy-engineering concern, has offered to co-operate with Russia in manufacturing goods to sell in third countries, a Krupps spokesman said Monday. He said the Soviet authorities have not replied to the proposal.

Richmond To Get Franchise

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Richmond, which lost its International League baseball franchise to Toledo, Ohio, is slated to be awarded Milwaukee Braves' Atlanta franchise, it was indicated Monday.

Milwaukee President John McHale left no doubt in a visit here that the Braves plan to come here.

"We are negotiating with no other city," McHale said.

He said, however, the parent Milwaukee club must work out some complications before a final agreement can be made with city officials.

He said the Braves will operate in Atlanta next season, hence the search for a site to move their AAA franchise in the International League.

Richmond Virginians, Richmond's former entry in the International League, were lost when owner Romeo Champagne sold to Toledo interests.

A total of 378 votes were cast with Marcelino Lopez, young right-handed pitcher of the Angels being mentioned on 377. He won 14 games and lost 13. Other Angels on the first team are Paul Schaal, at third, and outfielder Jose Cardenal.

Other players on the team are: Tony Perez of Cincinnati Reds, first; Joe Morgan of Houston Astros, second; Rico Petrocelli of Boston Red Sox, shortstop; outfielders Ron Swoboda of New York Mets and Curt Blefary of Baltimore Orioles, catcher Pat Corrales of Philadelphia Phillies and Frank Linzy, lefthanded pitcher of San Francisco Giants.

Another Wildfowl Hunting Season Gets Underway

By DON HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The throaty bark of shotguns echoes through marshes and sloughs in many parts of Canada as thousands of hunters try to bag their limits in the 1965 duck and goose season.

After Oct. 15, the birds will be fair game everywhere in Canada—except in sanctuaries—until Oct. 31 when Cape Breton Island becomes the first area to call a halt to the attack.

Other parts of the country will progressively close their seasons until coastal hunters in New Brunswick and Newfoundland fire their last shot Feb. 28, 1966, to end legal waterfowl hunting for another year.

The comments of wildlife officials questioned in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press suggest that this will be at least an average year in the country's hunting regions.

But there are problems. Prince Edward Island is worried that the tasty black duck there may be heading toward extinction because of pesticides in waterways.

Most provinces had at least some regions open for hunting in September. Exceptions were New Brunswick where Oct. 1 was opening day in some counties, Nova Scotia where it was Oct. 8 and Prince Edward Island where it was Oct. 15.

In Manitoba's chief hunting area—south of the 53rd parallel —the season was noon Oct. 1 to Dec. 4 compared with Sept. 25-Dec. 5 last year, the later opening being a conservation measure.

The only changes in bag limits are in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where poor breeding habitats forced provincial officials to reduce the daily quota of mallards to three from four, with six in possession.

Ducks Unlimited of Winnipeg reported surveys of northern Saskatchewan, a prime breeding area, showed a severe decrease in scaups while canvasbacks and redheads are holding their own after a 1960-61 drought almost wiped them out and forced a reduced bag limit.

E. L. Paynter, Saskatchewan wildlife director, said the overall ratio of adult birds to juveniles there was not as good as in past years because of smaller broods in early hatches. A severe blizzard May 25 was exceptionally hard on the first hatch.

New conservation measures were initiated in some parts of Canada.

George Mitchell, assistant director of the Alberta wildlife division, said several hundred geese were transferred from southern lakes to central Alberta.

"We're transplanting geese to water bodies that do not support resident nesters. . . . This way we hope to establish a population which will go south and then return to these water bodies to nest."

Two new hire-crop areas were started in the Tobin Lake and Kinusino areas of Saskatchewan in an effort to keep birds off farmers' grain fields.

In Manitoba, preparatory work was started on 350,000 acres in the Grand Rapids area, 250 miles north of Winnipeg, for development of a waterfowl breeding ground.

In Ontario, the wood duck population was reported increasing, though hunters are still restricted to four a day and eight in possession. Lands and forests department officials thank the beaver for damming hinterland creeks and creating ideal nesting places for the colorful birds. It was only a few years ago that wood ducks were completely protected when bird experts thought the species doomed.

Farther east and northward, large-scale banding studies are being made in co-operation with the Atlantic Flyway Council and a new Arctic ornithology project aims at banding and aerial surveys of snow and blue geese.

The Canadian Wildlife service at Sackville, N.B., reported hatching conditions were normal this year and both geese and ducks are migrating southward on schedule.

But migrations from the far north through Alberta were delayed because no major storms occurred to start the birds off on their southward journey.

Red Sox Start Build-Up

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Boston Red Sox traded pitcher Bill Monbouquette to Detroit Tigers for outfielder George Thomas and infielder George Smith Monday night.

The deal was the first for the Red Sox since Mike Higgins was fired as general manager Sept. 16. Boston manager Billy Herman promised several more.

"We have quite a few things on our minds," said Herman, who is here with Boston Club officials for the World Series.

"We're negotiating for an even bigger trade which could be completed before the end of the series."

Herman said the Red Sox gave up Monbouquette because the Red Sox plan to accent youth next year.

Monbouquette won 10 games and lost 18 for the Red Sox, who finished ninth in the American League. The 29-year-old right-hander compiled a 3.69 earned-run average in 228 2-3 innings.

Nikita Blamed For Policy Against Jews

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study prepared for the U.S. Senate blames Nikita Khrushchev for what it calls an official Soviet policy of discrimination against Jews.

The report, released Sunday night, said that under the former Russian premier, the number of Jews in the Communist party and Soviet government was drastically reduced.

"As far as is known there are no Jews in the upper echelons of the party or government, with the exception of V. D. Dimichitz, first deputy chairman of the planning office," it said.

The report, entitled The Soviet Empire—a Study in Discrimination and Abuse of Power, was prepared by the legislative reference service of the Library of Congress for the Senate internal security subcommitte.

"Khrushchev," it said, "has been outspoken anti- Semitic and his position has been that top Soviet echelons must be as Judenrein as possible."

"Judenrein"—meaning free of Jews—was a slogan under Hitler's Germany.

"There can be no doubt that anti-Semitism is an official policy of the Soviet Union," the study asserted.

DEPUTIES DECREASE

To support this contention, the study said that before the Second World War 41.1 per cent of the deputies of the Supreme Soviet were Jewish, but that figure dropped to .25 per cent by 1958.

Other findings of the study included:

"Jews are considered a "security risk group suspected of actual or potential disloyalty" and have disappeared from Soviet diplomatic service and the armed forces and that many Jews have been tried for "economic crimes" and for participating in "Zionist espionage rings."

March of Dimes

Eighth of a series of articles on the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal Campaign.

The Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled, or March of Dimes, is a member agency of the United Appeal for the first time.

Fred Deacon, local chairman, said, "Our role as an agency has changed considerably this year. In previous years, under the guidance of Mrs. Phil Bennett, we were mainly concerned with raising funds via our marching mothers.

"Now we are in the United Appeal, and we hope those persons who donated to our marching mothers will put that donation and their regular donation into the Appeal.

"People think of the March of Dimes as an agency working for polio victims. The feeling is often that because of the invention of Salk vaccine, polio is no longer a threat, so the March of Dimes is not really necessary.

"It is true, that since Salk vaccine was invented, polio as a major threat has been put under control, but we are not working only with polio victims. We are working with the victims of all sorts of disabling diseases and handicaps."

REHABILITATE ADULTS

The objective of the agency is the rehabilitation of adult men and women who have been physically disabled by accident or by disease of the musculo-skeletal system, with the aim of eventually having them become productive citizens again as far as their handicaps will allow.

"The function of the agency in Belleville," Mr. Deacon said, "is one of referral now. We refer cases to Kingston and Toronto and assessment officers are sent in to investigate.

"These assessment officers work with the handicapped and study their physical and mental capabilities, with the idea of finding a productive occupation for them.

"It is not satisfactory to simply give a man a job, it must be something he can do and something he will get a feeling of satisfaction from having he is being useful and not just getting a "dole."

Bill came to the attention of the March of Dimes when he was 25 years old. As a result of a car accident when he was 16, he had lost his right arm from the mid forearm down.

He was fitted with an artificial arm at the time, but was never instructed in its proper use. He subsequently stopped schooling at Grade 10 and went to work in a small country dairy, doing what he could with one good arm and the shaky instability of a now ill - fitting, nearly useless artificial arm. When the dairy was sold he was out of work and could not find another job that he could do.

He was referred to the March of Dimes, and through his attendance at a Rehabilitation Centre subsidized by the March of Dimes, he was fitted with a new and useful artificial arm and instructed in its use.

Through the combined efforts of the Rehabilitation Services of the Department of Welfare and the March of Dimes, Bill was vocationally assessed and spent a training period in a March of Dimes Assessment Workshop. After this, he was placed in a "training-on-the-job program and is now working as a prothetists apprentice helping make the very same type of artificial limb which he himself wears.

Dr. James A. Tuck, director of psychological services for the March of Dimes, told Kiwanis recently, "We assess the physically handicapped in terms of their work capabilities. We want to put them into jobs, but only jobs they can do.

"We want employers to give the handicapped person the same chance as he would anyone else and to have the same expectations, no more or no less."

SERVICES PROVIDED

Services provided by the agency are provision of inoculation equipment to Ontario physicians for free adult inoculation clinics; treatment through therapy or reconstruction surgery by referral to the Foundation for clinical assessments; vocational assessment leading to subsequent training or placement to ensure patients are rehabilitated in a vocational field suited to their individual needs and capabilities; work assessment shops for patients being rehabilitated back into competitive employment and sheltered workshop for patients not capable of competing.

In 1964, the United Appeal in Ontario provided over 57 per cent of the total revenue. The overall program provided direct service to physically disabled adults. Treatment, appliances, special equipment, transportation and housekeeping help were provided through 10 branch offices in the province.

Other services, namely vocational assessment, training, work assessment shops, sheltered workshops, job placement and homebound employment projects were supervised by Provincial headquarters in collaboration with local caseworkers and volunteer branch boards.

As was mentioned before, the March of Dimes has in the past depended upon its marching mothers' campaign, but now must depend upon the United Appeal to finance this very worthwhile work in the community.

Are you the one person in three who might benefit from a low-cost Seaboard Mortgage Loan?

Borrow up to $10,000- as long as 10 years

What is a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? It is a low-cost loan for people who own, or are in the process of buying a home. The money you have invested in your property is excellent collateral for a Seaboard Mortgage Loan. And this means you get one of the lowest rates of interest to be found anywhere, because real estate offers such excellent security. A Seaboard Mortgage Loan has the added advantage of letting you borrow up to 80% of the value of your property, as compared to approximately 66⅔ for most conventional mortgages.

When should you take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? Only when it's to your advantage. This can be worked out between you and your Seaboard manager. You and he may find that a Seaboard Mortgage Loan can help you, as it has other people:

- To reduce your monthly mortgage payments.
- To pay off high-cost charge accounts and loans for furniture, car, clothing, etc. Often articles which you think you are buying at a saving are actually costing you an unnecessarily high price because of the variety of service and interest charges.
- To put your children through university or to make home improvements.
- To help you purchase a new or older home if you are having difficulty in raising the necessary mortgage money.
- To assist you in selling your home if a prospective buyer has difficulty in raising cash to your mortgage.

How much can you borrow? You can take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan up to $10,000 or 80% of the fair valuation of your home. What's more, monthly payments can be planned to fit your budget and leave you with extra cash each month.

How about monthly payments? You can take up to 10 years to repay your Seaboard Mortgage Loan and monthly payments can be arranged to suit your budget. Interest rates are low—approximately 12% a year computed monthly on the unpaid balance. This means that each payment you make reduces the amount of interest you pay.

What special benefits do you receive from dealing with Seaboard?

- Your contract can be renegotiated anytime.
- Special low-cost life insurance available that pays your contract in full in event of death.
- Contract can be repaid at any time.
- No brokerage fees.
- No "balance" or "balloon payments."
- Minimum registration, appraisal and legal fees.
- All terms fully explained so that you completely understand your contract.
- Seaboard's years of experience in the mortgage loan business.

Phone or write for all the details about the low-cost Seaboard mortgage loan. Or, better still, call in for a personal interview with your Seaboard manager. Evening appointments can be arranged.

Old Burlesque Straight Man Now Hit in Dramatic Role

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How thrilling it must be for an old burlesque straight man to come to town acclaimed as the serious dramatic actor of the year!

"I honestly wish I could say so," says Jack Albertson, "but I've had too many disappointments in this business to be thrilled. Just say I'm grateful, not thrilled."

Albertson is the star of Paramount Prize play The Subject Was Roses, now playing here at the Huntington Hartford Theatre. Jack, who played it on Broadway, won the Tony Award as the best dramatic actor.

The honor naturally has made a big chance in his career.

In Hollywood, there is no greater career tonic than appearing a big success in New York.

"I've had about 25 offers since I hit town," says Jack. "When I left I couldn't get arrested."

Which Jack worked in burlesque, his partner was a fellow with horn rimmed glasses by the name of Phil Silvers.

"I've often wondered what happened to him?"

Dramatic acting came late in life to Albertson. A serious eye problem nearly caused him to lose his sight. It started him thinking—and studying.

NOTHING SERIOUS

He had done lots of professional acting. Television viewers will remember him as the skipper in the Snoopy Doole series.

But nothing serious.

After a series of "off Hollywood" theatrical shows, producer - director John Houseman asked Jack to direct the old Broadway hit Barrier at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"We couldn't find an actor to play the lead role and I wound up playing it," recalls Jack.

There Frank Gilroy, author of The Subject Was Roses, caught Albertson and decided that no one but Jack could play the Irish - American father of his play.

"And that's not easy to do," says Jack, "because I'm Jewish."

It was Gilroy who fought for Albertson. He turned down producers for more than a year because they wanted a box office name for the part.

The show opened to great reviews and lousy business—until the Pulitzer Prize. Now there are three companies doing it.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday's Carroll Baker adds a new string of role to her list of successes in "Cheyenne Autumn", new John Ford epic Wednesday at the Belle Theatre, at popular prices. Another feature of the new Cinemascope production also stars Richard Widmark, James Stewart, Arthur Kennedy, Karl Malden, Gilbert Roland, Sal Mineo and Dolores Del Rio.

Pope Presents Cross, Ring To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Pope Paul Monday gave the United Nations a diamond - studded cross and ring—value at $150,000—to be sold to help the worldwide campaign against hunger.

The pontiff made the presentation at a reception for heads of state and chief delegates in the 38th floor suite of Secretary-General U Thant.

Thant expressed his sincere gratitude and remarked:

"If the Big Four would make a bid for it, the United Nations would take the highest price."

Diplomats of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France reacted with smiles to Thant's suggestion. They made no commitments.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Wayne Harris had to act as his own agent Monday at Woodbine Race Track, and the 18-year-old rider from Vancouver came up with three winners to run his total to 22 for the current meeting.

Two of the horses, Lemartel and Money Galore, were booked by Harris Monday morning. His third winner, Spicy Favour in the last, had been contracted for on Saturday by Harris' agent Reg Anderson.

Owned by Frank Russell, Lemartel paid $24.60 and combined with Dixie Pet for a $377.10 payoff.

Harris was reluctant to ride Money Galore when trainer Jerry Meyer asked for him. He was finally talked into accepting the mount and the two-year old robbing carried Harris to an $8.20 payoff.

Spicy Favour paid $8.20 to win.

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran jockey Johnny Loudden, 56, who rode Vancouver - owned George Royal in the thoroughbred's biggest race, will be aboard him in the $15,000 added Jockey Club Stakes here Oct. 11 in an attempt to give the four-year-old his first win in the East.

Loudden, due here Friday from Paris, was aboard George Royal when the colt won the $125,000 - San Juan Capistrano Handicap last March at Santa Anita, Calif. The only other Canadian-bred horse to win $100,000 or more in one race was Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, in winning the 1964 Kentucky Derby.

George Royal, owned by Eric Hammond and Bob Hall of Vancouver, has placed second in his only two races since coming to Woodbine Race Track in September.

WEISS RETAINED

NEW YORK (CP)—President George Weiss will continue to run New York Mets for another year but no decision has been made over who will manage the National League's eighth club next year. The retention of the 70-year-old Weiss was announced Monday by Donald Grant, the club's board chairman, at a press conference at Shea Stadium.

Show Given Slight Rebuff By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—"This Hour Has Seven Days" got what appeared to be a rebuff from Prime Minister Pearson Monday.

The CBC public affairs television program Sunday night invited party leaders involved in the Nov. 8 election campaign to appear on the show for questioning.

Mr. Pearson was asked about it after he left a cabinet meeting.

First he feigned lack of knowledge about the program, then said, "is that the program that had the sketch of his Holiness?"

Assured that was the case, he said "that's enough comment."

The program had a skit about an American television executive chatting with the Pope on the telephone about coverage during the Pope's visit to the United Nations in New York Monday. The executive suggested the Pope might umpire part of a baseball game.

Later a Pearson aide said his leader's remarks should not be construed as a rejection of the show's offer made over the air.

He said no decision has been made on whether Mr. Pearson would appear, and will not until an invitation is received from one or more regular channels. Then it will be given the "attention that it merits."

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas telephoned the program while it was on the air to accept the invitation.

Bergsma Family Granted Papers For Citizenship

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergsma and their son, Peter, 19, received Canadian citizenship here Monday which had been denied them last year because they do not believe in God.

The Bergsmas made an affirmation of allegiance rather than the usual oath before Judge W. W. Leach of Haldimand County Court, who last year said he would not grant citizenship to avowed atheists.

Mr. Bergsma said after the ceremony the Bergsma couple's citizenship application was upheld by the Ontario Supreme Court and reversed by the Ontario Court of Appeal which ruled the family had the proper persons for citizenship."

The appeal court then ordered the Bergsmas to court to apply to the citizenship and immigration ministry on behalf of the Bergsma family, all but one of whom were born in the Netherlands.

Mr. Bergsma, a steelworker in Hamilton 20 miles north of here, said Monday he and his family are glad the ordeal is over.

Three other Bergsma children, who were at school Monday, will apply for citizenship in the next few weeks.

Charge Husband After Mother, Daughter Slain

TORONTO (CP) — A mother and one of her two children died of stab wounds Monday. A second child was in serious condition. A bloodstained knife and chisel were found beside them in their home.

Helmut Richert, 34, a laborer-carpenter and father of the children, was charged with capital murder.

Police said Richert called them at his home early Monday. He admitted them to the house and collapsed.

His daughter, Heidi, 5, was dead in a bedroom, Mrs. Richert, 30, died less than an hour later in hospital. Robert, 8, underwent surgery for head injuries.

Police said the mother and children had been mutilated with sharp instruments.

A neighbor said she heard screams for about 20 minutes—like a child who wakes up from a nightmare."

NDP Leader Sets Gruelling Election Pace

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Thomas Clement Douglas has chosen the high road in his fast - paced campaign for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Alone of the opposition party leaders, the bantamweight chieftain of the New Democrats has so far refused to put any emphasis on the Bi-ward and Banks splendors, usually dismissing them with a brief, indirect reference.

"Let the others spend their time on scandals," he has been telling his audiences. "We of the New Democratic Party are more worried about the future of this country than the things of the past."

Instead, Mr. Douglas talks about the need to plan intelligently for the economic onslaught of automation, which he describes as the greatest problem facing this generation.

Mr. Douglas, who will celebrate his 61st birthday on the campaign trail Oct. 20, has set himself a gruelling pace, during which he will cross the nation more than a dozen times before election day.

Unexpected problems keep occurring—he has had to rescheduled his good humor. On his opening swing through British Columbia on Sept. 20 he was failed to turn up at a meeting and a dog bit Mr. Douglas when the NDP leader bounced on a snarled rope that was choking the animal.

During a three-day northern Ontario tour rainy weather cancelled flying arrangements and he was forced to drive nearly 700 miles, much of it through night fog and over secondary roads.

TWO MAIN PLANKS

His biggest audience response has come from references to the NDP's platform on medical insurance and the steps they have about as much chance of winning as a

"John Diefenbaker," shouted a young person in the front.

The Opposition leader remarked that a long voice represented about the same proportion of dissent as across the country.

During a whirlwind tour of several automotive industries in South-western Ontario Monday, Mr. Diefenbaker said he thinks it is time for labor to help to help small industries.

MORE LEEWAY

Terming these industries "the backbone of the country," Mr. Diefenbaker told a luncheon meeting at West Lorne, 75 miles west of here, that the additional action concerned raising the amount of corporate income that may be exempt "before the higher rates are applied."

The Conservative leader did not elaborate. It was his government which raised the limit from $20,000 the ceiling for determining whether a firm pays the low or high tax rates.

Mr. Diefenbaker was most relaxed during an unscheduled meeting in a group of public school students on the steps of the West Lorne community hall.

He told the students — two were waving the maple leaf flags — governments at all levels in Canada are trying to build a better Canada for the people.

"Dream your dreams," he said, "for if those dreams are worthy of Canada they will somehow be brought about."

Diefenbaker Claims National Unity at Stake

By MICHAEL GILLAN

SIMCOE, (CP) — Opposition leader John Diefenbaker said Monday night a vote for a divided nation for the next generation.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking to a capacity audience in the 1,000-seat high school auditorium here, attacked Prime Minister Pearson's confederation policies and said "leadership consists not in bending to every wind that blows" but in taking strong stands.

The prime minister had declared on taking office that the country contains two nations, he said.

The Conservative party recognizes the constitutional rights of all "but there will never be a Canada if we accept the principle that within a nation there are a number of nations."

Mr. Diefenbaker challenged the prime minister to go on the campaign trail to explain his policies, but Mr. Pearson has not because he knows he cannot answer the Canadian people.

ONE COUNTRY

He said no Conservative had ever suggested turning Canada into a republic, yet the Young Liberals' organization had voted in favor of abolishing the monarchy.

Quoting the government of "tinkering away at our heritage," he said "if that's what you've got in mind, tell us."

Mr. Diefenbaker ran into some minor heckling at the meeting.

At one point he was urging his audience not to vote for minority parties because they have about as much chance of winning as a

Lead-Zinc Deposits Scorned By Sourdoughs Come Into Own

By Bob Trimbee

PINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP)—Ignored during the Klondike gold rush, the vast lead-zinc deposits of this region 500 miles north of Edmonton today stand on the threshold of a royal future.

In the topsy-turvy world of supply and demand, the deposits once discarded as worthless by sourdoughs bound for the Yukon now loom as a bright jewel in the developing north.

When a concentrator capable of processing 5,000 tons of ore daily goes into production in November, more than $22,000,000 will have been spent here to bring the ore bodies into production.

An additional $10,000,000 has been spent by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. at its Trail, B.C., smelter, where most of the Pine Point lead and zinc concentrates will be refined. Other quantities, estimated at 50,000 tons annually, will be shipped to a new smelter in Japan in which Cominco holds an interest.

Reserves now are pegged at 17,000,000 tons with average grade of 4.8 per cent lead and 7.4 per cent zinc, but exploration continues and few doubt additional deposits will be uncovered.

The clearing of about 30 feet of overburden from three giant pits, each covering an area of about 40 acres, is well under way and a road is being built to a fourth pit site.

ORE BEING SHIPPED

All three pits now developed for strip mining contain abnormally high grade deposits ranging up to 50 per cent lead and zinc and this has allowed immediate shipment south without any concentration.

Shipments from Pine Point total about 4,000 tons weekly to Cominco's Kimberley, B.C., concentrator and another 1,000 tons weekly to Bunker Hill Co. at Kellogg, Idaho.

Pine Point Mines Ltd., a Cominco subsidiary which will handle the operation, reported earnings of $1,044,000 in 1964 after only 3½ months of shipping ore. Ores south over the new $97,000,000 Great Slave Lake Railway, which connects Pine Point and southern rail facilities at Roma, Alta.

In the first six months this year earnings reached $9,800,000.

"You can say it's been a pretty happy set of circumstances all around so far," says Stan Hogson, 44, mines superintendent at Pine Point.

"The railway got here a year ahead of schedule, world demand for lead and zinc hitched prices, and the first ore pits developed contained ore of a high enough grade to allow us to ship without refining.

"The raw ore we're shipped averaged up to 50 per cent metal and that's unusual for lead-zinc ore. Of course, no one expects this to continue forever. There's a lot of ore which will average less than five per cent."

STAKED CLAIMS IN '48

Initially about 4,000,000 tons of overburden is being cleared from pits to expose the ore, which is then blasted, excavated by huge shovels and transported to railway loading area by 25-ton diesel trucks.

Once the concentrator begins operation in November the ore will be hauled there in sizes ranging up to 42 inches.

Sourdough ex route to the Yukon in 1898 first staked claims on the deposits in hopes the heavy lead-zinc ore included gold or silver. The men were told about the deposits by Indians living along the southern shores of Great Slave Lake, which lies six miles northwest of Pine Point.

The claims were abandoned the next year when it was found no precious metals existed in the ore—it contains only a small trace of iron in addition to lead and zinc and this makes it an "easy ore" to work A period of relative inactivity followed.

In 1914 Huronian Belt Co. of London staked a number of claims, but the First World War killed this interest. In 1928 a Boston syndicate combined with Cominco and Ventures Ltd. to work the deposits and the trio founded Northern Lead Zinc Co. Ltd.

SHAFT ABANDONED

An extensive drilling program was launched and among those working at the scene was W. G. Jwitt, a young mining engineer and flyer, who today heads Pine Point Mines. The work and a 94-foot shaft sunk into the ore body still are visible today to visitors in the area, about a mile from one pit now developed for mining.

The Depression stalled the work and it was not until the late 1940s that interest was revived. In 1950 Ventures assigned its interests to Cominco and Pine Point Mines was formed.

Within five years all that held back production was the lack of a railway to carry out the ore and concentrates.

The federal government approved construction of an $87,000,000 rail link in 1961 and when the decision was announced Cominco agreed to bring its Pine Point mine into operation by Dec. 31, 1965, a target that will be met easily if electric power arrives on schedule.

Cominco also agreed to ship all ore and concentrates by rail for at least 15 years with an annual minimum of 215,000 tons.

Joe Scarborough, a young mining engineer when the original staking was done 15 years ago, now is general manager of operations at Pine Point.

WORLD MARKET GROWS

Pine Point production will represent a 20-per-cent increase in Canada's lead-zinc output, Cominco officials say It will be absorbed readily on world markets.

Demand for lead and zinc has climbed steadily since 1958. Last year it was up six per cent for lead and nine per cent for zinc. While this rate of increase is not expected to continue, Cominco estimates the long-term rise will average about three per cent for each metal.

The grade of the ore here and its good milling qualities have convinced company officials the Pine Point operation will be an important factor in maintaining Canada's strong position in the lead-zinc industry.

Only the cold winters and the long haul needed to bring ore south—both of which add to production costs—detract from the operations.

All that remains to be completed of original plans is the

VAST LEAD-ZINC DEPOSIT

—The vast lead-zinc deposits of the Pine Point region of the North West Territories, 500 miles north of Edmonton, stand on the threshold of a royal future. When a concentrator capable of processing 5,000 tons of ore daily goes into operation in November more than $22,000,000 will have been spent to bring the ore bodies into production. LOADED FOR SHIPMENT — Trucks are loaded with highgrade lead-zinc ore at one of three strip mines developed by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada, Ltd., at Pine Point, in the Northwest Territories. The ore is transported to the company's smelter at Trail, B.C., via the Great Slave Railway. When a concentrator capable of processing 5,000 tons or ore daily goes into production in November more than $22,000,000 will have been spent to bring the ore bodies to production. (CP Photo) installation of the last pieces of equipment in the concentrator and arrival of power from the Talston River, 150 miles west of Fort Smith, N.W.T., and Pine Point.

Target date for the arrival of power is November. The federal government expects to spend $9,120,000 developing the hydro source.

Tomorrow: Geologist maps lead-zinc deposits.

Michael Starr's Doctor Will Be Opponent

OSHAWA (CP)—Dr. James E. Rundle, a general practitioner, will be an opponent of former labor minister Michael Starr, a patient of his, in Ontario constituency in the Nov. 8 federal general election.

Dr. Rundle, a former Oshawa alderman who will run as an independent, is a member of prominent Conservative family. Next said he announced his candidature Saturday it is only an assumption that he is a Conservative. In any case, he said, he expects to split the Liberal vote rather than that of Conservative Mr. Starr.

The Liberal candidate is Dr. Claude Vipond, a surgeon. Mr. Starr has represented Ontario since 1952.

Dr. Rundle said he has had political ambitions for years but did not run before because of his continuing high regard for Mr. Starr.

George Martin, who two years ago succeeded Dr. Rundle's brother Thomas as president of the Oshawa Progressive Conservative Association, said the association is "four - square behind Mr. Starr."

Need Big Jump In Federal Aid To Universities

By Ronald LeBel

OTTAWA (CP) — A massive increase in federal aid to higher education is needed to ensure economic growth, reports the Bladen commission.

The federal government is urged to jack up its aid to universities and colleges to at least $330,000,000 in the next fiscal year from about $80,000,000 budgeted for the current year ending March 31.

This sum should be increased substantially each year until 1975, at least, to combat the campus crisis the commission said in a 35,000-word report issued today.

Appointed 18 months ago by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, the inquiry was headed by Dean Vin-

"The magnitude of the expenditures required has scarcely yet been understood," the report said. Even among university heads, "few realized

Fee-Free Colleges Opposed

OTTAWA (CP)—The provincial governments are urged to resist popular pressure for the abolition of university tuition fees in the Bladen commission report issued today.

The report says "free tuition" for college and university students is impractical for the next 10 years, "having in mind the magnitude of the expenditures and for the sake of social justice."

Provinces are urged to calculate their grants to universities on the assumption that tuition fees will continue at about the same level.

Free tuition has been advocated by the New Democratic Party and some student groups. A start in abolishing fees has been made by the Newfoundland government at Memorial University, St. John's.

The report says the provinces should concentrate on helping students through scholarships and research grants instead of abolishing fees.

At the same time, the commission cautioned against any general increase in fees "without assurance of a simultaneous increase in student aid."

Generous aid for graduate students, amounting to a level close to free tuition, was recommended to the provinces.

EQUALIZE FEES

The report says fees should be the same for students coming from another province and that provincial scholarships should be tenable in any province or any country.

Some Want R.C. Council To Condemn All A-Arms

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Demands rose in the Vatican ecumenical council today for the Roman Catholic church to condemn all nuclear arms, even for defence, and to lend moral support to conscientious objectors.

The demands expressed by bishops from Canada, Britain, Europe and North Africa represented a growing wave of opposition to the stand taken by many U.S. prelates that nuclear arms are permissable as a deterrent.

Bishop after bishop attacked this concept, saying modern war represented such a horror that the Roman Catholic church must condemn it without reservation.

In the debate on the modern world schema, discussion centred on a chapter about war and peace. It immediately became clear that many bishops wanted to return to the original wording in the draft document that had condemned the use of all nuclear arms.

This wording has been reviewed in the text now before the council to express approval for the maintenance of defensive arms, nuclear and conventional.

Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal said the next text was weak and ambiguous. Council press spokesman paraphrased him as saying:

"The text condemns nuclear war but allows it implicitly in some situations."

Many American and some British bishops—led by Philip M. Hannan, the new archbishop of New Orleans, and British Archbishop George Andrew Beck of Liverpool—had argued against the original text and brought about the revision.

Still Fighting In Central Java

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Radio Jakarta reported new fighting in central Java today and said the city of Jogjakarta, former capital of the Indonesian republic, had changed hands three times.

One broadcast said there was no information on who was in control of Jogjakarta, 250 miles southeast of Jakarta, but added that fighting was still going on in the area.

LBJ Will Undergo Surgery

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — President Johnson will undergo major surgery Friday at a U.S. naval hospital for removal of his gall bladder, an ailment that plagues many men in their 50s and 60s. The president is 57.

Johnson announced the operation at a press conference Tuesday night. It will be performed by Dr. George A. Hallenbeck of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., who said it will be a major surgery but "the risk to a normal person of the president's age is very low indeed."

The president will be operated on at the U.S. naval hospital in Bethesda, Md., near the capital, and indications are that he will spend 10 to 14 days in hospital and several weeks more on a reduced schedule.

Johnson said that should serious presidential action at any time be needed, and he was unable to provide them, standing arrangements are in effect for vice-president Humphrey to act in his place.

Few officials envision any critical action that might have to be taken while Johnson is under anesthesia or otherwise incapacitated by the operation.

Group D Workers Get Hikes

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — The third and final report of a special commissioner who reviewed salaries of 58,000 civil servants, among them postal workers, was made public Tuesday.

Prime Minister Pearson said the treasury board will be told to implement the pay increases the report recommends for 8,000 Group D government employees.

He also promised consideration of two controversial issues raised in the report by Judge J. C. Anterossian.

The first would involve turning the 40,000-employee post office into a Crown corporation like the CBC or Canadian National Railways.

The second would mean introduction of regional salary scales for some Group D categories instead of the present system that sets national levels for all salaried civil servants.

The unions have protested the Crown corporation proposal.

ENDS PATRONAGE

The commissioner became a Crown corporation it "would be insulated from politics and the last vestiges of patronage would be taken away from it," he said.

Postal rates might be adjusted to make the department, which now loses money, pay its way if it became a corporation.

An argument against the corporation idea was that "insulation from Parliament" might be seen as interfering with the accountability of the government for the service, Judge Anderson said. The public would also object to such a change.

Furthermore, civil service organization employees had the right to strike while "he might be very contentious if, as a result of recent experience, the resolution of wage disputes were left to be settled by strike action rather than by arbitration."

It was Judge Anderson who

Canada, African Lands, British Tories Oppose White-Ruled Rhodesia

Justice Minister Claude Wagner of Quebec (lower left) said Monday there have been at least five recent underworld killings to get rid of embarrassing witnesses who might have told what they knew about cases of arson and fraudulent bankruptcies. Alleged Arsonist Said Shot

By REMY D'ANJOU

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec underworld killing of an alleged arsonist "because he made a mistake" was described in court Tuesday by a man who said he witnessed it.

Ovila Boulet, 52, of Cap-Rouge, Que., said he saw the man shot at "point - blank range" with a revolver.

The alleged arsonist was Redempteur Faucher, 47, of Quebec City.

He was one of five men Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner says were killed when the underworld panicked after a crackdown by his department on crime.

Boulet identified the killer as Andre Lamothe of Quebec City, said by a crown prosecutor to be held in Montreal on a warrant from the provincial fire commissioner's office.

Boulet said he watched Lamothe cover the body with a caustic substance and then hide it in woods near St. Gilles, about 20 miles south of the provincial capital.

DURING HEARING

The startling testimony came during the preliminary hearing of Moise Darabaner, 43, a Quebec businessman, on charges of arson and conspiracy to commit arson.

Darabaner was committed to trial on the charges. Boulet was also committed on identical charges.

Justice Minister Wagner made publicly Monday of a rash of underworld killings

Larger Share of Personal Incomes Going to Savings

OTTAWA (CP) — A larger share of personal incomes now is going into Government treasuries as taxes and into personal savings than it did when Canada began the current expansion period more than four years ago.

For every $10 of personal income at the present pace of the economy, $1.02 goes in personal direct taxes to federal and provincial governments. And 47 cents goes into personal savings.

But during the second quarter of 1961, when the country had turned the low point of its last recession, personal direct taxes were claiming only 89 cents of every $10 of personal income. And only 45 cents were going into savings.

The difference is in personal expenditures on consumer goods and services. They took 88.6 cents at the turning-point of the economy in 1961. They now take $8.31 cents.

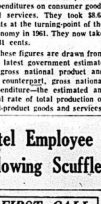
These figures are drawn from the latest government estimate of gross national product and its counterpart, gross national expenditure—the estimated annual rate of total production of end-product goods and services.

Peterborough Hotel Employee Found Dead Following Scuffle

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—An elderly hotel employee was dead and another man was in hospital today following a scuffle late Tuesday at a downtown hotel.

Robert Norton, about 74, was found dead on his bed at the American House hotel where he lived and worked. Grant Heffernan, 50, also a resident at the hotel, was in St. Joseph's General Hospital with a fractured leg.

Police were questioning a man believed to be from Vancouver in connection with the incident. Mr. Heffernan was believed to have been injured when he came to Norton's aid after a scuffle developed in a hotel corridor.



"What a lovely surprise. Come on in. Of course you're not interrupting anything."

LONDON (Reuters) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he was concerned about growing Commonwealth pressure against a unilateral declaration of independence by his country.

Asked about pressures from certain Commonwealth countries, including Canada, Smith said: "Frankly, we are not interested in what they say."

He said he was still optimistic about negotiations here with British officials headed by Commonwealth Relations Secretary Arthur Bottomley. The two had a two-hour session today.

The governments of Canada and several African Commonwealth countries, as well as the British Conservative opposition leader Edward Heath, have come out firmly against Smith's threat to declare the Rhodesian colony independent unilaterally if Britain would not grant independence without strings.

Canadian High Commissioner Lionel Cherrier told Smith of Canada's serious concern at the unilateral independence threat. Canadian sources said he warned that unilateral action would disrupt the whole British Commonwealth.

At the United Nations, an informed source said delegates of Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda and India were told by Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart that the British government would stick by its principle of "no independence without majority rule."

FRANCHISE A MUST

Britain has demanded that before independence be granted to the internally self-governing colony, Rhodesia's 4,000,000 black Africans must be set on the road toward full citizenship and voting rights. They outnumber the Rhodesian whites by 18 to 1.

Britain has warned that if Rhodesia declared itself independent without British permission, this will be treated as a rebellion and will be met by economic sanctions which could cripple the Rhodesian economy.

After Tuesday's meeting with Bottomley, Smith told reporters progress had been made. His implied optimism caused surprise in informed quarters, where it was understood that Smith's 100 - minute meeting with Bottomley was confined to restatements of the two governments's widely-separated positions.

"If it continues like this, we may even surprise you," Smith said.

Rhodesia has been internally self-governing since 1923, but since it is a British colony its external relations have always been handled by Britain and the British government retains ultimate control over the colony.

Pearson Renews 1962 Promise To Pay Federal Scholarships

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson dug up a 3½-year old Liberal election promise—university scholarships — and put it back on public view Tuesday for the Nov. 8 vote.

Calling a press conference 24 hours before the publication of the Bladen report on university financial needs, he promised two measures to assist higher education:

1. Federal scholarships totalling $10,000,000 annually for deserving university students, starting in the fall of 1966 and increasing with the population in the 18-24 age group after 1967.

2. Increased federal grants to universities and a federal-provincial conference "within the next few months" to consider what form the federal aid will take.

The Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada holds a press conference today to release a bulky report on university financing by a commission of four experts, headed by Dean Vincent Bladen of the University of Toronto.

Confidential copies of the report were given about two weeks ago to Mr. Pearson and four other party leaders, the Association said.

Ohio Boy, 15, Stuck Head-First In Tunnel In Cave

MEDINA, Ohio (AP)—Morris Baetzold, hungry and cold but still calm, was stuck headfirst in a narrow tunnel in a cave today while rescuers figured how to get him out.

Morris, a 15-year-old youth from the Methodist Children's Home in Berea, was stuck in the Association said.

Cleveland, went exploring with companions Tuesday and wandered into "wildcat cave" at Whipps Ledges in Hinckley, about 12 miles north of here.

He began to crawl around the various tunnels leading off the main cave, worn around a big slab of rock, and slipped into a V-shaped crevice. He is held fast by the waist.

Rescuers have tried with no success since shortly after noon Tuesday to free him.

Rescuers could reach and touch the boy but were unable to move him more than a few inches.

He is tilted downward at a 45-degree angle in a crevice only 10 inches wide and three feet high.

Morris was back about 60 feet from the entrance to the cave and 35 feet underground. He was not injured. A doctor at the scene said his physical condition was good.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baetz told of Cleveland, the boy's parents, hurried to the scene after they had learned of their son's plight.

They had last seen the boy about a year ago, when the Cuyahoga County child welfare department placed him in the home, an institution for emotionally disturbed children.

Proximity of Other Parks Delays Trailer Camp Here

Parks Recreation Director Lloyd Doran told Belleville Kiwanians yesterday that one reason why the establishment of a trailer park in the vicinity of the city had been given up for the moment was the proximity of parks within 20 miles of Belleville.

He was replying to a question on this, theme at club's luncheon meeting, which was addressed by Parks Board chairman Don Williams.

Kiwanis president Brad Bradley said the Chamber of Commerce had received "a lot of inquiries" on trailer and camp sites from visitors. "There is a demand for this sort of thing."

BIGGEST YEAR

Mr. Williams said this was the biggest year for the parks department in Belleville, not only in projects completed and partially completed but also from a budgeting point of view.

In 1962 the parks board received one mill, which amounted to $30,613. Since re-assessment came into force in 1965 the mill amounted to $100,000. This year the board asked the city for seven-tenths of a mill, amounting to $77,000.

F. Bellstedt Heads Kiwanis

At yesterday's meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, Friedel Bellstedt was elected president and John Trafford vice-president for 1966.

"Our board receives revenue from other sources, such as services for other municipal departments, including the recreation department," said Mr. Williams. "The board installs all the equipment for playgrounds, repairs playground equipment, looks after outdoor rinks. It also cuts the grass for the public and high schools and fairgrounds. For these services we receive $34,000 annually."

More than $44,000 of the board's budget was spent on debentures, taxes, insurance and salaries, while approximately the same amount went on capital expenditure.

BOARD'S PLANS

Mr. Williams said the new building on Zwicks Island would be started shortly. Other projects included the city's centennial project; new floor lights at the fairgrounds, additional work on Corby's Park and development of the Fry property.

Also under consideration was the development of the waterfront from South Church street to the Bakelite company and development of the wooded area in the northeastern part of Belleville.

Mr. Williams was introduced by president Brad Bradley and thanked by George Hume.

Will Revise Plans to Build More Units

A slight delay has developed in plans for an early start on senior citizens housing for Belleville.

Yesterday architects from the Ontario Housing Corporation and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation met with local members of the senior citizens housing committee and after reviewing plans asked for a revision to allow more units on the proposed Turnbull street site.

Today, Alderman Douglas Boyle, chairman of the senior citizens and low rental housing committee, said it was still hoped that construction on senior citizens housing could be started late this fall.

The request of the local committee was for at least 30 senior citizens housing units and Belleville architect Paul Wm. Gand prepared plans, of "imaginative concept" providing 30 units in two buildings.

However, department architects felt that more than 30 units could be built on the site and asked for a revision of plans.

The Turnbull street property has a frontage of 159 feet with a depth of 205 feet.

Truck Drivers Protest Delay Of Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Wildcat strikes by members of the Teamsters' Union (Ind.) ran like firecrackers through a dozen southern Ontario communities Tuesday, but a union official expressed hope they would end in a couple of days.

Head union negotiators made a new appeal to the strikers — who have been protesting delay in getting a new contract with trucking companies — and promised a membership vote on contract terms by Oct. 16 at the latest.

Meanwhile, dissidents walked out with varying degrees of immobilization against some 50 trucking yards at Toronto, Hamilton, Oshawa, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Windsor, Kitchener, Waterloo, Guelph, Preston, Stratford and Hespeler.

No vital services were reported crippled anywhere. Major dislocation came at Oshawa where the General Motors assembly plant reduced hours for 8,000 workers because of a parts shortage.

About 300 teamsters tied up trucking companies at Oshawa, but GM said alternative transportation would be used today if road haulage was still affected.

Woman Fined $150 Under Liquor Act

TRENTON — In Magistrate's Court at Trenton yesterday, Mrs. Rosalie Brayshaw of 127 Murora Street was fined $150 and ordered to pay court costs of $66 when she was found guilty on a charge of keeping liquor for sale on her premises. The address was altered to read "public place" by the magistrate.

George Halsma of R.R. No. 2, Brighton, had a charge of dangerous driving reduced to careless driving. His lawyer, R. E. Nourse of Picton, made the arguments that his client was not guilty of the first charge on a supposition that a knoll on Highway Two prevented his client from seeing a car approaching from the west when he drove his car out of the Hilltop Restaurant parking lot. Police evidence was to the contrary.

Ronald Davis 23, and Yvonne Brayshaw 24, both of the Toronto address, were sentenced to three months in jail. Last week they were found guilty of break, entry and theft in an incident involving the theft of household articles from the home of Frank Lott at 13 Ramsay Street. Miss Brayshaw had a number of convictions in her record, stretching back to 1962.

Francis Hewton, 40, of Peterborough was found guilty last week of the theft of a used car from Weaver Motors car lot, was sentenced to two months in jail.

Three Questions Will Be Up For Decision

TRENTON — Trenton voters will be asked to vote on three questions in the December municipal elections: (1) do you approve of the town finding some way of building a swimming pool in the community gardens' area; (2) are you in favor of Sunday movies; (3) are you in favor of Sunday sports.

All three questions have been asked before and turned down . . . the last two twice.

Last year, the voters were asked in effect if they were in favor of the town spending around $400,000 to build a pool in the high school. The proposed pool would have cost more than double that, but, in the school, large government grants would have been available, as well as a $25,000 donation from the Trenton Lions' Club.

Monday night, Mrs. Marion Sparrow told town council to say she knew a pool could be built for $44,000 at the outside. This pool could be in stages and would have a removable plastic roof.

Possible grants of any kind would be available on" such a pool is not known. The Trenton recreation Committee might be able to assist, as might service clubs. All these areas would be explored before council spent money even if the "people" say they are in favor of the pool.

Sunday movies and sports would also start until after 1:30 p.m. on the Holy Day. Mr. Frank Kennedy, the local theatre manager, requested the vote and Council or Paul Tripp thought it was time to ask the public to rule on Sunday sports again.

FIRST SOD TURNED

On Monday, the "first sod" for the new Chamber of Commerce permanent office on Front Street was "turned" by a sub-contractor's power shovel. Last week, the James Coat Construction Company was awarded the contract to erect the building and at that time, promised "quick action."

Call Tenders To Sell Houses

TRENTON—Trenton council will advertise for tenders for the "disposal and removal" of buildings on land now required for approaches to the new bridge across the Trent.

The highest bidders will be asked to remove buildings from 12 different properties. They may knock the houses or other buildings down . . . and use the lumber . . . or remove the house or other building, in its entirety to a new location, provided the lot is approved by the planning board and council. Most of the properties are in east Trenton.

Federal Govt. Still Controls Old Post Office

TRENTON — The Trenton Community Assistance Association, which runs a used-clothing and furniture depot on Quinte Street, in conjunction with the town's welfare department, has reminded council that it asked in the spring to be allowed to transfer its operations to the basement of the old post office, "when the building became the property of the town."

Trenton council Monday night indicated it would be more than ready to oblige the hard working ladies . . . if it could lay its hands on the old post office.

The town has been given first option to buy the building . . . if and when the federal government decides to sell it.

Rather than buy the building, council would like to see the federal government decide to make some use of the building. A suggestion has been made that armed services mall operations, now existing in what can be "operating in cramped quarters" in Belleville, might be switched here. But no official confirmation of this "rumor" is forthcoming. (One government official said he had heard "an oblique" rumor pertaining to this.)

Tourism Is On Increase Rotarians Told

TRENTON — W. J. Haddad from the Ontario Department of Tourism, told Trenton Rotarians at their weekly meeting this week that tourism was increasing and would continue to be one of Canada's biggest industries.

The speaker said his department was preparing a survey of provincial areas suitable for tourist development, and a map, showing where these special areas were.

Not only are more Americans coming into Canada, said Mr. Haddad, but with more money available and more leisure time for their hobby, Canadians are travelling more.

Mr. Haddad was introduced by Dr. Wm. Alexander and thanked by Gordon Shonliker.

The program was arranged by program chairman Daniel Senik. Mr. Senik said today he had programs arranged for every Monday evening up until Christmas. One of note will be the Nov. 1 meeting at which John Garrett, a past president of Rotary, and high school principal, will assist several students with a panel discussion program. The program is geared to co-incide with Rotary Foundation Month. Part of Rotary funds go towards furthering education each year, especially in the field of bringing foreign students to Canada to study in universities, here.

Election Promises Zoom To Billions From Millions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Election promises zoomed from the millions into the billions of dollars Tuesday.

The point was reached where Agriculture Minister Hays was out-promising Prime Minister Pearson on the same matter.

A day of promises began in Ottawa when Mr. Pearson proposed increased federal grants to universities and re-offered scholarships totalling $10,000,000 annually.

Later, in Earlton, Ont., the prime minister announced a livestock feed assistance program for the Northern Ontario districts of Timiskaming, Cochrane and Manitoulin Island.

Still later, at Timmins, he said the government is ready to pay up to 20 per cent of farmers' crop insurance premiums.

In Steinbach, Man., Mr. Hays said the government would pay 25 per cent of the farmers' premiums.

In Halifax, Labor Minister MacEachen said the government will assist in the formation of a new coal mine and in modernization of other pits in Nova Scotia. The amounts mentioned totalled $25,000,000.

HAMILTON TOPS IT

But the promise with the highest monetary value came from Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister.

He said in Halifax a new Conservative government would reforest more than 20,000,000 acres in central and eastern Canada at a cost of $2,000,000,000 over 20 years. Ninety per cent of the expenditure would be for labor.

At Vineland, Ont., Opposition Leader Diefenbaker put forward a six-point Conservative financial policy including Criminal Code amendments to curb stock frauds.

Earlier, at Hamilton, Mr. Diefenbaker charged that mass murderworld executions to discipline of a justice department report on bankruptcies. The Quebec killings are linked with fraudulent bankruptcies.

'WHAT'S HIDDEN?'

"Let's find out what was hidden in this case from Parliament," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He said Quebec Revenue Minister Eric Kierans has accused the federal Justice department of "negligence and indifference" about the investigation of bankruptcies and of "considerably hindering" the province's war against the underworld.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has refused to discuss the question of morality in government during the campaign.

At Timmins, Mr. Pearson said: "They can call me corrupt if they like; they can call me stupid; but to say I have done anything to bring about disunity hurts me, cuts me to the quick.

"My one over-riding passion has been to do what I can to bring about unity in this country and to make us better Canadians."

LET VOTERS DECIDE

The prime minister said Mr. Diefenbaker has accused him of spreading disunity. He was happy to leave it to the voters Nov. 8 which political party and which leadership could do more for building a stronger and united Canada.

Campaigning in New Democratic Party territory, Mr. Pearson said the main difference between Liberals and the NDP is that the Liberals are in a position to implement the social reforms both parties advocate.

At Quebec City, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said the election struggle at the moment is between the Liberals and the New Democrats in most parts of the country.

One of the greatest problems in Canada was the economic inequality between different regions. This was why the NDP was so preoccupied with the question.

Greek Ship, Still Aground, Is Lightened

The Greek freighter Protostatis which ran aground last Thursday on Traverse Shoal in Lake Ontario, is still aground and it is not expected to be refloated for another week or ten days.

The efforts of Leo Kingston Salvage tugs to free the 440-foot former Liberty ship were unsuccessful and Monday afternoon the task of lightening the cargo of scrap iron began.

It is expected that several hundred tons of scrap iron will be moved before further attempts are made to pull the freighter free from the shoal.

As yet there has been no report as to whether the boat suffered any damage.

how massive this increased support will have to be."

Main recommendations are:

—Appointment of a federal minister of higher education who would co-ordinate federal aid and initiate annual discussions with the provinces.

—A five-fold boost in the combined aid by federal and provincial governments to an estimated $1,704,000,000 in the next 10 years.

—Increased gifts to universities by business corporations.

—Contribution by university graduates of at least one per cent of their income on a regular basis.

The commission estimated that total expenditures by Canada's degree - granting institutions will jump to $1,314,000,000 in 1970-71 and $2,032,000,000 five years later from an estimated $527,000,000 in 1964-65.

"In the opinion of the great majority of people who appeared before us, the bulk of this (perhaps 70 to 80 per cent) will have to come from government. Governments alone have the resources to meet costs of the dimension contemplated."

The report said Ottawa, with its larger tax resources, should assume 40 per cent of university operating and research costs, compared with 18.3 per cent in 1963-64.

The provinces were asked to finance 30 to 40 per cent of all university costs and a much larger proportion of student aid.

THEME OF CAMPAIGN

The commission invited its 90-page report in English and French in the midst of an election campaign that already featured aid to education as a leading theme.

The four commission members met privately with university and government officials across Canada and did considerable research.

Prime Minister Pearson spoke of it almost as a royal commission and promised repeatedly to review federal aid once the Bladen report was made public. All parties except the Creditistes have advocated increased spending by Ottawa in one form or another.

The report proposes the following federal aid structure:

1. Per capita grants for university operating costs at any boosted immediately to $5 from $2, with further boosts of $1 each year until requirements are met. They would total $98,000,000 this year instead of the budgeted $39,200,000 and go up by about $20,000,000 annually.

2. New per capita grants of $5 annually for construction of facilities, starting next April 1. These would cost nearly $100,000,000 the first year and rise to about $198,000,000 in 1970 due to population growth.

3. Research assistance totalling about $104,000,000 next fiscal year and rising sharply each year. This form of aid will amount to an estimated $40,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

cal year.

4. Unspecified sums of extra aid as capital grants for new medical, dental and nursing schools and teaching hospitals. (The government announced two weeks ago it plans to create a 15 - year kitty of $500,000,000 for these purposes, but the provinces and health institutions are seeking much more.)

5. Increased income tax relief for students, parents and university donors, and expansion of the Canadian student loan plan "as becomes necessary." Administration of the plan is expected to cost roughly $3,000,000 this year.

The report said federal grants should continue to be distributed by the academies of universities in all provinces except Quebec. The 1960 arrangement that gives Quebec an extra slice of corporation taxes in lieu of grants should be retained.

AVOID FEDERAL CONTROL

Ottawa was advised to avoid all control or control over universities, which should continue under provincial jurisdiction.

The provincial governments were urged to set up independent commissions to distribute grants according to a logical, equitable formula and to avoid control over university financing and political interference with academic freedom.

The province's were also asked to assume the bulk of non-repayable aid to students.

This form of aid by both levels of government should climb to $153,000,000 in 1970 and $245,000,000 in 1975 from an estimated $39,000,000 last academic year.

Average bursaries to undergraduates should rise to $700 in 10 years from about $300 last year. Aid to the average needy graduate student should double to $3,000 by 1975.

Total enrolment was projected at 340,000 in 1970 and 401,000 in 1975 compared with 180,000 a year ago. The universities' operating cost per student was forecast at $3,623 in 1975 compared with an estimated $1,891 in 1964-65.

The Association of Universities will prepare a brief to the federal and provincial governments on the basis of the Bladen report, the first detailed study of university financing in Canada.

Dr. Bladen, 55, is an English-born economist who has been on the University of Toronto faculty for 7 years and dean of arts and sciences since 1959. He served as a one-man royal commission on the automotive industry in 1960-61.

Other members of the commission were executive Senator Wallace McCutcheon, 59, former trade minister, member of the royal commission on health services and a governor of two universities; Dr. Louis-Paul Dugal, 54, Quebec - born science dean at the University of Ottawa, and Howard I. Ross, prominent Montreal executive and chancellor of McGill University.

The report said university costs are rising dramatically because of an unprecedented rush among young Canadians to get an advanced education.

Public opinion demanded a greatly expanded role by all governments in financing higher education.

Economic growth required a much larger pool of skills and talent; half the high school graduates could benefit from a college education, but only one in six went to college.

WARN OF CONSEQUENCES

The experts warned that more able youths will be kept out of college and the quality of higher education will drop if their recommendations are ignored. Massive sums would be needed from government.

"We have argued that Canada can afford these sums, and even that Canada cannot afford not to invest these sums if we are to achieve the goals of general economic growth which we have set for ourselves."

To save costs, universities were urged to make more efficient use of their facilities, to use computers and closed-circuit television and to combine forces in fund - raising drives and post - graduate studies.

They were asked to avoid general increases in tuition fees unless these were accompanied by proportional boosts in student aid.

Increasing support from business would be necessary, especially for "experimental ventures for the enrichment of the normal university program."

"In the long run we may achieve even greater wealth by this greater emphasis for the individual; we will surely come nearer to achieving the 'good life.'"

Pope's Speech Weighed for Impact On World Peace, Future of Church

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Pope Paul's unprecedented address to the United Nations is being weighed here for its impact on world peace, the future course of the Roman Catholic church and United States politics.

The leader of the 2,000-year-old, world-circling church with 250,000,000 adherents made it clear his main mission was peace.

While he was the first pope to visit the U.S. and the first to meet an American president outside the Vatican, those aspects seem to have been subordinate to his UN mission.

By his words and his presence, Pope Paul brought the 117-nation UN a badly-needed lift in morale.

The urgency of his appeal for peace and universal brotherly love was unequivocal, but some ambiguity has been claimed in details.

One such detail was his reference to healing UN disunity. Did he mean coaxing Indonesia back, or admitting Communist China, or both? Another criticism, attributed to some of his UN audience, was that it is difficult to reconcile his lofty theme with the sterile polemics of most disarmament talks to date.

MESSAGE WELCOME

But the pope's appearance and message are seen here as being particularly welcome to many of the smaller nations of the UN who welcome every effort to make the UN a strong and effective organization.

His speech is being analyzed, too, for what it says about the continuing internal debate within the church on its reaction to 20th-century realities, ranging from nuclear arms to birth control.

Especially noted was his statement that the world must not try to produce more food "and not rather favor an artificial control on birth, which would be irrational, in order to diminish the number of guests at the banquet of life."

Hope has been expressed in various quarters that the Vatican council's deliberations will ease the church ban on contraception, at least to the extent of sanctioning birth-control pills. Many of the smaller under-developed countries, faced with population increases greater than economic growth, favor this.

EXPRESS CAUTION

But some quarters have expressed caution about interpreting the pope's words as a final forecast of what the Vatican council and he will decide.

His visit has confirmed however, his intention to be "a mobile pontiff, ready to go anywhere—Bolivia or Viet Nam included—in the pursuit of peace. He has been to the Holy Land and India. There are rumors he may go to Britain and Poland or return to the U.S. for a full-fledged visit if asked.

To American, the papal visit has been historic in a special way.

Five years ago, there was doubt that the late John Fitzgerald Kennedy, a Catholic, could be elected president of the United States. Yet no country in the world was more stirred by spirit of reform and brotherhood espoused by the late Pope John.

In a sense, then, the meeting between the pope and the president involved two men who had inherited not-dissimilar winds of change generated by their predecessors, who never did meet.

Pope Paul's Message

The message of Pope Paul to the representatives of the nations of the world assembled in New York was, in a word, brotherhood.

This has been the dream of mankind down the ages, that men should beat their swords into plowshares and practise war no more, but one that has been realized for only brief periods in history. No sooner had one conflict ended and been succeeded by a few years of peace than another has broken out.

Today, the threat of a third world war is not immediately apparent, despite the conflict in Viet Nam. The Soviet Union, once the problem boy in this respect, is now on friendlier terms with the West, and China has supplanted it as the country most likely to upset the peace of the world.

The international dialogue to which the Pope alluded, and which is so necessary to the peace of the world, leaves out the one important nation with whom satisfactory relations must be established if peace is to become a fact. That is communist China.

China of course had no representative in the Pope's audience. Even Albania, regarded as the voice of Red China at the United Nations, boycotted the occasion.

Nevertheless the visit of Pope Paul to the United States and his appearance at the UN General Assembly as a man of great influence on the peoples of the world, cannot but serve the interests of peace. There may be no immediate improvement in the world scene, but the evil of the Vietnam conflict for example, but time may well show that the Pope's plea has not been in vain.

Where Is Guevara?

Premier Fidel Castro's statement that Ernesto (Che) Guevara, one of the key figures in the Cuban revolution, has moved on to revolutionary activities elsewhere, is unconvincing, if only by reason of the fact that his whereabouts are unknown.

It may be argued that Guevara would want to keep his presence unknown to authorities in any other Latin American country in which he was helping to foment Castro-style revolution. At the same time, his absence from the Cuban revolutionary scene is puzzling.

If Guevara returned he had gone to the Dominican Republic, had been seen during the uprising there and subsequently was killed in the fighting. However, this has never been confirmed.

The mystery surrounding his disappearance is compounded by the fact that he apparently left Cuba six months ago. Castro said Guevara gave him a letter April 1 saying "other lands of the world needed his services."

Quoting from the letter, Castro said he was "confident this letter explains everything." One thing it failed to explain was why Guevara's wife is still in Cuba. She attended the rally dressed in black and was said to be close to tears.

Did Castro really write the letter which Castro quoted? Is he alive or dead? If he is alive, then where is he? These are some of the questions being asked about the handsome Argentine-born revolutionary.

Guevara was one of the top figures of the Cuban revolution and became minister of industry. In the early days of the new regime he was interviewed by Life magazine, and for television viewers CBS's Morton Dean. In the latter interview he was seen working alongside Cuban sugar plantation employees.

Society Magazine

High society in Britain has lost its most valued publication in The Tatler. Owned by the ubiquitous Lord Thomson, the magazine will be supplanted by a new publication called London Life.

Thus, The Establishment in Britain has experienced another setback, for it is said the new magazine will reflect more closely the leveling process that slowly is taking hold in that country.

Still, The Tatler will be missed, for a time at least, because it had been a faithful chronicler of the activities of the upper middle class and aristocracy—"those marvellous people in dinner jackets," as Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham might have termed them.

The magazine, which relied heavily on photographs of society gatherings, debutante balls and the like, was read avidly not only by those whose pictures were likely to appear in its pages, but also by those who simply were not in that category. Such was the influence of the class system in Britain that many read The Tatler out of sheer envy.

If The Tatler has had its day there are other publications which will carry on the tradition—Queen is one such, and Country Life is another.

To Easy on Drunk Drivers

—Brockville Recorder and Times

The Canadian Bar Association's wishy-washy stand at its annual convention on the subject of compulsory breathalyzer tests for drinking drivers was a disappointing in view of findings in several recent inquiries that liquor is a factor in over half of all car accidents. The delegates split on the issue and wound up taking no action at all. Not yet another group of "Ilsman rights" and "individual freedom" appeared to be the big stumbling blocks. There were impassioned pleas defending the legal rights of the drinking driver, painting a sad picture of the "inhumanity" of a hypothetical motorist being stopped by a policeman and forced to breathe into a balloon at the roadside. Such tests are now conducted at the roadside in Ontario, but presumably that's touch added to the "medieval justice" aspect of the breathalyzer test.

Perhaps it is natural for lawyers to think in terms of the rights of the accused, since most of them earn a good part of their living defending accused persons. But what of the rights of others involved in the hit-and-driving crashes — the motorist who was not impaired and pedestrian victims?

Far too often, drunken or impaired drivers are coddled in the courts. Reduction of a drunk driving charge to driving while impaired is common place and sentences handed out in either case are frequently much too lenient.

Every safety campaign rings

Strictly Personal
Wars Won
When Cause
Right One

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There is no immutable law of justice which declares that "right must triumph" in history — yet, at almost every crucial stage of history, what the future would generally call the "right side" has emerged triumphant.

Consider the decisive conflicts of the world: Greeks against Persians, Rome against Carthage, the West against Muslims and the Turks, the British against Napoleon, the American Revolution, the two modern World Wars.

We look upon dictatorship as a moral evil, which it is. But even viewed from the most practical aspect, it is not an efficient or ultimately successful form of rule. A democracy may seem slow, from time to time, and timidly, but it contains its own power of self-correction; a dictatorship contains the seed of its own destruction.

It is psychologically obvious. Where one man — or a small committee — rules with an iron hand, everybody else is eager to please him, nobody is willing to tell him unpleasant truths. Napoleon had no one to deter him from the disastrous invasion of winter campaign; Hitler's generals were powerless to dissuade him from his many more than his army could chew. The "efficiency" of dictatorship is matched by its blindness.

This is true in any social organization — in a company as well as in a country. When the president of a firm is an absolute monarch, all his underlings try to be more Royalist than the king — and healthy criticism never comes through, until it is too late.

Most of us feel moral revulsion at the idea of a slave society, but many retain a sneaking admiration for the way in which it "gets things done." We grow, organically, from below, in order to have permanent roots. One can impose "a system" on a company or a country, but one cannot impose life into a living, developing organism that is capable of renewing itself and providing its own nourishment.

We could do with less moral indignation against Vietnam today, and more understanding of the basic flaws in a totalitarian system. Only if we ourselves have a better conception of the strengths and values of democracy — and a wider appreciation of these values in our own society — can we win the war of ideas in the world of today's future.

The bitter rightists who complain about the flaws and weaknesses in democracy have seized the stick by the wrong end; for we can ultimately overcome the Russians only by broadening the democratic process, not by emulating our enemies and becoming anti-Communist totalitarians.

is the slogan that driving a car is a privilege, not a right. How, then, can the Bar Association claim that any curtailment of drinking drivers is the loss of an individual's rights?

Hard Path To Learning

Toronto Telegram

The rapid advance of knowledge and the increasing demands it makes have accelerated the rate of suicides among university students, says Dr. L. W. Downey of the University of British Columbia.

Although no figures are cited for this contention, it may well be true. The amount of subject matter grows at such a pace from year to year that many students have the feeling that they are drowning and they must run very fast just to be able to stand still.

The universities are pressures depends also to a great extent on the spirit of university administration.

Someone once defined the school system as a society which takes the brightest and ablest of the principals, the principals are afraid of the superintendents, the superintendents are afraid of the school boards, the school boards are afraid of the parents and the parents are afraid of "the kids," and "the kids" know it.

But this doesn't always apply at the university level where "the kids" are left to their own devices. No depends, of course, on the natural resilience of student temperament.

Some are lucky; they can instinctively muster grace under pressure.

The key to mental health on the campus is probably what it has always been—acceptance of the fact that study means heroic hours of loneliness and application. The royal road to learning is a myth; it has never been easy.

And if a student has done his best and still fails, it isn't the end of the world. Life is rich in possibilities and opportunities, all of which are not routed through the campus.

Harold Wilson, Leader Who Leads

—The Globe and Mail

"For nearly a year now," Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the British Labor Party conference this week, "Britain has had a Government prepared to take unpopular steps to talk in the gritty accents of reality, to tell the nation what had to be done, and not be afraid to take the decisions that are the essence of leadership."

The surprising fact about this statement is that it is true and that the politician who has not fashioned the truth with a Government that from the beginning put its primary objective, a magnificent one which death and defeat have whittled to three, it is not achievement of the initiative and downright gall which more timid politicel leaders might study with profit.

Since the Labor Party took over the Government, Britain faced a gross deficit in international payments, a severe pressure on the pound, an economic crisis. He immediately imposed austerity measures to improve the balance of payments — this year's deficit will be less than half of last year's and a surplus is anticipated for next year — and persuaded a group of countries to support the pound. The British economic situation is still precarious, but it is immensely improved.

Despite his skimpy majority (and it is ironic that his own party that was constantly unpredicable), Mr. Wilson put 65 Parliaments through a highly controversial. One, the Financial Bill, produced radical changes in taxation, including a new corporation tax and a long-term capital gains tax—a profits tax on investments. Other vast legislation strengthened city trols over large corporate mergers and takeovers, provided a financial cushion for laid-off workers, abolished capital punishment, established a new defense policy.

Popularity never seems to have given Mr. Wilson a moment's concern. Having decided the defense budget must be cut, he killed an aircraft project while aircraft workers demonstrated in the streets and the and the Conservatives screamed in the House. Having decided that the most a British nuclear deterrent could achieve in a nuclear war was posthumous revenge for annihilation of all Britons, he drove through his policy to merge the bulk of Britain's nuclear capacity in NATO, while the Opposition had hysterics.

He told the British exactly what was wrong with their methods of doing business.

To labor he said, 'We can no longer afford workers to inflict harm to production and the public with go-slows or sporadic strikes in defiance of their own unions," and went on to announce "working practices which impede production, outdated demarcation rules, inaccurate time-wasting, must go."

To management he said, "If an sick and tired of hearing one day from the Commonwealth Prime Ministers, another fro moor ambassadors or one from our ambassadors or out of case after case of a market wide open for our products where tender applications addressed to British firms are not returned, of letters unanswered, and of cases where prosperous boards of directors fail to exert themselves and get out into the export markets."

To the public he said: your income and luxury taxes are going up $750 million.

With Mr. Wilson sipping relatively and verbally at their heels, the British managed to move to an exporting record in July.

He has affronted labor, he has affronted management, he has made the public gasp and howl. He has precipitated storms in his own party with his support of United States Vietnam policy, with his policy to limit immigration. He has even had the unparalleled crust to recommend that the Queen confer the Order of the British Empire on the Beatles. But he has got things done.

This week he has made it clear that he intended to get other things done. Nimbly dancing between the left and right of his party, he swung them in behind him abd disdained a protective coalition with the Liberals.

In the next session—with that three-man majority—he proposes, among other things, to establish Government controls over purchase and sale of land for public and private development. Of his plan The New York Times says, "The purpose of the scheme is sound enough: tiny Britain suffers from a sort of real estate claustrophobia and the understandable aim is to relieve the crowding by making best possible use of whatever space is either left or becomes available . . . But whether the Labor Government can demonstrate the desirability of such a move with a three-vote parliamentary majority and every manner of vested interest opposition is the question."

Yet he will try, and if his Government falls it will be, as Mr. Wilson says, "an issue to be settled by the sovereign and Independent decision of the British people." And whatever they think of his policies, those people must concede one quality of their chilly confident little leader, He leads.

He had been in exile since 1524 when, at the age of 32, he decided the only way to reform the corruption of the Catholic church was to print the Bible in a language the masses could read. Tyndale completed translating the New Testament and the Pentateuch before his death, and his version formed the basis of the Authorized Version of the Bible of 1611.

To Your Good Health
Gall Bladder Diseased If X-rays Blank

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had several X-rays of my gall bladder but nothing showed. All the information I can get from the hospital is that the results could be for "many reasons." — W.S.

Dear Doctor: I was X-rayed for gall bladder trouble but the doctor couldn't get a picture. He said my gall bladder would not absorb the dye and that this usually meant the organ was full of stones. I've had some trouble for about five years but it hasn't been bad since I've been taking medicine. I still have indigestion pains that go through me and under my right shoulder blade. Do you think I should have the gall bladder removed. When a gall bladder quits working, does it ever start working again? — Mrs. P. N.

Let's first describe how a gall bladder is X-rayed.

When X-raying soft tissues, you have to arrange the object so the parts you want will show up. The useful but not always appreciated barium enema fills the colon with a fluid that will be opaque. The rays will pass easily through the surrounding soft tissues. So the shape of the colon shows up sharp and clear.

With X-ray of arteries, a dye is injected into the blood stream for the same purpose — to make the arteries show clearly.

And diito for the gall bladder. Rationality that organ is economically accepting concentrated bile from the liver, and, thus reaching the gall bladder will show us that organ in clear outline.

Well, suppose bile isn't flowing into the gall bladder in normal quantity? The dye won't get there either, and we'll have no useful picture — or in more technical parlance, we can't "visualize" it.

Stones may be blocking the flow. So may infection. Or, of course, there may be something wrong with the liver so it isn't delivering bile — but in that case many other unmistakable signs will point the way to the trouble.

Thus when X-ray attempts do not visualize the gall bladder, it's good evidence that the organ is diseased.

It is not fair to say that once a gall bladder becomes diseased (whether from infection, or from stones) it never can recover. An infection may be subdued, or a small stone may interfere with flow of bile but ultimately manage to work through the duct and escape.

However, for practical purposes, when the gall bladder is sufficiently diseased or disrupted, the chances of its return to normal are rather slim.

When it cannot be visualized, a good many doctors lean rather strongly to advising removal on grounds that the organ obviously is not working and pain and removal eliminates the risk of the condition degenerating into something worse with a later on.

The decision usually takes into consideration other factors: How much pain you are having, your age and general health, and so on. One thing more must be considered. There some illness what we call a silent gall bladder, diseases or non-functioning yet not causing any pain. If such a gall bladder, even though not uncomfortable, is known to have stones in it with stones for some time, it is often wise to remove it anyway, to avoid the growing irritation of the stones incite more serious disease.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 6, 1945

The British people have long known clothing rationing and the end is not yet. Now they are going to have 24 ration coupons for eight months, but a suit of clothes will be 26 coupons; that, in an example how the lowering of the ration on clothes will work out.

Britain has borne a heavy burden in war in every particular and she has earned the admiration of the world. She has done much for others and bears her load with the typical British spirit. In this again as in so many other sacrifices, the British people have undergone something that people in this fair land of Canada cannot fully appreciate.

Just now the great number of returning soldiers will make for a lesser simulation in men's clothing and the homecomers have priority rights for they require civilian clothes.

The members of the Belleville Lawn Bowlers' Association held their first annual banquet and presentation of the year's trophies in the auditorium at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening with close to 200 lawn bowlers and their intimate friends gathered around the festive board. The past season was one of the most successful and enjoyable seasons of play in the history of lawn bowling in this city. Much praise was given George Watkin, the president, and the members of the executive for 1935. The chair was occupied by R. J. Wray, past president and one of this city's premier bowlers. Charles N. Sulman, Belleville's oldest active bowler, proposed the toast to the new members and this toast was responded to by Mrs. Tom and Stewart Mitchell proposed the toast to the ladies to which Miss Anne Hurley made a fitting reply. George Watkin, the genial and dynamic president of the club, made a fine address on the past and future activities of the club. Wally Wallace, the veteran secretary-treasurer of the club, made the presentation of prizes won during the season.

Mr. Austin Walters has left to resume his studies in medicine at Queen's University.

Messrs. Lancaster Bellville and Michael Donovan have left for Florida where they intend to reside.

Mr. Winston Wensley of the Bank of Montreal staff in Peterborough, is spending a few days with his parents at their home on Bleecker Avenue.

The Tweed fair was a great success: the weather was fine, the attendance was large and the exhibits were excellent. Following are the officers to whom much credit is due for a grand fair: hon. president, Reeve Stokes; president, George H. Ketcheson; first vice president, H. A. Mouck; second vice president, E. Maynes; secretary, C. H. Brown; treasurer, L. W. Martin.

Mr. S. A. Barclay of this city has been elected Deputy Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows for this district. Since his election Mr. Barclay will do credit to himself and the Order by the faithful performance of the various duties connected with the important office.

Mr. Nelson Parliament, MPP, Prince Edward County, was a visitor in town today.

The tea room on Grand Quinte is now open for the season. Tea will be served each afternoon and night at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Scott, manager of the Empire Theatre, has made arrangements for a first class booking agent, Toronto; to send all his good companies to this city, thereby placing Belleville back of the map as a theatre town. The Palace Theatre is being decorated by a scenic artist from Toronto.

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks were lower in all sections of the Toronto Stock Exchange in moderate trading today.

Industrials sagged with losses going to a long list of issues. Brazilian Traction fell ½ to 9 while Alumina Steel dipped ¼ to 64¼. Abitibi declined ¾ to a 1965 low of 10¾ on news that the company has cut its base price for newsprint by $5 a ton in Ontario. In base metals, Inco lost 1 to 78. Among juniors, East Sullivan and Sullivan Consolidated, gold producers, fell 20 cents each to 8.60 and 6.15 respectively. The Sullivan group has an interest in a property in Quebec where promising copper showings were encountered recently. The selling today follows three days of increasing prices.

Shares of nine small mining companies threatened with suspension from the Toronto Stock Exchange all fell. The Exchange announced a new delisting policy Tuesday which means that unless these nine companies can raise some money within two weeks their shares will be taken off the trading list.

Dominion Coal preferred, a seldom - traded issue, jumped 3½ to 9½. All the common shares of the company are owned by Dominion Steel and Coal which was unchanged at 13½.

Greater Winnipeg Gas closed with a loss of ⅛ at 22 after being down as much as 2¾ at one point. The company said negotiations for Northern Ontario Natural Gas to purchase all of its common shares have broken off. NONG shares fell ¼ to 28¾.

Banff dipped 20 cents to 7.95 among western oils. It traded as high as 8.40 and as low as 7.80, a routine pattern compared with the wide swings of the two previous sessions.

Ireland's Furniture Holding Official Opening at New Store

Ireland's Furniture and Appliances are looking to the future in downtown Belleville!

Now fully settled in their new location at 380 Front Street, just south of the Upper Bridge, the store will host its official opening Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Free prizes galore, ranging all the way from complete Teflon sets to portable radios, light bulbs and umbrellas, will go to lucky customers.

As an added feature there will be free coffee for everyone; a free electric blanket will go with the sale of each electric dryer and boxes of Tide with each washer.

And just by way of business promotion for the immediate area, there will be additional free prizes of flowers by Wellers and free gift certificates for hair washing and sets by French's Salon.

With a fight for survival having developed in recent years for independent appliance dealers, Ireland's feel that their place in the future must be geared to low overhead operation with every possible customer convenience.

PLENTY OF PARKING

The new store offers plenty of free parking, name brand (General Electric) appliances, and their own service department for servicing of all products they sell.

Their motto is "not to be knowingly undersold by anyone."

Ireland's have been in business in Belleville for 14 years and most of the store personnel have been with them for many years. They specialize on a limited number of lines and, working in co - operation with General Electric, have grown to be that company's leading dealer in the Belleville area.

A cordial invitation is extended to both new and old customers to visit Ireland's at their new location and take advantage of the official opening specials.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

Britain Back On Right Side Of Ledger

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain appeared Monday to be back on the right side of the economic ledger, with increased reserves of gold and convertible currency to back a strengthening pound sterling.

The Treasury said the reserves rose at the end of last month to £364,000,000 ($2,952,000,000), a visible rise of £21,000,000 ($183,000,000).

Specialists said the increase was in fact better than that, because large but undisclosed sums previously borrowed were at the same time repaid.

As the gold figures were announced Monday, sterling rose in the foreign exchange market to $2.8003 U.S. Until a few weeks ago, the pound had been under the official parity rate of $2.80 U.S. for 17 months and the Bank of England had to buy sterling to stop the price from falling further. Now the bank is able to buy gold and foreign currency again without weakening the price of sterling.

Wants Grants Formula To Prevent Political Meddling With Academic Freedom

OTTAWA (CP) — Government grants to universities should be parcelled out according to a logical formula to rule out political meddling with academic freedom, the Bladen report said today.

It proposed that grants be computed on the basis of each university's enrolment, with "weight" factors added to favor young institutions and those with a larger proportion of advanced students.

It called this method "formula financing" and proposed that this be placed in the hands of an independent commission in each province, with strong representation from university academic staffs.

"By eliminating the annual line-by-line scrutiny of the university budgets "formula financing" would protect the universities from bureaucratic control and the governments from embarrassing charges of favoritism."

Formula financing also would give the universities more leeway in planning growth and adjusting tuition fees.

END POLITICAL PROBLEM

Grant commissions would be a "guarantee against political interference in the internal affairs of the universities."

The Bladen commission recommended that similar "weighted" enrolment formulas be used by the grant commissions to distribute provincial aid and by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada for federal aid except in Quebec.

Quebec would continue to receive tax abatements instead of direct grants from Ottawa, to remove all possibility of federal control of higher education.

The Association of Universities, formerly known as the Canadian Universities Foundation, has distributed federal per capita grants on a straight equinus basis since the program was launched in 1951.

CITE DISTRIBUTION

In the 1964-65 fiscal year, 86 universities and affiliated colleges outside Quebec qualified for the $3 per capita grants, which totalled $27,288,000. Quebec received $11,120,000 in income tax abatements, and the Quebec government decided how to divide the money among the province's universities.

Universities and colleges outside Quebec do not have to belong to the Association of Universities to qualify for grants, but most do.

Institutions that do not belong to the association have to be sponsored by one or two members universities and must satisfy ao association committee that they provide instruction of university standard.

A total of 33 Ontario institutions qualified for federal aid last year. There were 33 in the west and 20 in the Atlantic provinces.

NAMED DEPUTY

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Kenneth G. Charron, director-general of health services for the federal health department, will take over as deputy minister of health for Ontario upon the retirement of Dr. W. G. Brown at the end of December.

Oppose Higher Grants For Maritime Colleges

OTTAWA (CP)—It would be a mistake for the federal government to give higher per capita grants to universities in the Atlantic provinces than to institutions elsewhere the Bladen commission said today.

The commission on higher education said it sympathized with the hard-pressed Atlantic universities, but rejected a plea by the Association of Atlantic Universities for larger grants. "... We believe that the special fiscal needs of these provinces should be dealt with by general equalization grants."

The report said Ottawa should increase the Atlantic tax adjustment grants instead of "tinkering" with university grants.

"To confuse aid to universities and equalization of provincial fiscal resources seems to us unwise, particularly at a time when the general problem seems likely to receive full attention."

Statistics in the report showed that Atlantic universities receive the lowest degree of provincial support in Canada.

In 1963-64, provincial grants accounted for 26.5 per cent of the operating revenue of Atlantic universities, compared with 39.4 per cent in both Ontario and Quebec and 45.1 per cent in the western provinces.

Group D

earlier this year was called upon to rush his first report after a wildcat strike by postal workers spread to several major cities.

The judge suggested the post office, even as now organized, might "adopt financial practices similar to those of public utilities" to generate enough income to pay its way.

The corporation [illegible]'s won approval from Godfroy Cole, general secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

"We've been advocating this for years," he said in an interview.

However, regional pay would have far more significance for the civil service.

JUDGE FAVORED IDEA

Judge Anderson said he favors the idea where there is "a close relationship to the rates of pay of employees outside the civil service possessing similar skills and employed in the same regional or local labor market."

A spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Canada agreed with the idea of a regional premium, but only after a national salary floor had been established.

Judge Anderson said a regional system would help solve recruiting problems in some areas. He gave as an example a survey of 10 Ontario post offices that showed a staff turnover between January and May this year ranging from 18 per cent at Burlington to 48 per cent at Oakville.

The pay increases recommended Tuesday include a $900 raise granted all Group D civil servants earlier this year. For the 8,000 affected by the third report, total increases will range from $250 to $650 a year.

The latest raise is retroactive to Aug. 1, 1965.

The employees all were earning $5,400 or more a year.

The raises to all 58,000 Group D workers increase the government payroll by about $28,700,000 annually.

In Vancouver, William Kay, national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the postal workers would be pleased to see the post office department turned into a Crown corporation.

He said he would have to study Judge Anderson's detailed recommendations on regional pay scales before commenting, but that regional pay runs contrary to union policy.

NEW CAPRICE

by CHEVROLET

Custom Coupe — with a smart and elegant roofline you won't find on any other Chevrolet

You will quickly recognize Caprice for what it is. A truly elegant Chevrolet, resembling no other.

A whole new series of elegant new models — the most lavish Chevrolet has ever built. There's the Caprice Custom Coupe, Caprice Custom Sedan and the luxurious new Caprice Custom Wagon. Truly elegant in every detail, they invite (and deserve!) your closest inspection.

Beneath that distinctive coupe roofline: deep-tufted shimmering upholstery over thick foam cushioning, lush carpeting underfoot and insets with the customized look of handrubbed walnut enrich the doors and the padded instrument panel.

There's a liquid smooth ride from its super-soft coil springs and shock absorbers at every wheel, hushed by generous insulation. And you can order power that's just as smooth as the ride. A standard 195-hp V8. A 275-hp Turbo-Fire V8. A 396-cubic-inch Turbo-Jet V8 at 325 hp. And there are even 427-cubic-inch Turbo-Jets available at 390 and 425 hp.

In the Coupe, Strato-bucket seats and centre console are standard and there are elegant custom touches such as AM-FM radio and Four-Season air conditioning that you can add to any model.

There are new heights in ride, in power, in comfort, in styling, in elegance.

Caprice costs a bit more than other Chevrolets, as you might expect. But knowing Caprice is made by Chevrolet, you know what a beautiful value it must be.

JET-SMOOTHER IMPALA

The smoothest riding models we've ever built. And available with Chevrolet's advanced new Turbo-Jet 396-cu.-in. and 427-cu.-in V8's!

Impala Sport Coupe — graceful roofline, sloping rear window. And a vinyl roof cover is available to make it even more impressive!

No Chevrolet has ever had a ride like this one. It's smooth, solid, quiet — and you can get new Turbo-Jet V8 power to complement it. It makes turnpike cruising an exciting new adventure — transforms even daily routine traffic into a pleasant experience.

First, we refined the shock absorbers. Redesigned the body mounts. And designed that big coil spring at every wheel for the requirements of every body style... What you get is an even Jet-smoother ride in Chevrolet 1966.

And you can specify a Turbo-Jet 396 engine at 325 hp. Smooth, quiet, plenty of reserve power (Just one of six engines available up to a 425-hp Turbo-Jet 427 V8).

But really, there's only one way to find out all that's great about the '66 Chevrolet with its beautiful Body by Fisher. Ride in one.

SLEEK STUNNER CHEVELLE

New is right! '66 Chevelle is the newest style in middle-size cars and it's a beauty!

New sculptured rear deck, dramatic new rooflines, broad new grille design, powerful new engine range, and Chevrolet's kind of quality are what set '66 Chevelle apart from the pack. Not just apart — but miles ahead! And when you get into individual models there are other pleasantries by the carload: like the recessed rear window on the Malibu Sport Coupe; like a special Sports Option for Malibu Sport Coupes and Convertibles; like a Chevelle 300 Convertible that brings you open air fun at a down-to-earth price; like a selection of personal extras that includes everything from power brakes and steering to Custom air conditioning. But the only way to appreciate a '66 Chevelle is to see it for real at your Chevrolet dealer's.

New Malibu Sport Coupe with the Sports Option and its intriguing recessed rear window — sleek stunner!

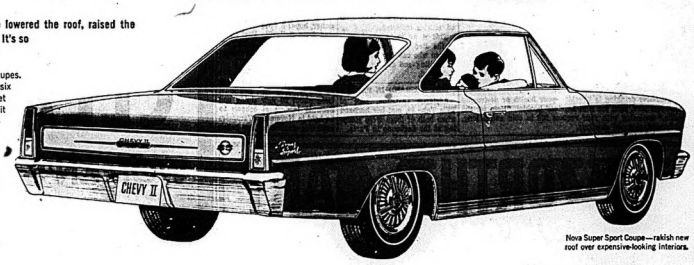
ALL-NEW CHEVY II

Chevy II is something else again for 1966. We've lowered the roof, raised the horsepower available and given it a whole new look. It's so different, we should really call it the Chevy III.

You'll hardly know Chevy II. New swept-back roof on the coupes. New fenders, grille, hood, taillights and bumpers on all six models. New interiors, too (very rich). New Strato-bucket seats in the Super Sport Coupe (very comfortable). And wait till you feel how Chevy II acts with the new 350-hp Turbo-Fire V8 you can order this year.

Front seat headrests and thin-line whitewalls also available. Simulated wire wheel covers, too — from your dealer.

What's the economical, dependable, salt-of-the-earth Chevy II coming to? A lot of very smart car buyers, the way we figure it.



Nova Super Sport Coupe — rakish new roof over expensive-looking interiors.

UNIQUE CORVAIR

Corsa Sport Coupe — up to 180-hp and new front-seat headrests available.

North America's only engine-in-back, no-radiator, no-antifreeze car. And there isn't any other, we think, as much fun to drive.

Corvair's rear-engine traction and 4-wheel independent suspension makes fun of pretzel-bending curves. And Corvair's internationally-inspired good looks reinforce that sports-car feeling. Padded instrument panel, padded sun visors. Seat belts front and rear. Backup lights, windshield washer and 2-speed wipers, outside rear-view mirror. Fully synchronized 3-Speed transmission. Are all standard equipment. Corsas. Monzas. 500's. Come get one. Stay young.

Ann Landers

This Is a Lot of Old Fashioned Baloney

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Seven months ago I met a man who has everything I want in a husband. Unfortunately he also has a wife.

ANN LANDERS

Vic never tried to deceive me. He told me the evening we met, that he had married a girl who was pregnant by somebody else because he was afraid she'd take the gas pipe if somebody didn't help her out.

He wants to marry me but he can't because he is not divorced. A divorce would cost $450 and he just hasn't got it. Vic is a mail man and his take-home pay is $77 a week. He already owes a finance company $76 a month for his car.

I have a good job and money saved. I have begged Vic to let me give him $450 for a divorce but he refuses. He was raised old-fashioned and he has too much self-respect to take money from a woman, so we are living together as man and wife. Help. Please. — C.B.H.

DEAR C.B.H.: So Vic was raised old-fashioned and he has too much self-respect to take money from a woman? But he thinks it's all right to move in with you. Apparently he doesn't have quite enough self-respect to cover that situation, so how about applying a little of your own?

Get that free-loading pest mail out of your house and tell him to file you under "address unknown" until he is free to offer you marriage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a word to the fifth grade teacher who signed herself "Steaming Mad." She says it is unfair to blame the teacher when kids get to high school and can't read. According to her, parents should keep checking their kids to find out if they can read. If they can't she says the parents should teach them at home or hire a tutor.

That teacher is out of her mind, I am a working mother. My children need an education. I am not trained to teach them at home. They must learn at school. That's why I send them. That's why I pay taxes.

My eldest boy just started college. He was told he has the reading ability of a fifth grader and that he'll have to take a reading course. I remember now that his fifth grade teacher was a chaser who was tossed out for playing games with the principal. That's the year he stopped learning to read. So let's put the blame where it belongs. — ALSO MAD.

DEAR ALSO: While your son enrolls in a reading course why don't you take a course in logic? Your reasoning is out of this world, Mother.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with the most wonderful boy in the world. We are both 23. Last night he gave me an engagement ring and I was so happy I cried. I could hardly wait 'til morning to show the ring to my folks. My mother looked at it and said, "The diamond is so small. Aren't you ashamed to show it?"

Ann, I am not ashamed. The ring is beautiful and furthermore, it's what he can afford.

My mother says I shouldn't be so blinded by love that I don't see the practical side of things. According to her if I don't get a big ring now I'll never get one. I really feel awful when she put out her own hand and said, "See this peanut? Well, your father promised to replace it with a bigger one when he could afford it. That was 26 years ago."

My mother says one day I'll wish I had listened to her. What should I do? — PUNCTURED JOY.

DEAR PUNCTURED: I'm surprised your mother can see anything — with those dollar signs on her eyeballs.

Keep the ring and cherish it. You and your mother are worlds apart in your thinking — and I hope you stay that way.

* * *

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help for the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Red Cross Soc. Lacks Workers

The Belleville Red Cross work rooms are now open for the fall season. These are located at the corner of Bridge Stret and Cedar Street.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. G. K. Graham, the women's work group meet here every Tuesday from 2 to 5 to carry on the work of sewing garments, knitting, quilting and other activities.

There are now five sewing machines to be used. Two new ones were purchased recently. More women are needed to carry on this work. All the work is not necessarily done in the work rooms. Some feel they cai do this work in their leisure time at home. If a call is made to Mrs. G. K. Graham, Trent Road, she will see that materials are delivered and the finished articles collected.

This is an important branch of the Red Cross services and women who can give some time to knitting and sewing, will be welcomed.

MET HUSBAND IN PARIS

Adrienne Clarkson, host of TV's Take 30, met her husband when both of them were studying at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Montgomery (Monty) Alyea are pictured signing the register following their recent marriage in Tabernacle United Church. The bride is the former Janice Gloria File, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. File of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rex Alyea, also of Belleville.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BELLEVILLE DIVISION

Miss Mildred Gray, girl's program director of the Belleville YMCA, was a guest of the Belleville Division of the Girl Guide Association at the regular meeting on Monday night. She presented tentative plans for the use of the YMCA pool by the Guides and Brownies for badge test work. Lack of funds in the local Association has prevented the use of the pool for guide work in the past. The YMCA is eager to have the Association take advantage of the pool for swimming instruction one hour each week. If a class of at least 25 girls can be guaranteed, the cost can be borne by the Association. Mrs. Don Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner, hopes a class can be formed from Belleville Packs and Companies to take advantage of the YMCA facilities during the winter.

The Belleville Division has lost many of its leaders through out-of-town transfers, and must train about 20 new Guide and Brownie leaders at schools to be held in November. Vacancies exist for another six or seven leaders for Brownie Packs and Girl Guide Companies.

Belleville Division has been forced to curtail activities and close down Packs and Companies because of the lack of volunteer adult leaders. Although girls clamor to join the Guiding movement and the Social Welfare Council report on Belleville says adequate girl's activities is the city's most pressing social need, the Belleville Division's work is seriously hampered by a shortage of Guiders and Brown Owls. Any woman who wishes to serve her community in this worthwhile way is urged to contact Mrs. Stewart or any Guide leader immediately.

Sorority Holds Successful Dessert Bridge

In a colorful autumn setting the Beta Sigma Phi held a most successful annual dessert bridge sponsored by the Xi Beta Zeta Chapter in St. Thomas Parish Hall, last evening.

The event was convened by Mrs. H. L. House and Mrs. Bruce Bishop with other members of the sorority assisting. Guests were warmly greeted by the president, Mrs. Joan O'Flynn.

Following the serving of an array of tasty desserts, buffet style, a number of games of bridge were enjoyed. The winners of these were: lady's high, Mrs. Thompson; second, Mrs. George Wishart; low, Miss Elizabeth Black; man's high, Mr. Roy Jeffrey; second, Mr. Tom Fell; low, Mr. Earl Hickey. The hidden score prize for women was won by Mrs. H. Emerson and for the men by Dr. John Barlow.

A number of door prizes were also drawn with the winners of these being Mr. George Wishart, Mrs. Hugh Murray, Mrs. M. Stier, Mrs. W. Ludolth, Mrs. Ron Moorman and Mrs. D. Dibben.

Bringing Up Baby

KNITS COLLECTED — MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

It's amazing how many things a newborn can do. During the first week he can lift his chin, yawn, sneeze, and hiccough. By the end of the first month . . . little ears are alert to sounds, little eyes can follow light. When offered a finger, a dainty hand will grasp with a vice-like grip. While all these antics are reflex actions, they're forerunners to voluntary actions. As the central nervous system develops and muscle control sets in, your baby will begin to do things with intent and purpose.

Good starting point. Rice cereal is often recommended as the starting cereal because it's a single-grain cereal and well-tolerated by babies. Gerber Rice Cereal is especially desirable as a "first" cereal, because it's pleasantly mild and has this special extra. It's the only baby rice cereal which contains rice polishings . . . to make the cereal ever-so palatable. Like all Gerber Cereals, it is enriched with iron (a factor in blood-building) and important B-vitamins to aid appetite and growth.

Well sewer. Decorative way to protect the nursery wall from baby-bath splashes: place a sizable panel of gay, plastic-coated wallpaper behind baby's bath table. Spares the wall, and baby will enjoy looking at a colourful print!

*

Baby saver. Easy way to prevent stinging eyes at shampoo time: rub a bit of cold cream above baby's eyebrows. Wonderful how it sidetracks suds . . . keeps them from trickling into sparkling eyes.

Growth progress depends on an adequate supply of protein. 4 Gerber Strained Meats provide satisfying ways to give your baby growth-promoting protein. Made from carefully selected, government-inspected cuts, they're processed to extra-smooth, nicely moist perfection. Low in fat, they're easy to digest. High in savoury flavour, they're relished by babies with lip-smacking zest. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

BEST BUY FOR THANKSGIVING

With the head butcher unblushingly quoting me a dollar or more a pound for this and a dollar or more a pound for that I wandered up and down the meat counter hunting for some meat that we could all comfortably afford for our Thanksgiving dinners. The turkeys were 49 cents per pound. Fowl (chicken, duck, turkey), fish and pork were the cheapest buys. So I've settled on turkey and am content.

WEDNESDAY

TOMATO COOLER (appetizer):

To 1 cup tomato juice add 2 tablespoons crushed basil leaves. Simmer 3 minutes. Chill. Strain. Add 2½ cups chilled plain tomato juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ⅓ cup dairy sour cream. Beat with rotary or electric beater until foamy. Chill. Serves 6 to 8.

ROAST STUFFED TURKEY (Oven-ready 12 to 15-lb. bird):

Note: Last Thanksgiving time I gave you this Stuffing. You wrote saying it is the best yet. Here is the repeat)

Stuffing: One standard loaf bread pulled into crumbs, 1 cup sliced mushrooms 1 cup sliced celery, ½ cup chopped apple, ½ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped parsley, ½ cup butter, 1 to 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon sage or thyme or rosemary. In large frying pan melt butter and saute all vegetables and apple until wilted, not brown. Add to breadcrumbs in large bowl along with seasonings and mix. Stuff prepared bird and truss snugly.

Roasting: Dry outside of stuffed bird, spread all over with soft butter, roast at 325 deg. Fahr. for 4½ to 6 hours, no water, no cover, basting occasionally when drippings collect in pan.

NOTE:

If desired, cover bird with tent of foil for first 4 hours, then remove to allow skin to brown and crispen.

TURKEY GRAVY (4 cups):

Transfer turkey to hot platter. Pour excess fat from pan, leaving ½ cup fat and all brown sediment in pan. Place over low heat and blend in ½ cup flour. Stir in 4 cups boiling water until thick. Add salt (or chicken bouillon cube) to taste.

THE SHELL GAME

Dear Susanna: Could you please tell me how to keep my pie shells from caving in? I have a terrific recipe for crust and like to bake several at a time ready for filling, but when I put them in the oven — disaster. I never miss your helpful columns. — Mrs. S. Maxwell

Here is the whole fascinating story:

In many cases following simple precautions will produce a tender well-shaped pie shell: (a) don't stretch the crust; (b) be careful to fit it in loosely; (c) prick it all over with a fork; (c) press well around the bottom of the pan, and (d) don't get the crust too wet.

In the event that disaster still plagues that crust, it may be necessary to "weight" it. To do this, place a slightly smaller metal or pyrex pie plate right on top of the shell before you add it to the oven. Remove the top pan as soon as the crust has baked to the point where it is "set." In the case of the pyrex plate, just when it starts to brown. Failing all else, there is one fool-proof method. When the crust is all ready to bake, fill it with dry lima beans! It will take about a pound, and they won't be wasted.

As with the previous "weighting" when you are sure the pie is "set" remove the lima beans and continue baking the shell. The beans can be stored in a coffee tin in the refrigerator until the next time. Just be sure to remove all the beans — this is not a recipe for jaw breakers! — SUSANNA

Successful Living

Long Separations Put A Strain on Marriage

DEAR DORIS: I am the wife who was away while her husband had an illicit love affair. I went away because we had many debts and I knew I could get work in England. My husband planned to use his whole income to catch up on our debts while I took care of the children and myself for six months.

DORIS CLARK

I missed him and was so lonely. I wrote him every day. When I came back I found this woman had been using every opportunity to make up to him. Her husband was his friend, and had him there for Christmas and New Year's. Then they began meeting at motels.

When I came back and discovered this he was terribly sorry and he is doing everything in his power to make us happy. He knows now that this person is, to put it in his words, "a mixed up nympho."

Can I really ever get over this period? I truly love him but will I spoil our happiness with my morbid thoughts? — WRONGED.

DEAR WRONGED: That's up to you. It just isn't right for a wife and husband to live apart for long periods of time. It is sometimes quite difficult for a man who misses his wife, physically, to resist a woman who is literally throwing herself at him. (Not that I condone his yielding.)

Replace those morbid thoughts with some plans to improve your love and companionship. No relationship is static. Is there a hobby or sport which you could take up together? Talk it over.

Your love is precious and wonderful.

DEAR DORIS: I'm very concerned with a friend of mine who is in her 60's — not old enough for the old age pension. My friend is crippled with arthritis and has always refused help but her condition is worsening. I would like to know three things:

(1) Is she entitled to any sort of disability pension, and if so, where should she apply?

(2) Where is the nearest branch of the Arthritis Association?

(3) Is there any way she can obtain free drugs?

—CONSTANT READER.

DEAR CONSTANT:

(1) Yes; to the Disability Pension, if she cannot work. she applies through her local public welfare office.

(2) The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Association is there to help her in many ways. The nearest branch is at 157 McLaren Street, Ottawa 4, Ont.

(3) The C.A.R.S. or her welfare department may be able to give a certain amount of help with drugs.

Strong-willed Nun May Break From R.C. Church

VICTORIA (CP) — A strong-willed nun who has fought with Rome about care of animals says she plans to leave "lapsed Roman Catholics" into a breakaway church.

Mother Cecilia Mary said here Tuesday she may join the Old Roman Catholic Church because of a dispute with the Roman Catholic Church about her animal shelter. The Old Roman Catholic Church broke with the parent church in the late 1700's.

And she hopes to take with her "a lot of Roman Catholics who now are like lost sheep."

The 76-year-old nun met Tuesday with an ambassador of the Old Roman Catholic Church, Msg. Gerard Greeley of Old Bridge, N.J.

After the meeting, Mother Cecilia modified her statement last week that she and her animal-tending nuns were "not papal Roman Catholics anymore."

NEAR SWITCH

She said they had "not exactly, yet" changed churches. But the switch is "not too far off."

Mother Cecilia said she plans to take Roman Catholic lay people into the Old Roman Catholic Church because "I'm missionary-minded."

The missionary spirit of Mother Cecilia goes back more than 40 years. In 1922, she founded an Anglican nursing order, the Sisters of the Love of Jesus. In 1937, she converted her nuns to the Roman Catholic faith.

Mother Cecilia led a band of nuns from the priory to an animal shelter in the early 1900s. Her Good Shepherd Animal Shelter was financed with money inherited from her father.

But in May the church ordered closure. The directive said animal care is not a recognized work of the church.

Mother Cecilia and her nuns refused. They appealed but Rome issued a second edict which is still under consideration.

More Co-eds Will Make Campus Scene

OTTAWA (CP) — More and more "co-eds" will make the campus scene over the next 10 years, the Bladen commission on higher education predicted today.

A statistical study prepared for the commission forecasts that young women will increase their share of full-time university enrolment to 36 per cent in 1975 from 30 per cent a year ago, and only 21 per cent eight years ago.

Female enrolment is projected at 106,000 five years from now and 165,000 in 1975, compared with 50,000 a year ago and only 13,200 in the fall of 1951.

The commission, appointed by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, did not make any specific recommendations about women students.

The universities were accused Monday of showing intolerance and prejudice against women by Mrs. M. J. Sabia of St. Catharines, president of the Canadian Federation of University women.

She said most universities discourage women graduate students by imposing quotas and age restrictions. For instance, McGill University in Montreal had a five-per-cent quota for women in architecture and a 10-per-cent quota in medicine.

It was decided to discontinue the First Aid Kits for the Public Schools.

Rich Pine Point Lead-Zinc Ore Amazes American Geologist

By BOB TRIMBEE

PINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP)—"I've never seen deposits that compare with these," says Frank Hurley, a 34-year-old geologist now mapping locations of vast lead-zinc deposits being developed by Pine Point Mines Ltd. in a multi-million-dollar program.

Mr. Hurley, a native of Fresno, Calif., moved with his wife and children several months ago to this community 500 miles north of Edmonton. He still marvels at ore which grades up to 50 per cent metal.

"I haven't seen anything that compares with these deposits in either the United States or Australia, where I've worked on similar lead - zinc operations. When you find deposits like these it's fantastic—and profitable."

Said an onlooker watching the stocky American at work pinpointing the perimeter of a deposit in one open pit being prepared for development: "Every time a new geologist comes here he's like a little boy in a candy shop with a dollar to spend."

In the process of plotting the ore locations that dot flat bush country on the south shore of Great Slave Lake for a radius of 15 miles around Pine Point, Mr. Hurley and geologists are compiling detailed information of the Devonian reef.

This strata also has been found to contain some of southern Alberta's richest oil pools. The Pine Point ore deposits lie at the top of numerous cones in this porous rock in a manner similar to the location of oil pools in Alberta.

SEEKS REASON

"We are trying to relate the geological information to the location of ore," says Mr. Hurley. "If we can find out why, how or where deposits likely will be found, future exploratory drilling will be more efficient."

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., parent company of Pine Point Mines, has spent $22,000,000 developing the ore bodies, building a 5,000-ton concentrator, town site and mill site service buildings. The concentrator is scheduled to begin operation in November.

Glacial action has carried away much of the overburden. Ore outcroppings show evidence of this.

"The overburden averages about 30 feet, most of it clay and loose rock which isn't difficult to clear," says Mr. Hurley.

"We get a detailed look of the rise and fall of the strata on the walls of the mining pits. In drilling holes to get the exact location of each deposit we get samples of underground formations every 50 feet. Such detail is not required in oil exploration and that's why the work here is so valuable from a technical standpoint."

The deposits dot the area. There is no vein linking the ore bodies, which vary in size from a few thousand tons to more than 1,000,000.

All run east to west and vary in depth to 150 feet. The north and south walls drop off abruptly.

While drilling cores containing ore are sent south for study, the remainder are stored in boxes and "provide a library of geological data." These are examined periodically, as now is being done by a student working on his master's degree.

DRAWN TO SCALE

As well as plotting the outline of deposits on maps, Mr. Hurley also has drawn them to scale on sheets of plexi-glass, showing depth of ore, amount of overburden, where and how much overburden or ore has been removed.

"This provides a continuing three-dimensional look at deposits as a further aid to drilling the pits. It's a benefit where two or more small deposits are close enough together to be developed as one pit."

The importance of the Pine Point development from a geological point of view was discussed by Dr. W. R. A. Baragar, a geologist in the regional geology division of the Geological Survey of Canada, in a recent issue of the magazine North.

Two theories survive as to the origin of the Pine Point deposits, he said. One is that the lead and zinc were collected by circulating groundwaters and deposited in a few favorable places and the other is that they resulted as emanations from molten rocks deep in the earth and deposited in suitable traps near the surface.

"Eventually other geological features may be found to which ore bodies can be related. Thus the search for new ore is continually guided by geological knowledge gained in exploiting the old."

Tomorrow: Winter weather hasn't hampered operations.

committed "to suppress evidence or ensure silence."

The justice minister said the bodies of three of those killed have been found in the St. Gilles area and that they had been covered with caustic lime in an effort to make identification difficult.

"It is very possible that we shall find six or seven other bodies in the Montreal or Quebec regions," he said.

DEAD NAMED

Late Tuesday the justice department made public the names of four of those killed. Besides Faucher, the list included Paul Brie, 40 of Quebec; Alberic Bilodeau of St. Joseph de Beauce, Que., 40 miles south of here, and Maurice Gingras, owner of an electrical appliance store in Quebec who had been missing since 1962.

Mrs. Bilodeau said in an interview at her St. Joseph de Beauce home Tuesday night that she last saw her husband Sept. 18, when he left home to see an unknown man about a painting contract.

Mr. Bilodeau, a painter, took an employee named Marcel Voyer with him to a hotel in the Ste. Marie de Beauce region, she said. He met Voyer inside to find the man they were to meet.

When Voyer returned without finding anyone, he found that Mr. Bilodeau and his car had disappeared. The car, was found five days later, a few miles from St. Gilles.

Mrs. Bilodeau also said that her husband had owned the Quirion Hotel in St. Joseph when it burned Sept. 30, 1961. The hotel was closed at the time, she said.

URGES MARS SHIP

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Nobel Prize-winning scientist has proposed a $20,000,000,000 project to build a nuclear-powered spaceship that could whisk men to mars at a speed of 540,000 miles an hour. Such a project, said Dr. Willard F. Libby, could be completed in 10 to 15 years. If successful it could carry astronauts to Jupiter in 17 months or could reach Mars in two weeks.

Canada Running Desperately Short Of Brains

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is running desperately short of brains, the Bladen commission on higher education warned today.

The commission reported that the shortage of doctors, dentists, scientists and university lecturers is causing concern already and threatens to get worse unless there is a massive increase in government aid to education.

Here are some of the findings:

—There were 100,000 full-time college and university students in 1963-64, but only 431 doctorates and 3,490 master's degrees were awarded that year.

—Enrolment grew to 178,200 last year but only 13,800 or eight per cent were post-graduate students.

—An average of 2,800 more university teachers will be needed each year until 170 Pad 3,300 each year after that.

—An average of 400 physicians leave Canada annually and medical schools will have to double their output from 775 last year to 1,650 in 1974-75 just to maintain the current ratio of one doctor for 837 Canadians.

"The scientists we met impressed vigorously upon us that the security and the general welfare of the country urgently requires further rapid and sustained growth of Canadian science.

"Science and technology are 'exploding' so fast that our efforts will have to be greatly increased if Canada is to keep up with the general momentum."

The report said more than half the high school graduates can benefit from a college education, but actually fewer than one in six went to college. This compared with a ratio of one in three in the United States.

The shortage of doctors was a matter of national concern, but even greater shortages existed in the basic medical sciences of anatomy, biochemistry, physiology, microbiology, pathology and pharmacology.

The report said the only ways to increase the supply of brain-power are to expand universities and provide post-graduate students with aid approaching the level of free education.

Urge 150 Per Cent Increase In University Grants For Research

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal grants for university research should be increased to more than $100,000,000 from $40,000,000 next fiscal year, the Bladen commission recommended today.

Further big increases each year until at least 1975 were advocated. The provinces were urged to do the same, but no amount was mentioned.

The funds would go to the university administrators, to individual professors and to research students. In the current fiscal year, 17 federal departments and agencies will spend an estimated $40,000,000 on university research projects.

The Bladen commission recommended basic grants of $15,000,000 by three agencies starting in the 1966-67 fiscal year and rising each year by 20 per cent. The money would be split as follows:

—$40,000,000 from the National Research Council to finance projects in physical sciences, up from $21,633,000 this year.

—$20,000,000 from the medical research council in aid to medical schools and hospitals, up from $9,250,000.

—$15,000,000 from the Canada Council for studies in the arts, humanities and social sciences, up from an estimated $2,900,000. The larger amount would include $2,000,000 earmarked for university research libraries.

No specific increase was recommended in research aid by the 14 other federal agencies, which will total about $7,000,000 this fiscal year.

However, the commission proposed that each federal grant carry a 30-per-cent supplement to assist the affected university directly. This would boost aid from the 14 agencies to about $9,100,000 in 1966-67.

In addition, a sustaining grant payable to every university and college was recommended. The total amount would equal 10 per cent of the aggregate salaries of full-time university teachers.

This program would cost about $19,700,000 in 1966-67 and rise to an estimated $37,000,000 in 1970.

The research aid from Ottawa as recommended by the commission would total $104,000,000 next fiscal year and about $206,000,000 in 1970.

At the same time, the government was urged to allocate more money to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to improve its research into the whole field of university financing, to assist policy makers. Available statistics were quite incomplete, especially on student aid.

Bladen Report Voices Misgivings About Two Liberal Student Aid Programs

The Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1965

Trade Minister To Speak Here

A man recognized in world business circles as a leading economist and capable executive is to speak to the Hastings-South Liberal association's convention in Belleville Thursday October 7.

Usually the Minister of Trade and Commerce Mitchell Sharp can be depended on for a message that will convey information beneficial to all local people regardless of their political affiliations. Mr. Sharp was appointed to the cabinet following his election to Parliament 2½ years ago.

Story of Quebec Must Be Told Says Lesage

SUDBURY (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec said Tuesday he had already planned to visit Northern Ontario before the Nov. 8 election campaign called.

His reason for coming here was to tell the story of Quebec, a story that "simply has to be told," especially since the preliminary report of the royal commission on bicuturalism and bilingualism was a "shocker to me," he said in an interview.

On separatism in Quebec, he said:

"There are two acceptable possibilities. One is a far greater French - Canadian participation in the federal government. The second is a particular status for Quebec, which would allow that province to do such things as make cultural agreements with other countries. But these, of course, must never conflict with Ottawa's foreign policy.

"I feel I can speak straight from the shoulder here, in Northern Ontario, for this is an area that understands and appreciates the problem of Quebec.

"Quebecers don't they don't expect the mass of English-speaking Canadians to speak their language, but we do hope that you don't expect the mass of French-speaking Canadians to speak your language."

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bladen report on higher education expresses misgivings about two student aid programs advocated by the Liberal party.

The commission of four experts says it is worried about over - dependence on student loans as opposed to non-repayable aid.

It adds that tax concessions to students and their parents would be more effective and more easily administered than "the much discussed proposal for 10,000 n a t i o n a l scholarships."

Both the loans plan and 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each annually were promised by the Liberals in the 1963 election, Prime Minister Pearson promised Tuesday that if re-elected his government would allocate $10,000,000 annually for student scholarships. After four years the fund would increase in line with the population of the 18-24 age group. Mr. Pearson also promised Sept. 24 to boost the $40,000,000 student loan fund set up a year ago.

The Bladen report recommends that the loan fund be expanded "as becomes necessary" but adds words of caution:

"We are worried by the high proportion of student aid in the form of loans and hope that other forms of aid will slow down the growth in the volume of federal student loans. There will surely remain an important role for such loans in the next few years."

The commission recommends that government cash grants to university and college students be boosted to $245,000,000 from about $40,000,000 last year. The provinces would continue to contribute the majority of this aid.

The two levels of government should account for more than 80 per cent of the student aid bill, leaving less than 20 per cent to business and other private donors, the report says.

In the first year of the Canada Student Loans plan, loans totalling $26,600,000 were made to 42,500 students in nine provinces. Quebec received a $12,000,000 tax abatement and pumped the money into its own loan fund.

The commission recommends higher income tax deductions for parents with sons or daughters at university. The present regulations are inadequate and "perverse in giving most to those who need it least."

At present a parent can deduct $550 from his income for each child attending university and earning less than $950 a year. A parent with a taxable income of $10,000 gets a tax relief of $110 while one earning $25,000 saves $275.

A survey by the commission showed that university students received about $53,000,000 in bursaries, scholarships and loans from all sources in 1964-65.

Of this amount, $39,000,000 came from the federal and provincial governments. Loans totalled a h o u t $25,000,000 and grants $14,000,000.

Not included in the aid statistics were the $10-a-month youth allowances begun a year ago by the federal government.

This program will cost an estimated $46,500,000 this year but benefits only those aged 16 and 17 who stay in school. Most college students are over 17.

The commission calculated that the cost of going to college in 1964-65 was an average $875 for those living at home and $1,200 for those away from home.

If costs continued to rise at the current annual rate of three per cent, they would reach $1,200 and $1,740, respectively, in 1975.

About 80 per cent of all students needed outside help.

The report says most universities appearing before the commission expressed concern over students' "overdependence" on loans. Five arguments against loans had been voiced:

Students who plan to enter lower paid professions can ill afford to graduate with a burden of debt.

Loans are more accessible to the rich than to the poor.

Students with large loans may be reluctant to pursue advanced studies.

For women students who get married, a loan constitutes a "negative dowry."

University Leaders React Warmly To Prime Minister's Proposal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordon Favors Short Campaign For Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) —Finance Minister Gordon said Tuesday he thinks the usually large number of undecided voters in Canada is partly due to the frequency of elections in the last few years.

He was commenting on public opinion polls which show a high percentage of voters undecided about which party to support in the Nov. 8 general election.

Mr. Gordon, Liberal federal campaign chairman, held the regular weekly briefing on the campaign Tuesday, and said opposition leaders were making "a lot of loose statements." They were "hitting "personal attacks and that sort of thing."

"I have the impression they are not coming to grips with the issues."

The campaign chairman said the Liberal party's 265 nominations for the election will be "pretty well cleaned up" by the end of this week.

He said he didn't know whether Mr. Pearson would go into Northumberland to campaign with candidate Pauline Jewett, who is opposing former Conservative trade minister George Hees.

Mr. Gordon again defended the decision of Mr. Pearson to confine his campaign to the last five weeks. He said people complain in every election about the length of the campaign" and we took the lead in this."

University leaders reacted warmly Tuesday to Prime Minister Pearson's proposal to establish a $40,000,000 scholarship program for university students.

Under the program announced earlier in Ottawa, freshmen scholars chosen on merit would receive a maximum $1,000 a year for each of the four years of study at a cost of $10,000,000 a year to the federal treasury.

"This is good news," said Dr. W. A. Riddell, principal at the Regina campus of the University of Saskatchewan. "What really appeals to me is that the scholarships may be continued throughout the four-year course. This is where many scholarships fail today in that they are only for the first year."

Davidson Dunton, president of Carleton University, Ottawa, described the federal plan as an interesting development which "should help meet the urgent need for much greater student aid."

Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, welcomed the plan.

"It is good to know that the leaders of our national political parties are aware of the need to provide financial aid for those who can profit by higher education . . ." he said.

WANTS WIDER AID

While commending the plan, Dr. J. A. Corry, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., expressed reservations about the fact that it doesn't appear to cover students who are not scholarship material. Dr. Corry is also president of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

The program provides for a reduction in the value of the scholarship if the parent can afford to pay part of the cost of his child's university education.

"That seems better than making a flat $1,000 scholarship which some persons don't really need," commented R. B. Wishart, administrator of student awards at the University of Alberta. "I welcome such a plan especially one administered at the local level so it can be coordinated with plans already in existence at most Western Canada universities."

A. G. McCalla, the Alberta university's dean of graduate studies, said: "I'm disappointed it's aimed only at the undergraduate level which I'm sure it's excellent for. However, I would like to see some assistance at our end as well."

Dr. A. W. Preston, vice-principal of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que., said the program sounds "like a good idea." "Any move to help meritorious people is helpful," he said.

Officials of three Montreal universities, McGill, Sir George Williams a nd Universite de Montreal, declined comment because of the current federal election campaign.

REPORT READY

OTTAWA (CP)—A Manitoba judge's report on the CNR's controversial run-through program has been completed and may be made public around the end of October, it was learned Tuesday. Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman was appointed almost a year ago to study the situation after the introduction of crew run-throughs at Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta., led to a crippling wildcat walkout by CNR train crews. Both were postponed pending a federal inquiry.

SUSPEND TALKS

Discussions on a proposed takeover of Greater Winnipeg Gas by Northern Ontario Natural Gas have broken down, but they may be resumed, the companies said in Toronto Tuesday. A joint statement said: "As a result of these discussions it has been decided that no offer will be made at this time, but both parties will review the matter with a view to further discussions."

START DELAYED

A new automobile assembly plant at St. Bruno, 10 miles east of Montreal, is scheduled to begin producing Renault and Peugeot automobiles by Oct. 18. Company spokesman said Tuesday that delay in construction of the plant has resulted in postponement of the production target date of Oct. 1.

AUTO SHIPMENTS UP

Shipments of Canadian-made motor vehicles in August aggregated 22,756 units, up sharply from 8,383 units in August last year, the bureau of statistics reported. Shipments during the first seven months of this year were up 19.1 per cent at 354,829 units compared with 465,752 in the same period last year.

Pillars of Security
Institute for Blind

Ninth of a series of articles on the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal campaign.

Blindness need not mean the end of happy productive living.

Last year, training and counselling helped more than 25,000 blind men, women and children rebuild their lives. C.N.I.B. services are supplied without charge to the sightless.

Your dollars given to the United Appeal can help support the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and help the blind reach new horizons.

The Hastings County Advisory Board is your representative of the C.N.I.B. It's objective is to improve the conditions of the blind and to prevent blindness.

Each day, during the next 12 months, six Canadians will become blind. They will need counselling and training to regain their place in the community.

This figure of six each day is tragic, but it could be cut by 50 cent through proper early care. The C.N.I.B.'s blind prevention program wants you to help prevent blindness by taking care of your own eyes and by supporting the C.N.I.B. work.

EXAMPLE GIVEN

To reach a horizon you cannot see is the goal of blind Canadians. An illustration is the true story of Fred, who lost his sight in his early sixties.

To avoid embarrassment, he resigned from the service club he had enjoyed for years. Because he could not avoid the stones and stumps in his favorite fishing haunts, he gave up fishing. Since he could no longer see to read, he stopped going to church. When he refused to step out of his own front room, his wife called the C.N.I.B.

A field secretary visited him and explained the services. Since the new client had a pension and some investments, his financial position was satisfactory.

One of the first services he found useful was a Braille watch, which restored his ability to tell the time. He learned to use Braille playing cards, and took lessons in the use of the white cane from a C.N.I.B. home teacher who was blind herself.

He still did not believe blind people could enjoy social activities.

That summer, with extra urging, the new trainee did attend the annual picnic for the blind. To his surprise he discovered that he could take part in the games along with other blind persons and enjoyed himself as much as he had done at picnics all his life.

That fall he joined the White Cane Club where he made new friends. The membership consisted of a former bank manager, a merchant, factory workers and housewives, who started with only blindness in common and built up other mutual interests.

Fred then joined the blind bowling league and learned that, with the help of a volunteer sighted coach, he could make a fair score.

The club activities, which rehabilitate while they entertain, soon changed Fred's attitude towards blindness. Soon he was his old, jovial self again. The embarrassment and self-pity of early blindness were gone. In fact, he had reached a new horizon—the goal of CNIB services.

SERVICES VARIED

Services provided the CNIB in Belleville are many and varied. They include: registration and rehabilitation—124 Belleville visits by client members offering guidance and rehabilitation assistance; employment training and job replacements—employment opportunities are sought for blind people and special training given for special jobs; welfare—an emergency financial supplement is given when the income is inadequate and residential care is provided at the Quinte-St. Lawrence Hall, Kingston, a specially-planned home "for the blind; medical — arrangements are made for eye examinations and operations where necessary; preventive measures — given through radio and press facilities and lectures to school children; recreation — regular programs in bowling; summer camps, picnics and social clubs, such as the White Cane Club of Belleville, and library facilities and reercational aids.

In Belleville, 20 district services were offered last year to 51 blind people through the board's activities along with those of the field secretary and staff from the District Headquarters in Kingston.

CHANGE TO TAPES

This year talking books are being provided on tapes enclosed in cartridges or cassettes, rather than on disc records which become easily damaged.

"This changeover is expensive," said Mrs. Harry Rollins, chairman of the CNIB Hastings County Advisory Board. "Hence there is an increase in our needs this year.

"It is better to prevent blindness than to provide services after needless loss of sight," she added. "We have a very active program for the prevention of blindness, a program we hope people will support by taking care of their own eyes and by supporting the United Appeal Campaign."

"By the time the newspaper is out Wednesday," opined O'Peever, mixing his Montreal Canadien's potato with a long acquired Brooklynese, "dose Bums will have nailed the foist one away."

O'McGee bore his eyes crazy from the television set and the Pepe's parade and rhymed through his tears, "I couldn't care less one iota. Regardless of what goes or comes, I'm pulling for ole Minnesota. In six they'll mobilize the Bums."

"Uncle Benny" looked at the open space in his wallet caused by the sudden departure of leaves of the lettuce he had unwisely bet on the late lamented Giants and commented "no action until I see my lawyer—and a couple of finance companies.

Said Pocahontas O'Hill, wearing a new golf cap that set on his swarthy noggin like a white freckle on a black elephant's rump, "Remember the Little Big Horn and my great-great-great grandpappy Sitting Bull? Well, what he did to that army guy Custer will look like a strawberry social compared to what Peaver's Bums will do to the Twins."

Mushmouth, our man on Zwick's Island, looked up from a cauldron of stewing eels garnished with mudturtle and opined, "Boss I'm told I am exercising a deleterious influence on the hordes of children who read my declamations in your otherwise unread column.

"It don't take no mental strategy to proclomate the Dodgers will give the Minny Twinkies fust hoss feedin's before they put them bye-bye. They may hafta burp 'em after the second insertion of Koufax Jellybeans, just to keep 'em alive for the final massakee."

"Mushie," chided Minnie, his spouse, a black-blooded peasant from the spinach-thatched steppes of Upper Mongolia, "put your money where that big blab of yours is. Them Bums won the flag on account they had arms. Without 'em they'd be Venus, pretty to look at, but useless as hell in a hittin' match."

"They're a bunch of delicatessens compared to the Twins' butcher shop. Man, those guys have meat. Lookit Killebrew. His great grandpappy was a champ pee weightlifter. His grandpap was a heavyweight wrastler. His dad once licked a 1,000-pound bull in a circus match."

"I'm tellin ya, ya big blabbermouth," shrilled Minnie, expectorattin' a half dozen Polut Anne clams, "they've got guys like Bob Allison, Tony Oliva (thass my baby), Earl Battey and Jim Hall that will make pretzels out of the flippers of Koufax, Drysdale, et al, iffen their battin' eyes are on target."

"Besides, yuh big liver-lip," she gushed, picking a baby eel out of her molars, "the only thing that can hit anything for the Bums is that big lug Drysdale. Casey Stengel? A pitcher bein' the top slugger of a ball club. That's never been heard of since Paddy Maracle of Point Anne led his back-fifty nine to a 3-0 victory by striking out 27 and hittin' three home runs."

Mushmouth slunk back into the farthermost corner of his cave.

"Wanna bet, Min," he croaked, "I'll lay-ya odds that the Dodgers are 19-2 plums to grab it all in four straight; two to one to win it in five and nine to ten to accomplish it in six."

Minnie conked him with the skeleton of a 1931 outboard motor. "That'll learnya," she hissed.

"Minnesota will take it in six."

Bavasi Boast Irks Twins' Manager

By JOE REICHLER

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The makings of a mild rhubarb seemed to be fomenting today as right-handers Jim (Mudcat Grant of Minnesota Twins and Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers clashed in the opening game of the 1965 World Series.

The weather prediction was for a mild, cool temperature but the air in the vicinity of the batting cage during the Twins' workout Tuesday was a little warm, especially around manager Sam Mele.

Usually a mild - mannered goat, Mele took off on the Dodgers because of a prediction by Los Angeles general manager Buzzie Bavasi that his team would knock off the Twins in four straight.

"The Dodgers are in for a surprise," Sam retorted hotly. TWINS 'TIRED UP'

"Cracks like that have a habit of coming back to haunt a guy. I think all they did was fire up the guys a little more."

Bavasi had been quoted as saying:

"I think three or four clubs in our league would have won the pennant over there. I don't think the competition from the Twins will be any tougher than the Yankees when we beat them four straight in 1963."

Easy-going Walt Alston was not happy over Bavasi's remarks, either. The diplomatic manager of the Dodgers attempted to ease the situation.

"Don't pay any attention to what Bavasi says," Alston soothed. "Our guys know it won't be easy.

"I hope we can win it—whether it's four or seven. I'll be happy to take it in any number of games."

PITCHERS READY

Both Drysdale and Grant declared themselves fit and ready. Don went into the game with a six-day rest, the longest he's had all year. Mudcat hurled two innings since last Saturday.

Neither Drysdale nor Grant has pitched against the other club although the Dodgers' right-hander has faced a number of Twins in all-star competition.

"The only Dodgers I have ever pitched against are Lou Johnson, when he was with the Cubs, and Maury Wills, in the minors," said Grant. "But the Wills of then was not the Wills of today."

The odds favor the Dodgers 11 to 10 in the opener and 7 to 5 in the series.

Both managers plan to use only three starters, no matter how long the series lasts. The second game Thursday will be a southpaw duel between the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax and the Twins' Jim Kaat.

KOUFAX RETREATS

Koufax, of Jewish faith, plans to spend most of today in temple, observing the Yom Kippur holiday.

Camilo Pascual, who underwent surgery for removal of a tumor under the armpit, will pitch for the Twins against Claude Osteen in the third game Saturday in Los Angeles. Friday has been set aside for travel.

"Pascual has shown no sign of arm trouble," said the Twins' pilot

'Thief' Championship Up For Grabs

Wills Versus Versailles

MINNEAPOLIS AP) The billing for the 1965 World Series could very well read Maury Wills vs. Zoilo Versailles.

For as Los Angeles Dodgers and Minnesota Twins met in the first game today, the most interesting matchup involved the two shortstops—both base-stealing threats and both leading candidates for most valuable player awards.

And despite the short time in which to study opposing pitchers, both said they were ready to start sliding into second base.

"It really takes a mixture of luck to learn about a pitcher," said Wills. "I can look at a guy all the way he walks, how much agility he has—and tell about him. There's no secret about how I steal or take the lead. The big thing is doing it."

What about playing against Versailles? Did Wills, who stole 94 bases, feel he had to put on a display of his base-stealing?

OUT TO WIN

"I'm not saving anything—I never do," he said. "But I'm out there to put on a show. I'm out there to win a ball game."

Versailles, asked about the challenge of playing against Wills, had a lengthier but similar reply.

Did Versailles, who stole 26 bases during the regular season, have any thoughts about stealing against the Dodgers and thus applying the same pressure that Wills will apply on the Twins?

"Wills goes all the time," said Versailles. "But we have a different club. Their pitchers make a mistake and we hit it out of the park. Maybe if Wills was on the club he wouldn't go all the time.

"But I know when to put the pressure on—I know when to go for this club."

And when was that?

"First time," he said surprisingly, then added.

"First time I get a chance, I go. And I want them to know it. I won't lose anything trying."

Chavez Is Home-Run Stadium

MINNEAPOLIS (CP)—Whatever the outcome of the World Series between Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers, there should be more home runs hit when the teams play in Los Angeles.

The fences are closer in Los Angeles' Chavez Ravine Stadium than at Metropolitan Stadium here.

The left field fence in Los Angeles is 330 feet from home plate compared with 344 in the Minnesota stadium. Left centre is 380 feet from home plate in Los Angeles and 435 here.

A player would have to hit the ball 410 feet to put it over the centre field fence in Los Angeles while he would have to hit it 20 feet farther here. The right centre field fence in Los Angeles is 380 feet from home plate, compared with 435 in the Minnesota Stadium.

The Los Angeles right field fence is 330 feet from home plate compared with 365 here.

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—Shortstop Luis Aparicio of Baltimore Orioles said Tuesday he is considering quitting major-league baseball. Edge City Hotel In 1-0 Thriller

Point Anne CSL Champions

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

I'm told they'll be serving strange concoctions in the City Hotel tonight.

They'll be "cement do-nuts" compliments of the faithful pewsiters of the Point Anne softball champions.

All is well today in the concrete community. Last night favorite softball sons won the Commercial League championship over the heavily-favored City Hotel squad.

The score was 1-0.

The victory closed out a hard-fought seven-game series with the tilts in the balance all the way. It could have gone either way.

They should hold a "Son-of-Paddy" Day in the cement village.

For young Ron Maracle, the Pointers Don Drysdale who was a mound standout through the series hurled a one-hit thriller and won his own game by scoring the lone run of the game.

Only 27 batters faced the young hurler six of them getting on first by walks. He struck out six.

The lone hit of him came in the second innings when Brooks lashed out a single. Moreau went out and Coolen walked. Murray sacrificed the runners and the Pointers shortstop made a sensational catch of Ethier's bid to end the rally.

Gerry Genereaux deserved a better fate. He duelled Maracle to the wire giving up but three hits walking one and whiffing four.

Maracle won his own game in the fourth lashing out a double with on out. The next batter flied out an EdiEllisdal batter flied out and Ellis bashed the ball through the infield. Maracle was off with the crack of the bat and went all the way for the winning run in a close play at the plate.

The fielding was near flawless, Point Anne making the lone excusable bobble. Another defensive highlight came when the Cementmen's shortstop made a thrilling over-the-shoulder catch of Doug Hull's long fly.

Maracle's double and singles by Ellis and Whalen provided the winners offensive. Brook's single was the best the Hotelmen could do.

Point Anne proved worthy champions winning the title the hard way.

They were tied for fourth at schedule end and were awarded the berth on a runs-for-and-against average. They eliminated Lightfoots in the semi-finals and you know the rest.

They will be honored at a league stag party in the near future.

The teams - Point Anne: Whalen, Horwood, G. Maher, Maracle, Cook, Ellis, MacDonald, Rosebush, E. Maher.

City Hotel: Hawkins, Martin, Hull, Brooks, Moreau, Coolen, Murray, Ethier, Genereux.

The score:

Point Anne	000 100 0 1-3-1
City Hotel	000 000 0 0-1-0

Umpires: - Adams (p), Kelleher, Watkins.

Those Loyal Pointers

You cannot beat these Point Anne people for community loyalty.

The dainty feminine voice sighed over the telephone, "Is this Belleville?"

Told that it was the voice murmured, "You heard that Point Anne defeated the City Hotel slickers last night?"

The writer had heard something of that nature.

"We always read in the sport stories that Point Anne is near Belleville," the lady remarked.

"We would like to have the statement changed," the voice went on.

"Since Bobby Hull is big news and more recently our village softball team made suckers out of a crowd of city slickers, we want it to be printed:

"Belleville is near Point Anne."

Will do, madam!

Kuntz Rejoins Ti-Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Bobby Kuntz, a halfback and linebacker who retired from football after last season, has decided to return to Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

Kuntz, born in Detroit but now a Canadian citizen who lives in Kitchener, worked out with the Ticats Tuesday night after responding to a call by coach Ralph Sazio.

"Bobby is back at my request," Sazio said. "This whole thing was brought about because of our injuries and Bobby indicated earlier in the season that he would be available."

Kuntz will play in the Ticats' next game, in Hamilton Monday against Ottawa Rough Riders. The two teams are tied for first place in the EFC.

Fullback Art Baker has a small bone broken in his leg between the knee and ankle and will miss Monday's game.

Linebacker Herb Patera, already wearing a cast to protect a cracked bone in his thumb suffered a torn knee ligament and will also miss the game.

With two of his first stringers out, Sazio said he hopes to bolster his team by the addition of Mel Anthony, a former National Football League halfback who was released last week after a five-day trial with Hamilton.

Cats' Coach Sends SOS

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference was forced to send out an urgent call for help after glancing at his injury-riddled roster.

Fullback Art Baker reported in with a small bone broken in his leg between the knee and the ankle and will miss Monday's game here against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Linebacker Herb Paterra, already sporting a cast to protect a cracked bone in his thumb and nursing a sore shoulder, sustained a torn knee ligament and is also out.

Bill Ray Locklin and Gene Coppedelli are hobbling on weak knees, but are expected to be ready for the Ottawa game.

With two of his first stringers out, Sazio said he would go after Mel Anthony, recently released after a five-day trial and Bobby Kuntz, who retired at the end of last season.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — George Gordon, a 27-year-old rider who grew up in the shadow of Old Woodbine, won two of his four races at Woodbine Race Track Tuesday.

Gordon scored with Doubting Thomas of Gardiner farms in the fourth race and with Rondado 2nd in the eighth.

Doubting Thomas, a two-year old son of Traffic Judge, held the pace over the mile-long turf course for his first victory, and paid $23.10, $11.80 and $5.60.

The daily double of Sun Stage, odds-on favorite in the first, and Redoubtable, in the second, was worth $32. The quinella in the fifth paid $11.10 after Just Plain Lucky won the 6½-furlong dash and Leader Lane was second.

Apprentice Alan Cuthbertson of Hamilton was suspended Oct. 7 to 16 inclusive for allowing his mount Little Red to impede Leonartel in Monday's second race.

College Football Scoring

TORONTO (CP)—Eric Walther of McGill University Redmen moved into sixth place in the all-time Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association football scoring race last Saturday by scoring a touchdown against University of Toronto Blues.

The score gave him 108 career points.

Bryce Taylor of U. of T. scored 16 points Saturday to move into ninth place in the career standings with 100 points. Taylor, a medical student, has two more years of eligibility left to break the career scoring record of 132 points set by Ron Stewart, Ottawa Rough Rider halfback, when he was with Queen's University Golden Gaels from 1953 to 1957.

Taylor's 16 points left him in first place in the scoring derby after the first week of the current season.

The leaders (Legend: T-Toronto; Q-Queen's; M-McGill; W-Western):

	TD	C	FG	S	Pts
Taylor, T	2	0	4	0	16
Froese, W	2	0	2	0	14

Ware, T	1	0	0	0	6

Ottawa Rough Riders have the strongest offence in the Eastern Football Conference, but so far they can do no better than a tie for first place with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The reason? Ottawa's defence leaves something to be desired.

The latest EFC statistics show that Rough Rider players hold down first place in scoring, rushing, passing and kick-off returns. Ottawa has also scored more points than any team in the East—218—has gained more yards on the ground—1,764—gained more total yards—3,381 —and scored more touchdowns —26.

All teams in the EFC have played 10 games and Ottawa has yielded 162 points, more than 16 points a game. Only the last-place Toronto Argonauts, who have allowed 262 points, are worse.

HAVE 4 IN TOP 6

Ottawa players hold four of the top six positions in the individual scoring derby with place-kicker Moe Racine leading the way. Including the two converts he kicked in Monday night's 21-14 loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders in an interlocking game, Racine has 56 points.

J. W. Lockett of Montreal Alouettes has 48 points and Don Sutherin of Hamilton 47, but the three positions after that belong to Ottawa players.

Ted Watkins has 42 points, Bo Scott 36 and Jim Dillard 24.

In other statistics, which do not include Monday night's game, Scott and Dillard are one-two in rushing Scott has gained 602 yards with an average carry of six yards while Dillard has picked up 557 yards for a 5.8-yard average.

JACKSON LEADS PASSERS

Russ Jackson is on top in passing, completing 70 of 140 attempts for 1,329 yards and 11 touchdowns. He has had only nine intercepted.

Terry Evanshen of Montreal continues to lead in pass-receiving with 29 catches for 443 yards. Billy Wayne and Garry Henley, both of the Ticats, lead the pass interception department with five each. Joe Zuger of Hamilton leads in punting with 4,427 yards in 97 punts for an average of 45.6 yards. Henley is also the leader in punt returns with 358 yards in 44 returns for an 81-yard average.

Charge FBI Agents Lax In Duty

TORONTO CP) — Bob Frewin, general manager of Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League, said Tuesday that league commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler plans to send a report to J. Edgar Hoover on the behavior of the FBI agents who arrested Rifles quarterback John Henry Jackson last Sunday in Wheeling, W. Va.

Jackson was arrested by four FBI agents as he was dressing for Sunday's game between the Rifles and Wheeling Ironmen. He was charged with draft evasion.

Hoover is head of the FBI. Reports have reached Chandler that the agents were lax in identifying themselves to Jackson.

Jackson, whose hearing is scheduled for Oct. 22, in Wheeling, was released after the game on a $1,000 bond posted by Wheeling team president Michael Valan. Jackson returned to Toronto with the Rifles.

"Chandler told me over the telephone he is interested in protecting Jackson's rights as a player and member of the Continental League," said Frewin.

Born in Columbus, Ga., Jackson, 25, became a Canadian citizen Aug. 22.

Frewin said Chandler offered the services of lawyer Thomas P. Bell of Lexington, Ky. Bell is Chandler's assistant and supervisor of league officials.

Injuries Weaken Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The Rough Riders are a battered football club as they prepare for the big Thanksgiving Day game Monday with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Sorest is ace fullback Jim Dillard, who suffered a shoulder separation in Monday night's game with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Three linemen are limping but will play.

They are Marshall Shirk, who has a sore knee and a cut near his left Achilles tendon; Bob Brown, who missed the Saskatchewan game with stretched knee ligaments; and Billy Joe Booth, who has a sore knee.

Quarterback Russ Jackson's throwing thumb is swollen to double the normal size but he played the second half of Monday's game with it that way. The Hamilton game is a crucial one, with both clubs fighting for first place in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League.

Sewage Plant Discussed at Council Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Council held their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening in the Council Chambers, three members absent, Deputy Reeve Locke, Councillors Bennett and Torrance.

The main business of the meeting was a discussion with Messrs. Barr and Rotor of the O.W.R. Commission.

At a previous meeting a letter was read from K. Sharpe of this O.W.R. stating Consulting Engineers Hisey and Barrington of Richmond Hill had made application to O.W.R. for permission to initiate a lagoon system for Campbellford sewage. Mr. Barrington said no such application had been made by them although Mr. Sharpe stated in his letter such application had been made and permission denied.

Mr. Sharpe's letter, somewhat dictatorial, was questioned by some members of Council at that time and in Monday night's meeting was again questioned by Reeve Brown and Councillor Hughes. One question asked was if a lagoon system was not to be permitted in Campbellford, why had O.W.R. approved two lagoons completed in the area, one at Brighton and another at Colborne.

Hisey and Barrington's recommendation was first, a Rotor Aeration system, second choice Contact Stabilization plant and Activated Sludge as third choice. The O.W.R. according to Mr. Sharpe's letter are firmly recommending the Activated Sludge. Reeve Brown stated the Activated Sludge was not the most modern and in some places tanks had to be covered because of odors; also why was secondary treatment demanded in Campbellford when cities such as Bellleville had only primary treatment plants.

COTTAGE POLLUTION CLAIMED

Councillor Dunk spoke of the position of Campbellford at the lower end of the Trent system and informed the O.W.R. representatives of the pollution from cottages and boats above Campbellford. He felt the place to start a clearing of pollution was at the upper part of the Trent system. The O.W.R. representative, Mr. Barr, replied that municipalities should assume their own obligation without pressure but failed to disclose why the town of Campbellford was being pressured.

Councillor Hughes asked why the sudden decision to not allow a lagoon when the project of sewage disposal had been under discussion for almost two years, and if no lagoon application had been made why had Mr. Sharpe sent such a letter. Mr. Barr appeared to have no answer.

Mr. Barr spoke of new provincial legislation now under observation whereby the cost is amortized over a 40-year period and under which the municipality would never own their own plant. It would be owned and operated by O.W.R. with the cost assessed to the municipality. Such a program is now in progress in Cornwall which Mr. Barr stated could be a test case under the new plan. Mr. Barr's knowledge of such a plan appeared to be limited except to explain a feasibility report.

Councillor Dunk stated if the new penitentiary now being built at Warkworth is allowed to install a Rotor Aeration system why could not the Campbellford municipality do likewise. Mr. Barr stated it would be at least two years before the penitentiary plant could actually prove itself. Any plant varies in efficiency accordingly as conditions vary.

Many other aspects were discussed such as the 40 year system, the debenture system, or the normal 30 year term, the rate structure such as frontage charge, sur charge on water bills or a straight rate of mills on taxes. Councillor Hughs said no matter what structure was used the taxpayer paid in any case.

The matter was left for decision at a special meeting to be called in the near future.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — Chairman of police commission Councillor Dunk said a complaint had been received from the Public School Board as to vandalism at both public schools over weekends, Chief S. Baird investigated and found from January to September of this year the police had received two complaints, which were investigated and solved. One at Bridge Street School in August where windows had been broken, the juvenile offenders were apprehended and parents agreed to replace the broken glass; the other at Kent Street School in June where obscene writing had been written on a rear door and also on the sidewalk. Again the juveniles were found and parents contacted and the objectionable writing removed. Police agreed to patrol the areas and also asked for and were given additional help for Hallowe'en; the school areas to receive special attention.

The C.D.H.S. Board, five member delegation strong with Principal L. Caughill, waited on council to ask for encroachment privilege to install a catch basin on town property to help take care of drainage problem on a new playing field to be built. Council granted the privilege on condition that Booth Street which now encroaches on high school property be not interfered with. The matter was referred to town solicitor A. McColl to draw up a mutual agreement. The playing field construction will be immediately begun.

Permission was given for the local branch of the Canadian Legion to hold Poppy Day November 5 and 6.

Mr. John McGregor asked permission of council to remove two trees on his own property at his own expense as he feels they are a hazard to his garage and buildings. Permission was granted and appreciation expressed for the correct procedure taken by Mr. McGregor.

A case of another tree which council was asked to remove was left for the next meeting in order that members of council may inspect the situation.

Some concern was expressed by Councillor Sharp of the Road and Bridge Commission at what he considered the unnecessary destruction of good trees simply because of the work of cleaning up the leaves.

The Community Centre financing again came under discussion in regard to certain obligations required by the Ontario Municipal Board. A certified copy of the engineer's or architect's report must be filed with OMB before final approval can be given. Also definite temporary financing must be presented before a bank can undertake $132,000 obligation with the debentures issue only $38,000. The debenture application from Seymour township had not as yet been received by OMB.

Permission was received from the Chief Federal Election Officer to use the voters' list now in readiness for the coming federal election for the Liquor vote to be taken October 25.

Councillor Sharp reported repairs to the town bridge had been made under the supervision of County Engineer Mr. John Moobouse. The metal plates installed were not holding tight and the noise created by vehicles was causing a noise nuisance to tenants of the nearby apartments.

The paving of the west end of the bridge is in a bad condition and must of necessity be replaced before winter. By motion it was agreed to employ Thompson Bros. Construction to excavate and pour cement in conjunction with the help of town employees.

Mayor Tanner reported that H. J. McFarland of the McFarland Construction Co. has agreed to complete paving of a street for which he was paid in full two years ago and which had never been completed.

Councillor Dunk was authorized to sign the pay sheet of Parks and Property committee in the absence of Councillor Torrance.

Councillor Grills was authorized to sign for finance and the pay sheet was read by Reeve Brown in the absence of Deputy Reeve Locke.

Cadillac for 1966 has new styling front and rear that emphasizes the long, low classic profile — as illustrated in this Cadillac hardtop sedan. The traditional Cadillac grille now has a horizontal bar running through the centre. The spacing between the vertical and horizontal lines of the grille has been increased to produce a broader look. Less use of chrome trim and ornamentation adds to the car's look of distinction. New features include variable-ratio steering, unique coil suspension, Cadillac, slimmer bucket seats, optional pillow-design seats and optional headrests.

At the Belle

"Cheyenne Autumn" has 10 Stars, Color, Wide Screen and a Powerful Theme

A John Ford picture means something special in films. "Cheyenne Autumn", which opens at popular prices, Today at the Belle Theatre direct from its reserved seat engagement, is the newest John Ford picture and it is something special.

It is stupendous cast, epic story, majestic scenery and the impressive Technical processes of Technicolor; wide-screen, superbly blended by a master movie-maker.

The story is simple, true and heroic. It deals with the universal longing for freedom and homeland. It tells how a small band of Cheyenne Indians attained both despite almost incredible difficulties.

The star cast is commensurate with such a story. James Stewart, Edward G. Robinson, Richard Widmark, Carroll Baker, Karl Malden, Sal Mineo, Dolores Del Rio, Ricardo Montalban, Gilbert Roland and Arthur Kennedy appear in starring roles.

Patrick Wayne, Elizabeth Allen, John Carradine, and Victor Jory co-star.

The scenario was written by James R. Webb, one of Hollywood's top echelon writers, is based on the novel by Mari Sandoz. The producer is Bernard Smith who also produced "Elmer Gantry" and "How the West Was Won."

The director, is of course, John Ford, the sole film-maker in history to win six Academy Awards.

"Cheyenne Autumn" was filmed in a great stretch of starkly beautiful country in Arizona, Utah and Colorado. Monument Valley — one of nature's most astounding creations, an area also called "John Ford Country" because he was the first to show it on the screen — appears in the Warner Bros. release. So does Arches National monument, another stunning wilderness of scenery.

The effort, the care and the cost of making "Cheyenne Autumn" was necessary to establish for which the nearest big city and supply point was Flagstaff, Arizona, 181 miles distant. Counting cast, crew and extras, the company numbered 585 persons.

Housing was provided by 65 luxurious two-bedroom trailers hauled from seven Western states. Fresh water was piped five miles into four 3500-gallon tanks. Over 3800 feet of sewer lines and 5300 feet of water lines took care of the new city, and two Diesel generators furnished electricity around the clock.

Red Buttons Beats Oscar Jinx, Stars in 14 Movies

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Volumes have been written about the so-called Oscar jinx.

Lilies Rainer won two in a row and then was out of the business for years. The explanations are as many as the jinxes.

Some of it is due to swelled head and temperament. Often, an Oscar winner prices himself right out of the business.

Now comes Red Buttons with still another explanation. In 1957 Red, a comic who made it from burlesque to television, found himself out of work. So he asked his agent to get him in pictures—even as a serious actor.

The rest is history. In his first movie, Sayonara, he competed with Marlon Brando. Red's work won the Academy Award for the best supporting actor.

"And then I was out of work for another year," Red recalls. "I believed then in the Oscar jinx but my case was different."

Red didn't overprice himself. He showed no temperament or swelled head. In fact, he was humble.

"But the town couldn't believe that a comic from the borscht belt and Minsky's could make audiences cry.

"Worse, many of the guys who do the hiring here had come up from the same environment as I—the lower East Side of New York.

"I reminded them of days they would sooner forget. Many of them figured my performance was a fake, they just wouldn't take a comic seriously."

Finally, Red got a part in The Big Circus. Since then, he has done 14 major movies and undoubtedly will get an Oscar nomination this year for his portrayal of the agent in Harlow.

Rawhide Will Be Ripped From Schedule After Jan. 1

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS programming executives are weeding early in the season shows with lagging ratings.

Rawhide, after six healthy years as an average western, will be ripped from the network's Wednesday night schedule after Jan. 1. It will be replaced by a series called Charlie Chan, the Cross-Eyed Lion. It will be an unsuccessful candidate for a spot in the season's new schedule.

The new series, expanded from a minor old feature film, obviously is counted as one of those so-called "family shows," which in television parlance means a program that adults believe will not harm their children and which they will patronize at times themselves.

This one is built around an African lion brought into a compound for treatment of an eye condition and who remains to become a pet.

GOOD FOR ANIMALS

By the time this dismal television series has ended, it will have shaped up as one more beneficial to lovable animal actors than to humans. There is, of course, Mr. Ed, the talking horse, and Flipper, the dolphin who almost talks and Lassie who does everything but talk, and now Clarence. They all have the title roles in their own shows.

There is also a lovable automobile playing the title role in My Mother the Car.

Honey West's closest companion is an ocelot named Bruce—although in real life, Bruce is a girl ocelot named Honey. There is also Spot, The Monster's flame - throwing pet, and My Three Sons' amazing dog, Tramp. And Please Don't Eat the Daisies' Hungarian sheep dog called Ladedog by the witty script writers but whose real name is Lord Nelson.

Meanwhile, CBS has decided to replace its first cancellation of the season, Century 21 Profile with an Art Linkletter hosted variety show, starting Dec. 3. This addition will bring to 15 the number of network variety shows available to most TV audiences each week.

Presumably, Linkletter's free adaptations of his summer replacement hour, Hollywood Talent Scouts, will be lost on inexperienced talent and successful interviews with established stars.

BAD NO FAITH

An early automobile manufacturer equipped his products with a whip socket, in the belief that sooner or later a horse would be needed to pull a broken-down vehicle home.

Coffee House for Teens Is Opened by Folksinger

By GARRY McCARTHY

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Eisenkraft, 20, of Montreal, who has spent five years folksinging his way around Canada and the United States, has opened a coffee house in downtown Montreal with the accent on youth.

"I opened the place because I figured teen-agers here have nowhere to go," he said.

"They are pushed around and mistreated when they go out somewhere but we treat them with respect here."

From his own observation, teen-agers "are more mature" as a group than adults, and they are extremely "serious-minded if given a chance."

His coffee house, the Penelope, is a dimly-lit room measuring about 25 feet by 15 feet with seating for 56 persons. But as many as 70 manage to squeeze in for a show.

Broken bottles, used as light shades, line the ceiling. The one contribution to modern art is a triple circle of copper tubing with a water faucet at its end.

Wednesday nights are set aside for a hootenanny while the regular folksinging shows are featured Thursday to Sunday.

SEEKS CANADIAN TALENT

He plans to set aside one night—either Monday or Tuesday—for Canadian talent.

He said these would feature such "oldies" as W. C. Fields and other well - known comedians of another era.

Gary, who sings regularly in his coffee house, is mainly interested in hiring Canadian folksinging talent to appear at his teen - age nightclub "because, let's face it, Canadians don't get many chances."

But he is also arranging to bring in American folk artists such as the Green Briar Boys, Mike Seeger and many others.

The youth, who claims he has the longest hair of anyone in Montreal, began folksinging by just picking up a guitar and singing."

For the last five years he has been singing his way around college campuses and in an assortment of cafes devoted to folksinging in Canada and the United States.

"I guess you could say I have appeared in just about every American state you could name," he said.

IaAUDS MARTIN

Sergio Fanall, commander-in-chief of the NATO defense college, said Tuesday External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is one of the most qualified men for the NATO council presidency. He said Mr. Martin's appointment to the post, announced last week, has been well received throughout countries of the NATO alliance.

PREDICTS SALES

Canadians will buy $415,000,000 worth of farm equipment this year compared with $376,000,000 in 1964, J. G. -Staiger, vice - president of Massey-Ferguson Ltd., predicted in Washington Monday. He said that the recent wheat sales to Russia could raise Canadian farmers' cash income this year to $3,500,000,000.

The Political Front

P.M. Promises Assistance to North Farmers

TIMMINS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson set out today to survey crop damage in Manitoba after promising Northern Ontario farmers feed grain assistance to meet crop losses from a long wet spell at harvest time.

The prime minister spent the first of four election campaigning days on the road in efforts to break the hold of the New Democratic Party on Timmins and neighboring Timiskaming constituencies.

At a sports arena rally Tuesday attended by about 1,600 persons here, Mr. Pearson said the main difference between his Liberals and the New Democrats is that the Liberals are in a position to carry out their social reforms both parties advocate.

He said the Liberals, like the NDP, want free university education for all able to qualify academically but because the NDP had no chance whatever of forming the government after Nov. 8 voting day, they could ignore the problems of cost and prudential responsibility in the field.

"We Liberals . . . cannot and will not ask citizens to believe in overnight miracles," he said.

The bladen report on university financing is under study but it is evident that both federal and provincial governments must do a great deal more to assist the universities, he added.

"We are going to have to do more than ever before and we are going to have to do it quickly."

Youth allowances and student loans had been enacted, The Liberals would bring in a program of $100 scholarships for each of $1,000 cash at the next session of Parliament.

Soon after the bladen report was studied, a conference with the provinces and universities would be held to see what could be done to help the universities.

Mr. Pearson began his tour with the announcement at Earlton of the feed grain subsidy. He repeated it in a public meeting at Kirkland Lake and again here, denying what he said were reports the federal government was slow to come to the aid of the farmers in Northern Ontario.

He also said Forestry Minister Sauve will tour farming areas he recovered what he offer aid, if any, should be provided.

Johnny Cash Charged With Smuggling

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — A grim-faced Johnny Cash, one of the kings of country and western music, posted $1,500 bond Tuesday night and was freed from jail. He is charged with smuggling and conspiring illicit drugs.

The lanky singer was arrested Monday night at the El Paso International Airport. U.S. customs officers said he had 668 tablets of dexadrine, a stimulant, and 475 tablets of equanil, a tranquilizer, in his possession.

Officers said Cash apparently had obtained the drugs in Juarez, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

"I was doing fine until I took a twelve on the first hole—then my game went all to pieces!"

Dief Demands Report on Bankruptcies

VINELAND, Ont. (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker on Tuesday night swept the gangland slayings in Quebec of postal fraud inquiry witnesses into the political arena and challenged the government to produce a justice department report on bankruptcy investigations.

He also pledged that a Conservative government would "clean up this mess."

Mr. Diefenbaker, in demanding disclosure of the justice department report to determine "what was hidden in this case from Parliament," said at a Hamilton press conference during his campaign tour:

"If it (the report) had been revealed there would have been the beginning of such horrible crimes being committed."

In an evening speech here, he said a Conservative government would appoint a royal commission to investigate bankruptcy frauds and "appropriate punishment" would be meted out to offenders.

He did not indicate whether it would be the same one he proposed to investigate organized crime in Canada.

Quebec Justice Minister Bertrand said earlier in the day that five known persons have been slain in recent months and three more bodies are expected in what one police officer called "the worst I've seen."

Mr. Wagner linked the slayings to the investigation of organized crime.

The report to which Mr. Diefenbaker referred is an annual submission to the federal justice minister from the commissioner of bankruptcies.

"I ask the department of justice to produce the report—if there is nothing secret about it. And let's find out what was hidden in this case from Parliament."

At his press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker was asked whether the report mentioned the bankruptcy of Max and Adolph Sefkind who sold furniture on credit to two federal cabinet ministers.

He said the Sefkinds "allegedly defrauded $2,000,000 on this racket."

None of the (report) has any reference to that I am aware," Lamontagne and Mr. Tremblay bought furniture on credit and forgot about it and would been not too anxious for any reference to this report."

Maurice Lamontaine is secretary of state and Rene Tremblay, immigration minister at the when the furniture purchases were discovered, now is postmaster general.

The Conservative leader said that when the government refused to table the report in the Commons Prime Minister Pearson said he would issue a statement on the subject if necessary.

"He's had all the facts, he's made no statement."

Mr. Diefenbaker said papers compiled in a Quebec investigation of bankruptcies were handed over to the federal justice department which administers the Bankruptcy Act.

"In the face of tens of millions of dollars of international racket they met the situation with aversion faces and a handkerchief stiffer," he said.

Today, Mr. Diefenbaker is to tour the riding of Wellington South and tonight will speak to an evening meeting in Kitchener. Thursday, he flies to Winnipeg to begin a western tour.

Snow-melting Machine Will Be Operated

TORONTO (CP)—In an effort to find less costly ways of getting rid of snow on streets, metropolitan Toronto will try a mobile snow - melting machine this winter.

Roads Commissioner George Grant said Monday the snow-melter will convert 15 tons of snow hourly into water to be washed into the municipal sewer system.

Mr. Grant said he expects the operating cost of the rented snow-melter to be substantially less than hauling snow to dumps. The machine will cost $17,000 for the winter.

Federal Aid To Education Gets Approval

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — That old taboo of Canadian politics—federal aid to education—appears to be popular with nearly everyone who counts in the wake of the Bladen report on university financing.

Provincial premiers, university heads and federal party leaders all expressed support for Wednesday's report which called for an immediate four-fold boost in federal spending on universities.

The seven-man commission headed by Dean Vincent Bladen of the University of Toronto recommended that federal aid to universities be increased to $330,000,000 next fiscal year and to $630,000,000 by 1970 from $90,000,000 this year.

The report said the 1960 arrangement under which Quebec receives an extra slice of corporation taxes instead of federal grants to individual universities should be continued.

This met with favor from Que. Education Minister Jean Lesage and totally unacceptable. Education was an exclusive provincial field.

Federal grants to universities were non-existent until 1951 because of constitutional problems. The 50-cent per capita grants introduced that year were flatly rejected by the Quebec universities and sparked a bitter feud between Premier Maurice Louis St. Laurent and the late premier Maurice Duplessis.

Duff, Ross Stanfield, Conservative premier, accused the Pearson government Wednesday of discrimination in the provinces and universities appealed time and again for bigger grants.

Prime Minister Pearson said here Tuesday his government plans to call a federal-provincial conference in the next few months to seek a method whereby Ottawa could boost university aid without interfering with provincial rights.

The Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, which handed the Bladen study 18 months ago, will submit a brief based on the report to the federal and provincial governments within a week.

Dr. J. A. Correy, association president, referred to the $630 million and told reporters:

"It has been a most incredible spectacle and interesting prospect to see politicians competing to assist universities."

"Let's see some action." Pre-

Truckers Ready To Walk Out

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between five teamsters union locals and 85 Ontario trucking companies resumed Wednesday night and the union planned to take steps to begin strike action if there is no progress by 3 p.m. today.

Kenneth McDougall, president of local 938, International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT) and chairman of a joint committee representing 8,000 members of five locals, said in a statement the union would apply to the Ontario labor relations board to waive conciliation services if there is no progress today.

The application, if granted, would permit a legal strike within seven days, which would tie up trucking from Windsor to Ottawa, Mr. McDougall said.

More than 4,500 union members are already engaged in a wildcat strike at trucking yards in Toronto, Hamilton, Oshawa, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Windsor, Kitchener, Barrie, Guelph, Preston and Espeller.

The strike has affected industries in the Kitchener area and at General Motors in Oshawa, where company officials said

Murders May Be Over 12

QUEBEC (CP) — An earlier estimate of 12 victims of a Quebec gangland purge might have been too low, Claude Wagner, provincial justice minister, said Wednesday.

Police, who have already uncovered three victims, buried in woods near St. Gilles, about 50 miles south of Quebec City, are searching for two more.

These are the known victims of what they call one of the worst criminal networks to have operated in Quebec.

Mr. Wagner said Monday there may be six or seven more. Wednesday he told reporters this was only an estimate which could be raised.

He said the men were slain by racketeers anxious to stop their talking to authorities about such activities as fraudulent bankruptcies and arson.

GETS INFORMATION

Information has been flowing into his department and he called on persons with knowledge of fraudulent bankruptcies and arson to come forward, he said.

Authorities say the ring is one of the most important arson rings ever to operate in Canada. They believe it may have United States connections.

Police say the search for two bodies in communities south of Quebec City is hampered by the fact that the men disappeared some time ago.

Sought are the bodies of Maurice Gingras, owner of an appliance store in Quebec City and missing since 1960, and another unidentified man.

Police have already found the bodies of Redemptorist Faucher and Paul Brie, both of Quebec

Charge Ontario Liberal Leader Impaired Driver

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Thompson today was remanded until Oct. 21 when he appears in court here on four charges laid following a two-car collision last Wednesday in which four women were injured.

Police said he was charged with dangerous driving, impaired driving, careless driving and failure to yield one-half of road. Four women injured, Mrs. Harwood, Ont., occupants of the second car, were treated in hospital. One woman, Mrs. Ida O'Connell, is in serious condition with head injuries.

Mr. Thompson was arrested after the crash, but later released on $100 bail posted by George Ben, Liberal member of the Legislature for Toronto Bracondale. Mr. Thompson and Mr. Ben were here on a visit of the Ontario reformatory at Millbrook.

Collision Course Seems Set in Rhodesian Talks

LONDON (Reuters)—Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith and British Prime Minister Wilson seemed set on a collision course today as they prepared for what was believed to be the decisive session in their talks on Rhodesian independence.

The rupture that seemed likely, with Smith demanding independence under Rhodesia's present white minority regime and Wilson continuing to refuse unless the colony's African majority were assured of voting rights, threatened to wreck the Rhodesian economy and perhaps even shatter the British Commonwealth.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, one of the African Commonwealth members, declared Wednesday night in a television interview that if British yielded to Smith's demands Tanzania would drop out of the Commonwealth.

Britain has threatened to use economic sanctions against Rhodesia if it "rebelled" by declaring independence unilaterally. Wednesday Nyerere declared that he expected Britain to go even farther — to use armed intervention.

Smith's early optimism in the talks with Wilson and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley appeared to evaporate Wednesday in talks which Smith said left the parties "as far apart as we were—but no further . . . I would not say we are any nearer to a solution acceptable to both sides."

It was understood that at Wednesday's talks Britain hammered home its determination to take stern retaliatory measures if Smith carried out his threat to seize independence.

It was understood that Smith put forward some suggestions for discussion but that Britain regarded them as incompatible with its basic principles.

Rhodesian African nationalist representatives said they feared they would reject any agreement which would produce African majority rule prior to independence.

Even before he came to Britain, Smith threatened that if he turned to Rhodesia empty-handed, his Rhodesian Front party would favor a unilateral declaration of independence.

Rhodesia has insisted it wants sovereign independence with strings. Britain, however, has held that the internally - self - governing colony must first give guarantees that progress will be made toward rule by the African majority within a "reasonable" time.

Catholic Bishops Disagree About Nuclear Arms Policy

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Bishops at the Vatican ecumenical council clashed openly today on whether the Roman Catholic Church should condemn all nuclear weapons or accept some as defensive arms.

Prelates from Poland, Spain, France and England threw their support to a view favored by many U.S. bishops that the use of modern arms is legitimate in some areas.

Other prelates, including a French and Italian cardinal, appealed for an outright condemnation of war in every form, nuclear or conventional.

Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, secretary of the powerful Vatican holy office and a leading council conservative, drew a resounding burst of applause when he told the council there is "a need to ban war absolutely."

Gangland Slayings Leave Imprint on the Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gangland slayings in Quebec connected with bogus bankruptcies are leaving their imprint on the federal election campaign.

Prime Minister Pearson said in Winnipeg Wednesday no report of an investigation into fraudulent bankruptcies has been made to the federal government.

He was replying to questions from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's statement in Hamilton Tuesday that if a justice department report on bankruptcies had been made public "there would have been less possibility of such horrible crimes being committed."

Mr. Pearson said his reply didn't mean that there was no report to the federal superintendent of bankruptcies. Truckers' reports to the superintendent in bankruptcy cases but these "are never made public."

At Oshawa, T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said: "The people are fed up with seeing the slimy fingers of the underworld reaching into the councils of this nation."

At Regina, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said

2 Quebec Bandits Arrested

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Two of Quebec's most wanted men, who were holding three hostages in a nearby farmhouse, walked out and gave themselves up to Quebec Provincial Police today two hours after police put a cordon around the house.

The pair gave themselves up after talking for an hour with reporter Marcel Lamarche of Montreal radio station CJMS. He persuaded the pair to give him their guns—a 22-calibre rifle and a 303-calibre rifle—and he turned these over to police.

Chief Inspector Herve Patenaude said the pair held two women and a four - year - old child hostage on a farmhouse 20 miles northwest of Montreal.

The two men, George Normand and Andre Daoust are wanted in connection with a bank robbery May 27 at St. Leonard when a passerby was shot and wounded and two bank employees taken hostage and later released.

Public Got False View Says Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Two charges of fraud were laid today against George and Viola MacMillan following a royal commission investigation of one of their companies, Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd.

The MacMillans were reported to be in Nevada. They are due to return in a week and the understanding is that the warrants will be served on them then, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario said.

George MacMillan was president of Windfall and his wife Viola was described as a promoter of Windfall. She is one of the best-known names in recent Canadian mine development.

The royal commission report said the MacMillans refrained from telling the truth last summer while Windfall shares rose in runout to $5.60 from 56 cents. It made no recommendations concerning them, however.

Mr. Wishart said earlier that criminal charges would be laid against "certainly more than one person" as a result of the commission's report.

Mr. Wishart's press conference was called to discuss the report of the royal commission on Windfall. The report was released to the public after the conference ended.

It recommended no punitive action, but condemned the action of John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission, during July, 1964, while the price of Windfall shares climbed to $5.60 from 56 cents on the Toronto Stock Exchange on rumors of a bonanza find on its property near Timmins.

Mr. Wishart said in a prepared statement "the report deals with the conduct of John Campbell . . . and I must note I suspended this man from his position when his conduct was first made known to me through the investigation carried out by the Ontario Securities Commission.

"Mr. Campbell subsequently resigned."

The Windfall report notes that Mr. Campbell had little experience in the securities field before taking his job with the OSC, Mr. Wishart said.

"It wasn't lack of experience that was Mr. Campbell's trouble," the attorney-general told reporters.

He also said that expanding the OSC personnel and duties are well under way.

'Inexcusable'

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission today branded John Campbell with improper conduct while he was director of the Ontario Securities Commission, charging him with "inexcusable" interference in the Windfall fiasco.

Exchange Must Rid Self Of Gaming Club Image

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange must rid itself of its image as a private gaming club to regain public confidence, the Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly said today.

In the report, Mr. Justice Kelly says:

"The high percentage of Windfall company shares traded by members of the brokerage community raises some real doubts as to whether . . . the exchange is maintained for the benefit of the investing

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly's royal commission report on the 1964 roller-coaster ride of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. blames the company's controlling team of George and Viola MacMillan for issuing "misleading" information that boosted its stock price.

The 177-page report, released by the Ontario government today, recommends "fairly drastic" changes in the conduct of business on the Toronto Stock Exchange — where Windfall fluttered wildly — and the establishing of the Ontario Securities Commission as an independent agency.

Windfall Highlights

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the report of the royal commission on Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., released today by the Ontario government:

Behavior of John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission, was "the most shocking incident."

* * *

Such statements as George and Viola MacMillan issued about Windfall trading should have been calculated to be misleading.

No one single event could have produced the situation that led to the appointment of the royal commission.

* * *

Some stock brokers held the view the stock market was a private gaming club, there for their personal benefit.

* * *

No punitive action against anyone was recommended.

* * *

If the stock exchange can't police itself some outside body will have to.

* * *

A national body to regulate all Canadian exchanges is a desirable end.

* * *

The Ontario Securities Commission should be strengthened and its role should be spelled out clearly by new legislation.

* * *

Primary distribution of securities through the stock exchange should be stopped.

Consumer Price Index Falls As September Food Cheaper

OTTAWA (CP)—The September consumer price index fell three-tenths of a point to 139.1, bureau of statistics reported today.

Lower food prices pushed the September index down from 139.4 in August. These offset small increases in the cost of housing, clothing, transportation and health and personal care services.

Based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, the index was at its peak in July, 139.5, and fell one-tenth of a point in August.

Group indexes for September, with August indexes in brackets, are: food, 136.4 (137.8); housing, 141.5 (141.2); clothing, 121.4 (120.7); transportation, 148.7 (147.9); health and personal care, 176 (175.8); recreation and reading, 134 (134.6); tobacco and alcohol, 132 (132.6).

A reflection of living costs, the September index was more than 2½ per cent higher than the 136.9 of September, 1964.

Economists say that ideally prices should not rise by more than 1½ to two per cent a year.

The bureau has no measure of family incomes precisely parallel to its index of consumer prices. The latest available index of average industrial wages and salaries was 212 at July 1, unchanged from June and 10 points—or 4.7 per cent—higher than at July 1, 1964.

This index, also based on 1949 rates equalling 100, represents average wages and salaries paid by firms in a wide range of industries employing more than 15 persons.

The bureau said the consumer price index in September was held mainly as the result of lower prices for fresh vegetables, grapes, orange juice and sugar.

The bureau said the housing index rose because of increased rents and costs of home-ownership. The household operation component of this sub - index also rose slightly, with higher prices for furniture, textiles, utensils, equipment, and household supplies.

Venerable A. S. McConnell then dedicated a new Canadian ensign and a Troop flag, which were received by Tom Mitchell, chairman of First Belleville Group Committee, and turned over to Scouter Walker. The Group then retired.

Federal Aid

nier Robin said. "The federal government has put us off time and again, asking us to wait for the report. Now it is here. There is no excuse for further stalling."

Premier Robin objected to another recommendation in the Bladen report, however. Appointing a full-time minister of higher education would "unnecessarily complicate the constitutional situation," he said.

Liberal Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said the extra federal aid would give provinces for university operating and construction costs would be welcome. His education minister, George Trapp, said he likewise welcomed the Bladen report.

The recommendation was aroused the most opp on from provinces as it would give the federal government a role in "resist popular pressures" for higher education funds.

"Dean Bladen is like an 18th century capitalist in his approach to the problem of education," Toronto Star columnist Peter Newman said.

Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood announced Tuesday he would be absent from the Federal-Provincial University Conference in St. John's and Mr. Gerin-Lajoie will be absent also. He says the government is committed to removing fees eventually.

Dean Bladen said at a press conference in Ottawa that federal grants of $150,000,000 a year, rising by $30,000,000 annually, would be needed to wipe out tuition fees. This would not leave enough money for capital and research grants.

The magistrate warned Percy Edward Brunton, 17, he was been given a last chance by the court.

The incidents charged against Brunton occurred in Trenton after his arrest for shoplifting.

Excavation On C of C Office Starts

TRENTON — Work on excavation of the riverside Front Street site of the new Chamber of Commerce office is well underway, with the sub-contractor, Carr's Electric carrying out the work for the general contractor, James Good.

After financing details had been cleared by the chamber, a "go" was forthcoming last week. It was found that part of the proposed new building would be too close to an unused road allowance to conform with the building by - law. However, town council met in special session to waive the details. The road allowance, an extension of Middle Street, runs into the river and council thought no one would wish to make use of the road at this point.

Murray Twp. Buys Loader, Snow Plow

TRENTON — Murray Township council met Tuesday night and awarded two contracts for equipment supply; one for a tractor-loader to be Alice Belley company of Belleville and another for the supply of a tractor-mounted auxiliary snow plow equipment to Earl Forbes of the Trenton area.

It has been decided not to proceed with completely finishing the basement of the proposed new municipal office for the township. Plans to partially finish the basement as quarters for road men will up the price of the building from around $30,000 to $36,000. With the government Centennial grant of $10,000, the sale of debentures and use of last year's current funds, the original estimate of the cost has been accounted for. Additional costs if required may be taken from next year's current funds. The construction contract has been awarded to the Miron Wiggers firm.

Council voted to pay the Ontario Department of Highways a progress payment of $25,000 for work accomplished on the new municipal road. When these sums are refundable from the province, the township must borrow in order to pay the progress payments.

Township clerk Angus Gunter was instructed to complete forms by which the Ontario Department of Highways will be petitioned to pay the subsidy on $60,000 (which represents road costs from Jan. to Sept. of this year).

Next week, two highways auditors will be at Wooler to check road finances and subsidies paid out by the department in 1964.

NO ACTION TAKEN

The township couple who own a house on Murray Canal came before council to ask permission to raise the dwelling and live in a trailer in the township. Having had experience with persons living in trailers living in cramped, council advised the couple to "go home and think it over."

Claude Smith of Wooler wanted permission to turn a former Murray Canal dwelling. The former butcher shop, which has also seen service as a restaurant, is located on the main street of Wooler. The Board of Health will be asked to approve sanitary conditions there on the property before a decision is made in this case.

Other items at the meeting were Reeve Douglas McMaster; Deputy Reeve, Gerald Rose; Councillors Leo McAuley, Harry Lafferty and Douglas Williams.

Tax collector Lloyd Dafoe reported taxes were coming in "normally" for this time of year.

The next meeting of township council will be held on Oct. 29.

Gem, Mineral Club Hears Report of Tour

The October meeting of the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club was held on Tuesday evening in the vocational building of the Ontario School for the Deaf. More than 30 interested rockhounds were present for this first regular meeting of the club.

President Perc Pickering expressed appreciation on behalf of the club for the use of the Vocational Building for this meeting, and hoped that the educational aspect of the club would be noted. Prospective members expressed a willing ness to help provide further specimens of ores and minerals to help round out the school's existing collection.

The club's first field trip on last Sunday afternoon was an obvious success. The enthusiasm of the twenty car-loads of rockhounds was apparent in spite of the frigid weather, and everyone went home with his collecting bag well filled with samples of rocks from the area which was visited. Further field trips are planned until rather conditions make it impossible.

Mr. Pickering spoke about the need for a constitution and by-laws and also of the club's possible future. The prospective members were informed that there were several branches of study being offered relative to rocks and minerals. Just plain rock collecting seems to be the most popular, with the lesser lapidary work running a close second. Some people only collect specimens while others of our mineral wealth are in demand by others. The amateur lapidary is the collector interested in stones of gem quality, and collects gem stones for present use as well as possible use when retirement age arrives. Mr., Pickering stated that this is particularly appealing hobby, not only for the elderly, but for all age groups, and he stressed the family participation aspect of the hobby.

With this concept in mind, the club agreed that family membership fees would be only $3 per year as an inducement for complete family participation. Junior membership fees for those of school age was set at $1 per year, and individual adult membership would be $2. Fees will be asked for at the November meeting, at which time actual membership in the club would be initiated.

After adjournment of the business part of the meeting, the president led an informal discussion about elementary rock and mineral identification. This promises to fill a long-felt want on the part of the majority of would-be rock collectors, many of whom have been reluctant to enter into the hobby on the assumption that it was too difficult. The majority of minerals are relatively easy to identify if a logical procedure is followed.

The meeting ended with everyone comparing samples obtained from the field trips, trying to identify them, and generally talking "shop" while they made plans for the future of the club.

public or for the personal convenience and profit of some of the persons intimately associated with it.

"In short, the question is whether the members of the brokerage community responsible for that trading look upon the exchange as a public securities market or as a private gaming club minded to their own benefit.

"If there were a sincere desire to maintain the character of a public securities market, it would not be unreasonable to expect that governors of the exchange could devise effective rules to maintain that character and to impose sanctions for the misuse of its facilities."

Mr. Justice Kelly said the exchange, as a self - policing body, displays weaknesses in three respects:

—Rule making has not kept pace with the ingenuity of those who wish to take advantage of deficiencies in the rules.

—There is widespread departure from strict observance of the spirit of the rules.

—There is a woeful lack of any effective surveillance to assure the adherence to rules.

EXPECT MILLIONS MORE

The population of Canada is expected to reach 26,300,000 in 1980.

Canada Is a "Big Land" C of C Members Are Told

Stuart Richarson, Community Relations Manager for Northern Electric from Montreal, waved a capacity audience at the Fall dinner meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at Tops Motel last night.

He used his wry humor and unusual jingles to really get a message across to the gathering. His topic, 'It's A Big Land' left no doubt in anyone's mind that it is indeed a big land we live in.

Born in England, Mr. Richardson came to Montreal in 1928 and has been in Canada ever since.

"I like it here," he said enthusiastically. "I have been from coast to coast and have talked in every province."

Mr. Richardson has twice gone coast to coast, speaking on behalf of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. "I got an entirely new version of this country, I knew it was big, but for the first time I realized how big it really is and how big its problems are.

"There is something about Canada that is big, colorful, attractive and challenging.

"We do have problems," he said. "One is we have never really been satisfactory; never really efficient—We need to take a new look at the worth and value of the system which has made us a nation envied for our achievements.

"All the good and value in the free enterprise system has made this country what it is. We have to convince people in terms of their own self-interest that this system we have is the best ever invented in the history of the world.

A STRONG COUNTRY

"We are a strong country, but the signs are that we become less' free day by day. We must work to get our people thinking about the duties and responsibilities of our citizenship.

"This country was founded by four main peoples in the beginning: the French, English, Irish and Scots. The English had fought with them all, yet these people were able to sit around a table and plan something that has lasted 98 years. The B N A Act is a most remarkable document indeed.

"But you don't build a nation in one shot. You have to keep on building and every man in this country is responsible. We must begin to think of the duties and responsibilities that go with the privilege of living in this great land."

Speaking of the French problem, Mr. Richardson said, "I am very much aware of the situation in Quebec. I have an English accent, yet I have addressed groups all over Quebec and never once has anyone thrown anything at me.

"Many French Canadians are people who have not had the advantage of education in the past. Now they are getting that chance, and are beginning to realize there is a great big world awaiting and they want to reach out into it.

"They can not describe exactly what they want, because they do not really know. They just want to reach out and be a part of this big land."

POKES LITTLE FUN

He likes to say that 'All the world is a stage and each man in it plays a part.' Though it's not exactly the way Shakespeare wrote it, I think it illustrates the point.

"People like to put on an act in business. How often do you see management standing up at retirement dinners and patting a fellow on the back, pretending that without him the company would have fallen to pieces. Yet, he may have been the sloppiest worker in the company.

"Then the retiring man will stand up and say that he will never forget all the wonderful friends he made at the company, and, all the while he may never have made a friend at all.

"And then there are always the people in offices who have a picture of their boss on the wall. Why do you think they do that? Do they really love the boss that much?"

In other business at the meeting, Alderman Jack W. Deacon brought greetings from the City Council.

"We need the Chamber of Commerce advice on Council many times," he said. "Many situations and subjects about this municipality could be handled easier by the City Council on your advice.

"You men all have your views, and as a whole, the Chamber of Commerce could express itself through City Council more often than it does.

LOTS TO BE DONE

"There are lots of things that can be done in Belleville, and I hope you will begin to take a share in them and make this as even better place to live in than it is now."

George Hume, President of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, thanked Mr. Deacon for his remarks and assured him that the Chamber plans to play a more active role in City Council.

"We intend to have the secretary-manager or a member of the Board attend every council meeting," he said.

"The Chamber of Commerce is always trying to work in the interest of all its members and the city at large.

"Aiding tourists is a large part of our program," Mr. Hume said. "This year we had welcome stickers distributed around the city, and with the cooperation of the Belleville Parking Authority, we provided free tourist parking.

"We helped many conventions find suitable accommodation, and did everything possible to make their stay in Belleville a pleasant one.

"We provided newcomers to with brochures and general information about the city and we gave descriptive literature to the Board of Education which was used to lure prospective teachers to Belleville.

"The Chamber of Commerce is now making arrangements for a city map. This will be provided free to anyone and on the reverse side, in alphabetical order, the names of the members firms of the Chamber will be listed.

SPONSORED EXHIBIT

"The Chamber sponsored the Industrical Exhibition at the Belleville Fair. I feel this is very worthwhile, as it serves to let our citizens know what our industries are doing.

"Our education committee arranged the Management Accounting training course which started tonight (Wednesday) at BCI.

"With the cooperation of the Belleville Plaza merchants, we provided facilities for the sports and their drivers competing in the CNE Car Rally.

"The Chamber also administers insurance plans for small businesses and is continuing to conduct the services of the business executive' agency in the city.

"Our Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of its members, is going ahead. We should finish 1965 in an admirable fashion."

P. M. Unveils New Planks in Farm Platform

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson campaigning in Manitoba until Friday, unveiled planks in the Liberal party's farm platform Wednesday including a commitment to support Prairie farm income if grain marketings fall off.

He made a visit by RCAF helicopter to one farm near Rivers, Man., to survey crop damage from wet weather. Today he motors to Winkler, 60 miles southwest of here, for a noon-hour reception and later flies to Dauphin, 150 miles northwest of here, for a night speech.

His farm policy statement here included these points:

1. Federal payment of 25 percent, instead of the present 00 per cent, of premiums on provincially - administered crop insurance plans provided the provinces contribute another five per cent.

2. Purchase of uneconomic farms by the government for re-development and resale to farmers plus re-training and re-settlement and aid for farmers who want to take up other occupations.

3. The setting up of a Canadian dairy commission with one objective being to boost the national average price for manufacturing milk to $3.75 or $4.00 a hundredweight. There would be similar steps taken for other products.

4. Unemployment insurance extension to full-time farm workers.

5. Establishment of a livestock feed board to ensure availability of supplies in eastern Canada and British Columbia and creation of a farm management service to determine market trends and plan production.

6. A mortgage program to finance farm housing.

Mr. Pearson was unable to give details on most of the points. He said Agriculture Minister Hays will explain the details later in the campaign.

He also cautioned that if continued in office after the Nov. 8 election all the planks won't be implemented immediately. They were part of a program for the normal four-year life of the next Parliament.

Gangland

the seriousness of the crime situation in Quebec "cannot be minimized, but I don't know how this can be tied to Mr. Pearson."

At Kitchener, Mr. Diefenbaker described as piesayne Mr. Pearson's announcement that $40,000,000 per year would be spent on university scholarships.

Earlier at Guelph, he said Canada's current account deficit is "causing to dangerous heights." He said the deficit for the first six months of the year was $737,000,000 and at the present rate would be $1,500,000,000 in 1965.

BABE GRANT

Mr. Pearson also said unemployment insurance would be extended to the main groups of farm workers and that the government would pay 25 per cent instead of the present 20 per cent of farmers' crop insurance premiums.

The prime minister said details of many of the government's farm plans would be given later in the campaign.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Pearson has failed to "even provide more than a token gesture of the social welfare needed to meet the country's needs."Without guidance, the present scientific revolution would bring about economic depression, poverty and want.

An NDP government would promote economic growth to create at least 1,500,000 new jobs by 1970, Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Pearson campaigns today at Winkler and Dauphin in Manitoba, returning to Ottawa Friday. Mr. Diefenbaker is at Winnipeg to start a western swing, Mr. Douglas at Vancouver and Mr. Thompson at Springfield, Mass.

KASHMIR SITUATION is outlined to Canadian Legion in Belleville by Brig. Tom deFaye.

UN Is Fulfilling Role As Observer Legion Told

The UN is more ideally fulfilling its purpose in Kashmir through the role of observer, Brigadier Tom deFaye, officer commanding Eastern Command, told the Canadian Legion In Belleville last night.

"Neither of the combatants wanted to lose face by absolutely contravening the expressed wishes of the UN," he said. Hence, the UN was achieving purpose by impartially observing and reporting each side rather than by armed intervention.

Until a few months ago Brig. deFaye was one of Canada's representatives on the UN observation team in Kasmir.

The brigadier, was the latest distinguished guest to address the Legion's Branch 99 monthly dinner — a series of meetings inaugurated this fall to hear a special roster of speakers.

Brig. deFaye was introduced by Lt. Col. Kenneth Willcocks, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Among the guests were Mayor Jack Ellis and six former commanding officers of the Hasty Pees.

China's Campaign of Hate

A measure of the hate that the communist Chinese bear toward the United States was last week's intemperate statement by Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi.

Saying he hoped "U.S. imperialists" would come to China, Chen Yi added: "Let them come when they like. Let the Indians come with them. Let the British come too. Let the (Soviet) revisionist leaders in the north combine with them."

Chen Yi was speaking at a press conference, and the Peking report went on: "Racing ahead of his interpreter and waving his arms, he said China would recognize no limits nor restrictions in the pursuit of the Americans who would be 'thoroughly wiped out'."

The Marshal's outburst came as he was talking about Vietnam and alleging that the United States used Hong Kong as "an American base."

The bitterness with which the Chinese leaders view American "imperialism" is exceeded only by the fervor with which the cry of anti-Americanism is taken up by the public and especially the young people.

Not only do Peking propagandists plug the imperialist theme, they also try to give people the impression that Americans are oppressed by capitalism. Incredibly, this nonsense is extended to the information the government disseminates on Canada.

For instance Ruth Lor Malloy, a Chinese-Canadian from Brockville, was told by an official during a recent visit to China: "We are not like Europeans, out to make money. We want you to know you are welcome and that you have a home. We know how hard you have worked and suffered."

When it comes to propaganda the Chinese are possibly the most brainwashed people in the communist world, not forgetting the Russians. They are told that war with capitalism is inevitable and the "hate imperialism" campaign goes hand-in-hand with this concept. It is no wonder that China, and not the Soviet Union, is now regarded as the main threat to the peace of the world.

Drug Addiction

Marijuana, by its very name, is suggestive of a narcotic of great potency. However, this is apparently not so; according to the beatniks of Toronto's Yorkville district, the drug is mild in comparison to heroin, is not habit-forming, and induces none of the physical horror that is involved in attempts to withdraw from heroin. Marijuana, they say, merely "turns them on . . . gives them a beautiful experience."

Well, this should know, but it is rather like saying snakes are harmless if you just leave them alone. Only they do not want to leave them alone. The worst thing about any drug is that its effects are only brief, there must fail back on reality and one's own resources. Reliance on drugs by otherwise fit persons—that is, people in normal health—is at best a sign of weakness, a refusal to face reality.

The Kingston Whig-Standard, in an editorial on this theme, would have the restrictions on marijuana removed, in order to enable the authorities concentrate on the control of other, more harmful drugs.

A newspaper claims a double standard exists in relation to drugs, drink and sex. "Many privileged citizens," it says, "are addicted to drugs (among them members of the medical profession) and they never see the inside of a prison . . ."

Perhaps are not going to stop wanting the kind of pleasure and release they get from intoxicants such as alcohol or marijuana," says The Whig-Standard. "Surely it would be wiser to permit such practices as smoking marijuana, thus removing the criminal element and doing away with needless addition to the burden of trying to control the harmful addicting drugs."

This seems a dangerous theory, an invitation to moral degeneration, however harmless the drug may be in its ultimate effects. Goodness knows, this is a permissive age, but must all the bonds of discipline and integrity be loosened in the process?

It is doubtful, moreover, whether law enforcement authorities would find their tasks any less onerous simply by having marijuana made legal, or "le it," as prohibitionists of old would have said. Marijuana smokers often graduate quickly to heroin, so that control of one is bound up with the other.

Inarticulate

Anyone who has ever worked in Canadian industry or our professions knows that many universities and high school graduates are incapable of writing a report or business letter that will pass muster without revision, cannot express themselves articulately in ordinary conversation, cannot be depended upon to perform simple clerical tasks well without close supervision.—Pauline Dix, Toronto, in a letter to The Globe and Mail.

Ottawa Offbeat

'Living Labor' Comes to Constituency of Algoma East

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Imagine for a moment — you're a housewife. In Espanola, Blind River, Elliot Lake, Thessalon, Little Current — in fact, in just about any town or village in the picturesque Northern Ontario Federal constituency of Algoma East where Prime Minister Pearson is making his seventh run in 17 years for Parliament.

Suddenly the doorbell rings.

You open it, and there in what television likes to call the "living image" stands one of its international personalities, as the industry prefers you know them.

All six handsome blond feet of him.

"Hello," he smiles pleasantly, purring in that unending and sweet-as-maple-butter voice you've heard so often, "I'm Joel Aldred."

(As if you had to be told, for who hasn't seen television's highest-paid pitchman, quietly busy in their living room with his soft-sell for soap and cigarettes?)

But this is different, this no shadow on your TV screen.

For here he is, in the sunbronzed flesh, quite dashingly James Bondish in a loose trench coat, his long-cut grizzled blond hair rippling in the Autumn wind.

WHAT A QUESTION! !

"I'm your Conservative candidate here in Algoma East," he smiles, almost shyly. "Do you think I might have a but a moment of your time?"

(What a question to ask a gal! He could have had a lifetime if you both still were single or he had come along enough years ago.)

But you aren't and he didn't, and he only wants to talk about the election, so you usher him in at him and murmur "of course."

And what happens, it will be almost like hearing one of his persuasive low-key commercials.

Something, maybe, like this

" . . . are you voting more and enjoying it less . . . then cast a really enjoyable ballot for Joel Aldred . . . get the Liberal majority faction of going Conservative and remember only a vote for Joel Aldred will give you that warm glow of contentment."

It should be a bit incredible to see this king of the commercials making the rounds of Algoma East, spending his evenings and afternoons knocking on doors and the evenings at coffee parties and rallies.

See him when he comes to call, and try and remember where when he left the New York or Hollywood about as often as you drive to the supermarket, he mixes socially with the Dean Martins, the Frank Sinatras, the Sammy Davis Jrs., and has an intimate small-talk acquaintance with the Kennedy clan.

Joel Aldred who, for years, has been striking it head-swimmingly rich in television— he confesses to being "scarcely a millionaire yet"—is asking the voters the full real-life treatment—no imitation — but the warm, living, breathing, smiling personality in the flesh.

A SIMPLE DUTY

Now why in Heaven's name would anybody who has made with great good looks, fame and an income in the six figures even think of giving it up for an MP's $18,000?

For give it up he must—if he wins.

He knows, he has said, that you can't be an MP and not spend the best part of your working year on Parliament Hill.

And if you're in Parliament you can't be scooping up that annual $100,000-plus in TV and radio fees in New York and Hollywood.

Of all this, Joel Aldred has said he is well aware, has been a political buff since back in 1949 when he campaigned for the then Conservative leader George Drew—and long has been ready, able and even anxious to give up the big money he would regard as a terrific financial sacrifice.

But businessmen must be willing to make it, he has often said, and he is willing to do it. He is working to do just this — well, you're pretty well got to take it on faith, haven't you?

Although, as he has put it, he isn't "exactly without assets," so can afford a little luxury of the sacrifice far more easily than most.

But if elected, it, ill or easily, he sees it as his simple duty, this call of public service.

Then he will be either a businessman or a dedicated "man of the people," as men in public life like you to call them.

But that's maybe why, when he shows up in living color, tall, tanned and terrifically handsome, those Algoma East doors, he must be creating just a bit of an election sensation.

Swedish Women's Status

Brockville Recorder and Times

No longer will unmarried women be referred to by the title "miss" in Sweden's official three newspapers. All adult women will henceforth be called "missus". This item from Sweden is interesting in Canada in view of the perennial complaints against the practice of designating unmarried women as "spinsters" on the annexation lists, even though some of them are still in their early 20s.

There are still some women — mostly in rural areas — who are neither married nor employed, but simply helping their occupation says simply "spinster".

The Stockholm newspapers Dagens Nyheter, Svenska Dagbladet and Aftonbladet — say that labelling women as married or unmarried is "an injustice perpetrated by a male - dominated society". Their reasons for the change are as follows:

1. All adult men are called "misters". There is no more reason to discriminate between married and single women than there is to distinguish between married and unmarried men.

2. Referring to old maids as "miss" provides a feeling of inferiority.

3.The title "miss" is an outdated ideal, implying a dependence which is no longer the case as far as most young women today are concerned.

4.Children of unwed mothers will be freed from questions by their mothers are known as "missus" instead of "miss".

The Swedish "reform" has already met with more opposition than approval so far and the chief objectors are young girls on the lookout for a husband. The lesson is clear for Canada's numerators. Young women may object to "spinster" but they won't want to be called "missus" either — until they've earned that title.

Why not give the girls a break on that second line by printing a little biographical information such as:

Jane Doe, R.R. 1
Redhead, 36-23-36, good cook.

In that way, the "spinster" and "missus" problems might eventually solve themselves.

Low Wages Hamper O.P.P.

From the North Bay Nugget

Unrealistic wages are hampering the efficiency and morale of the Ontario Provincial Police Force. And a wave of resignations within six months unless salaries of officers are increased has been predicted by a Provincial Police spokesman.

Annual salary for a first-class officer is $5,400, after five years' service. A total of 42 subor-dinate departments across Canada pay their men more than the OPP pays its force.

The RCMP, the largest police force in Canada, pays its first-class officers $6,600 yet the force ranks 21st in the list of wages for this rank.

The Toronto police force pays its first-class officers $6,200 a year and as of Jan. 1, salary will be increased to $6,500. At present, that's a difference of $800 and as of Jan. 1, a difference of $1,100 compared to the OPP wage.

The OPP, in the past decade, has come a long way in efficiency, prestige, and in offering opportunities for its men. But it is still far behind when it comes to wages.

The provincial government must take the necessary steps now to avert further resignations and to retain the of a sense of morale and efficiency required to run the force.

Repairing Hernia Always Wise Move

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How serious is a hernia? My husband has a small protruding one. He refuses to have an operation. He says that when it bothers him, he may consider surgery. He is 54. I worry about him, as he works in the yard a great deal. What shall I do? — Mrs. R. F.

* * *

As you may have guessed, I don't try to writ ethis column on the basis of my own, foresome, unsupported judgment. I rely on experience in particular and a whole lot of others in general who contribute their knowledge and thinking. I wish I'd kept count of the number of specialists who have taken the time to read one of these columns (or more often, to have read and studied a letter from a reader) and then said, "Well, on the face of it this sounds simple, but don't forget to consider the possibility that . . . " And so forth.

So what has that to do with a hernia? Here's the story. Winter before last my closet associate told me that he had a hernia that wasn't bothering him but he knew it was there and he knew there is only one direction in which a hernia can go. It can never get better; it can only get worse. He was older than your husband.

Now of course some people limp along with an ornery hernia for the rest of their lives. Some have a lot of mi s er y, some have moderate misery, and some have the hernia become strangulated and if they are lucky, an emergency operation saves them from gangrene and death. You can't predict what will happen, any more than you can predict just when a weak tire will go flat, either with a slow leak or with a devastating blowout.

In any event, here's what my associate said: "Looks to me as though it was high time for me to follow our own advice."

He has a busy medical practice, so he arranged for other doctors to provide for the needs of his patients, and he took the Christmas-New Year's week to go to the hospital and have his operation.

That last item, the choice of time, will be appreciated only by professional colleagues. That is the week when nobody wants to go to the hospital; except for an emergency. For elective surgery that can be postponed, nobody goes to the hospital t h at week. So there are more empty beds.

That's the whole s t o r y, I guess, except that since then he has said a couple of t i m es, "Well, I'm glad the hernia is out of the way and I can q u i t worrying about it."

* * *

Mrs. R. F., I don't know what you should do about your problem — or rather y o u r husband's. Maybe if you leave today's column lying around, he'll see it. From there on, it's up to him. But I assure you that the smart thing is to have a hernia repaired before it becomes too serious. Early repair can be performed simply and surely. It avoids the possible drastic emergency. The advice we give is the advice we take ourselves.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was recently told I have pyorrhea and that I may lose all of my teeth in the not distant future. C a n anything be done? — F. M. G.

Abide by your dentist's advice. There is an infiltrating infection of the gums and is extremely difficult to control. Have the teeth cleaned every six months or so is one of the surest ways of avoiding pyorrhea, and if it's detected in its early stages — and more important, removing tartar from the gum line eliminates places where the pyorrhea can get a start.

Strictly Personal

One Reason's For Demise Of Chivalry

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: If more motorists understood what a "geometrical progression" is, they might not speed so much; but most do not know that the impact at 60 miles an hour is not twice that of 30 miles an hour, but four times as great; to grasp a geometrical progression, try folding a piece of paper, of any size, eight times.

Most contests, from bridge to tennis, are not won, but lost; the victor is simply the one who makes the fewest errors, not the one who makes the most brilliant plays.

Women who yearn wistfully for a return to the Age of Chivalry might ponder the fact that medieval women who were put on a pedestal: that if they tried to get off the pedestal and act human, they incurred the wrath and contempt of their romantic "protectors" — b e c a u s e knights were willing to do anything for women, except understand them.

Speaking of women, one of the most poignant comments on merchandising — and one aimed by all husbands — is Kin Hubbard's observation that it makes no difference what it is, a woman will buy anything she thinks a store is losing money on."

When people believe there is no purpose in the universe, they will fabricate a purpose of their own — and it will usually be a bad one.

If you share my repugnance for capital punishment as a stupid, vicious and utterly futile measure, I suggest you buy a copy of Michael DiSalle's new book, "The Power of Life or Death," which is a dramatic and persuasive attack on this barbarous practice; those who still uphold capital punishment as a "deterrent" to crime will find all their arguments clearly shot out from under them.

Nothing demonstrates the pernicious effect of habit-forming vices so vividly as the dismal fact that some people continue to get up early on morning, when they have no need to.

A national publication thought it was flitting at verboten when it pointed out that "The Lord's Prayer has 66 words, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address has 266; the Ten Commandments 297; the Declaration of Independence, 300. But a recent government order on cabbage prices has 26,911 words." That is a periodical failed to add, however, is that the order kept cabbage prices in line, whilst those brief masterpieces of wisdom and piety have been ignored and flouted since their origins.

Contrary to popular belief, most school drop-outs are neither delinquents nor from broken homes, but boys who are poor readers and have failed in one or more subjects; in such cases, the schools seem to have failed them, rather than they the schools.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Such is the force and development of scientific inventions since 1939 that should another war occur, it will mean the end of civilization and the extermination of mankind, William Fetherstonhaugh of Atlantic, Quebec District Governor of District 7 predicted to the Rotary Club here on Monday.

"Aside from the tremendous toll of human life," Governor Fetherstonhaugh said, "masterpieces of art, treasure and architecture have been lost in an orgy of destruction. Had these scientific developments been put to the efforts of peace, to construction instead of destruction, what a better world we would be living in today. Instead, we may become the victims of our own inventions," he added.

A prominent was distributing pamphlets in a rural area and accosted a local citizen, asking, "May I give you this propaganda?"

"Wal now! It's nice to see a furriner who talks our talk," the man replied. "I'd be happy to give your wife a proper gander and see if it's all right."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange registered little movement in mid-morning trading today.

The TSE index ended up .01 to 156.93 with a share turnover of 742,000, the same as Wednesday.

Papers were steady, Great Lakes ahead ⅛ to 23½, while Abitibi dipped ¼ to 10½.

In senior metals, Denison gained ¼ to 35¼ and Rio Algom ⅛ to 19¼.

Windfall was ahead three cents to 28 cents on 1,000 shares among speculative mines. The royal commission report into the gyrations of Windfall stock on the market last year was due for release at 12:30 p.m. today.

On index, industrials were unchanged at 165.97, base metals gained .20 to 89.93, western oils .14 to 101.27 and golds declined 1.06 to 154.79.

Prices were lower Wednesday with selling in all groups.

In the industrial list, prices were down in most Eastern Canada paper producers' stocks. The selling was attributed to a cut in the basic price of newsprint by Abitibi.

Abitibi eased ¼ to 11, Consolidated ¼ to 20¼, Domtar ¼ to 18¾, Great Lakes ¼ to 22 and Price Brothers ¼ to 39. West Coast producers showed little reaction to the cut with MacMillan, Bloedel unchanged at 29¾. However, B.C. Forest dipped ¼ to 25½.

Algoma Steel and Brazilian Traction gave up ¼ each to 65 and 9. Canadian Breweries, tapped by advertising proposals, fell ¼ to a 1955 low of 7¾.

One bright spot was Dosco, which climbed ½ to 14. It was announced Tuesday night that the Cape Breton coal-mining industry will receive financial aid from the federal government.

Ten penny mining issues, facing suspension from the trading list under the TSE's new de-listing policy, were slashed in price.

Wisconsin Mining plunged 7½ at 10½, Rexspar 8½ at 13½, Consolidated Fenimore 6¼ at 6¼, Marbog 4 at 6, Quemston 5¼ at 8, Rexspar 3¼ at 4½, Southern Union 4 at 2, United Mindamar 9½ at 10½, West Malartic 2 at 2½, Windfall 3 at 28 and Yellorex 3½ at 3½.

Carleton May Be One of the Most Doubtful Seats in the Election

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Carleton, the "safest" seat in Parliament until 1963, is one of the most doubtful in this election campaign with two party politicians running neck and neck.

The sprawling constituency, taking in large slice of southwest Ottawa, elected Conservatives in 21 straight elections and bye-elections after Confederation—an unmatched record of party loyalty in federal politics. Included were former party leaders Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Robert Borden and George Drew.

But in the 1963 vote, Liberal candidate Lolyd Francis scored a major upset, dumping then immigration Minister Richard (Dick) Bell by 1,157 votes.

Both men have been campaigning steadily and recruiting armies of party workers to win the seat in their last contest. Both appear supremely confident this time and there is talk of a photo finish Nov. 8.

"We didn't stop after the last election—we just kept on going," Mr. Francis says.

A 45-year-old real estate executive with a BD in economics and nine years experience as a senior civil servant, the white-haired Liberal candidate counts on heavy support from government employees and white-collar workers who have been flocking to new west-end suburbs.

Since 1963, the number of urban voters has jumped by 10,000 to 79,700 while the rural electorate, heavily Conservative in the past, has remained relatively stable at 15,000.

About 40 per cent over-all are civil servants and servicemen, who favored the Liberals in recent elections. This pattern could have changed because of Conservative civil service reform and integration of the armed forces.

Mr. Bell, 52, a lawyer who served as national Conservative organizer for 20 years before he was appointed minister in 1957, is banking on dissatisfaction over political scandals, adoption of the maple leaf flag and bilingualism in the civil service.

Mr. Francis acknowledges that such dissatisfaction exists. Local newspapers reported in January he was displeased with the government's record and ready to retire, but the party leadership persuaded him to stay on.

Both men are concentrating on door-to-door canvassing and preparing speech material for lively contradictory meetings. As many as four a night are on face-to-face debates may be held. Carleton is one of the few ridings in Canada where the 19th-century tradition has survived.

The third candidate nominated so far, New Democrat Donald Stirling, a United Church minister, has a big hill to climb—his predecessor in 1963 received only 3,144 votes of the 66,000 cast. Mr. French received 32,325, Mr. Bell 31,168, and a Social Credit candidate 1,962.

Mr. Bell, who crushed his opponents with a 19,000-vote margin in the Conservative landslide of 1958, says he lost in 1963 because of reaction against a civil service pay freeze imposed by the Diefenbaker government in the second half of 1962.

City, and Alberic Bilodeau, of Ste. Marie de Beauce.

DESCRIBES KILLING

The telling of Faucher was described in testimony at the preliminary hearing of Moise Darabaner, 43, a Quebec City businessman, and Oliva Boulet, 32, of Cap Rouge, Que., on charges of arson and conspiracy to commit arson. Both were committed to trial on the charges. Trial date was not specified.

Boulet testified he saw Faucher shot at "point - blank range" with a revolver. He said the killer, whom he identified as Andre Lamothe of Quebec City, covered the body with a caustic substance and hid it in the woods.

Police said Wednesday they are seeking Lamothe and Darabaner who may also have been killed by the underworld. The man, Paul Chaudonneret of Quebec City and later of Sherbrooke, Que., has not been seen since the end of September.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Wagner said Wednesday night: "We are on the verge of a definite breakthrough against organized crime."

He told delegates to a session of the North American Municipal Judges Association they have backed crime into such a corner that its overlords have been forced to start begging us for mercy."

Public Got

The Ontario Appeal Court justice castigates as "shocking" the conduct of John Campbell, resigned director of the commission and a friend of the MacMillans, who made a $25,000 profit on Windfall's ride while an official.

But Mr. Justice Kelly completely exonerates Mines Minister George Wardrope, who took a hand in the situation when Windfall was on the point of being suspended from exchange dealings. The commissioner found his conduct "entirely consistent" with his duties.

NO PUNITIVE ACTION

The commissioner did not recommend any punitive action against anyone.

He also expressed the view that it is hardly conceivable that there will ever again be such a combination of circumstances as those that contributed to the fluctuations of Windfall shares in July of 1964.

Mr. Justice Kelly heard 1,000,000 words from 70 witnesses in three months of public sittings in delving into the phenomenon of Windfall, which swooped in July from a penny scare at cents to a $5.60 bonanza on the coattails of the fabulous $2,000,000-plus base-metal strike of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. in the Timmins area last spring.

By the time Windfall had nosedived back to 80 cents at the end of July, the MacMillan interests—George was president and Viola promoter—had cleaned up close to $1,300,000, according to commission evidence. Some members of the brokerage firm of Draper and Co. also made a killing and were alleged to be in on the MacMillan interests.

The commissioner commented that some of these seemed to think the exchange was "a private gaming club" for the use of special privileges in their own advantage.

SOARED ON RUMORS

Most of the gyrations of Windfall — located only 4½ miles from Texas Gulf's find—were pegged to a drilling sample, or core, taken from the property in early July. While the MacMillans kept it under cover, rumor sent the stock sky-high. When the core was disclosed publicly as valueless on July 30, the Windfall bubble collapsed.

As early as July 6, the commissioner says, George MacMillan must have been aware of the core's lack of value. This knowledge "was, no doubt, shared by his wife."

"At any time after the opening of the market on July 6, had George and Viola MacMillan seen fit to make a frank statement regarding what was in the drill core", the unusual market action would have been appreciably slowed if not stalled.

"During July 6 and the days which immediately followed . . . any such statement would have been detrimental to their interests.

DIDN'T TELL TRUTH

"Not only did they refrain from telling the truth, but in such statements as were made, in the form of press releases and in the manner in which they were framed were such as to be misleading and must have been calculated so to be."

At another point the report says:

"Many people who entered the market after July 7 suffered losses through the complete failure of George and Viola MacMillan, directors and controlling shareholders of a company, to recognize their responsibility to the public as was "a private gaming club" for the use of special privileges in their own advantage.

OMB Approves New General Hospital Wing

The Ontario Municipal Board has granted its approval of the new Belleville General Hospital building project and the way is now clear for the contractors to sign the construction contract and proceed with the job.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said approval of the hospital project had been received today from the OMB.

Total cost of the hospital project is $8,657,554, of which the city's share is approximately $2,000,000.

After governments and other grants, Belleville and the county of Hastings share the hospital capital costs on a 65 per cent city, 35 per cent county, basis.

Kinsmen Club Ready to Build Swimming Pool

PICTON (Staff) — Picton may one day have its own swimming pool if a venture by the Kinsmen Club is successful.

The first hurdle was crossed Monday night when Jack Evans, spokesman for the club, succeeded in getting town council's moral support for the idea.

Mr. Evans explained to council that the club has adopted a resolution to support such a pool and is not asking council for any funds at this point.

"At present we are mainly concerned with such things as zoning, regulations and by-laws governing how such a pool must be built," he said.

Mr. Evans said that the Public Utilities Commission has suggested the possibility of converting the 750,000-gallon reservoir on the hill into a swimming pool, after two new proposed reservoirs are built for the town.

At any rate, the problem of where to locate the pool is another problem that will have to be worked out, he said.

Mayor H. J. McFarland said he is in favor of the idea and would prefer to have the pool located somewhere nearer to downtown.

Council put its support into a motion with the hopes that the recreation committee would be responsible for organizing the swimming program.

Further plans are expected to be announced in due course.

Two Named By Dept. to Planning Bd.

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward and District Planning Board is back to full working strength again.

Town council received notification Monday night that the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs has approved the appointment of Sam Gentile and George Vincent to the five-man board.

Mr. Gentile, who will complete Carl Reid's term, joins Mayor Ross Rose of Picton's two members on the board. The other members are Mr. Lockyer and Mr. Vincent, represent the Township of Hallowell, and Mayor H. J. McFarland is an ex-officio member by virtue of his office, W. D. McArthur is secretary-treasurer of the board.

Meanwhile, Hallowell has written to the town suggesting a meeting between both councils to discuss "matter of common interest" relating to planning and future development of the township and town areas. The letter from township clerk-treasurer J. E. Mallory, suggests that a date be set for the joint meeting.

Party Tours Apple-growing County Areas

PICTON (Staff) — The two-day tour of apple growing and processing areas in south-eastern Ontario moved to Picton yesterday, when the party of food commentators, home economists and others visited the Prince Edward County Fruit Growers Co-op here.

They showed much interest in the Cold Storage plant with the modern methods of packing apples as they were shown through the warehouse by Hec old Bonter of Carryice Place on of the tour organizers.

The party arrived in Picton at 10.45, after visiting the apple juice plant of Edgewater Canners at Northport and travelling south via the new Quinte Skyway bridge.

Later they visited the Dominion Experimental Farm at Smithfield and various orchards and processing plants in the Brighton and Colborne area. The tour ended in the late afternoon and the bus carrying the visitors returned to Toronto.

Council Moves To Combine Two Offices

PICTON (Staff) — Town council passed a resolution Monday night to combine the offices of clerk and treasurer. This means that council could either advertise for a clerk-treasurer to do both jobs, or appoint one of the incumbents.

The resolution also provides for the hiring of a secretary to assist the new clerk-treasurer when he is appointed, and alternative office accommodation will be sought. It is felt that the present office space is not big enough for the ever-increasing volume of files, records, bylaws and documents of all kinds.

Duane Foshay was officially appointed as Picton's new fire chief at the regular meeting of council Monday night.

The new chief, formerly with the Trenton Fire Department, was introduced by Councillor Andrew Jarvis and welcomed by Mayor H. J. McFarland. "The town and Prince Edward County is fortunate in obtaining the services of a clean cut young man like yourself to lead the fire department," he said.

The chief's salary will be raised from $5,000 to $5,500 a year at the end of this year.

Federation Of Teachers To Hold Meet

PICTON (Staff) — A conference of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario will be held in Picton October 22, one of six being held at various locations throughout the province.

It will be the second of the two autumn series of conferences planned by the federation. On September 25, conferences were held in Cayuga, Elgin, Haileybury and Port Arthur.

"The purpose of the Conference is to provide stimulation and inspiration for the Federation's current year, to present policy and information to members to assist them in program planning, and to provide an opportunity for officers of the various FWTAO associations and units throughout the province to become acquainted and discuss mutual problems", says the Federation president, Miss Margaret Grant, of Toronto.

"We are living in a changing environment and an organization such as ours must constantly adapt and remould itself in order to serve the membership and the profession", said Miss Grant. "It is vital that each member realizes that the contributions she and her fellow members make are the ultimate direction her Federation takes to serve. These Fall Conferences are becoming increasingly important for our communication program with members throughout the province."

Jack Owen NDP Candidate In P. E.-Lennox

PICTON (Staff) — Jack Owen, of 205 Bonner Street, Napanee, will likely be the New Democratic Party standard-bearer in Prince Edward Lennox riding in the November 8th federal election, it was announced at Napanee.

Ross Morton of Bath, acting president of the N.D.P. in the riding, said Mr. Owen has agreed to contest the election.

The N.D.P. standard-bearer in the last federal election, Howard Wesse of Amelisburg, "isn't expected to stand", Mr. Morton stated.

The party's nomination meeting may be held in Napanee on Saturday night, although arrangements are not complete, he added.

Mr. Owen, a maintenance planner at C.I.L.'s terylene plant, was a candidate for town councillor in 1962.

On Wednesday, September 21st the group toured Washington City and visited the Lincoln Memorial, Arlington Cemetery in Arlington, Virginia, Washington Monument, the White House, National Art Gallery, Federal Bureau of Investigation Headquarters, United States Capital Building, and the Smithsonian Institute. On Wednesday, the group arrived in New York City for a very interesting three days. Points of interest in New York included Rockefeller Centre, United Nations Building, Empire State Building and the World's Fair.

Farmers wishing advice or engineering assistance on farm buildings, farm water supply, etc., are advised that Gordon Tobey Engineering Extension Specialist will be at the Ontario Department of Agriculture office, Picton, on Tuesday, October 12th. Anyone wishing an appointment with Mr. Tobey is advised to phone the Agricultural office not later than 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 12th. The telephone number to call is Picton 476-2226.

Within the next few days cattle owners in Prince Edward County will receive a leaflet entitled "Feeding Livestock on Low Roughage". This was prepared jointly by the Department of Agriculture of Canada, Ontario and Quebec and is a result of the drought and feed shortage last spring. The information in the leaflet will be of particular value to dairy and beef owners and sheep raisers who have less hay than normal and will need to substitute with other roughages and with grain to carry them through the winter and at the same time maintain production as close as possible to optimum levels. Less commonly used roughages and heavier grain feeding than usual provide a satisfactory substitute for hay, but some attention is necessary to the proportions in which they are fed.

Many livestock producers are experienced in adjusting their livestock ration to available feed. Questions may arise, however, as to the extent to which grain can be substituted for hay and other roughages and the relative values of various grains. The purpose of the pamphlet is to give some general guidance on these points.

Oat and wheat straw, corn cobs, corn stover and similar feeds can be used as substitutes for hay or silage in providing minimum roughage requirements. It is suggested that one additional pound of grain be fed for each three pounds of these roughages substituted for good-quality hay.

New Police Officer Hired

Hydrofoil Boat Costing More Than Estimated

OTTAWA (CP)—Like nearly every military development project, the Canadian navy's 200-ton prototype anti-submarine hydrofoil boat is costing far more than originally estimated, informed sources say.

The cost now is calculated at $30,300,000, which is $10,000,000 or 35 per cent more than the original figure. This includes $22,000,000 for the boat, $5,800,000 for support services and $2,400,000 for the weapons system.

Defence Minister Hellyer has tackled this problem differently than by the former method of stretching out the development program so that expenditures don't rise sharply in any one year.

Informants said he has decided to drive through the program on schedule, meaning that the high-speed hydrofoil—it will travel at 60 knots or better — will be ready for sea trials next year.

FEARED INCREASED COSTS

Mr. Hellyer feared that any delay would have merely increased costs further and, more important, would have allowed other nations to overtake the Canadian project.

This is exactly what happened in the case of the army's projected Bobcat armored troop carrier, it was under development for 10 years, during which time $9,249,000 was spent on it. But it was overtaken by developments in other countries and Canada ended up buying the American M - 113 carrier.

The defence department hopes it will be possible to build a fleet of comparatively inexpensive hydrofoils but the decision will depend on the sea trials, which will last about a year.

The increased costs have occurred with the hydrofoil hull, being built at Marine Industries, Sorel, Que., and the foils, being made by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, Downsview, Ont.

Prolonged Civil War With Reds Could Spell Disaster in Indonesia

The writer of this analysis is chief of The Associated Press' Southeast Asian services. He has worked frequently in Indonesia since 1957 and was there just before the current crisis broke out.

By DON HUTH

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—A prolonged civil war involving the Communists in Indonesia could spell disaster for that floundering Southeast Asian country, already on the brink of economic chaos.

The country, fifth-largest in the world, is ill-equipped to meet such a strain and still maintain the political and financial stability it sorely needs to prevent a complete collapse.

President Sukarno, struggling to hold his one-man rule, has publicly admitted he cannot control the rampant inflation sweeping the country.

He recently "ordered" that it be eliminated in one year, saying Indonesia is rich enough to stand on its own feet. That was before the current crisis began. Indonesian currency was in bad shape. The rupiah had shot to 16,000 to $1—an all-time high The official rate is 45 to $1.

LIQUIDATE HOLDINGS

Financial analysts attributed the jump to efforts by 10,000 or more Indian merchants to liquidate their holdings. Indonesia had announced its support for Pakistan against India in the Kashmir border dispute. Indian shops in Jakarta were seized by the government after violent Communist-led demonstrations against the Indian embassy.

The cost-of-living index in Indonesia, using 1955's 100 as a base, went to 1,500 in mid-1965. Rice, the staple food, has gone up 600 per cent since January and now is virtually out of reach for the average Indonesian.

But while the economy deteriorated, more late-model cars appeared on Jakarta streets than ever before. Luxury goods were available in the Chinese-dominated markets. Wives of prominent military and government officials appeared in costly clothes and flashed expensive jewelry.

UPSET OVER PROTESTS

Sukarno was fully aware of what was happening. He became irritated with propaganda and daily demonstrations directed against his government on price increases.

The leader of this campaign was Communist party boss D. N. Aidit, whose part in the present upheaval still is not clear. Aidit employed youth organizations to parade the streets of Jakarta with banners condemning price manipulators, corrupt officials and militarists declared to be growing fat on graft.

Aidit, whose 3,000,000-member Communist party is the largest outside the Communist countries, criticized Sukarno for naming obscure ministers to his cabinet. The president has had an unwieldly inner cabinet of more than 100 members. Its attempts to solve Indonesia's economic problems have failed.

The Communists concentrated their attack on manipulators the party said was racing the country to ruin. Aidit received powerful support throughout Java, the country's key island.

DANGER OF HOLY WAR

The Communists and their sympathizers now are reported concentrating in central Java, where they are strongly organized. They are moving into sectors where the fanatical Darul Islam, who founded a Moslem state for Indonesia, fought the government for 12 years. A civil war could renew this religious movement's activities if the government's strength deteriorated.

Since Sukarno told the United States last year to "go to hell" with its aid and took Indonesia out of the United Nations, he has had to turn to his new alliance with China for financial aid.

The Indonesian Communists are being supported by the Chinese Communists. If a civil war is in the making against the Communists, Sukarno can not be expected to get the financial help from Peking that he critically needs to meet the financial crisis.

The army, bitter over the death of six of its generals at the hands of Indonesian Communist or pro-Communist elements, is expected to show no sympathy if Sukarno presses for continued strong relations with Peking.

The 64-year-old "president for life" presumably is well aware of this.

If Indonesia does not get economic relief from somewhere and a civil war cannot be prevented from breaking out, Sukarno's "guided democracy" may have reached the end of the road.

Truckers

Wednesday employees may have to be laid off if the strike continues another week.

AGREE ON WAGES

Negotiators were reported to have reached agreement on a 30-cent wage increase but were deadlocked on other items.

The union is seeking a $1-an-hour wage increase over a two-year period, a 40-hour week, premiums for shift work and more vacation pay in a new contract. They now receive $2 an hour and work a 48-hour week. Their four-year contract with Ontario firms expired Sept. 30.

Const. Gary Nicholls of the Metropolitan Toronto police force was injured Wednesday night when he was shoved off a speeding car carrying five men who barred a non-striking driver at suburban Etobicoke truck yard.

Police said a tractor - trailer was stopped by the men who threatened its driver when he attempted to drive into the yard past 50 pickets.

Const. Nicholls said he noticed a rifle and boxes of ammunition in the car when he waved it to a halt. As he reached into the vehicle to take the driver's licence, the car sped away. The constable fell on but was pushed off about 50 feet down the road.

All Ontario Divided Into Two Parts Metro Areas Still Liberal, Rural Tory

By RICHARD JACKSON

SIMCOE — Here in tobacco-growing Norfolk county on the Lake Erie shore is the dividing line between Liberal Metro Ontario and rural Tory Ontario.

From here east to the Niagara front and around the Lake Ontario shore and the Golden Horseshoe, except for former Tory Labor Minister Mike Starr, Oshawa, the land is Liberal straight through to Northumberland where Paul Jewett and George Hees are making it a headline fight.

And from here west, except for the "toe" of Ontario, the Paul Martin country of Essex county, the land is Tory along the shores of Lake Erie, Lake Huron and Georgian Bay without a break until Prime Minister Pearson's Algoma East is reached and Liberal Northern Ontario begins.

So here in central and southwestern Ontario is where the crunch will come. To win even with a majority, the Conservatives say they must recapture at least a few of the 18 seats of the Toronto Metro they swept in '58 and completely lost in '63.

And to get the majority they want, the Liberals admit, they must make gains in the rural ridings.

To hear them talk—both Liberals and Conservatives — it's going to be easier for the Tories—in Metro than the Grits in the farm country. Both sides say that in Toronto Whipper Billy Watson, the well-regarded wrestler, fighting Conservative will win the fall from the Liberals. That's the only sure one; they say but it's a beachhead. And there's Tory talk, with the Liberals plus-plusing it, that Dalton Camp just might take Mitchell Sharp in Metro-land's Eglinton. Too, the Liberals could lose Norfolk, where the tobacco farmers who account for 85 percent of the county's regional income, are mad at Judy LaMarsh and where the Grit candidate and former M.P., Jack Roxborough, is a non-smoker.

On the Conservative side there could be the loss of North Waterloo. For years the riding was Liberal, and now the one Conservative, who held it, Mike Weichel, has retired and it's up again for Grit grabs.

There are the only ridings that either camp talks about being even a bit shaky. All across both Ontario, Metro and farmland, the Liberals are still playing it cool. No big rallies, no campaign cavalcades. Nothing. Talk to the Liberal candidates and they tell you that pretty soon people are going to get bored with "Old Mr. Reclaim" as they are calling John Diefenbaker. And then along in the final closing couple of weeks, they tell you, will come Mr. Pearson, quiet, cool, calm—al lthe things that John Diefenbaker isn't — and the undecided 25 per cent of the voters, out of sheer relief, will make up their minds.

OLD LOVE DIEF

Only Dief is performing, and getting crowds. Strange crowds too. It wouldn't be correct to say there are few young people in those crowds. For except for school children who are marched out of their classrooms to stand in front of village post offices, when Dief is main streeting, there just isn't a face anywhere under middle age. But the older folks love him. It's got to the point that some of the older women—the above 60's—have taken, affectionately, to calling him "Diefie." Actually "Diefie."

And some of the older men —the ones wearing the stubble of retirement on their faces—refer to him in pride as "Honest John." They all yawn at the issues—except the $100 pension promised.

Education lea- l. So does natio. l Canada's place in the sun. Farm programs, labor policies, plans for youth — they're not really interested. But Lucien Rivard and "crime in high places," as Dief calls it, with "The shadow of the Mafia across the Peace Tower". That is box-office. And boffo. Rivard has become a cue for a huge laugh even before the joke about watering the rink is told. And they sit there, nodding solemnly when Dief tells them of the shame of "pride and honor, and dignity and integrity" being lost to Ottawa. Crime is the one big issue—and Dief may be doing good election business with it—in the Conservative campaign.

One more thing—the Conservatives have really closed ranks. If Premier Roberts doesn't attend the Diefenbaker rallies, and most of the time he has, then he sends a cabinet minister and a senior one.

2nd Thurlow

2nd THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pettt and Cameron spent a few days in Montreal recently. Their daugfter, Miss Betty Ann Pott sailed on the "Arkadia" for Germany, where she will study at Tubingen University, Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley Mitchell, Mr. Harry Grills, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and Mrs. Douglas Atkins were among those from Thurlow who went by bus to Toronto on Friday evening to hear Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and other Conservative leaders.

Mr. and Mrs Archie Greatrix have returned home after a trip to Manitoulin Island, Sudbury and Bancroft. They were guests of Mrs. J. Fairfield at Minden and called on Mr. and Mrs. Bumstead in Owen Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Atkins of Brighton were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Atkins.

Mr. David Peoples is attending Loyalist Collegiate at Kingston.

PARTY HONORS COUPLE

Over 50 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Doudle (nee Howard) gathered at the Neighbors' Aid hall on Thursday night to honor the newly married couple. Two tables of euchre were enjoyed and prizes won by Mrs. Jack Chumbley, Mrs. Fletcher Reid and Mrs. Harry Grills.

Mrs. S. Ray asked Mr. and Mrs. Doudle to take seats of honor and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell read an address. The couple were presented with a gift and lunch was served.

The Experts Say

Garnishing Takes Imagination But Can Do Much for a Meal

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—If you really want to peel a grape, plunge it into boiling water, but not for long or you will be peeling a cooked grape.

"You mustn't blanch anything too much or you'll cook it," says Marcel Didier, chef de cuisine at the Royal York Hotel. "Just leave it in the boiling water a very short time."

Grapes, peeled or in their skins, can be used to garnish other foods as can eggplant or tomato skins cut into decorative shapes, radishes, cherries, orange sections, beets, artichoke bottoms and potatoes.

Garnishing takes imagination, varying amounts of patience and good tools, says Chef Didier.

"You can take a plain piece of meat and make it look like something. Red, green and white color has lots to do with food to make it attractive.

"You can use the green or white leaves off leeks, if you can get leeks. You can shape by dipping them in boiling water.

"Leeks are very good for soups, by the way. People don't use them to advantage. Hot boiled leeks with vinaigrette sauce are delicious."

MAKE CORN FLOWERS

Miniature ears of pickled corn can be sliced in thin sections for flowers whose petals are formed by orange slices, tomato or perhaps eggplant.

You can use potatoes as decorations by cutting them into square shapes or with a melon scoop to form them into balls. Another way is to squeeze mashed potato through a pastry bag.

Your most important equipment for shaping garnishes is a sharp knife, says Chef Didier.

"Always a sharp knife. Women amaze me when they don't keep knives sharp. It's more dangerous to use a dull knife than a sharp one. In any trade you have to have good tools."

If you enjoy garnishing and are interested in doing a lot of it, you can get sets of cutters like small cookie cutters in round, triangular and square shapes.

"The cutters are best for little shapes. Otherwise you'd be playing all day."

On cold foods, you can use gelatin as a glue to hold garnishes on the food.

"Take a toothpick and dip the garnish in the gelatin, then put it on the food. Then glaze it if you like."

The color of garnishes can turn an ordinary mea linto an attractive one, Chef Didier says, and garnishes can help you create a showpiece party dish.

And if you're really artistic you can try matching some of his creations — penguins and birds and even an Ookpik made out of eggs and corn.

Successful Living

Lack of Facts Causes Needless Anxiety

DEAR DORIS: From the time I was 11 I wanted to know about the facts of life. When I asked my mother she told me that you just don't talk about such things. So I blundered along in the dark.

When I began to go to mixed parties, and later to date, mother gave me some advice: "Never kiss a boy until you are married, or he will get you pregnant." So when I received an innocent peck on the cheek one night (I was then 16) I knew I was going to have a baby. But since months went by and nothing happened I decided I wasn't. So I asked my mother how exactly do you get pregnant? She told me: "You sleep with a man."

DORIS CLARK

A few months after this our school was playing in a basketball tournament. A bus-load of the players and a cheering squad went. We had a wonderful time and on the way home we were all very tired. I accidentally fell asleep with my head on the shoulder of my boy friend.

Now I was in a panic. I was pregnant for sure this time. Mother had told me you get pregnant by sleeping with a man. I was so frightened by this time that I finally went to a doctor. Thank goodness he didn't laugh at me. He told me many things that day and I am very grateful to him for setting me straight. He helped me through a very miserable time in my life.

Now I have a 12-year-old sister who is just as dumb as I was. I don't want her to have the terrible adolescence that I had and I know that mother will not enlighten her. Please send me your recommended list of books about sex.—(Ten cents enclosed.)

I am now married and have a lovely daughter. I have told my mother that she didn't tell me enough and that my sister should know more but she says she knew a lot less than I did when she got married.

Doris, please urge mothers to talk to their daughters. Just because I knew more than my mother did doesn't mean that it is right. — NBW.

DEAR NO PANIC: Blessings on that doctor!

For a mother (or father) to withhold such information out of some mistaken notions of modesty or propriety or embarrassment (or whatever) is a crime against the young persons dependent on their guidance.

The list is on its way.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I'm in love with my first cousin, and he loves me. We want to get married in two or three years.

Will our children be deformed if we marry? — S.O.S.

P.S.: We are truly in love and have been for years. This is not what you would call a puppy love. This happens to be the real thing.

* * *

DEAR S.O.S.: Your children are not any more likely to be deformed than anyone else's. As long as you are both healthy and there is no family history of a disease which you might both pass on to your children, there's nothing against your marrying.

Except this: I suspect you are still very young, and should not be too sure you can recognize puppy love when you see it. Keep an open mind for a while yet.

DEAR DORIS: I have been married for five years and have a happy home and a good husband, and two little girls.

The problem is that my husband doesn't like his mother and doesn't want her to come to the baby. She likes her very much. Every time she comes here he always has something to tell her.

If I say "You shouldn't say that to your mother!" he gets mad at me and won't talk to me for a few days. It doesn't matter to me what she did before. I would like him to respect his mother like I do. Would like to know who is right. — SHOCKED.

DEAR SHOCKED: Keep out of it. His war with his mother started away back, perhaps because she failed him in some way: too busy, too critical, or too unloving. You un-something, anyway. Resentment is wrong, but only human. You may be able to bridge the gap by setting a good example. But since he's a good husband, don't make the mistake of adding your criticism to hers.

Mrs. Frank Bowler, co-convener of the Hospital Auxiliary's Opportunity Shop, cuts the ribbon to officially open the new shop today. Looking on from left are, Mrs. W. Dallas, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary; Mayor Jack Ellis, Mrs. Bowler, A. MacLean Haig, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital and Alderman Jack Deacon, whose persistent efforts made the new shop possible.

Mayor Officiates at Opening Of New Opportunity Shop

One of Belleville's best established businesses re-opened in new quarters this morning. The Opportunity Shop, operated for 18 years in City Hall by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, has been moved to the former weigh scale building on the corner of Pinnacle and Market Streets.

The building, spruced up with white paint and black trim, its interior decorated with natural beige panelling and mesh on colored bamboo curtains, brings the "boutique look" to Market Square. Representatives of the 85 Hospital Auxiliary volunteers who staff the shop were on hand in smart grey smocks with red trim to welcome the first customers this morning.

OPENED BY MAYOR

Mayor Jack Ellis brought greetings from City Council. He remarked that judging from the size of the crowd on hand the Opportunity Shop prices must be right. The Council has always provided quarters for the shop, first in City Hall, now in the former weight scales building. In view of the large amount the Auxiliary donates to the city-owned hospital, Council could well afford a small sum from its budget to provide space for the shop, he said.

Mrs. William Dallas Women's Hospital Auxiliary president, in her remarks stated that the profits from the shop are used to buy equipment and special comforts for nurses and patients at the hospital. Last year $5,000 was donated, bringing the total for the 18 years of operation to over $50,000.

APPRECIATE AID

A. Maclean Haig, chairman of the Board of Governors of the hospital told the audience the board is counting on the auxiliary to help buy much needed equipment for the new hospital addition. The capital works budget would not allow the Board to purchase all the equipment needed, and the Board is looking to the Auxiliary to help as it has in the past.

Alderman John Deacon, chairman of the Public Works Department, presented the keys of the new building to Mrs. Frank Bowler, assistant convener of the Opportunity Shop who cut the ribbon. Mr. Deacon was the man responsible for the refurbishing of the building.

He said it was a source of pride to the city to have a shop of this kind every city is faced with at one time or another, and as Public Works chairman, he felt no better use could be made of it than to turn it over to the Auxiliary.

HOURS OPEN

The new shop will be open every afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m., ever Friday evening from 7 to 9 p.m., and on Saturdays from 9.30 a.m. The shop sells everything and anything in clean and saleable condition for which householders have no further need.

Stock includes such items as clothing, china, jewelry, glassware, toys, furniture, bedding and books. The stock is composed of donations. Quality articles left with the shop are sold on a 50-50 consignment basis.

Nothing donated to the shop is wasted. Slow selling items of clothing are bundled up and sent to foreign missions and Canadian Indian reservations. Unsaleable material is made into wiping rags and sold to a local garage.

85 VOLUNTEERS

The 85 Hospital Auxiliary volunteers who staff the shop include four priests, the convener, Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, and her assistant, Mrs. Frank Bowler. All look forward to making greater financial records, in their new quarters.

Harry — Hart

Centenary United Church was the setting on Saturday, October 2, 1965, when Helen Agnes Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin G. Hart, Belleville R.R. 5, was united in marriage to Jack Paul Harry of Trenton R.R. 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harry of Wainfleet R.R. 2. Rev. R. H. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza over taffeta featuring a fitted bodice with rounded neckline and lace appliques and long sleeves. The bell shaped skirt was accented at the front with lace appliques and an organza flower at the back waistline. A shoulder length bouffant veil of tulle was caught by a headdress of organza petals studded with aurora borealis stones. She carried a white Bible crested with yellow Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Gary Chambers as matron of honor and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Hart, sister-in-law of the bride and Miss Marion Brenton, cousin of the bride were gowned alike in street length yellow brocade velvet dresses with matching wedding ring headdresses with tiny veil, and white accessories. Each carried a nosegay of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Little Miss Cynthia Hart was the flower girl dressed in white brocade velvet with yellow cummerbund, and a wedding ring headdress. Summer Job Fine Thing Says Student

The 21-year-old secretarial science student was one of 550 young people from universities and colleges who worked at Rocky Mountains resorts during the summer, for many it was the first time away from home.

"You have so many opportunities to meet different types of people," Jane said. There are plenty of ways to spend the hours and days off: hiking, climbing, trail-riding and holding cook-outs, "things students wouldn't normally do at home."

Still, a girl needs to be reasonably mature before she works at a summer resort, she observed.

Jane worked as a stenographer in the public relations office here. Her work included press releases on notable guests at the hotel, helping organize conventions, and sometimes helping the lodge photographer.

She went back in September to the University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., where she is in third year arts.

Susanna's Family Fare

PICK UP THOSE FEET

Dear Susanna: How I look forward to relaxing in my wee apartment at the end of the day with a nice home-cooked meal and a huge pot of tea. But there is something I really need, Susanna, a good old-fashioned tea cosy to keep my brew piping hot while I muse over the papers and just sit and sip. As long as a knitting pattern isn't too complicated I can follow it quite well — would you happen to know where I might find one?

Now for my special contribution. To all women (any age) who sit down at their work most of the day and still find their legs are tired and aching. Do what I did. Cover a nail square sturdy box with inconspicuous brown wrapping paper — use gummed tape to make a neat job — and place it under your desk or work table as a footstool. When you sit down to work you will automatically lift your feet up onto it. You'll notice such a difference. — Cynthia B.

Anything to take the strain off the vein is just what we need. As for the tea cosy, I can't live without one either.

Since I happen to have some copies of a 35-year-old pattern that's a honey, (it practically works like a thermos bottle,) I'm more than happy to share them with you. Anyone else care to share an idea for a pattern? — SUSANNA

SPIN FOR YOUR SELECTION

Dear Susanna: A tie rack, the kind that is shaped like a wheel, spins around, and comes out on a little arm so that it is parallel to the floor, makes a dandy holder for all those small, odd-shaped, hard-to-find kitchen gadgets such as potato peelers, measuring spoons, etc. If they don't already have a loop for hanging, it's easy enough to add one. — D.

SPLASH STOPPER

Dear Susanna: Canning beets? Put a dab of butter in with your beets when they are boiling. No more bubbling over or splashes on your stove — or anywhere! — "Toune"

Mr., Mrs. R. Cruickshank Married for 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cruickshank of Melville celebrated 60 years of married life with a party at Hillier Town Hall recently.

Over 100 people attended the celebration and shared the happy occasion with the couple. Seated at the head table with the "bride" and "bridegroom" were their four children and their husbands and wives. Also seated at the head table was Mr. Alderson Carley of Detroit and Wert Virginia, whose father, the late Dr. Arthur Carley, was a half-brother of Mr. Cruickshank.

The table was adorned with three-tiered anniversary cake, lighted candles and flowers from the couple's thirteen grandchildren. Mr. Carley made a brief speech before the cake was cut. Mrs. Jack Root read an address and a gift was presented from Melville U.C.W. by Mrs. Arthur Kennear. Melville U.C.W. catered for the dinner.

Mr. Cruickshank is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Cruickshank and was born near Trenton in 1881. Mrs. Cruickshank is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ellis and was born on the lake shore, west of Wellington, in 1882. Two brothers predeceased her, Fred and Earl.

Mr and Mrs. Cruickshank were married at Wellington by the late Rev. G. McCall. They recalled going to Picton with horse and buggy on their honeymoon. They had lived at Melville, in the same house, since their marriage.

Their four children are Alice (Mrs. Earl Lumley), Niles Corners; Arnold, Melville; Clayton, Wellington and Luella (Mrs. Carman Scott), Picton. There are 13 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The couple received congratulations from Premier Robarts, Norris Whitney, M.P.P. and Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P.

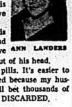
Ann Landers

Middle-Age Time For Reaffirming Love

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can I be you for a few minutes? Thanks. I'd like to tell all men around 50 years of age that they could save themselves a lot of money on doctor bills if they would tell their wives they still love them once in a while.

Going through the change doesn't really bother a woman very much if she has a thoughtful, considerate husband. The change is a normal transition. Some of my friends have sailed through it beautifully.

With me, it's another story. My husband is always telling me about this woman's shape and that one's sexy walk. Everytime an attractive girl waits on us in a restaurant his eyes bug out of his head.



ANN LANDERS

I see a doctor every week for shots and pills. It's easier to blame the change than to admit I'm depressed because my husband makes me feel like a worn-out shoe. I'll bet thousands of other women are in this same lousy boat. — DISCARDED.

* * *

DEAR DISCARDED: The menopause does produce physical changes which are harder on some women than others. It can also produce emotional changes — depression and suspicion.

A thoughtful, considerate husband however, can help. The wife who feels she's over the hill is bound to have a rougher time of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You let every parent in America down when you said you liked rock and_roll. It's plain to see from your pictures that you are wearing a cheap wig and false teeth but I didn't realize you were deaf, too.

Our two teen-age daughters have lost their minds over rock and roll noise. (I refuse to call it music and we have always been asked to move out of this apartment because of it. They spend every cent of their allowances plus whatever they can earn on trashy records.

When the Dave Clark Five came to town they waited at the airport for hours like morons. When they got home the 15-year-old said, "I touched him, Dave Clark himself. I'm not going to wash my hand for a week."

The last straw was when you said the music of the early 40's had the same beat. If you will tell me how you can get a Glenn Miller record to sound like rock and roll I'll eat this newspaper. — MAD.

DEAR MAD: Start nibbling. Another reader who is on your side came up with the answer to your question.

He said, "If you boil a Glenn Miller record for three hours and play it with a shingle nail it will sound like rock and roll."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a bachelor (age 31) and I always swore I would never get married. People used to kid me but my stock answer was, "Why buy a cow when milk is so cheap?"

Well, Ann, about six months ago I began to take out a widow who has three children. She is a wonderful person and the only woman who has ever made me think that I might be better off married than single. The problem is her children. They are pretty good kids, I guess, but I'm afraid they might get on my nerves after a while. I am not used to children and I can't think of anything to say to them.

I worry, too, that their mother might put the kids ahead of me after we are married. I admire her for being a devoted mother but sometimes I feel she is too wrapped up in her kids and it could cause trouble. Any advice? — ONE DUKE.

DEAR DUKE: Yes. Find a single girl or a childless widow. If you can't think of anything to say to those kids now, the things you will think of to say later would be better unsaid. It's obvious that you resent the children and are competing with them for their mother's attention. The word from here is nix.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Having Sheets Washed Best Bargain in France

By PEGGY MASSEN

PARIS (Reuters)—One of the best bargains in France is having the sheets washed.

Laundry services, and other basic utilities, are subject to government price control on 179 specific items, chosen at random to serve as examples for a stabilized national economy.

A price rolling, based on a survey of living costs in 1962, has been fixed on sheets, which are the single largest volume item processed by French laundries.

Today, a standard size plain white sheet is laundered for 1.35 francs (about 25 cents). But a pillow case and a Turkish towel cost 1.10 francs (about 22 cents), and a handkerchief 35 centimes (about 7 cents).

The reason for this discrepancy in price is that articles other than sheets and men's working clothes are not subject to price control, and the industry is allowed to budget by charging disproportionately higher prices on the non - controlled items.

Many wealthy French - families have laundry bills totalling more than 500 francs ($100) a week.

MOSTLY FOREIGN

The majority of the 29,000 salaried laundry workers in France are foreigners. They include Spanish, Portuguese, Arabs and Negroes.

Boulogne-sur-Seine is the traditional home of French laundries. At the turn of the century, no less than 600 laundries there employed 7,000 of its 10,000 residents.

The soil there was poor and farmers seeking other means of livelihood found it easy to dig wells since the land is below the level of the Seine River.

The chemically pure, soft water is still used in its natural state for rinsing.

In the last three years, automatic self-service launderettes

APPLE PIE OR CREME BRULEE

Every fall my first taste of apple pie made from our glorious early apples seems like a new experience. Every Canadian cook knows how to make apple pie but all of us keep trying for the ultimate in the all-time popular dessert. Today's is worthy of dessert status at your Thanksgiving dinner. Below it is a recipe for Creme Brulee with Poached Green Gage Plums, repeated from October, 1963 by request.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

(Economical)

Split Wieners on Baked Beans; Mustard Pickles; Cole Slaw with Parsley and Chives; Pumpkin Pie (see Tuesday); Coffee.

SUNDAY

Stuffed Veal Shoulder; Apple Jelly; Pan Roasted Potatoes; Corn on the Cob; Tossed Salad Greens with Spinach; Garlic French Dressing; Melon Halves filled with Ice Cream; Sponge Cake; Tea.

PERFECT FALL APPLE PIE:

Pastry: 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup shortening, 3 tablespoons cold water.

Filling: 6 large Melba apples, pared and sliced (or use equivalent in Gravenstein or Lodis), 2/3 cup granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon mace (or nutmeg), 1 tablespoon butter

Make pastry by cutting shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Sprinkle water over, 1 tablespoon at a time, tossing with fork until all flour is dampened. Pack into a mass between your palms. Divide dough in half. Roll out half on floured board and line deep 9" pie plate. Arrange half of the sliced apples in bottom. Sprinkle with half the sugar and spice. Repeat. Dot with butter. Roll out second half of dough, gash liberally at centre, cover apple filling, sealing and fluting edge. Brush all over with glaze made by mixing together 1 tablespoon each sugar and evaporated milk or cream. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes longer, or until apples are tender. Serve slightly warm with old Cheddar cheese.

CREME BRULEE WITH POACHED GREEN GAGE PLUMS (serves 6 to 8):

Heat 3 cups 35% cream until it begins to shimmer on top. Do not boil. (For less rich creme use 2 cups each milk and 18% cream.) Over low heat slowly stir in 6 egg yolks which have been beaten until thick. Stir constantly until it thickens, but do not boil. Remove from heat and pour into shallow baking dish (Deep 9" pyrex pie plate is ideal.) Chill. About 1 hour before serving time sprinkle top evenly with 1/3 cup sifted light brown sugar. Broil it about 4" from hot broiler until sugar melts — about 1 minute. Chill again. Serve with Poached Green Gage Plums: Wash and prick skins of 16 Green Gage plums. Make a simple syrup by combining 2 cups water with ¾ cup sugar. Bring to boil, drop in pricked plums and poach until a little bit tender. Carefully skim out and cool. Turn into cut-glass serving dish and pour cooled syrup over. Serve 2 or 3 plums with a little syrup beside a serving of creme brulee on each dessert plate. Elegant.

What Women Are Doing

P.C. Women's Association

Mrs. Stuart Howell, President

The Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association is one of the many Women's Conservative Associations throughout the Dominion of Canada. Since its origin in the late 20's this group has been one of the most active.

Mrs. Stuart Howell is president of the local organization and Miss Kaye McFarland of Napanee is chairman of the Women's Advisory Board of Ontario, Mrs. Harrison Smith of Kelowana, B.C. is the National President. Ontario alone has some 70,000 members.

Mrs. Howell, who has resided in Belleville since 1961 had previously been affiliated with the organization, having been vice-president of the Beaches-Danforth P.C. Women's Association in Toronto. She is also keenly interested in many other community projects.

The first meeting of the group was held back in 1929 when meetings were held in a vacant room above the former Schwab's Store on Front Street with Mrs. J. W. Kinnear its first president, who remained in this office for five years. Mrs. M. B. Weese was the district organizer and was appointed by former Prime Minister of Canada, Howard Ferguson.

The local association takes an active part during the time of an election by assisting with the manning of the polls and by doing volunteer committee room work and assisting with the many duties involved with electioneering. The group also promotes the principles and goals of the Conservative Party. They also believe in freedom of worship, speech and assembly, loyalty to the Queen of Canada and the rule of law. An association of this nature also provides representative machinery whereby Canadians may give expression to their opinions on public matters.

The local association enjoys working together in the interests of the local community and taking an active part between elections in local welfare projects as well as many social activities.

This is the 28th in a series about women's organizations in Belleville and their activities.

CONCENTRATOR NEARS COMPLETION — This compact group of buildings at Pine Point, N.W.T., enclose the nerve centre of a multi-million-dollar lead-zinc concentrator, is expected to be completed by November. The concentrator will handle ore from three mines now being operated by Pine Point Mines Ltd., a subsidiary of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. (CP Photo)

SUPERVISES CONSTRUCTION — Bud Beckett 39, a native of Kinley, Sask., looks over blueprints of Pine Point Mines, Ltd., lead-zinc development at Pine Point, N.W.T., 500 miles north of Edmonton. Assistant superintendent of construction for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., he has been in loan to subsidiaries developing the rich lead-zinc properties at Pine Point. Cold Is No Problem at Arctic Mine Because Builders Planned for It

By BOB TRIMBEE

PINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP)—From a vantage point atop a 100-foot tower housing eight ore bins, construction superintendent Bud Beckett surveyed a compact group of buildings that enclose the nerve centre of a multi - million - dollar lead-zinc development.

"The cold has not been a problem for us because we planned for it," he said as he scanned the 1,333-by-1,659-foot site where Pine Point Mines Ltd. is completing work on a 5,000-ton concentrator.

"We lost only 10 days because of weather and that was when we had a blizzard with 100-mile-an-hour winds in September, 1964.

"Despite the 40-below we get in winter we continued to work two shifts each day. Some of the outside work was slow the first winter because men had to come in often to get warm, but the job kept moving ahead and we'll hit our completion target of late October or early November."

As the construction boss spoke, 25 - ton diesel trucks roared down an oil-coated road nearby carrying tons of high-grade ore to a railway loading ramp a short distance from the mill site.

NO PERMAFROST

The pits, where ore is clawed from the ground by 150-ton shovels, can be seen from the rooftop to the west and north and a modern townsite is visible about two miles west of the mill.

Permafrost, a bugbear in other northern areas, is not a problem at Pine Point. The mill is built on solid rock.

For Mr. Beckett, 39, a native of Kinley, Sask., the scene is as familiar as his own face. As assistant superintendent of construction for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., he has been on loan to subsidiaries developing the rich lead-zinc properties 500 miles north of Edmonton.

His 18 months at Pine Point make him a senior citizen in terms of time spent at the $22,000,000 project. He leaves in November and his construction crew of about 200 will be replaced by experienced mill workers.

"All that should remain then to make the mill operational will be the arrival of electricity from the Taltson River," he said.

The federal government hopes to complete the $9,120,000 project by November, too.

Later in his office, Mr. Beckett flipped through several binders which contain a photographic record of each stage of construction. He recalled that the first concrete for the mill was poured in 10-below temperatures.

"The buildings have been constructed for cold-weather operations. Insulation has been placed between zinc-coat steel sheets which line all exterior walls. Where necessary water lines will be heated.

"A special rotary kiln costing $500,000 will heat the ore to 40 degrees to prevent it from freezing into a solid block after it has been crushed."

Ore up to 42 inches in diameter can be handled by the mill's primary crusher. There it is reduced to five inches and sent along the first of five conveyor belts to two cone crushers which further reduce the ore to less than an inch.

After passing through the heating kiln the ore is stored in eight 120-foot-tall concrete bins, which have a total capacity of 8,000 tons. When needed it is fed by conveyor to ball and rod mills where it is reduced to a fine sand size, ready for the filtration process.

Along the way dust is trapped and returned to the concentrator, both as a health safeguard and to ensure no metal is lost.

Special chemicals added to a mixture of water and ore allow technicians to draw off lead concentrates and then zinc.

Water comes from five deep wells each capable of producing 500 gallons a minute. The water is treated to take out any mineral content which might interfere with the flotation process.

Jim McCrea, 25, assistant mill superintendent, said there are few impurities in the Pine Point ore, making it "relatively easy to work both in the mill and at the mine site."

Concentrates of 60 - per - cent zinc and 75-per-cent lead are loaded directly on railway cars, which move in and out of the loading area on heated spur lines.

One trains move south twice a week over the 400-mile $87,000,000 Great Slave Lake Railway which connects Pine Point and Roma, Alta. The concentrates will be smelted at Cominco's operations in Trail, B.C., or exported to Japan.

"The mill has all the latest and best equipment and special control boards govern ore movement at each critical stage," said Mr. Beckett. "It's about as automated a plant as we can get without entering into a complete push-button operation."

Tomorrow: Modern town will serve mine.

Napanee News

Lengthy Agenda Completed by Town Council

NAPANEE — The Council on Monday evening was visited by the Jaycees, Mr. Colin Foster of the Jaycees thanked the council for the co-operation they have received since they first organized at the beginning of the year. Mr. Foster presented Mayor L. Smart with a Bible for the use of the council, as a token of their gratitude. Mayor Smart received the Bible on behalf of the council and stated they were happy to have been of assistance and he was very pleased to have the Jaycees visit council. During the meeting Mayor Smart explained the functions of the council thoroughly for the benefit of the guests.

Mr. B. F. Davy was welcomed to his first meeting as a councillor this year. He is filling the vacancy created by the departure of H. Wightman.

E. Hooper representative of the Napanee Co-Op was present to ask the town to remedy the problem of water, after each rainfall which gushes in front of the mill. It has been a problem for a year now and is getting worse. Some work was done here before when the force of water pushed up the pavement and it was repaved, now it is breaking up through the boulevard. Apparently the old stone sewer cannot handle the flow. The streets committee will investigate promptly.

The Napanee Region Conservation Authority will purchase and repair the dam at Colebrook, which will be of great benefit to Napanee in future years. The cost of the project will be $8,200, of this the Province pays $2,050. Napanee's share of the cost is $512.50. A motion passed the paying of this amount and it was explained if the work is completed this fall the dam will store quite an amount of water for next summer's use.

LICENCES EXPIRE

This month the licences for nursing homes in Napanee, expire. The licences, were granted on a three - month basis and if the homes were brought up to standard the licences would be re - issued. R. H. Sheppard, legal advisor for McDonald's Nursing Home was present to ask for an extension of time on the licence as yet no alterations have been made on the home at the Robinson St. address as they were planning to move to another address but were prevented by a decision of the planning board. The alterations will be made if they are allowed more time. Council has agreed to wait one more month against their better judgment as the operators of these homes seem to be somewhat reluctant about making the necessary changes. As the council has been bewildered for some time just how to solve the situation, they will have a meeting with the Medical Officer of Health, whose report is not yet complete and the Fire Chief and the operators of the Nursing homes to see if a formula for licencing can be found.

Councillor E. Marshall in questioning chairman of Police, Reg Douglas, as to whether Napanee Police should chase cars as far as Marysville or remain within the limits of Napanee, brought about a heated discussion. Mr. Douglas stated the Provincial Police said in this case the town police had acted correctly in apprehending this driver, who had a lengthy record of accidents, and driving while his license is suspended, whereupon Mr. Marshall asked what would happen if a bank in Napanee were robbed and the police car was needed. Mr. Douglas read the record of the man and Mr. Marshall stated he did not wish to turn the meeting into a court of law whereby a man's record was read, but he thought the police car should remain in town and that the council were elected to run the town and as long as he sits on council it will. After a few more points of view were aired both viewpoints being logical, the clerk was instructed to write to Toronto to obtain the necessary information so the police will know where they stand and the council will be in the clear.

Teen-town Officers Plan New Season

DESERONTO — A meeting was called for the Deseronto Teen-town members on Sunday afternoon at the Lion's hall. A great many teen-agers were present along with a few adults. The hard working leaders of the club, Mrs. Dorothy Webster and Mrs. Jean Hrytsak got the club started off for another year, which they hope will be as successful as last year.

In the past the executive of the club have met with Mrs. Webster to organize dances and parties for teen-agers of the district. These have been exceptionally well controlled affairs. Members are not allowed to re-enter a dance if they leave the hall.

The club has four rules. Membership is limited to teen-agers from 13 to 19 years of age; no drinking is permitted; no one is allowed to leave the hall during the dances, and there must be respect for the hall's facilities at all times.

The executive elected for the year were president, Dennis Tompkins; vice - president, Kathy Schell; secretary, Gordon Gray; treasurer, Sheila Schell; chaperone executive, Jo Ann Punchard and Carol Kimmett; executive officers, Calvin Looey and Wayne Mallory. The chaperone committee arranges for four adults to be at the dances each night.

It is being left to the executive and members to make most of arrangements this year, in order to teach the teen-agers how to operate a thriving club.

The first dance of the season will be held at the Lion's hall next Friday with disc jockey Dave Charles of C.J.S.Q. radio supplying the music.

Sale of Lot Is Confirmed

DESERONTO — The council on Monday evening confirmed the sale of Lot 26 on the waterfront to Mrs. F. Walker. Mrs. Walker asked to purchase the lot at a previous council meeting and was told she could have it subject to a survey at her cost. The survey was made and the deed drawn up by Mrs. Walker's lawyer, C. S. Marek also wished to purchase this lot as he needs half this lot as a right-of-way to his boathouse on Mrs. Walker stated she needed the whole lot in order to erect a garage on it. A verbal battle took place with Mrs. Walker stating that Mr. Marek had accused her of getting the surveyor to move the stakes. Mr. Marek claims he had paid taxes on the property for some time but had no deed to it, also he intended to build a $20,000 home on it, not a mere cottage. His only wish was to obtain frontage to the lots he presently owns. Mr. S. Edmison, the surveyor, was present and made it clear there were no errors in the survey. Then after the council retired to a committee of the whole they decided to abide by their decision to sell the property to Mrs. Walker with a vote of 5 to 2.

The Department of Health had written and asked the town to appoint a Medical Officer of Health, "pointing out that the town has been without one now for nine months. Mayor Lott states a thorough canvass of the area doctors has been made and to date we have been no one willing to act. Dr. D. C. McVicker, who is a councillor and cannot be named officially, has offered to act without additional payment if the occasion arises. Reeve C. Bridger informed council that it is almost a certainty that there will be a county Health Unit formed within the beginning of 1966.

Council Seeks Sewage Plant For Corporation

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Lions' Club advised the council that they have made available $1,000 to be used by the town to purchase playground equipment for the new Centennial Park.

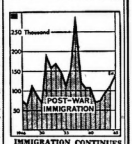
The Ontario Water Resources Board have notified council of a new plan for financing for water and sewage systems whereby it is paid for on a usage basis.

Mayor Lott explained this is the plan they applied for some time ago but had received no reply.

After contacting the board on this matter recently, Mayor Lott was told over 50 applications had been received by towns from Deseronto and if one was sent now there would be quite a delay.

Mayor Lott contacting the Water Resources Board once more, drew attention to a meeting between Mr. C. Ballinger, MPP, the Honorable J. R. Simonett, Minister of Energy and Resources and himself last May and reminded the board of a resolution forwarded to them on June 2. Somehow a miracle was performed and Deseronto is now on the top of the list to receive aid in their water and sewage problems. Therefore council passed a resolution stating "that the Ontario Water Resources Commission be requested to prepare and present a proposal to the corporation of the town of Deseronto for the construction of a water treatment system and a sewage disposal system as a provincially-owned project, including a rate on a usage basis, to meet all the costs incurred by a Provincial program and an appropriate form of contract.

The Public Library Board has extended an invitation to the councillors and their wives along with the School Board members and their wives and husbands to attend a social evening and inspection of the latest books, available to the public, in the library on October 21. This has become a yearly event.



IMMIGRATION CONTINUES TO INCREASE — The department of immigration estimates 140,000 immigrants will enter Canada this year. The 1964 total of 112,606 is expected to be reached by late November.

The record is 282,164 in 1957, when Canada opened doors to refugees from the Hungarian revolution. Graph traces immigration since 1946. (CP Newsmap)

FOR LONG SERVICE — Former presidents of Madoc Fair, George West and William Stewart, are congratulated by A. M. Barr, Kemptville Agricultural School Principal, on being awarded certificates for long service to agriculture.

CALF SHOW — More than 60 calves were on show at Madoc Fair yesterday as the Quinte 4-H Calf Club championship show was held. Part of the turnout of calves are seen being judged by A. M. Barr, principal of Kemptville Agricultural School, who also officially opened the fair.

FAIR PRESIDENT Kenneth Holland welcomes fair goers to Madoc Fair.

Despite Cool Weather First Year of Class 'B' Madoc Fair Success

The exhibitors and fair officials were ready, but old man weather failed to co-operate yesterday for the annual presentation of Madoc Fall Fair.

The result was that while the fair itself equalled or possibly surpassed previous shows the crowd failed by quite a bit to match the turnout in recent years.

And the drop off in attendance was unfortunate in the eyes of fair officials who were proud of the fact that this was the first year that Madoc fair had operated as a Class "B" Fair.

The fair was officially opened by Mr. A. M. Barr, Principal of Kemptville Agricultural School, who complimented fair directors both on their fine show and on the fair attaining Class "B" rating.

The noted that attainment of a class "B" fair rating meant that more prize money was available from the Agricultural Department, but at the same time the quality and number of exhibits was expected to be increased.

HAD DUAL ROLE

The Kemptville Agricultural School principal had a dual role at the fair. Not only did he officially open the fair but he also acted as the judge of the 4-H Club calf show which saw the greatest number of calves in the history of the fair on exhibition. He said he was gratified to see the calibre of the junior calf show.

Two former presidents of the Madoc Fair, William Stewart, fair society head back in 1922 and still an active director, and ex-Madoc Reeve George West (1931), were presented with long service certificates from the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The certificates were presented to the two men by Carl Heath, district No. 7 fairs director.

In chilly weather that saw a high percentage of the people bundled in winter overcoats, Fair president Kenneth Holland welcomed fair-goers.

SPECIAL HORSE SHOW

Clare T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East, spoke briefly extending good wishes for a successful fair.

Madoc Fair activities got underway Tuesday evening with a special horse show that attracted a big crowd of horse lovers.

The fair itself saw the usual big entry of fine horse flesh in all classes; there was the usual attraction of harness racing and also a big livestock show, including cattle, swine and sheep.

Madoc Fair this year saw the first use of its new swine building, constructed at the northeast end of the fairgrounds so as to allow all season use of the structure as an assembly yards by the county hog producers.

But the big show, insofar as numbers were concerned was the Quinte Championship 4-H calf show and the local 4-H club achievement days.

County 4-H clubbers had more than 60 calves in the Quinte championship show which saw calves divided into an even dozen different classes.

CLUBBERS ACTIVE

Mary Tummon of Halloway showed the best junior Jersey while the top senior calf in the class was shown by John Murray of Stirling.

Top showman in the dairy competition was Kalvin Sharp of Stirling.

Basil Reavie of Flinton showed the top junior Hereford heifer with Neil Reavie showing the top senior Hereford heifer.

In the Madoc 4-H calf club David Burnside was top showman while Gordon Pitts showed the best senior calf.

Other Junior exhibit at the fair included those by the Hastings county 4-H Corn Club; the Madoc 4-H Potato Club and the Hastings 4-H Hay-Pasture Club.

There was the customary fine cheese and dairy showed, while the agricultural building show space was filled with exhibits of garden produce, school exhibits, ladies' fancy works and taste tickling samples of home cooking.

And for the fair - goers whose interest in livestock and other exhibits had been satisfied, there was the platform entertainment.

The Madoc Band under the director H. Brintnell, entertained during the fair afternoon until opening ceremonies were completed. Then the grandstand performance got underway with the singers, dancers and old time fiddlers taking over.

TOP TALL HORSE — Charles Cullman of Picton poses with Palomino which won fair prize for saddle horse standing 15.2 hands and over.

Berrrrr ! — Chilly weather kept attendance down yesterday at Madoc Fair, and winter garb was the order of the day. Two youngsters dressed for the worst are sisters Linda and Diane Holland, seen with their aunt Mrs. Dorothy McMaster of Belleville and their mother Mrs. Don Holland of Madoc.

Pope's Resolve to Carry Message Leaving Mark

By HAROLD MORRISON

The pope's unprecedented pilgrimage to the United Nations in search of peace is in effect a modern-day test of the power of moral force to help determine the shape of political solutions in a badly disjointed world arena.

It is not likely that the cry "no more war" will immediately convince India and Pakistan to lay down their arms or dissuade the nuclear giants from pursuing means of producing cheaper and more efficient nuclear bombs.

Nor is it likely to persuade China to halt its inflammatory policy of supporting wars of national liberation, especially where the enemy has been linked with the Western powers.

But the impact has been made. Pope Paul's decision to wrench himself from the security of the Vatican and to carry his message into the market places has left its mark on an amazed and heartened world. China has remained silent and even hostile but most other Communist countries, including the Soviet Union, have clothed their criticism in a heavy layer of respect for the man whose only weapon is the massive voice of prayer.

The essential need of a more active and widely - recognized moral force in the political arena is heightened by the current East-West deadlock which threatens to destroy periodic hopes for a world disarmament pact.

Established spheres of world political leadership have become unsettled. President Johnson's illness, while it may be only temporary, has raised concern and doubts about the future course of United States foreign policy. At a crucial moment this Western leadership may falter.

A PRECEDENT

In the Kremlin, there still is some question whether the leadership struggle there is finally settled and what course towards world peace the men in power may take.

The world political situation is fluid. It beckons to those with moral power who are willing to take the risk to step in for the purpose of establishing stability.

The pope has taken the risk. He has established the precedent. He has said he will go anywhere, even to Peking, in the cause of peace. The Chinese are unlikely to pen their doors for in the past one government-controlled Chinese newspaper has described the pope as a tool of U.S. imperialism. But at least in venturing to open a door only to find it locked, the pope can signify to the world where the obstruction to world peace lies.

Sukarno Hits Army's Drive Against Reds

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno and the leaders of Indonesia's army appeared today to be locked in dispute over the future of Indonesia's big Communist party.

Sukarno told his cabinet Wednesday he disapproves of the army's campaign against the Communist party (PKI) for its alleged involvement in the abortive coup last Thursday which resulted in the slaying of six army generals.

Sukarno's position was reported by First Deputy Premier Subandrio after the 3½ - hour cabinet meeting at the president's summer palace in Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta.

Advance Polls Prove Boon But Can Also Be Headache

OTTAWA (CP) — Advance polls have proved a boon to many voters away from home on a federal election day, but they have caused headaches when returning officers failed to follow their instructions.

The advance voting for the coming election takes place Saturday, Oct. 30 and Monday, Nov. 1. Voting hours both days are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. local standard time. General voting Nov. 8 is from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Deputy returning officers are supposed to wait until 9 p.m. local time on election night before consulting advance-poll ballots. But in most elections, some jump the gun.

In the 1963 election, seven deputy returning officers in six ridings counted ballots early and some results leaked out to the general public. They had to.

There were so few voters at some rural advance polling stations—there was only one at some—that the secrecy of the ballot was lost, since the names of voters in an advance poll are furnished to the candidates.

PROPOSES SAFEGUARDS

In his report on that election, Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay recommended amendments to the Canada Elections Act to cope with these situations in future.

Mr. Castonguay proposed that instead of leaving the count to the deputy returning officers, the advance poll ballot boxes be sent to the riding returning officer for counting on the day after the general election.

This counting procedure, carried out before candidates' agents, would guard against premature disclosures and protect the secrecy of the ballot.

The Elections Act, which has never been revised when a minority government has been in power, such as in the 1963-65 period, remains the same and officials are waiting to find out whether headaches will be caused in this election.

Two newspapers—the Toronto Telegram and Ottawa Le Droit—were prosecuted for publishing before the polls closed on election day the results of advance polls in the 1963 election.

About 100,000 persons, amounting to one per cent of all eligible electors, are expected to vote early this time.

RESTRICTIONS EASED

Use of the advance poll has increased almost 10-fold since a 1960 amendment to the act permitting any person to use this privilege if he signs an affidavit stating he has reason to believe he will be away from his home polling division on election day.

Before 1960, only commercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and reserve forces had this privilege.

In the 1962 election, 98,446 persons voted at 1,803 advance polling stations, compared with only 11,208 at 256 stations in 1958. In 1963, fewer electors—85,276—used fewer polls—1,807.

Location of the advance poll for a given polling division in urban areas is provided in the preliminary list of electors that will be in the mail by Oct. 16. These lists are mailed only to persons whose names are on the list, so a check with neighbors may be necessary.

Post offices in 34 ridings will have a notice giving the locations of advance polling stations. Another way to find out is by asking the committee rooms of a political party.

Greatest use of advance polls is made in urban centres, defined as communities of 5,000 persons or more. In rural areas, any community with a population of 1,000 or more is entitled to an advance poll.

SPAKK ILL

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgian Foreign Minister Paul - Henri Spaak, 66, is ill. It was announced Wednesday. The nature of his illness was not disclosed.

Here Are Things to Do If Not on Voters' List

OTTAWA (CP)—If you live in an urban area—in most cases a community of more than 5,000 population — there are several steps to take if you think your name has incorrectly been left off the voters' list for the Nov. 8 federal election.

On Oct. 21, 22 and 25 you may appear at the court held by the revising officer to state why you are entitled to vote.

If you are unable to attend, you may ask another qualified elector, an employer or a blood relative to represent you at the court.

Or you may telephone the returning officer who will send a revising agent to your home. This latter course requires the prospective-voter to get in touch with the returning officer between Oct. 15 and 23. The revising agent will help him draw up a formal application to have his name added.

The revising agents are nominated by the party which won the riding in the 1963 election and by the runner-up party. In each urban riding, two agents are appointed to each of the "revised districts," usually embracing 25 polling divisions.

The agent takes the completed applications to a revising officer, who substitutes for the county court judge for the district and has quasi - judicial status.

If satisfied a person is entitled to vote, the officer may add the name to the list. If he decides against, the officer must state the reasons in a registered letter to the applicant.

In rural ridings, an enumerator appointed by the returning officer hears applications from enlisted persons on Oct. 21.

A qualified voter may still vote even if his name is not on the list of a rural riding. He must appear at the poll on election day and have a listed voter take an oath vouching for him, and take an oath himself.

Even Small Joke Out of Place When $150,000,000 Is at Stake

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—At the last meeting of creditors of insolvent Atlantic Acceptance Corp., receiver and manager J. G. Hazlton tried a small joke.

Noting it was exactly three months since the $150,000,000 finance company had gone under, he added he wasn't going to wish anyone happy anniversary.

The creditors, representing $100,000,000 of unsecured debt and the only ones caught in the wreckage who now seem fairly certain of getting most of their money back, chuckled appreciatively.

No one else involved in the mess is laughing, however.

Certainly not the so - called subordinated creditors who, with unsecured debts totalling $28,000,000, will be lucky as things now stand to get back a couple of cents on the dollar.

Certainly not holders of Atlantic stock, which tumbled in about 20 cents after being quoted at $20.25 shortly before the collapse came.

Certainly not business generally for, even if companies were not caught as creditors—and it's startling how many large ones—the shock of Atlantic's failure jolted confidence and frightened many major money sources.

And especially not shareholders of British Mortgage and Trust Co., that respected, almost reverend, pillar of Stratford, Ont., which got sucked down in the vortex of Atlantic's sinking and took the life savings of hundreds of investors with it.

HAD CREDIT PROBLEMS

Perhaps inevitably with so much money involved, there have been dark whispers about huge fortunes made by a few individuals, about shadowy background figures manipulating the cash and about political influence.

Sorting fact from fancy will be the task of the royal commission appointed to pick apart the tangled skeins when it starts hearings in about three months, but despite all the intriguing sidebroads investigators can follow, the essential question is:

Why did it happen?

Before the crash started June 15, Atlantic was a widely diversified and, on the surface, highly successful finance company operating in personal and industrial loans.

Some analysts noted the company was short of strong lines of credit and so was forced to raise capital in the short-term, high-interest market, but most investors and lenders saw only that the company had increased its business almost eight times in five years and confidently expected to continue its spectacular growth.

Atlantic's annual report issued in February glowed. It reported volume of business in 1964 climbed to $176,000,000 from $113,000,000 the previous year and revenue to $15,000,000 from $10,00_.

President C. Powell Morgan's message talked cheerfully of this sharp gain continuing through 1965 and indicated there was only one small cloud:

"Salaries, as a percentage of gross income still are too high, but some improvement is noticeable."

On June 15 salaries became a very small item of concern indeed.

FAILED TO MEET NOTE

Mr. Morgan announced the company had failed to meet a $500,000 short-term note that had fallen due "and as a result is in default . . ."

He blamed a shortage of money in the Canadian lending market and restrictions on the export of funds from the United States for the default, although others said later Atlantic couldn't get the money to meet the note because experts had tabbed the firm as a bad risk.

Now that first blood had been drawn, the giant died quickly.

On June 16 treasurer R. L. McFadden said failure to meet the $5,000,000 note put Atlantic's entire debt of $100,000,000-plus in default. The next day the company went into receivership, with Montreal Trust Co. appointed to try to pick up the pieces.

It took a month for Montreal Trust's auditors to sort out enough facts for a preliminary report, but it hit hard when it arrived.

The finance company's books showed total assets of $163,285,589; Montreal Trust found only $103,432,830. Atlantic claimed a surplus of $19,206,819 after provision for meeting all obligations; the Trust's audit showed a loss of $32,355,820.

DISAGREE ON FIGURES

The two agreed on total liabilities — $135,788,750 — but difference in the two sets of figures pinpointed the major trouble spots, four subsidiaries.

Atlantic claimed notes and account receivable from Commodore Sales Acceptance Ltd. were worth $35,000,000; Montreal Trust said they were worth $13,000,000.

Atlantic said receivables from Commodore Factors Ltd. were worth $10,000,000; Montreal Trust said $3,000,000.

Atlantic said receivables from Adelaide Acceptance Ltd. were worth $4,700,000; Montreal Trust said $700,000.

Atlantic said receivables from Standard Discount Corp. Ltd. were worth $3,800,000; Montreal Trust said $2,800,000.

While the auditors were shaking their heads over the books, other events were moving.

Mr. Morgan was asked to resign as president and president he did on June 25. The Toronto Stock Exchange suspended trading in Atlantic shares July 13.

The Ontario Securities Commission started an investigation and Premier John Robarts of Ontario announced July 30 a royal commission would be set up under Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

LOSSES RISE

After a brief survey, Mr. Justice Hughes said a total of 42 companies would be investigated, including British Mortgage and Trust. Its losses in Atlantic investments already had been estimated at that time at $5,000,000—and more were to be disclosed later.

The furore struck an immediate chord in the U.S., partly because about 60 per cent of Atlantic's credit came from there, partly because the Securities and Exchange Commission already was looking into a stock-swindle bid that occurred in New York the day before Atlantic failed.

Telegrams had been sent by unknown persons, apparently from Nassau, instructing New York brokers to buy large quantities of stock in Commodore Business Machines (Canada) Ltd., Racan Photo - Copy Ltd. and Jockey Club Inc.

It quickly became obvious the telegrams were fake, presumably to try to drive up the price by creating a sudden demand so large holdings could be dumped at a profit.

The SEC, figuring the Jockey Club orders were a blind, looked at Racan and Commodore.

Racan was well known, since its stock had taken a spectacular dive in price a few years ago under unusual circumstances.

It was found Racan was into Atlantic subsidiaries for at least $1,225,000 and, since its physical assets were sold at bankruptcy auction shortly after, there wasn't much left to be recovered by the finance company.

As for Commodore, President Jack Tramiel said 24 hours after Atlantic failed that his firm had done no business with the finance company for a year.

LOANS LISTED

There were apparent connections, however. Mr. Morgan, Atlantic's president, was chairman of Commodore's board although he resigned that post six days after Atlantic defaulted.

The two companies had other directors in common—including Wilfrid Gregory, also president of British Mortgage.

Mr. Gregory resigned from the boards of both Atlantic and Commodore, and later from British Mortgage, but it was disclosed after almost three months that the names of Atlantic and its subsidiaries, Commodore Business Machines, Mr. Tramiel and Mr. Morgan all figured prominently in the trust company's list of loans and investments.

Mr. Morgan had a $650,000 collateral loan from the Stratford firm, and Mr. Tramiel one of $100,000. Two other Commodore officials also had borrowed $100,000 from British Mortgage —Manfred Kapp, a vice-president, and Harry Wagman, treasurer.

Other loans included $1,500,000 to Trans - Commercial Investments, another company connected with Mr. Tramiel, and $240,000 to NGK Investments.

Government records showed NGK's president is Mr. Morgan, while Mr. Gregory is a vice-president. The "K" is Carmen King, a Toronto stock broker and a director of Commodore.

MERGER APPROVED

By Sept. 14, when these loans were made public, British Mortgage was in effect dead. They were read out in a shareholders' meeting called to approve a merger with Victoria and Grey Trust Co. of Lindsay, Ont., a firm that has former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris as president and includes Leslie Frost, former Ontario premier, on its board.

The shareholders, many crying, approved the merger after being told British Mortgage's losses could reach $13,000,000—basically because of its involvement with Atlantic, new president Harold Lawson said.

There were rumors of a substantial offer in the making from a Montreal group, but Mr. Lawson said later it would have offered nothing for shareholders.

The Ontario government apparently played an important role in the merger. A few hours after the proposal was announced by the two companies July 27, the government issued a statement officially endorsing it—although at that time Denison Mines Ltd. held an option to buy control of British Mortgage for $6,000,000.

Denison let the option expire Aug. 20 on grounds British Mortgage wasn't worth the money, but meanwhile the government guaranteed a $2,000,000 bank loan to British Mortgage in case the money was needed to pay depositors pulling their money out.

Withdrawals had reached a peak of $10,000,000 in one day, but the loan apparently quieted the growing panic and financial officials later credited it with preventing a run that could have spread to other trust companies with potentially disastrous effects.

With the body of one victim apparently nestled deeper out of attention turned again to Atlantic's creditors who were starting to fight over the remnant of their corpse.

Holders of secured notes approved selling part of Atlantic's operations to General Acceptance Corp. of Allentown, Pa., after being told the sale could bring them $76,000,000.

With other money the receiver hopes can be raised from Atlantic's assets, that would ensure their getting back most, if not all, their loans.

It would, however, leave nothing for other creditors.

Opposing the sale, they suggested injecting $5,000,000 and new management into Atlantic and keeping it operating in the hope that within five years it could earn enough to pay back all creditors.

The proposed sale is to go before the courts for consideration and the other creditors have vowed to try to block it.

TEARS COURSE CHEERS

There are personal tragedies by the score in the sad and confused story of Atlantic, but one of the unhappiest has to be that of W. H. Gregory, chairman of British Mortgage, father of the former president and a man who has given most of his 80 years to building the company and public confidence in it.

At the meeting ending British Mortgage he sat slumped in a seat, saying nothing, looking at no one, while tears ran down his cheeks.

Six months earlier he had written in the company's annual report:

"I have been struck by the emphasis which is being placed on the extension of credit and the comparative silence concerning the basic security which, alone, can warrant any credit. . . .

"Prudence dictates an investment policy designed to keep losses to a minimum. It is, therefore, rather surprising that a pronounced demand for relaxed lending restrictions is being pressed upon institutions engaged, wholly or in part, in lending money. . . .

"All I venture to suggest is that caution be not cast to the winds."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Belleville and district tenpin bowlers will have the opportunity to compete in a $100,000 Tournament program that can take them to provincial and Canadian championships this coming season, and to the next world championship.

Sponsored by the Tenpin Bowling Proprietors' Association of Canada and supported by O'Keefe Brewing Company, the tenpin competition will embrace men and women, open and classified coast to coast. The program includes house eliminations in some 40 Canadian centres beginning November 1st, provincial finals at eight centres, March 5 to 10; and Canadian finals at Fort William - Port Arthur, May 18 to 22.

Harold Johnston, O'Keefe representative here, and Art Pfefferle of the Belleville Bowl announced the Canadian Proprietors' Tenpin Championships for the O'Keefe awards the other day. House eliminations will be played at the Belleville Bowl in Belleville and the Lucky Strike Lanes in Deseronto.

Provincial finalists will have transportation and daily expenses paid for the five-day national championships at the Lakehead, they said. At least three men and one woman bowler will be selected from the provincial finalists to represent Canada at the next F.I.Q. (World) championships. The championships at local, provincial and national levels have been sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress and by the Women's International Bowling Congress.

House eliminations for men's and ladies' singles, both open and classified will be held here from November 1 to 28; men's doubles, open and classified, will be bowled from January 1 to 31. Classified team eliminations will be rolled off from February 1 to 28.

Forty per cent of the entry fees for local house eliminations go to the prize fund which will be entirely returned in the provincial finals with prizes going to one in every two provincial contenders. One in every five bowlers competing in the house eliminations here will advance to the provincial roll-offs.

At the Canadian finals, an additional prize fund provided by the sponsors will give approximately $4,000 to the champions, runners-up and third place finalists in the seven events.

Men's and ladies' open singles and men's open double contenders will play eight games' total scratch pinfall in the house eliminations to qualify for provincial finals on the four games total scratch pinfall . Classified singles will be open to men bowlers with an average of 169 or less, and to women bowlers with an average of 159 or less. Men's classified doubles will be open to combined averages of 339 or less; classified teams of men and/or ladies will be able to compete where maximum team strength is not over 850.

"By providing both open and classified events we are making sure that every tenpin bowler has a fair chance for success at all levels of the championships," Mr. Johnston pointed out. "This is strictly in line with the aims of the O'Keefe Amateur Athletic Program—to get the greatest possible participation of Canadian adults in competitive sport."

In the provincial finals, champions will be determined on the basis of eight game total scratch pinfall in the open singles, open doubles and classified team events; on the basis of four-game total scratch pinfall in classified singles and doubles events.

National Champions will be determined in round-robin play at the Lakehead.

Win Opener 8-2 ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Koufax Goes Today

Twins Crash Dodger 4-in-Row Boast

By JOE REICHLER

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Nobody is talking about four straight anymore. Not even Minnesota Twins, who battered Don Drysdale and beat favored Los Angeles Dodgers 8-2 to draw first World Series blood.

The Dodgers had really believed they could knock off the American League champions in four straight. Today somewhat subdued after having their 23-game winning right - hander knocked out in less than three innings the Dodgers placed all their hopes on Sandy Koufax, their left-handed star, to give them an even break in the two games here.

Sam Mele, the Twins' manager, never had any illusions about a four-game sweep Even after having won the first one, Sam still contained his optimism.

"We'll go one at a time. Los Angeles is a good club. You can't relax against those guys. We'll keep playing the way we have all year."

KAAT VS. KOUFAX

Mele confirmed his nomination of Jim Kaat, his 18-game winner, as the second game starter. After that it will be right-handed Camilo Pascual for the third game in Los Angeles Saturday. Friday has been set aside for travel.

In Koufax, the Twins will face the best pitcher in baseball. Handy last worked on Saturday when he pitched the pennant clincher against Milwaukee, lifting his season's record to 26 victories and eight defeats.

His season record included eight shutouts and a record 382 strikeouts. He also turned in a 2.04 earned run average, equalling Lefty Grove's record of having led his league four straight times in earned run averages.

"I think we will beat Koufax, too," said Jim Grant, the Twins' ace right - hander who tamed the Dodgers on 10 hits Wednesday.

"They said we couldn't beat Drysdale, but we did. We've been under-rated all year. They picked us sixth and seventh but we came in first. They said we would fold in the clutch but we didn't. We're going to beat 'em again today."

PACED BY VERSALLES

Shortstop Zoilo Versalles, who paced the Twins' 10-hit attack with a three-run homer and a run scoring single, was more cautious.

"We just play one game and we're okay," he said. "There are seven games."

Dodger manager Walter Alston didn't appear downcast over the defeat.

"We got 10 hits," he said. "I'll always settle for 10 hits." The Twins' 10 hits included homers by Don Mincher as well as Versalles and doubles by Frank Quilici, Sandy Valdespino and Grant. Except for Ron Fairly's homer, all the Dodger hits were singles.

Alston readily conceded that Versalles' three-run homer off Drysdale in the third was the most damaging blow.

"I thought that hit really killed us," he said. "After that Earl Battey's single into short right field with the bases

Boost For 'Kittens'

'Pitched Terrible' Says Mudcat

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Mudcat and his Kittens ought to do big all over the country this year—except in Los Angeles.

The Mudcat is the name given to Jim Grant, Minnesota's ace right-hander, who Wednesday pitched the Twins to an 8-2 first-game World Series victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Kittens are the other members of Grant's musical quartet which will make the bebop circuit this fall and winter.

"We're a real jive group," said Mudcat. "All the Kittens play instruments. Not the Mudcat. I sing and dance.

"I sing rhythm in blues, pop and ballads mostly. A little rock 'n' roll, too. We go over very big."

Mudcat said he got his nickname in 1956, his first year in organized baseball.

"They thought I came from Mississippi," he said. "People, it seems, connect mudcats with Mississippi. The only trouble is I've never been in Mississippi . . . I come from Florida."

A delightful extrovert, the 30-year-old Grant rarely allows modesty to stand in his way. So it was a surprise when the strong-armed right-hander appeared humble over his 10-hit performance. He was so humble, he was almost apologetic.

"I think I pitched a terrible game," he said. "I was behind the hitters all afternoon. I didn't have a change-up, and my slow curve wasn't working at all. They are among my better pitches but for some reason I can't explain they didn't come around."

'Lucky To Hit'

Versalles Shuns Hero Label

By LEW FERGUSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Zoilo Versalles, who proclaimed himself lucky to drive in four runs in Minnesota's 8 - 2 opening World Series victory Wednesday, sounded the keynote of the Twins restrained dressing room.

"We have to keep going," the wiry shortstop said. "There can be seven games. We all know that we've got to play hard."

Manager Sam Mele contained his optimism just as much as did Versalles.

"You always like to win that first one and get the momentum," Mele said. "It's like when you go into any series during the season. You want the first one badly.

There was no whooping it up. The sober faces trooping in left one wondering who won the game.

GRANT 'OFF'

Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who went the distance and scattered 10 hits said: "I didn't have my curve ball all day. I didn't throw a good one until the ninth inning.

"I had a fast ball. I think I threw real good, but I didn't have as good a fast ball as I had during the season. Most of the game, I had control trouble. I was 2-2 and 3-2 on most of the hitters. Most of the time I get

Who Flips the Big "Spitter?"

By TED SMITS
Asso-lated Press Sports Editor

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The illegal spitter pitch, long a bone of contention in baseball, came in for a thorough airing in Wednesday's first Minnesota - Los Angeles game of the World Series.

Some television viewers got the impression that Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Minnesota Twins pitcher, was spitting into his glove before he threw.

Grant admitted he was spitting on the ball but only "to rub them up."

"I don't think you should throw a slick ball. But I'm not saying I don't throw a spitter.

"Besides, I don't really think it makes any difference. I don't think any good hitter will let it bother him."

MELE ANSWERS

Manager Sam Mele, whose Twins won 8-2, snorted:

"We got the impression that Don Drysdale, the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher, was using the spitter, if they can get away with it what the hell is the difference?

"I don't know if my guy throws one or not. Ball players in the other league all say Drysdale does, and my scouts reported the same. Our batters came bac k and said he was throwing it. So what!"

Said manager Walt Alston: "I didn't notice any spitters."

Maury Wills, the Dodgers shortstop, said flatly:

"He doesn't throw any spitballs. A spit-ball pitcher has to be primarily a low ball pitcher and Grant isn't. He keeps 'em up. We know a spitball when we see one—he wasn't throwing any."

Zoilo Wins First Over Maury Wills

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Zoilo Versalles won the first round of his head-to-head contest with Maury Wills in the battle of the World Series leadoff men Wednesday. It wasn't close.

The 155 - pound Minnesota Twins shortstop knocked in four runs with a three - run homer and a single in the Twins' 8 - 2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers. He also stole a base—even when the Dodger catcher had called for a pitchout.

Win Five In Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A goal in exhibition hockey against a minor league club might not mean much to most National Hockey League players, but it could have a different effect for Claude Larose of Montreal Canadiens.

Larose scored his first goal since last February as the Canadiens defeated Houston Apollos of the Central Professional League 6-2 in an exhibition game at Sept-Iles, Que., Wednesday night.

The 23-year-old right winger sought a regular spot in the Montreal lineup two seasons ago during the Stanley Cup semi-finals against Toronto Maple Leafs when he scored the winning goal in his first playoff game.

Last season Larose got off to a flying start, scoring 21 goals in the first half of the season, but went sour and failed to score again during the remainder of the season and 13 playoff games.

DICK DUFF

Veteran Henri Richard also scored his first two-second goals of the exhibition campaign as the Canadiens won their fifth game in as many starts.

Ralph Backstrom, John Ferguson and Jacques Laperierre were the other Montreal marksmen. Norm Defelice and Jean Gauthier replied for the Apollos.

BLUES DUMP LEAFS

New York Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 at Kitchener in the third exhibition meeting of the season between the two NHL clubs. Toronto won the first two 8-1 and 4-2.

Bill Hicke, Doug Robinson, Phil Goyette, Rod Gilbert and Arnie Brown scored a goal each for New York. Tim Horton, Frank Mahovlich, Larry Jeffrey and Dave Keon were the Toronto marksmen.

In London, Ont., where Boston Bruins are whipping into shape for the upcoming NHL season, general manager Hap Emms put the club through two practice sessions Wednesday.

Disappointed after the Bruins' lacklustre performances against Oklahoma City Blazers of the CPHL and New York, Emms said his club is looking "much better . . . they're beginning to look like they're a team. But we still have a long way to go though."

Emms sent centre Bob Leiter to Hershey earlier in the day to undergo treatment for a shoulder injury suffered last season. He said Leiter will remain with the Bruins' AHL farm club until he had played himself into condition.

No Truth In Deal Says Emms

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — General manager Hap Emms of Boston Bruins Wednesday night denied he had agreed to trade four members of his National Hockey League club for two members of a Western League club.

Coach Bud Poile of San Francisco Seals said in Edmonton earlier Wednesday that a member of his club—George Swarbrick, rookie of the year in the WHL last season — had been sent to the Bruins' training camp here as the first player involved in a six - man player trade.

Poile said his club would receive four players from the Bruins in exchange for Swarbrick and a second San Francisco player if Swarbrick can make the regular Boston lineup.

Emms said Swarbrick, 24, is expected to join the Bruins here today, but "there's no such deal . . . Swarbrick is coming in here on a loan basis. If he doesn't make the Bruins, then he's going back to San Francisco."

Tiger Cats Select Nominees

HAMILTON (CP) — Defensive halfback Garney Henley and linebacker John Barrow have been selected as the Hamilton Tiger - Cat nominees for the Jeff Russel Trophy for the most valuable player in the Eastern Football Conference.

Joining Henley and Barrow on the candidates list are Joe Poltrer and Gene Gaines of Ottawa Rough Riders, Bernie Faloney and Ed Learn of Montreal Alouettes and Jim Rountree and Jackie Parker of Toronto Argonauts.

The award, which goes annually to the player picked by other players in the league to be the most useful to his team, is expected to be announced within two weeks.

Palmer, Marr Beaten

From Reuters-AP

SOUTHPORT, England (CP) Britain and the United States split the first four Ryder Cup golf matches played here today, highlighted by the surprise victory of a veteran Welsh-Scots combination over heavily - favored Arnold Palmer and Dave Marr of the United States.

Eight foursomes were being played to day at the Royal Birkdale course here. The three-day event ends Saturday.

Dave Thomas, the long-driving Welshman, and his Scots partner, George Will, defeated Palmer and Marr 6 and 5 in the second match of the day after Americans Tony Lema and Julius Boros defeated Lloyd Platts and Peter Butler of Britain one up.

The tie became 2-2 when Britain's Christy O'Connor and Peter Allis defeated Ken Venturi and Don January of the U.S. 5 and 4 and Bobby Cooper and Gene Littler of the U.S. whipped Britain's Bernard Hunt and Neil Coles 2 and 1.

Thomas and Will captured the first three holes with birdies and won five of the first seven holes.

Five-up at the turn, Thomas and Will halved the 10th and 11th holes and then went six-up with a three at the short 12th.

In the lag Ryder Cup match played at Atlanta, Ga. two years ago, the United States defeated Britain by ten matches to four. That was one of 12 American victories in the only three by Britain since the trophy was instituted in 1927.

Dodgers Down—Not Out

Bunched Hits Won It--Alston

By BOB MYERS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The atmosphere was not exactly bubbling with joy but there was no air of despair in Los Angeles Dodgers' dressing room after their 8-2 World Series loss to Minnesota Wednesday.

"We got 10 hits, they got 10 hits, but theirs came in a bunch and scored runs. Ours didn't," said a quiet - talking Dodger manager, Walter Alston.

Did he think the Twins' pitcher, Jim (Mudcat) Grant, was throwing the spit ball?

"I never noticed," Alston replied.

Outfielder Lou Johnson had his reactions to the possibility. "SO WHAT?"

"What if he was throwing it? I couldn't stop him and all we have to do is hit it," said the 32-year-old veteran.

Alston said perhaps he left his starter, Don Drysdale, in the game too long—or at least longer than he would some of his other pitchers.

"I thought Drysdale had good stuff, but his command was not so good, which is understandable since he hadn't pitched since last Thursday."

Had he "given up" when he brought in his ace relief hurler, Ron Perranoski, in the seventh with the Dodgers trailing, 8-1?

"I never give up," he said coldly.

He explained that Perranoski needed the work, since he hadn't been on the mound since last Thursday.

HANES BATTEY

"I thought the hit that really killed us, even after Zoilo Versalles' home run, was Earl Battey's single into short right field.

"We were trailing 4-1 and Battey's little hit made it 6-1."

Drysdale took the loss calmly.

"I knew as soon as we won the pennant and were ready to play Minnesota that I couldn't afford to make any mistakes or we'd get killed," he said.

"They've got a good ball club. We knew it going into the series."

Drysdale said his trick knee slopped out of gear as he fielded Grant's bunt. He felt but managed to get the throw to Jim Lefebvre covering first. But the rookie juggled the ball, Grant was safe and the dam broke for Los Angeles.

"Don't blame Jimmy," Drysdale said. "I had to throw from a bad position and I shorthopped the throw."

Bookies Now Rate Odds 'Even Money'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Minnesota power and a first-game 8-2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday moved Las Vegas bookies to rule the World Series a betting tossup.

The sports books accepting series bets says it is even money for either team to win. The Dodgers were favored 9 to 13.

However, the bookies have enough confidence in Sandy Koufaxsto make the Dodgers a 5 to 8 favorite in the second game of the best-of-seven series today at Minneapolis.

Cats, Riders Clash In Holiday Feature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The best of the West and the least in the East meet in Toronto Friday night in the first of two Canadian Football League intersectional games scheduled for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Toronto Argonauts, hopelessly mired in the Eastern Conference cellar for the fourth straight year, entertain powerful Calgary Stampeders who hope to improve their first-place standing in the Western Conference with two victories during the weekend.

They completed their two-game swing in the East Monday against Montreal Alouettes.

LIONS MEET ESKS

Grey Cup champion British Columbia Lions will be in Edmonton for a Saturday night game with the Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders meet the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Monday in other scheduled WFC games.

Hamilton Tiger - Cats host Ottawa Rough Riders in a Thanksgiving Day game which may decide first place in the EFC. The co-leaders have each taken a home victory in their two meetings this season and each will have three games remaining after Monday.

While Argos still have to lose one more game before they can be mathematically eliminated from the EFC playoffs, coach Bob Shaw and his assistants are leaving right after Friday's game on a scouting trip to universities in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

loaded. That put them out of reach."

A standing-room crowd of 47,797, a record for Metropolitan Stadium, watched quietly when Harry's homer gave the Dodgers an early lead in the second-inning and hummed when Don Mincher tied it in the same inning with a homer off Drysdale.

The big crowd went into a spin in the third when Drysdale, the towering 20 - game winner, was driven to cover. Before Howie Reed finally for the third out, 11 men had batted and the ball game was out of control.

Frank Quilici, a .208 hitter brought up from the Denver farm in July to fill an aching second-base void, stroked a double and single in the big inning. The feat tied a series record that had been shared by 12 others.

With room to breathe and enjoy the clear sunshine, Grant marched along, always as how had done all year while piling up 21 victories for the American League champions.

Grant kept Maury Wills, the Dodgers' big running threat, off the bases until he singled in the seventh. The man who stole 94 bases in the season was completely stymied because there already was a runner on second. Wills finally did drive in a run with a bunt single in the ninth.

DRIVES IN 4 RUNS

Versalles, who had vowed to run on Dodger pitching, got his chance in the sixth after he had driven in his fourth run with a single. Although the Dodgers called a pitchout, catcher John Roseboro threw was on the wrong side of second, and Zollo slid in safely.

Drysdale and Grant were locked at 1-1 when Quilici rapped a double past third baseman the left field line and off the big third. Then came a bad break for Drysdale and the Dodgers.

Grant bunted back to the box and Drysdale slipped and fell. He threw to first from a sitting position but Jim Lefebvre, covering the bag, juggled the throw for an error.

Versalles, who packs solid power in a skinny 155 - pound frame, rifled a homer into the lower left field stands, breaking the game wide open.

Valdespino doubled to right and, after Tony Oliva, the only hitless Twin, grounded out, Harmon Killebrew singled to left. Drysdale recovered and struck out Jimmy Hall but walked Mincher on a 3-1 pitch, loading the bases.

Earl Battey dunked a two-run single into short right and, when Quilici followed with his second hit, a single that scored Mincher, Drysdale was done. Only two of the runs were earned but they all counted.

With no pressure on his back, Grant rolled home easily although he gave up 10 hits.

Minnesota picked up its extra run in the sixth on Grant's double down the third base line and Versalles' single to center, both hits coming off reliever Jim Brewer.

The bunt, peck and scramble Dodgers got 4 run in the ninth on singles by Lefebvres and Wes Parker and Wills' safe bunt on the first base line.

After Drysdale's collapse, Alan Foster brought in Howie Reed, Brewer and finally Ron Perranoski. But the damage had been done.

Versalles

ahead of the hitters."

Versalles, shunning the hero's label when pressed by reporters, said:

"I was pretty lucky to hit the home run, and I was lucky to get the other base hit."

PRAISES PLAYERS

Mele praised Versalles, Grant and second - baseman Frank Quilici.

"That Zoilo stroked one when we had to have it," Mele said of Versalles' three-run homer in the six - run third inning. "Frank made the great plays for us all year."

"Quilici is all over the place. He doesn't strike out much, and he's had some timely hits for us."

Versalles thought he hit it fast ball.. while Don Mincher said his home run came on a breaking pitch.

Mele said he had Jim Merritt and Al Worthington ready in the Twins' bullpen in case Grant got in serious trouble late in the game.

"But, really," Mele said, "it wasn't that concerned."

Cassius Says He's Boss

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) Cassius Clay says he has fired Bundini Brown—merry-faced straight man for Clay's comedy routines and a central figure in the heavyweight champion's entourage.

Clay also says he has considered getting rid of his group of sponsoring millionaires in Louisville when their contract expires in October, 1966.

"I'm the boss and I can fire anybody I want to—my trainer, my wife, anybody," Clay said Wednesday.

The champion already has filed a divorce suit against his wife Sonji on the grounds that she refuses to follow the customs of the Black Muslim sect to which he belongs.

Clay, training here for his Nov. 22 title defense against Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas, said he and Brown fell out a couple of weeks ago.

As for the Louisville group, Clay said: " . . . A man can get tired of giving half his money to managers. People come to see me, not to see trainers or managers."

TURNER RETURNS

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Turner is returning to New York Yankees as pitching coach. He held the job from 1949 through 1959, during which the Yankees won nine American League pennants.

Officials in charge of winter swimming classes being held at the Tops Motor Hotel are, left to right: Alderman Don G. Williams, chairman, Belleville Recreation Committee; Mr. Bob Carlton, president, Quinte Kiwanis Club; Mr. Murray Workman, assistant recreation director; and Mr. Charles Wener, general manager, Tops Motor Hotel.

Quinte Kiwanis, 'Rec' Body Sponsor Swimming Classes

The Quinte Kiwanis Club, in co-operation with the Belleville Recreation Committee, recently opened winter swimming classes at the Tops Motor Hotel swimming pool. Well over 200 children are registered for the 25 lesson courses for beginners, junior, intermediate and senior Red Cross classifications. Courses are also being run in the Royal Life Saving Society's elementary, intermediate, bronze medal and award of merit classes.

This is a co-operative venture between a Service Club and Municipal agency, producing a worthy winter program for all those who registered. The Quinte Kiwanis Club, apart from its financial assistance, is actively engaged in the operation of the program, carrying out chores such as ushering people to their respective classes, keeping attendance records and doing any job of work that is necessary to facilitate the smooth operation of this program.

Murray Workman, a well known swim instructor in the Bay of Quinte area, is chief instructor, has three well qualified instructors working with him, Gerry Muldoon, George Mason and Jane Mcfarlane.

The Tops Motor Hotel, and Mr. C. Wener, have co-operated in making available the swimming pool, without which there would be no winter swim classes.

Sharp Thinks Liberal Record Recognized

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)— The accomplishments of the Liberal party are finally being recognized, says Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Mr. Sharp told a Durham riding nomination meeting Wednesday night that a recent public opinion poll shows Liberal popularity has risen to 48 per cent of the popular vote to the Conservative's 26 per cent.

Mr. Sharp said this is because Liberal accomplishments are being recognized and because the public is becoming more disenchanted with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and his party.

Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign of "personal attack and distortion" is a poor substitute for policy, said Mr. Sharp.

Many Cultures on Canadian Soil Can Do Nothing But Enrich Country Says Lesage

By GERARD ALARIE

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec had not "suggested" that Canada remove the maintenance of cultures other than French or English but had merely been "thinking out loud."

"I thought out loud," he said, "so that I would not be given the objection which always comes up when we ask that the rights of the French Canadian minorities in the West be respected."

"If I had not thought out loud I would have been given this objection: Yes, but there are also other minorities, often more numerous than the French-Canadian minority."

LESAGE HAPPY

In Winnipeg, Mr. Lesage said he was happy with the support for bilingualism which he received from the Ukrainian Committee of Canada.

The executive said it agreed that French should be allowed as a teaching language at any place in Canada where there is a sufficiently large French-speaking population.

Commenting on this support, the Quebec premier said: "It's more than I had hoped to get out of my tour."

Claude Morin, Quebec's deputy minister of federal-provincial affairs who has made the tour with Mr. Lesage, was asked Thursday in Toronto whether the premier's attitude towards multiculturalism — as reflected in his speech—had not changed since Winnipeg.

"Yes," Mr. Morin replied, "we are putting more emphasis on Canada's multicultural character."

China First Country To Develop Exams

By JACK HUTTON

If you're looking for one more good reason to be mad at the Chinese mainland, you've got one in your own classroom.

China is the country that developed examinations 3,000 or 4,000 years ago.

That is only one fact that leaps out of the pages of one of the most intriguing paper back books to hit the market this fall: Exams: Where Next? by J. Lloyd Brereton, a retired Cambridge University professor now living in Victoria, B.C.

His 145-page book is the result of a tour of nine countries which Mr. Brereton made after retiring from Cambridge. It took him three years to complete his research.

It's a book aimed at teachers and administrators responsible for examinations or testing. But I see no reason why students shouldn't find as much interest in finding out how exams are set.

After all, they write them.

It's a teasing book. Mr. Brereton makes observations about things he saw in England, Sweden, West Germany, Portugal, Senegal, Canada, the U.S.A., East Germany and Czechoslovakia, then leaps to another topic.

I thought until I read this book that I knew something about examinations and their history. It was a shock to find out that I knew practically nothing at all.

For example, look at the role played by China.

"It would not be a fantastic exaggeration," says Mr. Brereton, "to assert that history of the Chinese empire is the history of her examination system."

"I have been amazed to discover that the kind of exams I have been administering all my life were almost the basis of government in China. It is interesting to speculate about the connections between Chinese exams and those in Europe."

LONG TIME AGO

The first external examinations took place at Cambridge University in the 18th Century. And Mr. Brereton, although he can't document his suspicions, wonders whether the model was China.

"The connection between the development of civil service exams in Britain a century later and those in China is undoubted," he says, "and has been well worked out."

"I find the whole long history of Chinese examinations most exciting, and am hoping to be able to collaborate with some Chinese scholar in elucidating it further . . ."

Most of Mr. Brereton's research in Canada seems to be based upon the practices of British Columbia (his wife used to teach in Victoria), but his observations on this country apply anywhere.

He worries about the growing tendency to use more objective-style questions (the true or false, sentence completion type), that don't require students to organize their thoughts on paper.

And he feels that examinations must remain under the control and direction of the teaching profession. Which sets this paragraph early in the book:

"I was shocked to find the extent to which the teaching profession (of Canada) allows them (the exams) to remain in the unfettered hands of officials knowing as I did the extent to which teachers control examinations in England."

ONLY MADE START

Strange as it may sound in 1965, Mr. Brereton is the first scholar to attempt a comprehensive review of examination procedures from a world viewpoint. But he feels he has only made a start that others must develop.

According to Mr. Brereton (if I understand him correctly) examinations will play an even greater role in the latter part of this century. They must do more than measure, they should also provide incentive to the student to carry on.

Who should be responsible for the world-wide research and comparison of examination techniques? Mr. Brereton suggests a permanent research institute attached to a university. Or, he says, UNESCO could play a great part.

It's an historic book—and we should be grateful to Brereton for writing it. If you're interested, the publisher is Pacific Northwest Humanist Publications, Victoria, B.C.

RECORD MESSAGE

China, a country some still consider backward, was the first to develop examinations Jack Hutton reports.

Boy Rescued From Cave, Not Injured

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — A sleepy, hungry 13-year-old boy was tugged to safety Wednesday from a foot-wide crevice which had imprisoned him for 26 hours in a cave that once hid fugitive Negro slaves.

The 110 - pound boy, Morris Bastzold, was taken immediately to hospital for the first food and rest since Tuesday when he crawled into a narrow, slanting passageway and got his body wedged between solid sandstone rocks.

Dr. A. J. Estrom, told reporters following an examination in hospital that the boy's injuries were minor.

The boy had a bruise on the head, but otherwise appeared to be in good physical condition.

The Red Cross Homemaker Service in Belleville, which takes the largest part of the society's expenditures, cares for children, senior citizens and welfare cases through the women homemakers and the supervisor. A great part of the cost for these services is received from those people helped by the service.

An elderly couple living alone were confined to bed through illness. A call to a neighbor brought a Homemaker who prepared meals, looked after fires and gave simple bed side care for 10 days until they were better.

In another local case, a mother of four small children was taken to hospital. The father, after trying desperately to obtain a reasonable and satisfactory housekeeper without success, eventually heard of the Red Cross Homemaker Service. With the services of a homemaker, he was able to solve his problem for five weeks. The mother was then able to resume her household duties.

In 1945 the Canadian Red Cross introduced its Water Safety Service to Canadians in an effort to reduce the annual toll of deaths by drowning and to promote swimming as a healthful form of recreation.

Only 100 persons enrolled then in ten water safety classes. But today, the Water Safety Service of the Canadian Red Cross has over 400,000 participants every year. Of this number, some 165,000 qualify for certificates at the various levels of pupil training, and about 4,000 qualify as Water Safety Instructors.

KEEP TOLL DOWN

When the Red Cross Water Safety Service began, the drowning toll in Canada was just over 1,000 a year. Our population has almost doubled since that time, and a far greater percentage of Canadians are enjoying aquatic activities. But the drowning toll has not gone up. Members of Red Cross Water Safety Service is paying off with lives saved.

In nearly 600 Canadian communities, including Belleville, the Red Cross Sickroom Loan Service provides sickroom equipment free of charge to patients in the home. The service provides persons with hospital beds, wheel chairs, walkers and other sickroom equipment. The equipment is loaned on request, at no charge, to any person needing it within the limits of the supply. A total of 128 persons were helped in 1964 through this one service alone.

The Red Cross serves in many other areas.

ASSIST VETERANS

There are thousands of Canadian war veterans in military hospitals across the nation. Many of them are expected to remain there for the rest of their lives. The Red Cross provides valuable services to these veterans, services which help alleviate the boredom of continual hospital confinement.

Services provided to the hospitalized veterans are many and varied, such as the arts and crafts program. Red Cross Lodges, the film service and visitors' services. The Red Cross Corps devotes much of its time to serving the needs of veterans by driving patients to football and hockey games, concerts and other places of entertainment, and by bringing entertainers into the hospitals to serve those patients who are confined to bed.

The Belleville Branch of the Red Cross also provides free training in Home Nursing for interested women. Members of the 1964 class were presented with certificates and badges in home nursing care.

The Red Cross also helps to train the good citizens of tomorrow, through the Canadian Junior Red Cross, young Canadians are encouraged to help needy children at home and abroad. You can share in this investment, for a better tomorrow through your gift to the United Appeal.

Wagon's work is a very important part of Red Cross activities. In Belleville, women volunteer workers knitted 103 pairs of socks, 109 children's sweaters with socks and 20 pairs of mitts. They also made 21 tropical dresses, boys' shirts, overall, layettes, 12 quilts and many other articles of clothing some of which were sent to the Toronto Red Cross for relief and disaster services anywhere in Canada or in the world where it is needed.

Because the Red Cross is a national and international organization, branches are expected to send to their Provincial Division a fair portion of the money they receive, to support the national and international work of the Red Cross. In 1964, the Belleville Red Cross sent away $2,000 for this purpose out of the $11,901 received from the United Appeal.

Whenever you see the smartly uniformed of the Canadian Red Cross, look for the red lash on the cap The wearer is a dedicated volunteer in the Canadian Red Cross Corps. This corps is made up of women from all walks of life.

To join the Red Cross Corps, you have to be between the ages of 18 and 45, and you must take training in first aid, home nursing, parade drill, elementary motor mechanics, wheelchair and stretcher handling, driving and functions allied with Civil Defence. Not only that, but women who successfully complete their training have to buy their own uniforms.

Normal duties of the Corps consist of helping hospitalized veterans, shut-ins, the blind, the handicapped and many others.

Nearly 700 women belong to the Canadian Red Cross Corps in 23 communities across Canada.

The Canadian Red Cross truly helps to make our community, and every community in Canada, a better place in which to live. It performs the humanitarian services that you yourself would perform if you had the time and the opportunity. You too can serve the community by through your gesture of gift to the Belleville United Appeal Campaign.

CBC Strike Ended by Major Pledge of Work

TORONTO (CP)—CBC radio and television stages, darkened since Oct. 1 by a union embargo on performances and rehearsals, will light up again today following a major offer Wednesday by the corporation. The CBC proposed increased work opportunities for Canadian talent in the 1965-66 season, thereby meeting a demand by the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists and ending for the moment a threatened country-wide strike.

The stage now has been set for resumption of negotiations Thursday — between the two parties, although a continuing strike vote across the country still looms ofstage.

Henry Comor, ACTRA president, said more than 10 per cent of ACTRA members had mailed their ballots by Tuesday. He said he expected there will be an authorization."

The threat of a strike vote is "until a useful hour," Mr. Comor said, although he said he does not wish to use it when "more pressing issues" arise.

The strike threat was used to back union demands for all programs produced by the CBC to belong to the union, purchase a $30 work permit from the union for their scripts cleared by ACTRA.

The CBC's offer was made by Tommy Hunter (13) MOVIE: "Tarzan's Fight For Life" (1958) with Jock Mahoney, Woody Strode

Pillars of Security

Red Cross Society

Tenth of a series of articles on the 16 participating agencies in the United Appeal, explaining the function of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal campaign.

When people think of the Canadian Red Cross Society the first thought that comes to mind is usually the society's life-saving blood service.

Every forty-nine-and-one-half seconds someone in Canada is given a free blood transfusion. To meet the demands of Canadian hospitals, the Red Cross must collect over 800,000 bottles of blood this year. That's a big order.

In turn, more than 300,000 patients will receive free transfusions of whole blood and blood products. This service is unique among similar services.

At present, Red Cross research laboratories are concerned with certain blood plasma proteins, their isolation and refinement. The purpose of this research is to purify these plasma proteins so that they may be studied thoroughly by clinical investigators.

PLASTIC BAGS

New methods of operation are constantly being adopted with a view toward a more economical operation of the blood transfusion service and in its general improvement. The recent introduction of plastic bags to replace bottles is just one example.

The Red Cross Blood Donor Service is planning a blood bank service, worthy in itself of support from you through the United Appeal Campaign, but it is just one of many services your Red Cross performs for you.

Like a true friend in time of need, Red Cross responds to emergencies with deeds that help to alleviate the suffering of man. Comforting words in time of stress are always helpful but what counts even more are deeds which contribute to definite action; deeds which will help him on his feet again; deeds which will convince him that people care enough about his plight to back up their comforting words with substance.

DISASTER VICTIMS

The Red Cross provides emergency food, shelter and clothing for victims who have suffered loss in a disaster.

The family that lost everything it owned in a fire knows the sympathetic voice of the Red Cross can be heard through kapok blankets and quilts that will keep the victim warm. It is heard through the fresh new clothing that he will wear for protection, and it is heard through vital food that will give him nourishment. It is voice that speaks with definite deeds, and so is a welcome friend indeed.

During 1964, the Belleville Red Cross assisted 24 families and some individuals with emergency aid, supplying food, drugs, clothing, temporary shelter, medical and dental assistance as well as aiding another 34 families with new clothing and bedding after fire disasters.

CBC Strike Ended by Major Pledge of Work

TORONTO (CP)—CBC radio and television stages, darkened since Oct. 1 by a union embargo on performances and rehearsals, will light up again today following a major offer Tuesday by the corporation.

The CBC proposed increased work opportunities for Canadian talent in the fall season, thereby meeting a demand by the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists and ending for the moment a threatened country-wide strike.

The stage now has been set for resumption of negotiations —possibly Tuesday — between the two parties, although a continuing strike vote across the country still looms offstage.

Henry Comor, ACTRA president, said more than 80 per cent of ACTRA members had mailed their ballots by Tuesday. He said he expected there will be an authorization."

The threat of a strike vote "is still a valid one," he said. Mr. Comor said, although he said he does not wish to use it in the present circumstances.

The strike threat was used to back union demands for all broadcasting work to be done by CBC to belong to the union, purchase a $30 work permit from the union and meet other criteria decreed by ACTRA.

The CBC's offer was made in a statement by Mr. Comor by Guy Coderre, CBC vice-president of administration.

At a news conference Mr. Comor said that ACTRA would restore that agreements for union participation in fees be reached with the CBC, which were terminated Oct. 1.

Mr. Comor also said ACTRA will cancel its ruling that member performers not work in programs by non - union writers "pending a new agreement with CBC."

NOW SHOWING

Loren, Mastroianna and De Sica Teamed in Romantic Drama.

Joseph E. Levine's new romantic drama, "Marriage — Italian Style," starring at the Park Theatre until Saturday, in color and wide-screen, stars two of the most popular motion picture personalities today: Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni.

The Embassy Pictures release is based upon one of Italy's most celebrated stage plays, "Filomena Marturano," and was directed by Vittorio De Sica and produced by Carlo Ponti, with Joseph E. Levine as executive producer.

Filmed on location in Naples and Rome, "Marriage—Italian Style" vividly depicts the tender story of a girl forced into the streets by the war, and the man who lures her into his home and his heart.

Miss Loren as Filomena, considers her role the most demanding and rewarding I've ever attempted. It requires love, jealousy, pathos, humor and drama. It has more depth of feeling than anything I've ever attempted."

Mastroianni, a painstaking actor who is always very serious about his work, found his role as Miss Loren's lover to be a very challenging and rewarding one, and one which gave him an opportunity to display his versatility as a performer.

"Marriage — Italian Style" marks the second time that the two Italian stars have been cast together. Their first picture, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," also a Levine production, has been a resounding success wherever it has played.

Select short subjects complete the bill. Complete shows tonight, Friday and Saturday evenings, 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Special children's matinee Saturday. See ad on this page.

Martin Thinks Auto Pact to Improve Trade

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Canada-United States auto trade agreement will provide the basis for a "continuous improvement" in Canada's auto industry, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Wednesday night.

He told a nomination meeting at nearby Tecumseh which chose him again as Liberal candidate in Essex East for the Nov. 8 federal election that the agreement will be worth almost $200,000,000 to Canada.

Mr. Martin said bureau of statistics figures show that Canada's export of automobiles and auto parts had reached $226,000,000 in 1964-65.

"You may can be one-sided," he said, "but it certainly gives Canada a tremendous advantage. It will increase our exports of $266,000,000 each year for the three years of the pact."

Mr. Martin said that the agreement "represents one of the great achievements of the Liberal government."

Corporation Profits Before Taxes Down Slightly at Mid-Year

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporation profits before taxes were slightly at mid-year after seasonal fluctuations are ironed out of the actual figures, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

But other indicators of the pace of the economy—department store sales and cheque cashings — showed substantial gains last year.

The bureau reported that corporation profits before taxes amounted to $1,318,000,000 in April, May and June this year, compared with $1,003,000,000 in January, February and March, and with $1,238,000,000 in the second quarter of last year.

But these quarterly figures, when adjusted for seasonable fluctuations to give a more accurate indication of real trends, showed a slight decline.

The bureau said the second-quarter 1955 total for all industries on the adjusted basis was $1,227,000,000, down from $1,235,000,000 in the first quarter.

PROFITS HIGHER

Profits in manufacturing industries were higher at $595,000,000 than $582,000,000 in the first quarter of this year on the seasonally adjusted basis. Profits in mining industries, were up 10 per cent at $201,000,000 from $183,600,000 in the first quarter.

Unadjusted total for the first six months of 1965 was $2,545,000,000 compared to $2,179,000,000 in the same period in 1964. Profits in all the other industries, including agriculture, forestry, fishing and construction, were down 2.7 per cent at $201,000,000 from $315,000,000.

The total value of cheques cashed through clearing houses in July was $10,202,430,000, a 6.2 per cent gain over the $9,602,000,000 total last year, the aggregate for the first seven months of this year was $72,978,745,000, an increase of more than 15 per cent.

Cheque-cashings are regarded as a current indicator of the rate of activity in the business world.

During July, the increases shown in the five economic areas were: Atlantic provinces, 4.9 per cent; Quebec, 1.6 per cent; Ontario, 9.2 per cent; Prairie provinces, 5.0 per cent; and British Columbia, 9.4 per cent.

Department store sales in the week ended Sept. 25 were up 9.4 per cent from the corresponding week last year, October department stores reported the only decline—1.2 per cent. Increases were: Atlantic provinces, 3.1 per cent; Ontario, 7.7 per cent; Manitoba, 9.2 per cent; Saskatchewan, 25.2 per cent; Alberta, 15.3 per cent; and British Columbia, 18.7 per cent.

Duties include allocation of tenancies in accordance with prescribed procedures, collection of rents, routine maintenance inspections and arrangements for necessary repairs to be carried out.

OTTAWA (CP) — After five weeks of travelling through the North seeking the views of residents, the advisory commission on development of government in the Northwest Territories is preparing to seek the opinions of other Canadians.

Headed by A. W. R. (Fred) Carrothers, dean of law at the University of Western Ontario, the commission will hold public hearings in Ottawa starting in the third week of November.

It will hear briefs and argue legal points, says commissioner Parker, mayor of Yellowknife and former elected member of the Northwest Territories Council.

Tweed

1. Should the territories be divided into two districts as proposed by the federal government?

2. Where should the capital or capitals be? Under the Northwest Territories Act, Ottawa now is the capital.

3. Should the powers of the territorial council be enlarged to bring them more or less in line with those of a province? The federal government now has control of northern mineral resources and administers education and other matters.

4. Should the territorial commissioner, now a civil servant, continue to be chosen by Ottawa or should he be elected by the people at large or by the council? Should the commissioner's role evolve towards that of a provincial governor or lieutenant-governor?

5. Should the federal government continue to name persons to the territorial council or should the council be made up of only elected members? The council now consists of five appointed and four elected members.

In their questions, the commissioners also asked northerners what part private policies should be introduced in the North. They also wondered if they understood enough about ensure that Indians and Eskimos have a voice in territorial government.

INCLUDE EAST

The northern hearings revealed no clear voice on division. Many persons did say that the Eastern Arctic should be represented on the council before any decision was taken.

Fort Smith, Yellowknife and Hay River appear as leading candidates for the capital. The territorial council in 1961 picked Fort Smith as the Mackenzie capital in the North and divided its Chamber of Commerce said in brief it would be a breach of faith and a death blow to the village if that decision were nullified.

Both East and West were in full agreement that the territorial seat of government should be moved into the North from Eastern residents said it didn't matter where as long as it was done. In the West, the feeling was generally that it should be in the Mackenzie—the Eastern Arctic was almost as far removed as was Ottawa.

The commission also has hired experts to produce economic and other reports briefing on the North to assist it in its studies.

By next summer it hopes to report its findings to the minister of northern affairs.

Other members of the commission are Jean Beetz, Montreal law professor, and Gordon Parker, mayor of Yellowknife and former elected member of the Northwest Territories Council.

Lesage Fires Bilingual Guns At Students

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage fired all his bilingual guns at 350 University of Toronto students Wednesday night, and they applauded him for it.

He got his topmost standing ovation in the university's jampacked Hart House debating hall when he declared, his face flushed with emotion:

"We are as much a founding group of Canada as the English Canadians."

They applauded again when he vigorously rejected the idea that, perhaps, Quebec should present the English majority with a written list of demands in the French - speaking province in search of equality under the Canadian constitution.

"You will never have unity on this basis because you will never have equality," he said.

There was almost no heckling, although the students were participating in an organized debate on foreign grounds. It was his first debate at a university. students since starting out three weeks ago on a speaking tour that took him to the western provinces. He participated today in a newspaper seminar with Ontario and Quebec publishers and editors before returning home in the evening.

In his main speech, Mr. Lesage bluntly asked: "Can someone here tell me what English - Canada wants?" "We don't know," said one heckler.

To applause, Mr. Lesage declared: "Is it a unitarian state they want where there is one language, one culture Is English-Canada ready to take the risk of imposing that on one of the founding groups of Canada?"

The words "Canadian Unity" are the two most "empty words I know," the premier said. "They are meaningless words. You cannot have unity without equality of opportunity. We can reach unity through diversity and we can have a strong Canada because of our diversity."

Bilingualism and multiculturalism are not a reason for disunity but "for enrichment and for strength."

BUY ICE-MAKING PLANT

At a recent meeting of the Madoc Recreation Committee it was unanimously agreed to retain Mr. Douglas Clarke of Toronto to purchase a used ice-making plant for the Madoc arena.

This plant will have a capacity of 50 horsepower which will make ice at an inside arena temperature of 60 degrees. It is large enough for the present ice surface and for a two-pad curling rink.

Mr. Clarke will be coming to Madoc early in October to plan the layout of the arena and the location of the engine room and to make suggestions as to the most economical way of installing drainage and piping. It is expected that the plant will be installed and ready for operation early in November.

The ice making equipment is fully paid for but an additional $8,000 has to be raised before the committee is out of the red. This is made up as follows: $2,000 for an engine room; $1,000 for tiling, $1,000 for installation and $4,000 for operating capital for 1965-66 season. The committee hopes that local organization and individuals will contribute generously donations to cover all these costs.

No Bankruptcy Probe Report Says Pearson

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday there is no bankruptcy investigation report to the federal government such as Progressive Conservative Party Leader Diefenbaker has demanded be made public.

"There is no such report and I would like anyone to disprove that," he told a press conference here when a questioned about Mr. Diefenbaker's statements in Hamilton Tuesday.

In demanding disclosure of a justice department report, Mr. Diefenbaker said that "if it had been revealed there would have been less possibility of such actions being committed."

The Conservative leader was referring to a series of gangland slayings and possible fraud inquiry which has revealed earlier this week in Quebec.

Mr. Pearson said he had been in touch with Ottawa after "hearing" a news report to the effect that if a report of the "commissioner" of bankruptcy had been revealed "it might have prevented murders."

'NO SUCH REPORT'

"There is no such report in existence," he repeated. He said he assumed the reference to commissioner meant the federal superintendent of bankruptcy.

Was there no report from any federal agency? he was asked.

"There is no report from the superintendent who is the only man from whom a report would come," he replied.

He said he does not mean by that there was no report made to the superintendent in the "Sefkind" bankruptcy. But reports from trustees "are never made public."

ASKED ABOUT SEFKINDS

Mr. Diefenbaker had been asked in Hamilton if he had mentioned referred to the bankruptcy of Max and Adolph Sefkind who sold themselves on credit to two federal cabinet ministers.

Mr. Pearson said he assumes the federal superintendent has received a report from the trustee in the bankruptcy on the Sefkind bankruptcy.

"I didn't ask him about that," he added.

Mr. Pearson was asked whether he is considering a request a royal commission to investigate organized crime as suggested by the Progressive Conservative leader.

He replied that at the last federal - provincial conference he had personally placed on the agenda an item for a discussion of this question. The conference had taken steps "to see how this matter could be followed up."

The Commons, published records of the last session of Parliament show that Mr. Diefenbaker repeatedly asked for tabling of the reports of the trustees in the Sefkind bankruptcy and to the federal superintendent of bankruptcy.

Then Justice Minister Favreau told the Commons Feb. 24 (National Day) that the superintendent of bankruptcies did receive the reports on the bankruptcies of companies which had to be sent to him in his official capacity."

E. R. Gathercan, Conservative MP for the Yukon, asked him on that date to table the report from the trustee to the superintendent.

Mr. Favreau replied on March 26: "Under section 6 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act the only persons entitled to inspect or obtain copies of the books documents in the hands of the trustee are not the superintendent, the bankrupt or any creditor or their agents,' and there is nothing in the act providing for the disclosure of such information to the hands of the superintendent."

'NOT PROPER'

"I therefore have to advise that in my opinion it would not be proper to make public such statements or information."

T. C. Douglas, New Democrat Party leader, said a copy of the report was in the hands of some parliamentary reporters.

Mr. Favreau said he was not aware of this and added:

"I do not believe it gives me the right to make the document public myself."

Mr. Favreau also said any investigation of the Sefkind bankruptcies was a matter for the Quebec authorities.

Diefenbaker Has Fine Day At Kitchener

By RICHARD JACKSON

KITCHENER — It was a very special audience, as it got a very special speech—no crime in politics, no scandal in high places. They were mainly students, pensioners and home owners in this twin-cities of Kitchener-Waterloo where 80.2 percent of families own their own homes. Six hundred of them turned out to hear him, and under podium posted a prophetic good-looking young blonde with sign reading: "Let Carol Enough to Come." So Conservative leader John Diefenbaker gave them a policy speech on tax concessions for home-owners, increased aid for education and students, and better pensions for the retired.

There was little new in the three policy statements. As ready in other places and other

Wishart Considers Possibility Of Further Windfall Charges

TORONTO (CP)—A husband-and-wife prospecting team that started in the mining business on their honeymoon 42 years ago face criminal charges in the fantastic Windfall Affair. Others may be charged.

Both Viola and George MacMillan, two of the most respected names in Canadian mining, were charged Thursday on two counts each of following revelations in the royal commission report on Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd.

Mr. MacMillan is Windfall's president and his wife, a five-footer who likes to be treated as an equal by mining executives and sourdough prospectors alike, is Windfall's promoter.

Arthur Wishart, Ontario attorney-general, says his department is studying whether other charges may be justified as a result of the report.

The MacMillans will be served with warrants when they return to Toronto from Nevada next Friday, Mr. Wishart said.

The commission report, prepared by Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal following more than 200 three months of public hearings, said the MacMillans benefited from telling the truth and issued misleading statements while shares of Windfall graded on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July, 1964.

The Windfall skyrocket had been a booster rumors that the company had encountered copper in a drill core taken from the company's property.

Mr. Justice Kelly said Mr. MacMillan must have been aware that the core was valueless and the knowledge was "no doubt, shared by his wife."

Viola Mae MacMillan was given credit for making a false statement regarding what was in the drill core, the commission said.

The report also lashed out at John Campbell, resigned director of the Ontario Securities Commission and a friend of the MacMillans, who reaped a $29,000 trading profit in Windfall while he was still with the OSC.

Mr. Justice Kelly labelled Mr. Campbell's behavior as the most "shocking incident" heard by the royal commission.

Mr. Campbell, who was suspended by Mr. Wishart after his involvement with Windfall was discovered, successfully interfered with attempts to have Windfall shares suspended from trading by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Mr. Campbell showed "complete misconception of the duties incumbent upon him as director," the report said.

Of the Toronto Stock Exchange, the report said some stock brokers view it as a private gaming club for their personal benefit and if the exchange can't govern itself, some outside body will have to do so.

The report also recommended that primary distribution—the selling of treasury shares to the public through the facilities of the exchange—be removed from the exchange.

It said the Ontario Securities Commission should be strengthened and its role spelled out more clearly by new legislation.

Mr. Justice Kelly endorsed a recommendation of the Ontario attorney - general's committee for legislation that the OSC be removed from the attorney - general's department and set up as an independent agency.

President's Operation Successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons removed President Johnson's gall bladder today in a two-hour 15-minute operation. The surgery was pronounced "a complete success."

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers said Johnson entered the operating room at 7 a.m. and the surgery was completed at 9:15.

He said the gall bladder was removed and found to contain a stone. Another stone was found in the ureter and also was removed.

Moyers's statement that a stone was also located in the ureter means a kidney stone also was found in addition to a gallstone. The ureter is a tube leading from the kidney for the passage of urine to the outside of the body.

No mention of the possibility of a biopsy has been made in previous discussions of the president's current illness. But the president has a history of kidney stones, having had two of them removed over the years—one by surgery and another one by manipulation at a different time.

DOCTOR RELIEVED

While both kidney stones and gall stones are formed from materials precipitated out of body fluids, doctors say they are dissimilar they don't consider the two kinds of stones related.

First word that the surgery had actually been carried out came in a bulletin from Joseph Laitin, assistant press secretary, who made his announcement at 7:32 a.m.

A team of physicians, several of them recruited from the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., had planned all along to start the one- or two-hour surgery at 7:30 a.m.

Johnson, described as relaxed and in good spirits in advance of the operation, checked into the hospital shortly before midnight Thursday night with his wife, Lady Bird, on his arm.

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers announced the approximate 7:30 a.m. time for surgery Thursday night, but said it "could be earlier, it could be later."

SUFFERS PAINS

A month ago, Johnson suffered stomach pains that his medical experts to conclude—after extensive tests—that he had "a poorly functioning gall

See Clash On NATO Future

NEW YORK (CP) — A clash between United States and French ideas on the future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was expected today during the final day of the NATO parliamentarians' conference.

Up for debate before the pleni-ary session of the week-long conference is a French-prepared report critical of the U.S. dominated role of the alliance.

The political committee has refused to approve the report, submitted by rapporteur M. Boscher, head of the French delegation, but said it would allow it to go before the plenary session in order to permit "freedom of expression and debate."

The report was the last major item of business before the 175 delegates from the 15 NATO nations which Thursday dealt with a number of committee reports, including the military committee report submitted by Canadian David Groos, Member of Parliament, for Victoria.

ROBERT TEMPLE is greeted by South Hastings Liberals after they endorsed his re-election bid last night at Belleville Collegiate. He was the only candidate nominated.

Hastings S. Liberals Choose Robert (Bob) Temple, Sitting Member, as Their Candidate

By HARRY NULHALL

Hastings South Liberals last night went to battle positions in the November 8 federal campaign and elected as leader their victor in the 1963 election.

Robert Temple, constituency MP in the last parliament, once more will lead incumbent Liberals against the Conservative bid for office in the riding.

And, once again, South Hastings electorate will choose between two familiar political foes.

The Belleville, Liberal lawyer — nominated to seek re-election on the eve of his 39th birthday — will contest the riding against Belleville Conservative dairyman Lee Grills.

The political bonanza between both contestants now stands at a draw, Mr. Grills, elected MP in 1957 and 1960 first clashed with Mr. Temple in 1962 — and won. In 1963, Mr. Temple turned the tables and took the riding by 500 ballots, with an assist from the service vote.

Although held in the same arena — Belleville Collegiate — both Old Party conventions were studies in political upmanship.

Two weeks ago the Conservatives rang in George Hees' trade minister in the Diefenbaker administration now seeking a comeback in neighboring Northumberland.

Last night the Liberals parried the thrust by introducing Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp as keynote speaker.

The Conservative nomination in the two weeks ago was a succession of speakers denounce the kind of representation South Hastings was receiving from the Liberal MP.

In his acceptance speech last night Mr. Temple made only oblique reference to Conservative headaches.

Of the coming weeks he said: "I will be talking to the people of South Hastings — not to our opponents. People want to know what we offer — not what we think of our opponents."

"In the weeks ahead I'll be speaking throughout South Hastings on the various issues that affect our communities — and I assure you I'll have much to say."

(Since his election Mr. Temple has been a government representative on the Commons committee of defence and veterans' affairs, co-chairman of its justice committee and headed Canada's 1964 political delegation to NATO. His defence appointment has taken him abroad on a number of occasions).

However, if Mr. Temple declined comment on opposition broadsides, several other speakers answered them — headed by Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Drawing laughter from the convention floor, Mr. Sharp said he heard Mr. Temple had been referred to as "(Defence Minister) Mr. Hellyer Junior".

"Let me tell you if he had been called Minister Hellyer Junior I would have been very proud to have been associated with him," he added.

Mr. Sharp said he had such respect for Mr. Hellyer "anyone who can be put in the same class with him is a man to watch."

Mr. Temple, he added "serves his constituency and his country more than he thinks about anything in the headlines."

Former mayor A. McLean Haig who nominated Mr. Temple also took on an avowed snap at criticism levelled during the Conservative convention by another ex-mayor, Gerald Hyde.

(Mr. Hyde claimed Mr.

Quebec, Ontario Partners

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Newspaper editors from Ontario and Quebec and the premiers of the two provinces generally agreed Thursday that awareness and co - operation between Quebec and Ontario constitute Canada's most solid interprovincial relationship.

Both Premier Jean Lesage, just back from a Western Canada speaking tour, and Premier John Robarts were at a seminar on Quebec-Ontario political relations attended by about 90 editors from Central Canada's most influential newspapers.

Mr. Lesage concurred with a statement by George Bain, associate editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, to the effect that there is no lack of desire among the people of Quebec and Ontario to learn more of each other, even though their current knowledge may be insufficient.

"I think that Mr. Bain has described the situation in an exact manner," the Quebec premier said. But he told the editors that his western visit showed Ontario's attitude towards Quebec does not extend into the four western provinces.

Mr. Lesage also agreed with a statement of Raymond Heard, editor-in-chief of Le Soleil d'Edmonton of Quebec, that relations between Ontario and Quebec at federal-provincial conferences have been closer than the relations of either with any other province.

CAN SOLVE DIFFERENCES

Usually Ontario and Quebec have been able to reconcile their differences, Mr. Lesage said, and one would think they would serve as an example to other provinces. But he had found in the West this was not so.

With a grin and a forced tone of incredulity, looking directly

Quebec Police Find Body Of Fourth Gangland Victim

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—A squad of provincial police found a fourth body Thursday in their continuing search for victims of an underworld purge.

The body, covered in quicklime, was in a thickly wooded area near the village of Hatley Sud, Que., 30 miles northeast of Sherbrooke.

The justice department in Quebec City identified the body as that of Paul Dandenault, 28, owner of a Sherbrooke snack bar. Justice Minister Claude Wagner said Thursday night QPP investigators are certain that Chandonnet was killed Sept. 27, two days after he disappeared from his home.

Mr. Wagner said Chandonnet played an active role in a prison and false bankruptcy ring and was to have been a witness in cases that are currently before the courts.

In other Sherbrooke Thursday night, Mrs. Chandonnet, a mother of three children, said her husband "has been dead since they've found my husband murdered." Her father's death was from natural causes.

Chandonnet, formerly of Quebec City, was a business associate of Moise Darabaner, 43, a businessman now in jail on a conviction of conspiracy to commit arson and fraud.

Some 50 policemen took part in the search for his body. Both men were a man missed in one of the policemen. Reports were not permitted near the

Other QPP squads earlier found three victims, also covered in quicklime, on a farmland near St. Gilles, Que., 35 miles south of Quebec City. The bodies recovered were those of Redemptour Faucher and Paul Roger Roy, Quebec City, and Alberic Bilodeau of Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que.

The first testimony in Quebec City Wednesday, an accused with Darabaner, Oliva Boulet, 52, said he saw Faucher shot at "point-blank range" with a revolver. The killer covered the victim with a rainbow substance, he said.

Mr. Wagner has said the number of dead could rise to more than a dozen as the underworld tries to get rid of embarrassing witnesses.

Report Excellent - Graham

TORONTO (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, says the royal commission report on Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. is "absolutely excellent."

Gen. Graham said Thursday he thought the report would be extremely useful to the exchange and the Ontario Securities Commission.

The 177 - page document, made public Thursday, was the result of more than three months of public hearings.

In various sections of the report, Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal, who acted as one-man royal commissioner, criticized the Toronto Stock Exchange and made recommendations for improving its role as a national securities exchange.

URGES REMOVAL

Mr. Justice Kelly said primary distribution of shares in speculative mining companies should be removed from the Toronto exchange. Primary distribution is the selling of treasury shares to the public through the facilities of a stock exchange.

Gen. Graham told a press conference:

"We've been waiting for this report before making any decision on primary distribution. We have not yet come down to discussions with the government and the Ontario Securities Commission and finally settle whether primary distribution should stay on the exchange."

He said there are good arguments for and against primary distribution and "it is difficult to know what is best to do."

In the report, the exchange was delegated for making a definite move to make Windfall directors give an explanation of Windfall's activity. The exchange argued that the Ontario Securities Commission had entered the picture and as

Case of Bogus Bankruptcies Continues in Headlines

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The case of the bogus bankruptcies continued to occupy the attention of federal election campaigners Thursday.

In Winnipeg, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said the federal government has decided Globe Support in its investigation into the fraudulent bankruptcies, now linked with mass underworld executions.

Mr. Diefenbaker moved that Revenue Minister Eric Kierans be saying that "federal indifference" is hindering the inquiry.

Making "integrity in government" his key theme in Winnipeg, the Opposition leader said: "We must clean up the mess. We will restore honesty to government."

At Ottawa, Justice Minister Cardin said in a statement the Montreal police have no information indicating that any member of Parliament has committed any offence in connection with any of the bankruptcies under investigation.

He said there is nothing in bankruptcy documents in his department's files to indicate "that any offences or irregularities have been committed by any MP or other public servant."

Mr. Cardin's statement said he has been in touch with the deputy director of the Young Indonesian Moslems Burn Communist Quarters

JAKARTA (AP) — Several thousand young Indonesian Moslems burned the headquarters of the Indonesian Communist party, the PKI, to the ground today.

Indonesian Army troops who broke the back of the attempted coup last week confronted the streets leading to the PKI headquarters and did not interfere with the demonstrators.

The one-storey building was reduced to ashes. Three fire trucks played water on its ruins.

The demonstrating youths shouted "Kill Aidit" and "Dissolve PKI." Mr. N. Aidit is the first secretary of the PKI. He has been out of sight since the coup failed last weekend.

(A Jakarta radio broadcast heard in Kuala Lumpur said 500,000 persons held an anti-Communist rally in Jakarta's main athletic stadium. The broadcast said "the rally was held in very tense atmosphere" and that thousands out of it hand when some of the crowd began to shout "Kill! Kill! Kill immediately!")

After burning the PKI headquarters, the demonstrators paraded through the streets shouting "To hell with PKI."

Truckloads of demonstrators passed the American Embassy shouting "Long live America."

Lesage's Tour Proves English Canada Interested In Hearing Quebec's Views

TORONTO (CP)—One thing at least is evident at the conclusion of Jean Lesage's 9-day tour of Western Canada—that English Canada was interested in hearing the Quebec premier's message.

Mr. Lesage, who described himself on several occasions as an ambassador of Quebec, addressed business and professional men at Canadian Club meetings in a number of cities in an attempt to "show the true face of Quebec."

His frank speeches may have shocked many of his audiences, but at least his listeners were interested.

In Vancouver, for example, Canadian Club organizers said that if they had known how many people would turn out to hear the Quebec premier they would have installed a system of closed-circuit television.

In Winnipeg, where Mr. Lesage spoke in the largest salon of one of the city's main hotels, his overflow audience spilled into additional salons and listened to his address carried over loudspeakers.

In Victoria, 457 club members turned out, an audience described by the club president as the largest single gathering the club had ever held.

Mr. Lesage's adult audiences always heard him out in perfect silence, often punctuated by warm and spontaneous applause. Student audiences were more enthusiastic, especially at the University of British Columbia where the premier received a standing ovation.

Everywhere, the suggestion was heard that Mr. Lesage aspires to the leadership of the federal Liberal party.

"He wants to become prime minister" was a statement heard often in Vancouver, Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg. "That's the reason for his tour, isn't it?"

A student at Lakehead University put the question directly to Mr. Lesage during a question-and-answer session there.

To such suggestions, the Quebec premier has replied either that he has his hands full in Quebec or that no one can predict what the future may bring.

The theme of his speeches across the country was the desire of French-speaking Canadians for equality of opportunity everywhere in Canada, a goal that he thought could perhaps be reached through a re-shaped constitution under which Quebec would have a special status.

But in Toronto Thursday, he told an Ontario-Quebec newspaper seminar that the lack of knowledge of Quebec he found in the West led him to believe that Canada is not yet ready to start reshaping its constitution.

The issue was "a great human experience" but "we are far from ripe as far as a new constitution is concerned."

Windfall Report Lists Suggested Objectives Of Securities Commission

TORONTO (CP)—Implementation of recommendations of the attorney-general's committee on security laws would be premature until the legislature has determined the scope of the job to be done by the Ontario Securities Commission, a report by the royal commission into Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. says.

"For a truly effective securities commission, the prime requirement is that there should be determined, at the legislative level, a clearly defined policy as to the extent and nature of the security regulation to be applied in Ontario, and that this policy should be embodied in a public statute," said the report made public Thursday.

LISTS EIGHT AIMS

The report lists eight suggested objectives for the commission:

1. To ensure to the investor full disclosure of corporate affairs.

2. To regulate the practice of salesmen in securities.

3. To prevent speculation from the public of funds exceeding the legitimate amount required to carry out the purpose for which the funds were sought.

4. To ensure that a reasonable proportion of the funds solicited from the public reach the treasury of the issuer, and that those engaged in selling securities do not profit unreasonably at the expense of investors.

5. To supervise the fidelity of management in carrying out the purpose for which funds were solicited.

6. To minimize influences inhibiting the existenance of a truly free market for securities.

7. To prevent undue influence of market prices by manipulative practices.

8. To provide means of enforcing provisions of the Securities Act and of investigating breaches of the act and the Criminal Code in offences related to security sales and purchases.

When a definition of function has been determined, and before administration changes are made, an external management survey should be made.

Speaking of recommendations made by the attorney-general's committee last March, the commission says separation of the securities commission from the attorney-general's department and its establishment as an independent agency is essential.

"This independence . . . will place the commission in a setting where it can exist with confidence in its supervision of security marketing and the regulation of the financial community over whose activities it will be primarily concerned."

Turning to regulation of security exchanges, the report said the legislature must make a decision "of far-reaching consequence" on whether or not security trading on an exchange should be subject to regulation by an external agency.

The Toronto Stock Exchange, in theory, acts as a self-governing body, "but in practise self-regulation on the Toronto Stock Exchange displays weaknesses."

RESERVES RULING

TORONTO (CP) — Judgment was reserved Thursday in the case of Andrew Thompson, Caledon, charged last spring with displaying seven Shorthorn dressings at her public gallery. Magistrate F. C. Hayes, who presided over the trial that began Tuesday, said he would rule on the charges Nov. 25.

George Wardle, sitting, chief clerk, customs and excise, explains the payroll deduction system of giving to United Appeal to Norm Dall, left, and W. G. Brown. The civil servants are conducting their in-plant campaign with a new twist this year. This is the first time civil servants can use the payroll deduction plan.

Ont. Liberal Leader Will Appear Oct. 21

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Andrew Thompson, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, was recommended Thursday to Oct. 21 on four charges arising out of a two-car collision here Wednesday in which four persons were injured.

Police said the Liberal leader, who was driving alone, was charged with dangerous, impaired and careless driving and failure to yield one-half the road.

The second car was driven by Dora Sandercock, 52. She and Mrs. David Nixon were reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here. Mrs. Nixon's husband was not injured.

Another passenger, Irene Murray, was treated and released. Mrs. Ida O'Connell, 90, is in serious condition in a Toronto Hospital. She suffered head injuries and hospital officials said they were listing her condition as serious because of her age.

All occupants of the Sandercock car are from Harwood, Ont.

Thompson was treated for a bump on the head after being knocked unconscious in the crash. On Highway 28 just inside the western boundary of the city.

He was arrested and later released on $100 bail posted by George Ben, Liberal member of the legislature for Toronto Bracondale.

Thompson was driving here to meet Mr. Ben for a planned tour of the Ontario reformatory at Millbrook today.

A spokesman said Thompson intended to continue the tour, but was advised by doctors to rest.

Federal Civil Servants Unite To Support United Appeal Here

The Belleville Civil Servants have united as one for the 1965 Belleville United Appeal Campaign.

Jim Leonard, Collector of Customs and Excise is chairman of the Federal Service Division, Belleville United Appeal Fund.

The Federal Service Division includes all Federal civil servants, i.e. the Post Office Department and No. 1 Base post office, Department of National Defence; Customs and Excise; Income tax; Unemployment Insurance; National Employment Service; Citizenship and Immigration; Federal Entomological Institute; National Revenue Excise Tax Audit Branch; Public Works; National Health and Welfare; R.C.M.P.; Trade and Commerce — Electricity and Gas, and Weights and Measures; Veterans' Land Act; and the Department of Agriculture, Fruit and Vegetables, Health of Animals and Dairy Products.

228 COVERED

A total of 228 persons are covered by the program.

John O'Flynn, general campaign chairman of the United Appeal, told the Civil Service Campaign officials that a gift of only 25 cents each week adds up to $13.00 a year. (The Civil Servants are using a payroll deductions this year for the first time.)

"You must remember that one gift is spread through the 14 agencies, and a gift of $13.00 a year is certainly not out of line to cover 14 agencies," Mr. O'Flynn said.

"If it weren't for the United Appeal, the 14 agencies would be collecting at your door separately.

"We must strive for participation. The United Appeal is a total community effort. There should be a much higher percentage of the population participating than there has been in the past.

"If people want to allocate their contributions to one particular agency, or to three or four, by all means tell them their allocations will go directly to the agency desired."

Besides Mr. Leonard, officials of the Federal Service Department Campaign are: H. Park, vice-chairman, George Wardle, executive organizer, Miss B. Holland, secretary, E. R. Silver, treasurer, and chief liaison officer, T. E. Laidley.

The liason officers, or canvassers are G. Wishart, F. Reed, J. Fraser, D. Burns, M. Chartrand and N. Barrage.

To End Pinnacle St. Access From Market Square Area

Sewer work on lower Pinnacle Street is slowly progressing toward Bridge Street, but before the digging is completed entirely in the Market Square area is due for even further disruption.

For the next two weeks through traffic along Pinnacle Street from Dundas to Bridge has been cut off, but cars have been allowed to continue using Market Street and swing north along Pinnacle.

As the sewer installation moves north, through traffic on Market Street will also be cut off while the east entrance to McAnanny Street will also be blocked.

However the market square area will continue in use as a parking area and this will mean that the east end of Market Street will temporarily revert to a two-way street to allow cars to jockey in and out of parking spaces.

SEWER ENDS

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says the new sewer on Pinnacle Street running north from Dundas Street will end at Mc. Ananny and from there to Bridge Street only the railway tracks will be torn up.

North of Bridge Street the contractor is working in two or three areas installing new storm drains and sewers.

Subject to municipal board approval the Pinnacle Street paving contract was let by council this week to the H. J. McFarland Construction Company and city hall officials are hopeful that the base paving coat can be applied this fall at least as far north as Victoria Avenue.

Two Airmen Injured as Car Hits Pole

Two airmen were admitted to hospital last night after their car rolled over on Highway 2 west of Belleville and struck a hydro pole.

Denis Fawcett suffered a broken knee and face cuts while George Farough, 20, was taken in for observation at Belleville General Hospital.

Both men are stationed at Trenton RCAF base.

Police say the car, driven by Fawcett, spun out of control on the highway made greasy by rain, west of the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Driver of the car Joseph Thibadeau escaped injury while his son Gordon, 9 and daughter Patricia, 12, suffered only minor injuries.

Justice Minister Denies Any Member Connected With Bankruptcy Cases

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Cardin said Thursday night in a statement that the Montreal police have no information indicating any member of Parliament has committed, directly or indirectly, any offence in connection with any of the bankruptcy cases being investigated in Quebec.

He said: "I have been in touch with the deputy director of the Montreal police and he informs me that, contrary to certain press reports, the Montreal police have no information that indicates that any member of Parliament of any party has committed, directly or indirectly, any offence in connection with any of the bankruptcy cases they have investigated."

Mr. Cardin said there is nothing in bankruptcy documents in his department's files to indicate that any offences or irregularities have been committed by any member of Parliament or other public servant.

Mr. Cardin said he was replying to statements made by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for the Yukon in the last Parliament.

RELATE TO COMPANIES

He said two of the three departmental files referred to by Mr. Nielsen relate to companies with which Max and Adolph Schlaf were associated.

"All three files contain routine financial reports. They do not contain any information related to any allegation of fraud or to any other aspect of the administration of the Bankruptcy Act."

Mr. Cardin said three files listed by Mr. Nielsen are copies of files of the Montreal Superior Court.

"This is a report to the court. The constitutional responsibility for deciding whether any legal action should be taken, on the basis of such a report, lies with the court and the attorney-general of the province."

Mr. Cardin invited Mr. Diefenbaker or any former justice minister designated by the Conservative leader to examine the files in the department.

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's denial of the existence of a bankruptcy investigation report is "not in accordance with the facts," Erik Nielsen said Thursday.

"I know it exists and I have provided the times with the file numbers," Mr. Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member for the last Parliament for the Yukon, said in an interview.

Asked to explain the prime minister's denial in Montreal Wednesday of such a report, Mr. Nielsen said:

"There are two possible reasons. Either the prime minister's memory is slipping again or else he has not been fully and adequately informed by his officials—which is not inconceivable, as we know."

At a party luncheon earlier, Mr. Nielsen told about 120 persons that Liberal government policies are leading Canada into "de-confederation on the instalment plan."

"The first instalment was the flag issue, which did nothing for Canadian unity.

"The second was the outing-out legislation.

"The down-payment was the prime minister's two - nation theory. . .the concept that two political states can exist in this nation.

"Then come the constitutional changes he proposes, where the constitution is being thrown up for grabs by any combination of political warlords."

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP)—T. C. Douglas demanded Thursday night the appointment of a Quebec Supreme Court judge to investigate reports that some members of Parliament were involved in Quebec bankruptcies now under investigation.

The national leader of the New Democratic Party said the investigation should be confined to the "narrow field" of reports of complicity and that a report on the matter should be made public at least one week before the Nov. 8 federal election.

Mr. Douglas, speaking to a public meeting in this Fraser Valley town, prefaced his remarks by reading from Thursday's Toronto Globe and Mail.

The newspaper quoted a senior Montreal fraud squad investigator as saying that seven or eight men who have been members of Parliament have been involved in bankruptcies under investigation as being fraudulent.

The investigator was quoted as saying that most of the MPs represented Quebec constituencies either as Liberals or Progressive Conservatives.

PATROL HONORED — Lieut. Mike Evans, commander of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment patrol which captured the Eastern Ontario Area Initiative and Leadership honors from seven other area patrols at Petawawa recently, receives the trophy award from Area Commander Colonel T. de Faye, MBE, CD, at a presentation ceremony at the armouries last night. Later the patrol was given a special reception party in the sergeants' mess.

Mayor Visits St. John Corps While at Work

St. John Ambulance Nursing Division members this week heard words of encouragement, thanks and advice from Mayor J. R. Ellis. With them in the recruiting drive in progress His Worship found the ladies receiving training in Oral Resuscitation using the new ResuscitAnne donated to St. John by the Northern Electric Employees Club. This Artificial Respiration method was explained and demonstrated by Cpl. B. R. Waters, S. St. J., and Sgt. Allan Brady, both N.E. Co employees. A film on Accident Prevention was presented by Sgt F. W. Wilson of the Ambulance Division.

In the absence of the superintendent Mrs. J. Clarke, Mrs. D. H. Curnock welcomed the mayor and thanked him for his continued interest in community service organizations.

In addressing the members His Worship expressed his appreciation for the efforts to prepare for community and home emergencies and extolled the valuable service being rendered at so many events. He expressed the desirability of greater year-round publicity of the extensive St. John Ambulance activities. He equated the 200 plus hours of voluntary public duty of several members at over five working weeks per year and felt that St. John was too much of a "silent service."

Despite his busy schedule Mayor Ellis took time to observe training and learn of activities. He learned that Brigade members are driving in from Tweed and Plainfield weekly to train under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Goldie, Mrs. Sabra Arnott and Corps Nursing Officer Mrs. J. M. Perrill. St. St. J. all of whom are graduate nurses. Miss Hilda Colyer, R.N., president of the Division, informed His Worship of the hours of service which the ladies are continuing to give to the Arthritis Society.

Mr. Ellis expressed the gratitude of the community, noting that St. John Ambulance locally was one of the participating agencies in the United Appeal.

Ladies interested in sharing in the work of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division should contact any of the members.

Case of Bogus

Montreal police and he informs me that, contrary to certain press reports, the Montreal police have no information that indicates that any member of Parliament of any party has committed, directly or indirectly, any offence in connection with any of the bankruptcy cases they have investigated."

At Dauphin, Man., Prime Minister Pearson said his opponents are trying to make Canadians believe that nearly everything has gone wrong in the country.

"Too many people are singing 'rescue the perishing' when there should be more singing 'count your blessings,'" he said.

At Abbotsford, B.C., T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, demanded an immediate judicial inquiry and dismissal of any Liberal MP or other Liberal candidate who is involved in bankruptcy frauds. The report of the inquiry should be made public not later than Nov. 1, a week before election date.

Mr. Douglas prefaced his remarks by reading from Thursday's Toronto Globe and Mail which quoted a Montreal fraud squad investigator as saying that seven or eight former MPs have been involved in bankruptcies under investigation as being fraudulent.

The investigator was quoted by the newspaper as saying that most of the MPs represented Quebec ridings as Liberals or Conservatives.

PEOPLE MUST KNOW

Mr. Douglas said the Canadian people have a right to know before Nov. 8 whether there is any basis in fact for the allegations.

The NPD leader said former Justice minister Favreau has refused to give him information in the Commons on bankruptcy cases.

"If this information had been made available at that time, many of the recent events connected with these bankruptcies could have been avoided and the charges now being made would have been unnecessary," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's denial of the existence of a report on fraudulent bankruptcies "appears to be another case of selective amnesia."

"Or else he was told and has forgotten," he added.

BLASTS MEDICAL CARE

At Springfield, Man., Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Thursday the Liberal Canadians "do not need and do not want" a compulsory medical care program.

But it appeared they would be forced into one because the Liberals had announced such a plan without allowing the proposal to be discussed in Parliament or in the legislatures.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said at Riviere du Loup, Que., that the Liberals' old age pensions at age 65.

Mr. Pearson returns to Ottawa Friday. Mr. Diefenbaker is in the Winnipeg area, Mr. Douglas in the Vancouver area, Mr. Thompson in Calgary and Mr. Caouette in Dorchester, Que., riding.

Negotiator For Non-ops Resigns Post

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Hall, 72, for 20 years chief negotiator for Canada's 100,000 non-operating railroad workers, announced his resignation Thursday after a two-day meeting of the general conference committee of railway unions which has been considering new contract demands.

Mr. Hall said he will leave the railway labor scene gradually. He will remain as an adviser for another 18 months, at that time his retirement as the Canadian head of his own union, the International Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC) becomes effective. Unions indicated that the name of the new chairman will be made known Tuesday when the general conference committee resumes its meetings.

The non-ops' contract with the railways expires at the end of the year.

On Nov. 2 the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) is to present separate demands for a new contract to the CNR and several smaller railways. Until two years ago the CBRT bargained with the other 14 non-operating unions—those not involved in the actual running of trains.

Hasty Pees Hold Reunion In Picton

It is 26 years since the nucleus of the famous First Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment learned the rudiments of squad, rifle and bayonet drill in the old Fair Grounds at Picton.

Originals and other veterans of the Fighting Plowboys will revisit the scene over the holiday weekend where they will hold their 20th annual reunion.

Headquarters of the reunion will be located in the Community Centre. This is due to the fact the Department of National Defence has closed the town's armouries, the venue of many former reunions.

Reunion arrangements call for registration of veterans in the Centre starting 10 a.m. tomorrow.

In the afternoon there will be a general get-together of the "Pine Jockeys."

In the evening a dance will be held at the Centre.

On Sunday the regimental assciation will hold a business meeting at 10 a.m. This will be followed by a church parade to the town cenotaph at 11 a.m.

Lieut.-Col. Angus R. Duffy will be the guest speaker at the reunion banquet in the Centre at 2 p.m.

'Role in Keeping With Talents' Forecast by Martin for Jewett

COBOURG (Special) — Canada's Minister of Veterans Affairs, Hon. Paul Martin, speaking in support of Northumberland Liberal candidate, Pauline Jewett here Thursday night, declared the number one issue of the current election campaign to be "to restore to our parliamentary system, the necessary authority to maintain good government in Canada."

Mr. Martin who received a standing ovation from more than 600 who attended the Liberal party rally in Cobourg East District Collegiate Institute said, "Miss Jewett has combined a national interest with a recognition of the problems of this constituency, the problems of dairy farmers and the extension of increased opportunities for farm credit." He predicted a role "even more in keeping with her talents and capacities in the government," if she is returned on November 8, without specifying what this role might be.

"It is important that we have women in our public life," Mr. Martin said. "The House of Commons is richer for having within its membership, women able to put forward interests that men do not fully appreciate or understand."

He referred to Miss Jewett's work on a House of Commons committee studying ways of streamlining House rules and procedures, recommending changes in what he termed were antiquated practices, practices steeped in tradition that were inefficient and not applicable in present circumstances.

In making a strong plea for the election of a majority Liberal government, Mr. Martin said legislation passed such as the Canada Pension Plan resulted from "haste imposed on parliament by an aroused public opinion, tired of the protracted debate that had gone on in parliament. Our system of government demands that the government have the authority to conceive a program "and put it in effect," he said.

PROSPEROUS NATION

With a gross national product of $41 billion, Mr. Martin said, "Canada is a prosperous nation, a nation on the move."

Describing herself as being "Pro-Northumberland and Pro-Canadian," Miss Jewett said, "I know it is going to be a tough campaign due to the prominent person running," in reference to her Conservative opponent, Hon. George Hees. "I feel I am being pursued by him. As Mr. Errol Flynn," she said, "and I do mean pursued-He's all over the country. But it is important for him and for me to see the people." Drawing on his experience as Secretary of State for External Affairs, Mr. Martin said "Canada's relations with the United States are unique." He cited the recently concluded Canada-U.S. automobile parts treaty as being an example of the Liberal government bringing about an arrangement with the U.S. that gave Canada access to a greater share of the North American market.

"It has resulted in a doubling of exports of auto parts to the U.S. in the last 12 months," he said. "Our balance of payments situation with the U.S. is considerably changed. Thousands have been put to work. There is a total of $8 billion trade between us; we are both, each others best customers."

Soil and Crop Body to Hold Grain Corn Day

The Quinte District Soil and Crop Improvement Association, taking in the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox and Addington, will hold its annual grain corn day on Thursday, October 21st, at the Elmer Lever Farm at Warkworth.

The Lever farm is 10 miles north of Highway 401 and two miles west of No. 30 highway.

The day is planned to cover all phases of corn production with new ideas in growing, harvesting, storing and feeding of grain corn to be discussed and demonstrated. Results of field trials will be given.

During the day Dr. Stan Young, department of crop science at the University of Guelph, will speak on "New Trends in Corn Production," while John Dalrymple, Animal Husbandry Department, Kemptville Agricultural School will speak on "Feeding Corn to Livestock."

The latest in corn planting and harvesting equipment will be on display, while pickers, picker shellers and combines will be demonstrated in the field. Representatives of fertilizer weed spray and hybrid corn companies will be on hand with the latest information on their products.

Relations With the U.S.

Dr. Mason Wade, a University of Western Ontario historian, says anti-American sentiment is on the wane in Canada. At a conference in Philadelphia he said: "Since 1963 there have been abundant signs that we are emerging from that unhappy period when it appeared to be every Canadian's patriotic duty to kick Uncle Sam smartly in the shins once a week."

He added; "Along with the instinctive traditional tendency to resist Americanization, there has been a growing recognition that, whether Canadians like it or not, Canada's destiny is now bound up with that of the United States, and that the north-south continental relationship has become more significant than the traditional transatlantic one."

That is one view of Canada-U.S. relations. Here is another one, expressed, ironically, by an American, John Edward Rothwell of New York, in a letter to The Montreal Gazette. This newspaper has been one of those available during the New York newspaper strike and Mr. Rothwell's comment related to an article headed: "Republicans Say Americans Ignorant About Canada."

"As you know," he went on, "the United States' natural resources are practically exhausted, the industrial northeast is in the worst drought in history, the lakes and waterways and particularly the American side of the Great Lakes are hopelessly polluted. In short after almost 200 years the U.S. is suddenly interested in Canada and offering joint commissions on North American affairs.

"Naturally," this unusually frank American continues, "the motives are quite clear, exploitation . . . As Canadians know and I know, American companies have made a fortune there (Canada) without any regard to Canadian feelings or needs but just to make the fast buck."

Mr. Rothwell warns that the U.S. is casting covetous eyes on Canadian resources and says we should keep our "water and natural resources"

"Don't let Canada pay for America's flamboyant extravagance and wastefulness," he concluded.

Both viewpoints have their elements of truth, but from a purely practical point of view the latter may well have the greater validity. Our water and other natural resources should not be given away lightly; they represent powerful bargaining factors in our relations with the United States.

Obviously it is in the interests of both countries to maintain good relations, but it should not be forgotten that the U.S. views such relations as much from a materialistic standpoint as from any other.

Working Mothers

Working mothers have been under scrutiny by the Ontario Medical Association. In a brief to the provincial legislature's select committee on youth, the OMA said that neither a day nursery nor a baby-sitter can fill the gap left when a mother works.

"A lack of mothering can lead to serious emotional disturbances in later life," the OMA brief held.

This may be true. The world is full of youngsters who are deprived of the love and devotion they only mother can give. But there is the other side of the picture. Children who are "over-mothered" may also find themselves in difficulty. A "mother's boy," for instance, may have trouble adjusting properly to other young people or to the disciplines of school.

As in other spheres there is the problem of striking a happy medium, but it is probably true that too much "mothering" is the lesser of the two evils. Neglect of children is criminal; it is also a dreadful thing to inflict on those who are growing up in a harsh world.

However, a suggestion in the OMA brief that working mothers are bad mothers has been described as a "sweeping generalization" by Robert Henry, assistant director of Toronto's Warrendale Treatment Centre for Disturbed Children.

He said working may release tensions for some mothers, making them better parents than they would be if they stayed home. "The working mother is here to stay. She didn't cause emotionally disturbed children. They're caused by inadequate parenting of all kinds," he said.

Mr. Henry makes a sensible point. If a mother is working, provided her children know they have her love and affection at home, there is no reason why they should not be left in someone else's care during the day.

Possibly the most disciplined and well-balanced youngsters in the world are the English, unless it be the Russians, and many of them have become that way with the help of nursemaids or (in the case of Russia) state-run creches.

The great evil is neglect. Where there is no neglect there is little or no delinquency or personality problem.

The Psychology of Escapism

—Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Escapism reached its highest level of popularity during the 1930's. The economic depression of 1929 created vast problems for a host of people, and it followed that many turned away from reality. It became popular and profitable to produce great amount of "escape literature."

There were people who took escape a great deal more seriously than merely reading about it. There were flagpole sitters, people who sailed the oceans in small boats, who travelled on foot or in ancient cars, all sorts of people trying with varying degrees of success to get away from it all, as the phase was. Truth to tell, in the middle thirties many had practically nothing better to do.

Escapism became either less noticeable with the advent of World War II, even though one might have supposed more people would have sound reasons for wanting to close their eyes on reality for a time. Postwar prosperity may have brought its own species of unreality, but not a return to escapism as a distinct way of life.

Today, it looks as though escapism were making a comeback as a reaction to the crowded pace of present - day living. Leon Gillis' covered - wagon trek across the continent sounds like escapism. Mr. Gillis and his family built a covered wagon and made long trips with a team of horses as their conveyance.

There seems to be a revival of interest in long voyages in small boats as the flagpole sitting. So far, there doesn't seem to be a major trend to escapism in popular literature, but many television programs look and sound like diversions from harsh reality.

The present time seems to be a day when reality for many is less than it should be. On the other hand, many people are finding life tended to become a dull routine. That feeling of boredom is what escapism feeds on, so there is a strong trend to a new escapism, in spite of a desperate need for the world's people to look facts straight in the eye.

Computers Get Romantic

—Stratford Beacon-Herald

So you met your mate the old-fashioned way—person to person. How quaint!

The "in" thing, now, is to woo by automation.

To do this, you take your heart to a strictly modern information service. No time is wasted waiting for moonlight and roses. The service provides you a questionnaire listing as many as 150 questions — your height, weight, hobbies, tastes, hopes and preferences. It also gives you psychological tests. It then feeds all this data into one of its friendly computers (which of course, promises not to tell) and picks out 10 or 15 persons the machine feels were made just for you.

You are given names, addresses and phone numbers. From them on, it's up to you and the objects of your automated affection.

This multimass road to romance may seem a little calculated and cold-blooded. Those who provide it and many of those who use it insist it's the surest, swiftest and safest highway to happiness since the celluloid ice cream social was put back in the freezer. One matrimonial agency reports its business has tripled since it went to automation.

Says the head of one such service: "We feel we've fed up with the usual haphazard ways of meeting marriage prospects at cocktail parties."

Comments another professional Cupid: "Most people put more thought into choosing a cigarette brand than in picking a wife or husband."

Well who can say for sure that choice by computer isn't as sound as by suitor?

Voters' View Of Campaign

Winnipeg Free Press

Any election campaign anywhere raises the same question today. Are we back to the era of the bought boroughs? Is the electorate in the main a vast mass of stupid, greedy, ill informed and irresponsible freeloaders who can be persuaded to go to the polls only to collect the loot offered them by every candidate for public office? To be collected by legislation, of course.

A few years ago somebody suggested that there ought to be some kind of intelligence test for legislators. This probably wouldn't do much good. Intelligence may have something to do with public responsibility but it would sometimes be hard to prove. A much more effective restraint upon the tendency among candidates to raise the ante every time they speak would be an informed electorate at every meeting, not upon getting reasonable answers to every question they ask. It is an unfortunate appeal to a vast body of people who are judged to be old enough and sensible enough to vote. Just as unflattering is the word game that goes on every platform: Sensible debating points are tossed about, while intellectual trivialities, half truths punched home like the saying gospel, and cheap jibes that would lose a debating point at a high school debating contest are offered as if they displayed at every possible doubt in the electoral mind.

The contempt into which political debate is falling seems to have escaped the notice of the tacticians of the major parties and it might be worth while to consider whether the level of their public utterances contributed a great deal to the pace of their decline.

People in the end get tired of being treated like idiots, especially when they have no intention of voting like idiots, or sheep, or the declining number of loyal and unthinking party hacks who will trust their personal fortunes and the future of their country to people who refuse to treat them seriously.

Start Treatment Early To Correct Clubfoot

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a clubfoot? I realize it can be corrected, but has there been any improvement in the method in the last 25 years? How long is the process? Our new baby has a clubfoot. — Mrs. A. Y.

There are several theories as to causes of clubfoot, and they all may be correct. There may be further causes that we don't yet know. Whether, in any given case, you can say, "This was the cause," is doubtful.

Here are two probable causes.

First: Heredity. There are parents, quite normal themselves, who have one or more children with clubfoot. Perhaps the tendency was present, but not very strongly, in the families of both parents. But the combination was there, and we trace hereditary characteristics quite clearly in creatures of brief lives and rapid procreation, like mice, flies and guinea pigs. It isn't that easy with people.

Second: The foot gets tangled in the umbilical cord and is held in a cramped out of normal shape. This might, I dare say, have some hereditary elements.

It isn't always easy to be sure whether a new baby has a clubfoot. The odd foot positions and actions of an infant can be quite picturesque at times, when in reality everything is normal enough. When the foot is turned inward, it can be especially deceptive.

However, if while examining a baby the doctor turns the foot outward and then the foot springs back to the inverted position, that is highly suspicious of clubbing.

Yes, indeed, treatment has been improved in the last 25 years. So has just about everything from taking out tonsils to heart surgery.

The improvements may not have been dramatic, but the results have been encouraging. The old methods of severing tendons or cutting foot joint capsules have been abandoned because they proved unnecessary.

However, some of the older methods of using casts, heavy bandages and manipulations have given very fine results and the techniques have been refined and improved. Tendon transplants are the answer in some cases, and even more detailed operations on the foot may be necessary.

Two things are important to keep in mind:

First: It is a mistake to wait too long, once a clubfoot is definitely recognized.

Second: Parents should be prepared for a long period of correction. The youngster may be in a cast for several months. Even after the cast is off, special bindings may be necessary. It is not unusual for follow-up examinations (and treatment, if necessary) to continue for 10 or 12 years.

The final results, though, are usually very satisfactory.

Dear Dr. Molner: About two years ago I had a hysterotomy. Recently I took up bowling and a friend said this was the worst thing to do as it would cause adhesions. Is this true? — Mrs. B. C.

No, quite the contrary. Adhesions, if they are going to form, start shortly after the surgery. Exercise does not cause adhesions. In fact, early exercise may help minimize formation. Your friend was misinformed.

Note to G. O. C.: Rectal itching often (not always) is caused by hemorrhoids or some other such condition) can be ended by keeping the area clean and dry. Wash with plain water, dry, then place a pledget of absorbent cotton there to absorb further moisture.

Voice Known Far and Wide

Windsor Star

Humans are subject to constant change through the years. This applies especially to their appearance and, usually, to their weight and facial and other contours.

There is one human characteristic, however, which changes little if any, except in advanced boys. That is the voice. It can be the same at 60, and normally is, as at 20.

We had recent proof of this. The telephone rang. A voice rang out over it clearly, and we recognized it immediately even though we had assumed its owner was in Geoff Spain. We first knew that voice back in 1923, and, though we have heard it on occasion intermittently over the years, we always had recognized it.

It belonged to Mr. Max T. Stewart, who has been in the trade commission service since 1931 and has spent almost all the intervening time away from Canada. His postings have taken him to five continents, latterly being commercial counsellor at the Canadian embassy in Spain.

He was at the airport, enroute to Mexico where he previously had been posted.

His voice always was distinctive, being a part of his distinctive character. There are several businessmen in Windsor who know him, having utilized his services while he was in Shanghai, Tokyo, Melbourne, Caracus, Mexico, New York, Liverpool or Madrid. He will be interested to know he has retired from the service and plans spending his remaining years in Spain. He has been away so long he has lost touch with most of his old friends in Canada.

They Fought For Republic

From Commentary

Canada has been remarkably successful in avoiding mention of its historic contribution to the Civil War that has been heralded by celebrations in the United States over the last four years, including this one.

The fact is that 40,000 Canadians marched in the Union Army to help save the Republic. Recruits flocked across the border, partly because a section of secession was plaguing this country's eastern parts and the Fenians threatened early attractive. But many were dedicated believers in the Union cause, despite deep Canadian reticence as a hotbed for Confederate intrigue, most Canadians were anti-Confederate as a matter of principle. They disliked the idea of slavery, which the Confederacy upheld as did British countries and possessions long before.

Enlistments from French Canada were particularly heavy in Mr. Lincoln's army. Several New England regiments were so predominately French Canadian that all commands had to be given in French, and bilingual officers were required. One of the Union Army's most successful spies was a Canadian

The incident is without any particular significance except perhaps, as evidence of the content to which potatoes have become an almost essential item in the diet of most Canadians. In many homes during the potato shortage, rice, macaroni, beans and other substitutes have been served instead of the succulent tuber, but these make-shifts aroused little enthusiasm.

Temple's attendance record at committee meetings while a city councillor was poor.

Mr. Haig retorted that regardless of what "a few detractors" might say Mr. Temple "was an excellent and faithful alderman and a very loyal colleague."

D. R. Fraser, of Trenton, who seconded the nomination said the Conservative convention had tried to link Mr. Temple to the Defence Minister hoping to sway the armed services on the integration issue.

$00.ON HAND

However, the armed services should be credited with more intelligence on the issue than the Conservatives suppose, said Mr. Fraser.

Local servicemen knew Mr. Temple as an MP who took time out to learn the intricate details of problems confronting them — "as an outstanding Member who is indeed proud to represent the Minister of Defence and represent them."

The convention—which drew more than 800 to the Collegiate in heavy rain — also turned Conservative criticism of the Liberal candidate into light musical mockery.

As a jazz band blared out the strains of "Hello Dolly" the convention greeted the Temple nomination with the tune — and a slight change of lyrics.

Revising the tag line to "Hello Robert" they sang out such syncopated strains as:

"Hello Robert, Well Hello Robert. It's so nice to see you back where you were born.

"We've heard some tall stories from annoyed Tories, that you haven't been around at least since early morn.

Mr. Temple told the convention the primary reason for the election is need of a majority government.

". . . . Today there are major issues and problems facing Canada and . . . in dealing with them the federal government can do the best possible job only if it has the support of a parliamentary majority, based on the confidence of Canadians in all parts of the country."

ASKS FOR MANDATE

"For this purpose, we are asking for a clear mandate so that our country can have the leadership and strength in Ottawa needed to get on with the basic tasks: maintaining our economic expansion; improving social security; providing equal opportunity . . . and get on with the essential job of building Canada."

The fundamental Liberal commitment in 1963 was to end economic stagnation and slash unemployment " . . . to turn economic stagnation into expansion, to replace despair with confidence."

"We have not been false to that committment," he added.

This is reflected in the riding where industries now are booming and unemployment is at its lowest in eight years.

In social security, the government's greatest achievement, the Canada Pension Plan, "was a tremendous breakthrough," he said.

Future plans call for replacing the pension means test with a "needs test" and the Canada Assistance Plan to supplement the national pension scheme.

New programs are being prepared to ensure continued economic expansion while guarding against inflation, while far-reaching tax-structure changes

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices edged higher in dull trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange in the morning session today.

In the industrial list, papers led the way ahead with Price Brothers up ¼ to 39¼ and Consolidated up ¼ to 39¼. Abitibi lost ¼ to 10.

Oshawa Wholesale A tacked on ¼ at 43¾. Union Gas ¼ to 30 and Aluminium ¼ to 29.

Among base metals, Hudson Bay was ahead 2 to 70½ and Rio Algom ¼ to 19¼. Giant Yellowknife was up ¼ to 13½ in a quiet and firm golds group.

Bay Street experts said the trading showed a reluctance of investors to make commitments before a holiday. The exchange is closed Monday, Thanksgiving Day.

On index, industrials were up .06 to 166.99, golds .10 to 154.87, base metals .42 to 81.56 and the TSE index .07 to 156.97. Western oils fell .13 to 100.58. Volume at 11 a.m. was 591,000 shares compared with 742,000 at the same time Thursday.

Base metals advanced but all other sections made a mediocre showing in moderate trading Thursday.

The TSE index dipped .02 to 156.90 on 3,012,000 shares compared with 2,761,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Denison led the senior metals higher with a gain of 1¼ to 36¼, while Falconbridge advanced ½ to 103 and International Nickel ¼ to 98¼.

Papers softened, B.C. Forest and Fraser both off ½ to 23 and 29¾ respectively. Banks and pipelines eased. Aluminium advanced ¼ to 29¾ and Canada Iron Foundries jumped ⅝ to 59 on 1,610 shares.

Speculative trading grew brisker towards the close with Mayburn the most active stock, trading 186,300 shares for a gain of 2½ cents to 19½ cents.

Western oils and gold stocks both declined. Giant Yellowknife fell ¼ to 13¼ and Hollinger ¼ to 26¼.

Banff dropped 30 cents to $7.45 on 17,485 shares in junior oils.

On index, industrials were off .54 to 166.93, western oils 100.71, golds 1.12 to 154.73 and base metals were ahead .80 to 81.14.

Gripes for Gripes

I've got a gripe against people who've got a gripe against Country and Western Music.

If a person knows what C & W Music is, and doesn't like it, then fine. It's a personal choice. That's not what my gripe is about.

There are people, and many of them, who have a fringe knowledge of C & W Music and then say they can't stand the stuff, even though they don't know what the stuff is.

I'm sure the same situation happens in all other forms of music, and the true admirers of a particular form are probably just as irked about it as I am. I just happen to be mentioning C & W Music because that is the particular field that interests me.

The whole point I am trying to make is, if you don't like a certain type of music, make sure when you tell people about it that you call it by the right name, that is, put it in the proper classification.

Just because a person puts on a cowboy hat and plays a guitar does not mean that he sings true C & W Music. He may sing a pop imitation of it, as many of them are doing now because it seems to be selling, but it's in the same category as The Beatles singing Opera — they just are not opera singers.

Many of the established C & W singers have been prostituting themselves to the public by singing this pop type of C & W Music. The songs themselves may be the same, but what they do is gather a rock and roll band in the background, and transform the distinctive C & W beat into a rock beat.

And this is what the fringe listener of C & W will probably hear, because it gets on the pop charts.

There are not too many artists left who sing real C & W style. Buck Owens does, so does Hank Snow and Johnny Cash (sometimes), but most of the others are glittering imitations.

There is something about Country and Western Music that is beautiful. Call it hayseedy or what you will, but there is a quality of sadness about it. It is not like broadway musicals where they play around in a fantasy land. Country and Western Music is real life.

Take a man like Hank Williams, one of the greatest performers of all time. He didn't sing a song, he put his body and soul into a song. He himself was the song.

The imitators can mouth the words, but they cannot imitate the feeling, the sincerity, the real art.

Perhaps the new breed of peripheral performers is a product of the times.

Perhaps in order to sing with the feeling of Hank Williams, Red Foley, Ernest Tubb and others, you would have had to live the kind of life they lived in their early childhood.

Hank Williams was shining shoes for a living when he was six. He had no parents to guide him, just a friendly old Negro who looked after him until, when Hank was still not in his teens, the Negro died.

Hank Williams was an alcoholic. He was on dope. He was bitter. And he died before he was 26.

He wrote and published over 1,500 songs, many of them well-known tunes today, such as "Jambalaya," "Your Cheatin' Heart," and "Jealous Heart."

Much of the music in the C & W field is based on religion, the deep south religious feeling that is dying out with the death of their human miseries.

And so I rest my case. Whether you like the music or not is up to you, but at least know what it is before you knock it.

First Heavy October Rain Soaks District

Commencing late yesterday afternoon and continuing through most of the night, 1.3 inch of rain had fallen over the Belleville area by eight o'clock this morning — and then it started to rain again.

But despite the rain which saw gutters rapidly fill and rivulets run in every direction, two political conventions in the area last night were well attended.

Last night's heavy rain was the first real soaker received this month.

may have to be made.

Speaking on price levels in agriculture — and the dairy industry in particular — he warned unless government sets "a realistic goal for the farmer" a sharp rise of farm imports might result in the next five years.

Farmers must be given a fair share of the prevailing economic standard.

No one with the ability and desire should be barred to higher education because of economic factors, Mr. Temple said, recalling he had campaigned vigorously on that issue in 1963.

"And I repeat that pledge to you tonight," he added.

Successful Living

Child Bride Treated Badly by Husband

DEAR DORIS: I was married when I was 17 to a man 27. I thought before marriage that I loved him, and he me; however, our life has been nothing but ups and downs for the past 14 years. I had to go to town and work so that I could buy my family the things they need plus all the food. He will not give me any money from the farm, yet I have helped him as much as I possibly could financially, and purchased all our house furnishings.

He has no friends. The neighbors don't want anything to do with him. He thinks people talk behind his back about him and he comes home and raves to me. He has absolutely no knowledge of homemaking. His demands are sickening.

DORIS CLARK

Sometimes I feel like going and finding someone who loves me and knows how to treat me kindly, as I am sure there must be kinder people in the world.

Doris, I could go on and on as I just have to tell someone. I should talk to our minister but I can't muster the courage, although he knows that I must find it hard, as he has mentioned things like — "your husband is sort of different," but I didn't say anything.

I don't know whether to take my children and leave this man or just keep my hands to the plow. — NO-LONGER-LOVING WIFE.

DEAR NO-LONGER-LOVING: At the tender age of 17 you married a man ten years your senior. He took unfair advantage of this. He still keeps the upper hand and assumes that he knows everything — even in the area of lovemaking. And it just isn't so.

If you had both been the same age at marriage you would have had a far better chance to assert yourself and bring about reasonable compromises. You might even have kept his disposition from going sour.

Help reclaim your own balance by talking to that understanding minister. If there is any chance for change, give your marriage that chance.

St. Julien Chapter IODE Plans Future

The October meeting of the St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held at the home of Mrs. W.E. Sandercock, 226 Willson Street.

The business session was opened in regular order with the regent, Mrs. R. E. Ellis, presiding. Everyone expressed satisfaction on the success of the district dinner, celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the chapter, and the regent thanked all the committees that had helped and worked so hard to make it the memorable affair that it was.

A new member was welcomed to the chapter, Mrs. D. Dickert from Dauphin, Manitoba.

In lieu of a fall tuxney making project it was decided that each member would raise and turn in "talent money."

The usual wreath will be purchased to be placed at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day.

Pocket books to be sent to service personnel overseas and gifts to be sent to the Fox Nursing Station in the Northwest Territories were brought to the meeting.

The educational secretary, Mrs. C. B. Whittemore, announced the award winners of the prizes to be presented at the several High School commencements. They are: the $100 bursary to Elizabeth Ann Thompson, Moira; the $25.00 prize for progress in English to children of naitjnalized New Canadians, Moira John Vandevooren; Nicholson, Regina Prokopczuk; Quinte, Christopher Pleisler, and B.C.I. and V.S., Bruce Sato.

Mrs. Hume, world afafirs convener, gave a timely talk on Singapore.

The Regent, Mrs. Ellis, was named as the Chapter's representative to the semi - annual Provincial meeting to be held in Niagara Falls October 20-21st.

Tentative plans were discussed for the presentation of a concert by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, with Robert and Hazleanne Reid as guest soloists, in early February.

Following the meeting, lunch was served by Mrs. Hrachovec and Mrs. Gagliotti and a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Sandercock for the use of her home.

Birth Control Devices Said Over-rated

VANCOUVER (CP) — Science's latest device for birth control has been over-rated, says a prominent Vancouver gynecologist.

Dr. John Dickinson told the B.C. Medical Association convention that the intra - uterine contraceptive device — which can take the form of a loop, a spiral or a bow shaped of metal or plastic — is by no means a perfect contraceptive despite the wide publicity given it.

He said the gadget, inserted into the uterus by a doctor, can cause pain and bleeding and can be expelled. Even when it gives no trouble, he said, it does not give complete protection against conception.

The device, called IUCD by doctors, has been on the market for about four years and is being used as a birth-control measure in underdeveloped countries as well as in North America.

Club Activities

WEDDING RING CLUB

The first meeting of the season of College Hill Wedding Ring Club was held recently in the church hall with a good turnout of 36 members and two visitors.

The business meeting was presided over by President Merrit Waite with considerable time given to discussion of installation of a P.A. system in the church and the presentation of a "Variety Show" under the direction of member Larry Brown.

Devotions were led by Margery and Herb. Kerr with several members taking part.

Entertainment took the form of a "Fun Night" under the leadership of Ken and Lela Belcour's group, consisting of a rousing sing-song, humorous readings, games and skits and a surprise catch-up of summer news about club members.

An enjoyable lunch and social time closed a successful evening.

BLOND BROWNIES (from October 1968 — retested):

¼ cup butter, 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 medium-large eggs, ¾ cup (1 cup less 2 tablespoons) unsifted all-purpose flour, ½ tsp. baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans.

Beat together until very light the butter and sugar. Beat in eggs until light and smooth. Add flour, baking powder and salt. Beat until thoroughly blended. Add vanilla and nuts. Spread evenly in 8¾ x 8¾ x 1¾" buttered pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 23 to 25 minutes. Cool in pan to lukewarm, mark into squares. Store in pan.

QUESTION:

There is a cake recipe going the rounds in our neighborhood called Lemon Cake and I like it. It calls for 2 packages . . . white cake mix. Can I use other cake mixes? If you are not familiar with it it calls for 1 package of lemon jelly powder, ¾ cup each cold water and salad oil and 4 eggs. You bake it and while it is hot you pour over it a mixture of 2 cups icing sugar and the juice of 2 lemons, after pricking holes in top. Another thing: could I have the recipe in half? It is too large for my family. Martha M.

ANSWER:

I am familiar with the recipe. You can use any of the pouch pack white cake mixes (that call for 1 egg to be added). I made up half the recipe that you describe and here it is:

LEMON CAKE (½ recipe):

1 package, pouch pack, white cake mix, ½ package lemon jello (3 level tablespoons plus 2 level teaspoons), ¾ cup (¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons) cold water, ¾ cup (¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons) salad oil, 2 eggs.

Into mixing bowl put—all above ingredients and with rotary or electric beater beat until smooth and no lumps remain. Turn into 8 x 8 x 2" pan lined with buttered wax paper and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 18 to 20 minutes. While cake is hot prick all over with knitting needle at 1" intervals and pour over Icing: 1 cup unsifted icing sugar mixed with juice of 1 lemon (2 tablespoons). Let cool. Cut into squares. Okay?

Modern Dress For Religious Orders Passed

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council opened the way Thursday for modern fashions in Roman Catholic religious garb.

Chastity was reaffirmed for members of the church's religious orders.

The council, in approving sections of a document outlining ways to modernize the orders, recommended that heads of those orders teach the benefits of chastity and be certain that no one is accepted as a nun, priest or brother unless psychologically prepared to accept chastity.

There were these recommendations on appareL:

—Dress for men and women of religious orders should be simple, neat and appropriate.

—Decisions on changing garb to conform with these principles should be left up to the individual community and not to the officers of the Vatican.

When the document voted on Thursday is promulgated, probably later this month as a council decree, the change to modern style clothes is expected to become widespread.

Rationing and Conservation Drives Alter Living Patterns

By JEAN SHARP

If you've bought a pair of ockings that don't matched, ist boil them together in col-

The cuffs of 54 pairs of trous- will make a bottle dress.

The tops of woollen socks wn to flannelette will make a arm dressing gown for a rich- child.

Anyone old enough to remem- er what life was like in Can- da during the Second World War will be stirred by these chons from the past.

Rationing, shortages, conser- ration and salvage drives all- red living patterns in a meth- ode of small ways a quarter of a century ago.

Waste became unpatriotic. A second cup of coffee was a treat. Little frugalities and makeshifts were passed along with the sort of enthusiasm housewives normally reserve for successful recipes.

Twenty-five years later, the strongest over-all impression is that patriotism really wasn't strenuous.

It began for most Canadians as late as April, 1940, when gasoline was rationed. It ended when sugar rationing was lifted in November, 1947.

HELP FOR HOUSEWIVES — This is one of th menus published by the government to help housewives plan a week's meals using a minimum of ration coupons. Tongue can be served hot with a tangy sauce or cold in jellied form, according to the dictates of the weather. If you haven't had Sunday guests, you should have a useful leftover for week-day lunches. Billed for Monday is a veal fricasee, toothsome and tempting. Macarroni, baked in a nippy cheese sauce is an excellent dairy dish for meatless Tuesday, and calls for a sprightly toss of salad vegetables. Your stale bread may be converted into a good dressing to stuff and stretch a beef flank to be served hot on Wednesday and sliced cold for Thursday. Friday is for fish. Frankfurters are suggested for Saturday, in keeping with the summer picnic spirit. A beef shank provides the base for a hearty vegetable soup. It can help to replace the usual sandwich lunch, thus saving bread for which the hungry abroad are crying. Also saved from the week's eating are four tokens.

On June 20th, two sugar-preserves coupons, S 15 and S 16 become valid. Accordingly, a family of four will have a total of eight coupons for sweets spending. The advancing season making fresh fruits more plentiful can mean many simply-prepared and unsugared desserts. It is therefore an opportune time to spare some sugar from your regular coupon allotment to preserve fruit for winter usage. Your present shelf stocks may need extending with a jar of bread spread or couple of tins of fruit which are budgeted for in the above purchase pattern.

would be 40 m.p.h. to save tires. No more railroads would be available.

Around this time the tempo of entitlements began to accelerate. There would be no brass or bronze for non - essentials, some types of bakery products were restricted, production of radios slowed, the manufacture of small appliances stopped.

Sugar, tea and coffee rationing arrived in stages. In January, 1942, prices board chairman Donald Gordon asked Canadians to limit themselves voluntarily to three-quarters of a pound of sugar a week.

BOOKS ISSUED

In May they were asked to cut their sugar to half a pound a week and reduce their tea by one-half and coffee by one-quarter. It was still voluntary.

In June it was announced there would be sugar rationing beginning at the end of the month. Rationing of tea and coffee followed in August.

Temporary ration cards were issued first, then little books that Canadian housewives would carry until Nov. 2, 1947. The first one, issued in September, had pink sugar tickets, green tickets for coffee or tea (not both) and blue, brown and black tickets for items not yet designated.

You had to turn in your old book to get a new one. If you lost it you needed a sworn affidavit before you could obtain a replacement.

Late in 1942 the dim - out started. Street and display lighting was cut to conserve power.

That was also the year men's clothing was changed by law, never to revert to pre - war styles. A ban went on cuffs, double - breasted jackets or vests, golf bloomers for boys' suits, belted or pleated backs. Coat length for size 38 was 29½ inches.

Women's styles were frozen. There were to be no new patterns available until after the war. Fabrics were scarce.

Mrs. W. R. Walton of Toronto, war action worker in the consumer branch of the prices board, remembers welcoming servicewomen back to civilian life with hints on how to recut, redye and remodel great coats and uniforms because they would not be able to get materials easily.

MEATLESS TUESDAYS

Butter rationing began Dec. 21, 1942, with the limit half a pound a week per person. Meat rationing and meatless Tuesdays in restaurants started in the spring of 1943. You could have a-pound to 2½ pounds of meat per person a week depending on the kind of meat.

The A coupon entitled you to half a pound of boneless meats, the D to 1½ pounds of black roast, sausage, legs of lamb.

Canned fruits, jams and molasses went on the ration list that summer. In September, Canadians were told not to swap rations or lend or borrow rationed food but many ignored the directive.

Groups held penny raffles for extra staples to raise money for war work. An IODE member recalls taking unrationed but scarce food items to meetings, usually auctioned by guests, where those present bid for the food.

Laura C. Pepper of the department of agriculture was given an MBE for helping Canadians cope with rationing. A 1945 release from her section suggested serving hot desserts because they seemed sweeter than cold ones.

One unofficial recipe - creator was Kate Aitken whose Monday evening broadcasts over a Toronto radio station were cooking schools that featured a week's menus, all within the limits set by rationing.

About 400 women attended each broadcast and Mrs. Aitken says they did war work while there, spending an hour sorting magazines that had been sent in for men on ships and in the dockyard at Halifax.

USED WORN SOCKS

"There was a third thing which sounds kind of funny now. We had people send in worn socks. The women cut off the heels and toes and sewed the rest on a flannelette lining to make dressing gowns for destitute children. We took care of 15 nursery schools in England."

In late 1943 it was announced that tires might again be reclaimed with reclaimed rubber in order to keep as much transportation moving as possible. Tires, tubes, tire chains and the threat of shortages diminished, other restrictions were eased in 1944. Meat rationing was suspended, tea and coffee ration was doubled to four ounces of tea and a pound of coffee.

On VE-Day a reduction in the sugar ration served as a reminder that all shortages would not suddenly end the day the war did. But many products were soon available nevertheless.

Bicycles and washing machines could be manufactured. There was elastic for girdles. And by June, 1945, a month after the end of the war in Europe, the government gave the green light for production of 10,000 cars.

—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that relaxation of restrictions would be coordinated in Canada and the United States—as many of the curbs had been—to discourage the black market and hoarding.

MEAT FOR EUROPE

In July, 1945, meat rationing was back on a more stringent basis than before, this time so meat could be sent to Europe. Meatless Tuesdays and Fridays were introduced. Meat tokens got you 1 1-3 pounds per person a week.

But by the following January only 34 of the 300 production and distribution controls remained aside from price controls. And only one rationing order remained outside the food field—it was a control governing distribution of railway watches which were still scarce.

The last controls were eased and lifted item by item over the next year and a half. Meat rationing came to an end in February, 1947, butter rationing in June.

On Nov. 2, 1947, sugar rationing was over—the first food rationed was the last one freed. A newspaper story that day read: "The Canadian housewife tonight could throw away her ration book, that little multicolored coupon leaflet that has been her constant shopping companion since 1942."

LACE RACE

Dear Susanna: I'm 50 years old, but it took my teen - age daughter to show me the best trick I've seen in a long time.

Shortly before she was to leave the house one morning, her shoelace broke. (She must wear black oxfords with her school uniform). I found a lace to match, in texture and color, but it was way too long, and cut and had to cut off a bit. It was a thick lace, this left it very difficult to thread. I noticed a reader had suggested dipping the end in glue, but then it wouldn't have had time to harden.

With an "It's OK, mom," she laced her shoe in a few seconds by starting at the top! She inserted the metal clip end into the first hole and pulled it through until the other end was the right length for tying. Then she continued down the shoe, using the metal clip only, criss-crossing as she went, but only threading every other eyelet. She crossed it over at the bottom and came back up the same way. I'm glad we've got such bright young people to take our place in the world, aren't you? — "Mom".

I'm amazed every single day by the wonder of them! — SUSANNA

NO SLIP GRIP

Dear Susanna: Just a wee hint. A strong elastic band, wound tightly around a mop or broom handle, will stp it slipping through the little round ball hangers used for same. — Evangeline Brownlie

Ann Landers

Son Must Accept Father's Poor Choice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law has been a widower since 1955. We hoped he would marry one of the fine women he has been taking out because soon he will be 80 years of age.

Last night he brought over a knock-kneed blonde who wore white lipstick, no eyebrows, and a red dress cut down to her navel. His first words were, "Meet the wife." My husband almost passed out. Finally he said, "Are you Daisy Dimple?" She giggled and answered, "Yes, but you can call me Mother."

ANN LANDERS

Ann, my husband used to go to school with that girl. She is two years younger than he is. He couldn't stand her then and he doesn't want her in our house now. I'm trying to keep peace in the family. Please help me. — BE-FUDDLED.

DEAR B: Since Doris is obviously your father-in-law's choice, Daisy though she may be, you should both accept her.

Keep the relationship on an invitation-only basis. Follow the directions on the jar of salad dressing. "Keep cool, but don't freeze."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 17. Last Sunday our preacher's sermon was on teen-age drinking. He asked all teenagers to come to the front of the church and swear before God that they would not drink liquor before they reached their 21st birthday.

I do not drink and I don't plan to — even after I am 21 — but I didn't feel like going up there in front of all those people.

Last night four kids who took the oath bought a bottle of whiskey and got loaded after a ball game. I was disgusted with them. They will all be in church Sunday like nothing happened.

This morning my mother said she was disappointed in me because I didn't take the oath. She wants me to do it tomorrow. I don't want to. What is your opinion? — NO HYPOCRITE.

* * *

DEAR NO: The only thing about an oath that matters is whether or not you keep it. Some people need an incentive — like a public declaration. Others need nothing except a strong set of convictions.

If you don't feel comfortable about taking the oath, don't do it. From the tone of your letter I'd bet my bottom dollar on you — that you're not.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You won't print my letter because it goes against your advice which is O.K. for light reading but people can't live by it.

After 18 years of marriage I am bored with my wife, the kids, my in-laws and our Tuesday night bridge game. I met a young woman who made me feel like I had some red blood in my veins. We managed to get together four nights a week. We took some nice little trips.

Some big mouth told my wife. She made it plain she wasn't going to break up our home just because I was off my nut. She said she hoped I regained my senses before the kids got wind of what was going on. After a few months the fire was out. When I told my wife her only comment was, "It's about time."

I know I'll never get a divorce and my wife handled it just right. She didn't throw a fit or nag at me, she just let me run out my string. Now everyone is happy and no one was hurt. So you see, I do have a point. Don't it? — BUSTER.

DEAR BUSTER: Yes, you've got a point but if you comb your hair over to the side it may not show.

O.K. So your wife didn't slash her wrists. That doesn't mean she didn't agonize plenty. You are lucky to have a woman who had the strength and courage to ride out the storm. Luckier than you deserve.

bladder with stones" — something they decided should be removed through surgery. Johnson himself chose the date for the operation.

Though the president had a moderately severe heart attack 10 years ago, the doctors said the risk involved was "very low indeed."

Dr. George W. Hallenbeck of the Mayo Clinic, who removed the gall bladder, said Johnson might be able to get out of bed later in the day—surely by Saturday. But, said Hallenbeck, the president won't feel as good as new for perhaps six weeks.

Johnson, who frequently runs behind schedule, was tardy for his admission to hospital. Night debate in the House of Representatives on a highway beautification bill — chose to Mrs. Johnson's heart — delayed the president's departure for hospital.

Mrs. Johnson and their 18-year-old daughter Lucy Baines spent the night in hospital, in rooms adjoining the president's third-floor suite. Daughter Lynda Bird, 21, remained at the University of Texas in Austin, where she is a senior.

Johnson's hospital stay is forecast for 10 to 14 days, to be followed by several weeks of reduced activity during recuperation either at the White House or, perhaps, his Texas ranch.

Gen. Graham said:

"I think the exchange acted properly in Windfall. Had it been left with us, instead of being taken out of our hands by the OSC, the stock would have been suspended or Windfalls assay results would have been released sooner than they were.

"The commissioner thought we were wrong. I thought we were right. It's a difference of opinion."

The exchange will move in the next two months to improve the practices and procedures of the exchange, Gen. Graham said. The steps will decide the future of primary distribution and examine professional trading on the floor.

Northern Makes Receivers To Track Celestial Bodies

Northern Electric Company at Belleville manufactured the tracking receivers and mode couplers for a big 30 - foot precision tracking antenna which, when completed, will scan Canadian skies outside Ottawa for signals from celestial bodies.

The precision tracking antenna was designed and manufactured by Northern Electric Co. Ltd., with Canadair Ltd. as a major sub - contractor for the structural parts.

The antenna will be used by the Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment in Ottawa to carry out its research program on satellite communications.

Tracking receivers built in Belleville receive signals from the communication satellites and convert such signals into information which keeps the antenna aimed at the satellite for optimum reception as it makes its traverse.

The mode couplers are used to separate the tracking information from the other transmissions.

at the man he called his colleague, he said:

"At times we are accused, Mr. Robarts—the two of us—of trying to centralize all the power in our hands — you are accused with me—to put it in Bay St. and St. James St."

Mr. Robarts supported Mr. Lesage's comments on their interprovincial relationship, telling the editors there was a "great degree of unpublicized cooperation between Ontario and Quebec in education, highways and other fields of government endeavor. He recalled that in a speech 1½ years ago he mentioned his awareness of an apprehension that Canadian Confederation could break up. He had reassured his audience Canada would stay together.

Today such reassurance would not even be needed, Mr. Robarts said.

NOTES HOSTILITY

In a prepared speech at Thursday night's dinner, Premier Lesage told of feeling a "latent hostility" during his western speaking tour but said he felt indifference and misconceptions about Quebec in the West were falling off.

"I really believe that I have achieved the objective I had set for myself on this trip," he said. "I wanted my English-speaking counterparts to get to know Quebec's attitudes, aims and problems."

Mr. Lesage called for a greater exchange of newspaper correspondents between Eastern and Western Canada, saying many misconceptions between English- and French-speaking Canadians were the result of a lack of communication. Newspapers seldom printed stories on provincial affairs from outside of their own provinces.

Pillars of Security

The Boy Scouts

Eleventh of a series of articles on the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal, explaining the functions of the agencies and their reasons for being included in the United Appeal Campaign.

Be prepared! That's the well-known call of the Boy Scout movement.

Really though, that call is only partially complete. It could be "Be prepared for adulthood," "Be prepared for citizenship," "Be prepared to serve," or a host of others, all designed to show that the Boy Scout's purpose is to learn to serve his country, his community, his family and his God.

The Boy Scouts are a member agency of the Belleville United Appeal, and Alan Glover, chairman of Belleville district Boy Scouts, is a firm believer in Scouting as a builder of character and as a counter to juvenile delinquency.

He said Belleville is well served by Scouting and other organizations. In his experience there was more delinquency in small communities of about 500, where there were no such groups, than in the larger towns and cities.

BUILDS CITIZENSHIP

"Scouting," he said, "builds good citizenship and self-reliance, inculcates loyalty and thoughtfulness for others, and promotes physical, mental and spiritual development."

Young people are subject to both home and community training and Mr. Glover feels that one is nearly as important as the other.

"However, people forget that training in the home is not sufficient. You have to have community guidance."

Because of the death of Scout secretary Mrs. Flora Gelsthorpe, latest membership figures are not available, but as of January 1, 1964, Belleville had 771 cubs, or 35 per cent of the population in that age group, and 380 scouts, representing 24 per cent of their age group.

Mr. Glover said field activities this year had included visits to Camp Saganaska at Thomasburg and Algonquin Park.

The stated objective of the Boy Scouts of Canada is the development of good citizenship by the formation of character; training in habits of observation, obedience and self-reliance; inculcating loyalty and thoughtfulness for others; teaching services useful to the public, and handicrafts useful to the boy; and promoting physical, mental and spiritual growth.

ARE SELF-SUPPORTING

Funds received from the United Appeal are used mainly for adult leadership training, programs and general administration expenses of the Belleville District Council. Since all packs and troops are self-supporting, no Appeal funds are used as direct contributions to them to buy uniforms and so on.

The Scouts operate camping facilities for summer camping and these are self-supporting through camper's fees. Only a token amount of Appeal funds is used in this area. All capital expenditures involved in maintaining and developing such facilities are provided through funds raised by the boys, and by a portion of the Apple Day proceeds.

During the past several years, Gold Cubs and Scouts have attended Water Safety classes as part of Scouting's general program. All received their swimmers' badges while a great many received rescue badges.

It is a matter of record that as a result of the knowledge gained through water safety instruction, Belleville Scouts have been responsible for saving at least three lives in recent years.

SERVES MILLIONS

Since its beginnings in the early years of this century, Scouting has served and influenced millions of Canadians by helping them to prepare to be based on the principle of learning by doing; developing good health and fitness habits; appreciation of and experience in the outdoors, and community service.

of practical service, not only in the day-to-day life of their community, but in time of war, hurricane, flood and other disasters.

Today in every province, as well as the Yukon, the North West Territories and the Arctic, over 319,000 Canadian boys and adults are actively engaged in the program of the Boy Scout Movement.

Scouting came to Canada after its introduction in England in 1907.

Younger boys, anxious to get into the Movement, brought about the organization of the Wolf Cub section in 1916, and in 1917 the Rover Scout program for young men was initiated. Sea Scouts had become a part of the Bog Scout section in its early days. Lone Cubs and Scouts were formed to serve boys living in areas where it was not possible to organize packs or troops, because of limited numbers or long distances.

Basically, the Movement informs boys that they are expected to love and serve God, respect the human dignity and rights of individuals and recognize the obligations on the individual to develop and maintain his potential to the best of his ability.

FOUR PARTS

The program of Boy Scouts of Canada is divided into four parts, each part being designed to fit the needs and abilities of a certain age group.

The first, the Wolf Pack, is for boys from eight to 10 years old. It provides accelerated development through crafts, games, singing, play acting, stories and the introduction of camping and gives a comprehensive list of special interest activities, through star and badge work schemes.

The Boy Scout Troop, for boys aged 11 to 17 provides opportunities for: membership in small friendship and interest groups known as patrols; challenging and appealing activities

The Venturers, a new program now being developed for youth in the age group of 14 to 17, will help youth adapt to the world of the adult by meeting other people, going places and doing things. It will draw its specific activities from the interests of the members, and make greater use of youth leadership and of community resources and people with specialized skills.

The Rover Crew, a brotherhood of the open air and service, for young men from 18 to 23, allows each member to develop his own individual program best suited to his own personal interests.

33,000 LEADERS

Today, in Canada, over 33,000 uniformed volunteers work each week with the various sections of the movement. In order that each leader will be fully qualified to handle his responsibilities a progressive plan of training is provided by the Boy Scouts of Canada. It includes instruction in every phase of the program and takes the form of everything from a one evening session to a full week in camp. Therefore, even a person with no previous Scouting experience can become a successful leader.

Behind the uniformed leaders are thousands of men and women serving on executive committees on the district, regional, provincial and national levels, as well as on group committees and ladies' auxiliaries — each doing his or her part to make Scouting work for and serve their community.

The Boy Scouts of Canada employs an executive staff numbering about 108 who work throughout the country assisting the volunteer leaders to discharge their responsibilities and to promote the best possible management of resources.

The Boy Scouts are truly a worthwhile organization, working to make a better Canada and a better community, through the better preparation of its citizens.

You can share in this investment in our future. When the United Appeal asks you to give, you can "Be Prepared!"

Lloyd Woolsey of Napanee Chosen Liberal Candidate For P. E.-Lennox Riding

NAPANEE — The Liberal Association of Prince Edward-Lennox held its nomination meeting Thursday night at the Napanee and District Secondary School. Nearly 600 people arrived in spite of the heavy downpour of rain, to choose a candidate for the Liberal Party.

Mr. Lloyd Woolsey, Napanee, received the nomination by a large majority over the opposing nominee, Dr. Lionel Dockrill of Picton. The only other person nominated was Mr. L. Smart, mayor of Napanee, who declined.

Robert Clapp spoke on behalf of Mr. Woolsey and introduced him to the delegates and told of his background in business and with the party. William Lane introduced Dr. Dockrill and told of his history with the party and his many varied interests in Picton.

Dr. Dockrill, a newcomer to the Liberal Party, told of being a Tory as little as two years ago, and compared the Conservative party to the large pear tree in his back yard. It grows big, bushy and tall and it bears fruit but the bugs have eaten out the inside.

"The fruit is bitter and wormy and would not want anyone to go out on its branches," he said.

Two years ago he cast his first Liberal vote and he handed Mr. Woolsey and Mrs. Slaven, President of the Association in Prince Edward, for Dockrill getting his eyes. He compared Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson, stating one is a statesman and the other a politician and "we all know who is the statesman."

Mr. Pearson does not shout and bawl and shake his head. Mr. Dockrill claims to have helped get Mr. Diefenbaker elected and then accuses him of bowing it, and wrecking the economy.

TALKED AT LENGTH

Dr. Dockrill continued at some length, in fact about 15 minutes longer than allowed, but gave a real pep talk to the delegates. To win this election he said the Liberals must try to change the Tory mind because there is no hope in the N.D.P. followers as they are not smart enough to be Liberals. He also thanked Mr. D. Aikenbrack P. C. candidate in an open debate but would like Mr. Aikenbrack to answer without notes written for him by someone else. He said the Tories should vote for the one willing the words, then lost, their vote would have gains to go with it.

Mr. Woolsey told the meeting why he allowed his name to stand a third time after two unsuccessful elections. He felt that he had an unfinished mission and that there was a necessity in the riding to re-establish the proper opposition to the party, which has been in power federally here for the past 70 years. He said the Liberals would not be upheld by Canada if they did not try to oppose. In 1901 Mr. Diefenbaker swept Canada to the point of holding it in his hand but then Canadians found something wrong with the government increased, unemployment fund decreased and there was no work opportunity. That was when Mr. Woolsey turned his concern to action and with Liberals, worked very hard.

"We spent a lot of time and money but did not quite make it but I feel sure we will this time," he said. "The Liberals will go back and this riding should go along with them and get their share of prosperity."

INTRODUCED SPEAKER

Don Baxter, a former MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox introduced the speaker, the Honorable Harry Hayes, Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Hayes spoke on his earlier life and how he came to be in politics. He started his career as mayor of Calgary and is now a minister in Mr. Pearson's cabinet. Mr. Hayes said they have a team in Ottawa made up of the chairman of Agriculture, Fisheries and Finance, and when a problem arises the team goes together to help solve it.

He spoke on some of the highlights of the program the Liberal government will undertake after the present election. The goal of the farm policy is that the family farm should be able to produce a living as good as the average industrial wage, at present about $4,200 a year.

He stated the Liberal government will further improve the crop insurance program to encourage the provinces, in cooperation with the Federal government, to make crop insurance available to every Canadian farmer. Over the next 18 months. New amendments will increase the level of coverage and offer coverage more suitable for mixed farming. The federal share of farmers' premiums will be expanded from the present 20 per cent to 25 per cent, provided the provinces agree to pay five per cent to bring total premium subsidization to 30 per cent and to continue to match the present federal payment of 50 per cent of administration costs.

WILL PROVIDE LOANS

New loans will be provided to help farmers recover from disasters not covered by crop insurance. Amortization of these loans will not begin until farm production units have been rehabilitated.

Because of the increasing complexity of farming, there is an urgent need for a pool of farm management information and assistance available for the family farmer in all regions of Canada. To meet this need, the federal government will, after consultation with the provinces, establish a Canadian Farm Management service, with offices in all main regions, to make available to any farmer in Canada assistance in keeping records, determining market trends, and planning production.

A Canadian Dairy Commission will be established to give Producers of manufacturing milk control over prices, quality and exports of their product. The objective will be further to increase the national average price of manufacturing milk, in keeping with production costs. This is expected to lead soon to a national average price of from $3.75 to $4.00 per hundredweight for all manufacturing milk used in the domestic market. By encouraging restoration of seasonal production, producers' costs may also be reduced, thereby further increasing their total annual net earnings.

In conclusion Mr. Hayes said there was no reason they should not have a good agricultural department because they can observe from all the rest of the world. He feels this should be a country of dairy production but is afraid if any more dairy farmers are lost dairy product would have to be imported.

Mr. Erwell Hutt, Reeve of Hungerford thanked Mr. Hayes and presented him with a piece of cheese from Canada's champion cheesemaker in London. Mr. Hayes remarked some places he goes he gets cheese, and other places he gets bell.

Wilfred McCabe, President of the Liberal Association, was chairman of the rally. Platform guests were Don Baxter, Alec Williams, Vice-President, John Munroe, treasurer, and Ken Casey Secretary.

Mrs. Marie Wild provided delightful organ music during intermissions.

Crown-owned Shares May Be Sold to Public

SARNIA, (CP)—Some Crown owned shares of Polymer Corp., the only government synthetics plant here, may be sold to the general public but ownership will be concentrated in Canada, Finance Minister Gordon said Thursday night.

Addressing the local Canadian Club, Mr. Gordon said the government — if re - elected in the Nov. 8 election—will establish the proposed $1,000,000,000 Canadian Development Corp. and have it take over all of Polymer's shares initially.

The Development Corp. is to be financed by the sale of shares to individuals with the federal government retaining no more than a 10-per-cent interest. It will be a holding company for new and existing enterprises.

The finance minister said the government wants to carry out a recommendation of the Glassco royal commission on government organization and free Polymer from government ownership.

FEARS FOREIGN CONTROL

"We live in an age where many industries, including the petro - chemical industry, are dominated by a relatively few companies," he said. "If the shares of Polymer were sold to the public, it might not be long before a majority of them were acquired by one or other of the large companies in the petro-chemical field, all of which are controlled by non-residents of Canada."

He said this risk would be avoided if the government sold its Polymer shares to the Canadian Development Corporation. But this would not preclude some of Polymer's shares going into individual ownership.
